WPB WILL STOP 66% OF BUILDING OF ARMS PLANTS

Stresses Making of Munitions Now.

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—A spokesman for the War Production board said tonight that virtually all contracts for war plants which cannot be completed and in production by mid-1943 would be canceled.

The drastic decision—giving complete emphasis to chairman Donald M. Nelson's "do it now" philosophy—means, he added, that approximately two thirds of all the war plant construction approved or under contract will be abandoned.

WPB was said to have been guided to this decision by two major considerations: Severe shortages of raw materials and belief that developments this spring and summer may spell a turning point in the war.

Cuts Out Steel Plants.

It was explained that construction will be pushed on such facilities as synthetic rubber and aviation gasoline plants, but will be cut down on such projects as new steel plants.

The raw materials "pinch" has reached the point, it was understood, where WPB now has determined to concentrate available supplies on production of arms and munitions rather than on the plants in which they are made.

Facilities already "substantially under way" will be completed. All war construction authorized or under contract, but not yet begun, will be reviewed and evaluated on the basis of answers to four questions: Is the project absolutely necessary? Can existing plants or facilities be used instead of new construction? How much of a drain will it be on materials supplies? When would it be in production?

New Plants to Be Temporary.

Further, if and when new plants are approved in the future, they will be erected strictly as temporary buildings—probably constructed largely of wood and using little if any steel.

Prospects of a major 1942 offensive by the united nations, it was understood, developed some apprehension that if too much emphasis were placed on 1943 war production goals, this year's output might be hampered seriously. Thus, WPB has determined to produce 60,000 planes, 45,000 tanks, and eight million tons of shipping in 1942 and deal with the vastly increased program for 1943 when that time comes, officials explained.

Steel supplies will go into ships and guns and tanks which are needed immediately, rather than into new steel plants which cannot be completed until late next year or in 1944.

LITTLE EFFECT ON CHICAGO.

At the Chicago offices of the WPB officials said yesterday that the contract cancelation order apparently would have little effect on projects in this area. Several large plants supplying aviation requirements, munitions, and synthetic rubber either are in production or are scheduled for construction in time to be in service before the middle of 1943.

HEPBURN LOOSES HER FULL FURY ON A CAMERA MAN

The photographer, Robert L. Purdy, of the Bulletin-Index, a weekly magazine, was scratched on the hands before Policeman James Rimmel broke up the match.

Wearing tan slacks, Miss Hepburn had walked back stage to prepare for her final Pittsburgh matinée performance in "Without Love," when Purdy surprised her.

"Why, you . . .," she screamed, as she leaped at him.

SPECIAL COLOR FEATURE.

In all issues of tomorrow's Tribune will appear a full page color feature describing in pictures what is expected to become a new patriotic vogue. This will be of special interest to women and girls who wish to keep up with the fashions and at the same time contribute to the country's war effort. Watch for this feature tomorrow.

HERE'S SUMMARY OF NEWS FROM WORLD FRONTS

War's latest developments:

The Russian offensive against Kharkov, in the Ukraine, continued, with the Reds successfully advancing, capturing booty and prisoners and disabling 70 German tanks, according to Moscow. While the Russian communique reported stubborn battles continuing around the city of Kerch on the Crimean peninsula, 300 miles south, Berlin claimed the city and its harbor had been taken and "the battle brought to a victorious conclusion."

Sink German Transport.

The Russian communique said an 8,000 ton German transport and a destroyer were sunk in the Barents sea and a second destroyer was damaged by soviet planes and warships. Destruction of 56 German planes on Friday was claimed as against 13 soviet losses.

On the Burma front, practically cleared of the British army, the Chinese army threw a Japanese force of 10,000 men out of the town of Mong Lin, in eastern Burma, inflicting 1,000 casualties, Chungking announced. Fighting was also reported in the vicinity of Kengtung, capital of one of the Shan states of Burma. The remnants of the British army, numbering fewer than 5,000, were preparing for a last stand to keep the Japs out of India as long as possible.

RAF Sets Ships Afire.

The RAF using American bombers blasted at two German convoys off the Frisian coast of Holland, leaving three supply ships burning and four others probably damaged.

One RAF bomber, said the air ministry, with his plane on fire made a suicide dive into a ship and the plane exploded, setting the ship afire.

The British admitted losing five bombers in the attack, and the Nazi high command claimed the destruction of 14 British planes over western Europe in the last 24 hours.

ALLIES RAID JAP BASE 3 TIMES; BAG 9 PLANES

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 17 [Sunday] (AP).—Allied planes in three new attacks on the Japanese air base at Lae, northeastern New Guinea, destroyed eight enemy bombers on the ground, shot down one fighter, and started numerous fires among buildings, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Hear Big Jap Fleet at Sea.

LONDON, May 16 (AP).—The Paris radio, heard here quoted a Stefani message from Shanghai today saying a new Japanese fleet more important than that engaged in the Coral sea battle is en route toward northern Australia.

Luxemburg Grand Duchess Coming to U. S. Next Week

LONDON, May 16 (AP).—Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxemburg, an exile since her little country was overrun by the Germans in May, 1940, is leaving England for the United States next week-end, it was announced today.

Quintuplets Reported Born to African Mother

BERNE, Switzerland, May 16.—A native of Pdor, Senegal, French Africa, has given birth to quintuplets, it was reported today. She was said to have become the mother of two boys and three girls.

FIRST REVIEW OF WAR BY U. S. ARMY AND NAVY!

Inventory Taken by Fighting Forces.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—The army and navy tonight issued a joint review of the first five months of the war, taking inventory of the reversals and successes, and concluding with the solemn assurance that the United States will win the victory.

Altho the review contained no new information, its 4,000 words constituted the first official analysis of the war to date. While reverses appear to outweigh successes, the review warned that what may appear to be reverses may in the long run turn out actually to be successes, because forces are being organized at key positions.

The theme of the review was that all that has come to pass to date is a prelude and that a new phase of the conflict is about to open in which the United States will take the offensive. The review defended the division of American forces among the various theaters.

Attack—U. S. Policy.

"The American concept of conducting a war has always been and will continue to be offensive in nature," the review said. "Sound military policy requires the concentration of all available resources on the main effort with the maximum economy of forces in the secondary theaters. This situation may result in apparent reverses which are, within the large strategic picture, actually successes."

In promising ultimate victory the review asserted that the united nations have made tremendous strides in establishing unified command.

"During the first five months of American participation in the war we have met reverses and have enjoyed some successes, but the unity of purpose of the American people and their grim determination to avenge the foul blow of Dec. 7 and rid the world of militaristic aggressors cannot be denied and will, in the end, prove the righteousness of the cause to which the united nations have so unstintingly dedicated their man power, their resources, and their futures," the review concluded.

Move 600,000 Men.

Altho the treacherous Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and the Philippines caught the United States by surprise, the review said that the United States was not without plans to meet the attack.

In the first three weeks of the war some 600,000 men were moved to "battle stations," in a world conflict that necessitated employment of strategic considerations unique in the history of this country. Some of these troops were moved across the Atlantic, Indian, and Pacific oceans to basic outposts extending from Alaska to Australia in the west and from Iceland to South America in the east.

Losses at Pearl Harbor were not detailed beyond the general term "several naval vessels" and "a number of army and navy combat planes." Immediate American attention, the review said, focused on the Philippines and the heroic defense against Japanese odds. Tribute was paid to Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Adm. Thomas C. Hart, head of the Asiatic fleet.

Epic Stand in Philippines.

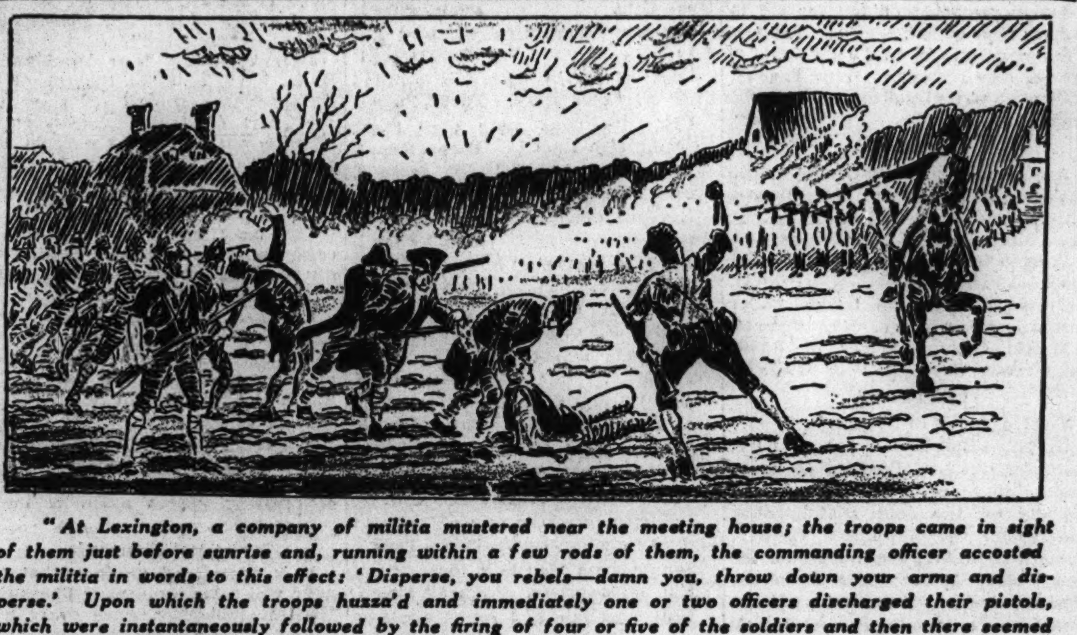
"The defense of the Philippines will stand as an epic of fortitude and tenacity of the American soldier and his Filipino brother in arms," the review said. "From a practical viewpoint, it demonstrated the comparative weakness of the Japanese as an individual fighter. This feature alone forebodes disaster for the enemy Japanese in the future when the battle is met on terms approaching equality."

The review passed over reverses at Burma, Java and Singapore as engagements in which the army and navy had little part, mentioning th·' the United States forces struck at the enemy in those areas in task operations.

The review was extremely brief on the battle in the Coral sea, altho the nation has been eagerly awaiting an official report of this action for days.

"Early in May a task force of the Pacific fleet, assisted by army reconnaissance planes and bombers and several united nations' naval units engaged a Japanese naval force in the Coral sea," it read. "Severe losses were inflicted on the enemy and what appeared to be an attempt at further invasion ended in a withdrawal of the enemy forces."

A WARNING AGAINST "DISPERSION OF OUR FORCES" AND "TOO LATE-NESS IN STRATEGY"



"At Lexington, a company of militia mustered near the meeting house; the troops came in sight of them just before sunrise and, running within a few rods of them, the commanding officer accosted the militia in words to this effect: 'Disperse, you rebels—damn you, throw down your arms and disperse.' Upon which the troops huzza'd and immediately one or two officers discharged their pistols, which were instantaneously followed by the firing of four or five of the soldiers and then there seemed to be a general discharge from the whole body. Eight of our men were killed and nine wounded. In a few minutes after this action the enemy renewed their march to Concord."

This account of the fight was printed in the Essex Gazette of Salem, Mass., on April 25, 1775. It was the first blood of a war which rent the British empire.

The moral of this is that dispersing instead of concentrating is the desire of the enemy.

Many Americans are bewailing the fact that not one appealing war song has yet been written to cheer up our nation. The accompanying song, very popular in part of the West Indies, is reproduced in the hope that it will not be adopted by our military strategists.

TREASURY RAIDS BUND QUARTERS

Sedition Jury Will Get Look at Records.

Federal treasury agents late last night swooped down on the Haus Vaterland, former headquarters of the German-American bund at 3855-57 North Western avenue, backed up two large mail trucks and carted away everything in the second floor rooms.

There were 25 of the agents working under the direction of J. J. Biggins, coördinator of treasury department agencies in Chicago. After an hour or more of swift work, the vehicles were fairly bulging with thousands of books, papers, records, and literature.

It was close to midnight when Biggins gave a signal to the drivers and the vans started for the United States courthouse in the loop.

Acts Under Bank's Orders.

Biggins said he had received his orders from the Federal Reserve bank. Dr. Otto Willumeit, president of the Haus Vaterland corporation, apparent successor to the bund, said the raid followed five days of investigation by men from the treasury department office of foreign control in Washington. He said this inquiry had been conducted under Walter Ostrow.

United States Attorney J. Albert Woll, who has a federal grand jury in the midst of an investigation of seditious activities, disclaimed official connection with the seizures but said he would naturally look into them and that any evidence taken will be made available to the presently sitting federal grand jury.

Raid Adjacent Flat.

In addition to going thru what is now headquarters of the Haus Vaterland corporation, the agents also took practically everything out of a flat next door in the building. This, it was disclosed, was the apartment of Mrs. Anna Faller, housekeeper for the corporation until she was seized and interned as an enemy alien seven weeks ago. All Mrs. Faller's personal effects were seized.

Dr. Willumeit stood by as the men carried away the records.

"For five days," he growled, "these men from the office of foreign control agency in Washington were here. They went over all these books and records these men are now carting away. It was only this afternoon that Osterow told me, 'We're going to clear out!' and took his men away.

Among the thousands of records taken away were hundreds of various sized pictures of Adolf Hitler. There also was a liberal sprinkling of matter containing photographic reproductions of Fritz Kuhn, leader of the bund in the United States.

Browder's Release Assailed as a Blow to National Unity

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sen. Raymond E. Willis.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Sen. Raymond E. Willis [R., Ind.] tonight charged that President Roosevelt's action in releasing from prison Earl Russell Browder, former general secretary of the Communist party in the United States, was the greatest contribution to national disunity the country has known in the war effort.

Browder had served less than a third of a four year sentence in Atlanta federal penitentiary for passport fraud, having been convicted March 27, 1941. Mr. Roosevelt commuted the sentence to the time Browder already had served.

Returning to New York.

Within two and a half hours after the President's order was made public, a prison official disclosed the Red leader had been given his freedom and was en route to New York City by train.

"The worst news since Pearl Harbor" was one American Legion leader's comment yesterday when informed that President Roosevelt had released Earl Browder from prison. Story on page 10.

Browder was met at the prison's gates by Robert Minor, acting leader of the Communist party and himself a veteran of various jails. His record dates back to 1919 when he was arrested on charges of distributing seditious literature among American troops in France.

Take Place in War Effort.

Browder said his release would enable him "to take my place in the great war effort."

Then he added: "I hope that every one who is interested in my release will make it the occasion, as I will, to intensify every effort to weld unbreakable national unity under the commander in chief for victory in the war.

"That is as far as my plans can go now."

Tonight Communists thruout the country were holding "Browder birthday parties." Browder will be 51 years old next Wednesday.

Roosevelt Gives Reasons.

A White House statement attributed the President's action to a desire to "promote national unity" and "allay suspicion that the unusually long sentence in Browder's case was imposed on him because of his political views." This was the Communist party line in the drive undertaken to liberate Browder.

"The President, in freeing Earl Browder, rendered the greatest contribution to disunity in America that has taken place since the war began," Sen. Willis charged. "The department of justice worked long and diligently to convict Browder not because he was twice the candidate of the Communist party for the Presi-

AMERICANS REACH LISBON FROM GERMANY AND ITALY

Tell of Political Conditions in Nations Ruled by Hitler and Duce.

With the arrival of American diplomats and newspapermen in Lisbon, Portugal, yesterday after five months of internment in Germany and Italy, three Associated Press correspondents told for the first time the inside picture of the axis at war with the United States. On page 7 Louis P. Lochner describes the German public's reaction to Hitler's declaration of war on America. Dispatches describing the Italian people's dislike of the war and French sympathy for the United States follow:

Journey Thru France

BY ALVIN J. STEINKOPF.

LISBON, Portugal, May 16 (AP).—Seventy-four bedraggled citizens of the United States—diplomats, news correspondents and their families—arrived in Lisbon tonight after five months of internment in Germany.

They were on the first of three special trains which are bringing 132 United States citizens and 120 Central and South Americans from concentration points in Germany, where they have awaited completion of tedious negotiations for exchange of German diplomats and news men in the western hemisphere. One hundred and twenty-five Americans already had arrived in Lisbon from Italy.

All are to go home on the diplomatic exchange ship Drottningholm, which docked here today and began discharging 923 Germans, Italians, Bulgarians, and Hungarians. The Drottningholm's sailing is scheduled for May 21.

Dirty and Hungry.

The Americans reaching here from Germany were dirty and hungry but mostly in good health and extremely happy. For the first time since last December they were free to move about, buy newspapers, use the telephone, and eat what they wanted. For the first time in five months they saw no pistol toting Gestapo [German secret police] at their elbows.

For 17 news and radio correspondents it was another incident in an adventure which started with the mass arrests of Dec. 11, 1941. The diplomats were not arrested and consequently avoided going thru the German police mill. They were rounded up with little ceremony, however, and concentrated in heavily guarded hotels at Bad Nauheim and Baden Baden.

The four day journey thru the Rhine valley, France, Spain, and Portugal was supervised to the Spanish border by the Gestapo, but despite the strictest control there were numerous incidents cheering to Americans.

Occupied France was found to be a land of deep emotional depression, but there were a few incidents indicating that here and there the spark of hope survived.

Throws Rock at Train.

The French did not know that our train was a diplomatic special. South of Paris an indignant Frenchman shied a rock thru a dining car window. The trainmen said the French often did such things, on the theory that all special trains were carrying Germans.

One French peasant obviously had heard about our train. He stood in his field and merrily waved the Stars and Stripes.

Before the train reached Paris a bold French airman slipped aboard past the guards and rode with us for

Weary of Fighting

BY RICHARD G. MASSOCK.

LISBON, Portugal, May 16 (AP).—Benito Mussolini is leading a hungry, disillusioned and apathetic Italy in an unpopular war against the United States.

The war's unpopularity has been manifest in various ways to Americans who waited five months for repatriation after Il Duce placed his people at war with America last Dec. 11.

Italy's future as an ally of Germany and Japan is unpredictable. A collapse from a food shortage within this year or the next seems unlikely. Neither does an economic breakdown seem imminent, because of assistance being given by Germany in this sphere. Without organized opposition under competent leadership, the Fascist régime probably is secure for some time to come.

Dislike German Allies.

Yet the war against the United States is unpopular and some observers see in Italy a people who dislike their German allies and who care nothing for the Japanese—a people who are looked upon for potential assistance when and if an American-British army lands in Europe to crush Hitlerism.

In fact some say that half the Italian people would welcome such an allied invasion as a possible means of freeing them from the humiliating grip of the Germans.

Not a single anti-American demonstration—even an officially organized one—has been reported in Italy. Many Italians in all walks of life have sought on occasion to tell Americans of their personal friendship.

Shortly before I left Rome an Italian of only casual acquaintance, knowing I was about to leave, embraced me with Latin effusiveness and said:

"Give my respects to Mr. Roosevelt."

Sentiment Not Rare.

This incident occurred despite the presence of a nearby guard. The incident was rare, but the sentiment was not.

Regret and disillusionment are general, as one astute observer confirmed to me. But he found, like others, that popular reaction is marked rather by resignation than by indignation, by a sense of futility rather than any will to bring about corrective action.

Italians await a new leader. Discontent with Mussolini and Fascism is more marked than ever.

Il Duce made his war declaration against the United States in the name of King Victor Emmanuel. While the monarch may still be respected by his people, many Italians said this showed once again that the senile little man was impotent in politics.

Little hope rests in Crown Prince Humbert. The Italian press, incidentally, never refers to him as crown prince, but merely as the prince of Piedmont. The Fascist grand council itself has reserved the right to pass on eventual succession to the throne. Yet Humbert, once the white hope of anti-Fascists because of his reported hostility to Mussolini, appears to have made his peace with Fascism.

Army Support Needed.

The army and the House of Savoy nevertheless may be the salvation of Italy. Many Italians look for a military dictatorship as the eventual successor to Fascism, with some Fascist policies and administrative forms retained but without Mussolinian oppression. No revolution could succeed without the support of the army, and the army continues to be loyal to the House of Savoy.

Only [illegible] reasonably sure of success with the aid of the army and possible military support in Europe from the united nations is it likely to come, in the view of many,

LAVAL REJECTS U. S. DEMANDS IN MARTINIQUE ROW

America Is Responsible for Violence, He Says.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, May 16.—Pierre Laval, pro-Nazi chief of the Vichy government, today announced he had rejected most of the six United States demands concerning control of Martinique, which he made public along with his 16 point answer to Washington, D. C.

[Officials in Washington were silent on Laval's declaration. Authoritative quarters said no note had been received. The United States has not made public any notes concerning Martinique and has ignored Laval as a party to the negotiations.]

Laval said the American demands were submitted on May 9 by Adm. John H. Hoover, commander in the Caribbean sea, to Adm. Georges Robert, French high commissioner, with the warning that if the status of Martinique, Guadeloupe, and French Guiana were changed "the United States could no longer guarantee their belonging to the French people."

Lists U. S. Demands.

The demands, as disclosed by Laval, contained these conditions:

1. Effect measures under American supervision for immobilization of French warships and airplanes now in the Antilles.
2. Effective control by American authorities of radio and telegraphic traffic and postal censorship.
3. American supervision of commerce and of all persons entering and leaving the French possessions.
4. Limitation of the French naval and military forces to police needs.
5. Turning over to the United States of the French commercial fleet in the West Indies.
6. Freezing of French gold and other funds for eventual use of the French people.

United States to Give Concessions.

In return, the United States agreed to permit French crews to remain aboard the warships, to recognize Adm. Robert as supreme governmental commander of the French West Indies, to conclude an economic agreement which would assure supplies for the islands and to purchase the islands' principal exports.

Laval, who read the note and gave his explanation and reply at a press conference following his return from Paris, seat of the German occupation forces, said that the demands are a "grave blow to French sovereignty," and that "France will not relinquish any of her rights over Martinique no matter what happens."

The Vichy reply, which Laval said was sent to Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye on May 13, asserted that in October, 1940, "when the United States was not at war, an accord was concluded" fixing the status of St. Pierre and Miquelon [islands off Canada], the West Indies and Guiana and declared that this agreement cannot now be modified, as demanded by the United States.

[United States Rear Adm. John Greenslade and Vice Adm. Frederick J. Horne reached an accord with Martinique authorities in 1940 whereby the French possessions remained unchanged and undisturbed.]

Protests Interference.

"The French government protests this interference by the American government in French internal politics," the reply asserted.

The reply said that the American demand that Adm. Robert act without authority of Vichy constituted a "demand which the French government has a duty to reject."

As to the immobilization of French warships and economic questions in the West Indies, the note said that the French government was willing to negotiate with Adm. Robert as its "intermediary," and that the United States "cannot invoke any argument of a military nature which would justify" its fears that the warships would be used against American interests. "In point of fact," Laval said, they are already immobilized.

On the question of merchant ships, the reply said they were not immobilized in West Indian ports, but could not be turned over to the United States because "such a cession is formally prohibited by the terms of the [German-French] armistice."

DORIOT, FRENCH PRO-NAZI, URGES WAR ON BRITAIN

BERNE, Switzerland, May 16 (AP).—Jacques Doriot, leading French pro-Nazi in Paris, is championing the movement to bring France into military coöperation with the axis, it was reported today, and foreign observers expressed belief he might step into Pierre Laval's place if full collaboration is not accomplished soon.

In a speech at St. Denis last night, Doriot said he had urged war against England since the attack on the battleship Dunkerque.

[The French battleship Dunkerque, 26,500 tons, was shelled, set on fire and beached at Mers-El-Kebir on July 3, 1940, by the British and was bombed on July 6.]

NAVY TO LAUNCH BIGGEST RECRUIT DRIVE WEDNESDAY

Seeks to Offset Decline in Enlistments.

The most intensive drive for naval recruits ever launched in the Chicago area will get under way next Wednesday.

Details of the drive have not been announced and Lieut. David. N. Goldenson, naval recruiting officer for the Chicago area, when asked to comment to it, said: "I'll have plenty to say—Wednesday."

Recent advices from Washington, D. C., have indicated that naval recruiting has dropped off since the first part of April. Expansion of training quarters and the rapid construction of warships have increased the need for sailors.

A Rush to the Colors.

The navy never has resorted to conscription, altho the possibility was discussed before Pearl Harbor, when naval enlistments were at low ebb.

However, with the Japanese attack America's young men rushed to the colors and a considerable proportion of these went into the navy. Chicago's naval enlistment center ranked high in this respect.

The impetus provided by the Jap attack is believed in official quarters to have subsided and the possibility of drafting sailors again is under consideration.

Physical Standards.

It is considered unlikely that the navy will relax its already liberalized physical standards, since every man aboard a ship must be capable of front line action. That these standards still are high is shown by the acceptance of only one of every three or four applicants for enlistment.

While the drive scheduled to open Wednesday will be confined to Chicagoland, it is considered likely that a similar program will be adopted thruout the country—in place of conscription—if it proves successful.

It is understood Mayor Kelly will assemble a citizens' committee which will tackle the problem of boosting enlistments.

FRENCH WARSHIP NOW IN MOROCCO FOR FIRST TESTS

CASABLANCA, French Morocco, May 16 (AP).—The population of Casablanca was notified today by authorities that the 35,000 ton French battleship Jean Bart, which has been in port here since the French-axis armistice in 1940 for reconstruction of fire towers and other repairs, soon would take her first tests within this port.

The Jean Bart, the third of this name, was launched March 6, 1940, at St. Nazaire, France. Her fate was unknown at the time the Germans captured St. Nazaire but this dispatch indicates she made ther way to French Morocco safely.

START OF VICTORY IS NOW IN SIGHT, CHURCHILL SAYS

We'll Be Rough as Nazis, He Warns.

LEEDS, England, May 16 (AP).—Winston Churchill confidently told 25,000 cheering Yorkshire war workers and farmers today that the beginning of victory is in sight and promised to "play rough" in repaying the axis for any torture inflicted on Britain and its allies.

"We have reached a period in the war when it would be premature to say that we have topped the ridge, but we see that ridge ahead now," the prime minister said.

"We see that perseverance—unflinching, dogged, inexhaustible, tireless, and valiant—will surely carry us and our allies, the great nations of the world and the unfortunate nations who have been subjugated and enslaved, on to one of the most deep founded movements of humanity which has taken place in our history.

Sees Grander Prospect Beyond.

"We say they will come to the top of the ridge and then they will have the chance not only of beating down and subduing those evil forces who have twice let ruin and havoc on the world, but they will have a further and grander prospect beyond the smoke of battle and the confusion of the fight. That is the prospect that lies before us."

The war leader, in his third address of the week, paid tribute to the "noble manhood of Russia" and "our kith and kin in Australia who like ourselves lie under the menace of an imminent enemy attack and who like ourselves are going to strike a heavy and successful blow on all who spring upon us."

The Russians, he said, now were "at full grips with the murderous enemy, striking blow for blow and repaying better ones for blows struck at them."

Taunts Nazi Foe.

"Lately the enemy has not been so ready to come to this island," Churchill declared, "first, because a large portion of his air force is engaged against our Russian allies, and secondly, because he knows our arrangements for meeting him."

He taunted the Germans with the declaration that "none of us is weary of the struggle."

"None of us is calling for any favors from the enemy," he said. "If he plays rough, we can play rough too. Whatever we have got to take, we will take and we will give it back in even greater measure."

The prime minister's emphasis on playing rough underlined his warning of six days ago that Britain would spray German military objectives with poison gas if that weapon were used against the Russians.

He paid his respects to "all the millions of our cousins across the Atlantic who are preparing night and day to have their will and rights respected" and to the "patient millions of China, who have suffered long and cruel aggression and still fight with faithful stubbornness."

"We have striven hard for peace," he said. "We have even gone into folly over our desire for peace, but he [the enemy] started all primed up and ready to strike."

'JOIN THE NAVY,' COL. M'CORMICK ASKS YOUNG MEN

Voices Plea at Conclusion of Radio Address.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, concluded a radio address last night with an appeal preliminary to a campaign for recruits for the navy.

After giving his prepared speech, Col. McCormick said:

"This afternoon I received a telegram from Mayor Kelly asking me to attend a meeting next Wednesday to encourage a drive for navy recruiting. Of course I will go. But I won't wait till Wednesday. I have already started. I have ordered that next Thursday's 'America at the Ramparts' be devoted to that theme and that whoever can find a way to help before then shall go to it.

"And I take this first opportunity to urge and advise young men to enlist in that glorious service, the navy."

Col. McCormick's address, a feature of the "America Loves a Melody" hour, was broadcast by W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

TEXT OF THE ADDRESS

The address follows:

"Those of you who were listening at this time last week may remember that I was attending the 23d annual reunion of the surviving officers of the 1st division.

"It was a reunion unlike any of those that had gone before. Of course the tone of the dinners had been gradually changing from the austerity of the senior officers and the deference of the juniors of the first meeting, to one of friendship and mutual esteem. But the middle aged of the war had become old and the youngsters had become middle aged, the reunion always brought them back to their combat days and they thought of themselves as fighting men.

"Last week, with the country at war, the younger of them were crowding on 50, and they realized that not many could serve their country where they would want to serve it—in the front line.

World War Major Now Brigadier.

"It was a shock to see their great battle generals in civilian clothes on the left of the toastmaster, and other men in uniform on his right.

"Among the latter fortunately was the hero, Clarence R. Huebner, who, entering the army as a private, took part in every infantry assault and miraculously survived to come out a major. He is now a brigadier general.

"Our 1st division commander, Robert Lee Bullard, at 82 retained his unusual clarity of intellect and that geniality which never detracted from his power of command; Maj. Gen. Parker, still straight as a ramrod; Gen. Summerall, the greatest battle leader of the World war, at 75 still the most martial figure and, in my opinion, still the greatest general alive.

First Effort a Fiasco.

"He has been elected president of the society every year since the armistice, and last Sunday night chose to tell us one or two incidents that we had not heard before.

"We all recalled—still without pleasure—that our first effort was a complete fiasco.

"The division had ordered a trench raid. The howitzers were to neutralize the enemy artillery; the 75s to put down a box barrage around the trenches to be raided; the engineers were to blow up the enemy wire with long pipes filled with explosives, and infantry were to make the raid.

"The artillery fired according to plan; the raiding troops took their position, but the explosives failed to turn up. It was then that Col. Parker, in command of the operation, did the bravest deed of all of the brave deeds which in 10 months carried him from the rank of colonel to that of major general.

"He took the responsibility of calling off the raid, which without the destruction of the enemy wire could not succeed. That much I had known long, but I had never heard what followed.

"Gen. Summerall told us last Sunday night that as the general officers of the division sat at headquarters, deeply chagrined, the telephone rang. GHQ wanted to know the name of the officer responsible for the misadventure. Gen. Bullard took the telephone and said, 'I am in command of the 1st division—all of it. I am responsible for everything that happens in the division. I am responsible for this failure. If GHQ wants to blame some one, blame me.'

"Gen. Bullard was not then Lieut. Gen. Bullard, successful commander, in turn, of a division, an army corps, and an army. He was temporary Maj. Gen. Bullard, if indeed he had already received the second star, and there were a hundred other major generals ready to take his place.

Noble Act Makes a Division.

"At that time most of us were strangers to each other. We were much more a group of individuals than a unit. Gen. Summerall said it was this noble act of Gen. Bullard's which knit the division into a solid force that never was thrown back or stopped.

"Gen. Summerall reviewed other incidents of the division's experiences and came to the 12th day of October. The division had been attacking and steadily advancing in the forest of the Argonne for 10 days on end.

"Turning toward Lieut. Gen. Drum, who sat to the right of the toastmaster, he said that Gen. Drum had telephoned him on the 10th day and asked if the division should be relieved. He had replied that general headquarters knew the condition of the men; knew what the losses had been. There were more than a quarter of the division killed and wounded. If the commander in chief saw fit to relieve the division it would withdraw. If the commander in chief did not relieve the division, it would continue the attack.

Only Citation of Its Kind.

"Gen. Summerall credited Lieut. Gen. Drum with the citation of the division in general orders—the only citation ever given to an American division which closes with the words 'the commander in chief has noted in this division an especial pride of service and a high state of morale never broken by hardship nor battle.'

"What Gen. Summerall did not say was that when the division was relieved, he was not relieved, but was put in command of the 5th army corps and in that capacity commanded the attack of the American army until it broke the German resistance and compelled the armistice.

"Naturally we all talked much about this war and its methods. The consensus was what I have been telling you in the last few years—the great importance of aviation was recognized when properly used, and that is, as the Germans used it and the allies did not.

Aviation a Part of the Whole.

"Aviation must be used as a part of the whole army. It fights in the air for ascendancy. It bombs the ground troops to help its own ground forces break thru; it bombs the enemy rear to cut off supplies and to interfere with enemy maneuvers. It does not, or should not, waste its time, personnel, and materiel on missions separate from the combined effort.

"The word 'tank' has become too vague. It was suitable in the days when these self-propelled machines were used to cut holes in the barbed wire or to crush machine gun nests. But today with the great variety of self-propelled vehicles running from the tiny Bren gun carriers with one or two men and a machine gun to land battleships carrying large cannon, a new vocabulary must be devised.

"So-called tank warfare is more like the naval warfare of yesterday than that resembles the naval warfare today, but it has this resemblance to naval warfare of today: The larger tanks can crush the smaller tanks, but there is a limitation upon their size, not due to mechanics, but to the fact that as the tanks become larger, they become more vulnerable to air attack. As with ships, only trial and error will demonstrate the most effective size.

East Coast Blockaded.

"Torpedo attack and air attack have practically obliterated large surface ships. It is all too evident that submarines are practically blockading the whole Atlantic coast from Labrador to Mexico. Our submarines are operating against the Japanese communications with the forces trying to attack Australia and form an important element in our defense of that commonwealth.

"Torpedoes as they are used today are the most powerful naval weapons. I need not repeat the many victories of torpedo planes over battleships. The only defense against them appears to be barrage balloons—a defense which can only be used in harbor and which was neglected both at Taranto and at Pearl Harbor.

"Barrage balloons are also a defense against dive bombers—the second most effective method of attack—but barrage balloons have no value against level bombers flying at heights as great as 30,000 feet, or six miles, and using a sight and mechanical calculations well understood by artillerymen. So ships are not safe from air attack at sea or in harbor.

"MacArthur's success in the Coral sea appears to have been due to bombers, and, bear this in mind, for the first time navy planes and army planes were used together under a single command. Unified command under a professional American soldier or sailor will win the war."

THREE SOLOISTS HEARD

Marion Claire, Attilio Baggiore, and Ruth Slater were the soloists in the musical program. The W-G-N orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, and the W-G-N chorus also took part in the program.

URGES CIVILIANS TO WORK HARDER, BUY MORE BONDS

Every civilian in America is asking "What can I do to help win this war?" and the answer is to work harder and buy more war savings bonds, according to Maj. Clarence O. Applegran of the 6th corps area staff.

He spoke last night in the La Salle hotel, where Chicago lodge No. 4, B. P. O. Elks held a testimonial dinner and dance in honor of Judge Joseph Burke of the Illinois Appellate court, past exalted ruler of the lodge.

Maj. Applegran, who served in the World war and was an All-American football player in 1919, said the war will be won by youth. He urged that young men now in high school and college stay in school and finish their courses.

U. S. Could Have Brought About Peace, Says Gandhi

BOMBAY, India, May 16 (AP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi, in a discussion of the Indian problem today, said that "the United States could have brought about peace if she had really wished to do so. I do not know all the facts which determined America to throw herself into the cauldron," he said, "but somehow or other the opinion forces itself on me that America could have remained out. Even now she can do so if she divests herself of the intoxication her immense wealth has produced."

300 Observe Anniversary of Norwegian Constitution

Three hundred Americans of Swedish, Danish, and Norwegian ancestry gathered last night in the Swedish Fraternal hall in Evanston to observe the anniversary of the adoption of the Norwegian constitution [May 17, 1814].

8 CAPTURED MARINE MAJORS PROMOTED; ONE IS CHICAGOAN

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—Eight majors who served at Wake, Guam and the Philippines and who are now presumed prisoners of war were included in a list of 100 promoted by the marine corps today to temporary lieutenant colonels.

The list included Maj. James P. S. Devereux, commander of the garrison that held Wake Island against two weeks Japanese assault, and Maj. Adolph Zuber, commended for gallantry in action at Pearl Harbor. Listed as a prisoner of war was Maj. Owen E. Jensen, of Chicago. Majs. Emery E. "Swede" Larson, and Bernard "Bernie" Bierman, former football coaches at the naval academy and Minnesota, respectively, were included in the promotions.

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—Reflecting the rapidly growing importance of air power in sea warfare, the navy today created the office of assistant chief of naval operations for air and assigned to the post Rear Adm. John H. Towers, pioneer aviation enthusiast. Towers will continue in his present capacity as chief of the bureau of aeronautics in addition to his new duties. He will be responsible directly to Vice Adm. Frederick J. Horne, vice chief of naval operations.

Blast 70 Tanks, Down 56 Planes, Sink 2 Ships.

MOSCOW, May 17 [Sunday]—(AP).—Tank paced forces of Marshal Semeon Timosdhenko continued their slashing advance upon Kharkov yesterday while on the Kerch peninsula heavy fighting raged near Kerch, on the narrow strait across from the Caucasus, the Russians announced today.

"In the Kharkov direction our troops waged offensive battles, successfully advancing and capturing booty and prisoners," the midnight soviet communique said.

"On the Kerch peninsula our troops waged stubborn battles in the region of the city of Kerch."

The Russians listed 70 more German tanks disabled—presumably on the Kharkov front where more than 400 Nazi tanks previously were reported damaged or destroyed.

Destroyer, Transport Sunk.

In the Barents sea, the communique said an 8,000 ton enemy transport and a destroyer were sunk and a second destroyer heavily damaged and apparently sunk by soviet planes and warships.

Destruction of 56 German planes was credited to Russian airmen and ground forces on Friday against 13 soviet losses.

Supplementing the communique, dispatches from the Kharkov front said locality after locality was being captured. One account said four German counterattacks were smashed.

Drive into Towns Near Kharkov.

Earlier accounts of the Kharkov offensive said yesterday that the Russians had battered their way into many communities surrounding the big industrial center.

[Still without confirmation were advices in London that the Russians had cracked the Kharkov inner defense line in two places and entered suburban Kharkov on the northeast. Other forces were said to be pouring across the Donetz river between Belgorod and Zmiev, while still others, flanking Kharkov about 70 miles to the south, were reported to have breached the Nazi's southern lines at Lozovaya.]

So complex and broad was offensive stemming from the drive on Kharkov and so constricted as to positional detal were the reports on it that from the Moscow vantage point only a general picture of the battle could be had.

It was evident, however, that the Russians were banking heavily on the offensive to keep the Germans off balance in the south, ease the hard pressed forces in the Kerch peninsula of the Crimea, and force the Germans to swing their line back from Taganrog, its anchor on the Sea of Azov, facing the Caucasus.

COLLEGE HONORS BURMA FLYER AS ITS FINEST HERO

Troy, N. Y., May 16 (AP).—John [Scarsdale Jack] Newkirk, squadron leader of the Flying Tigers in Burma, received posthumously today the acclaim of the college from which he was graduated in 1936.

The first alumni medal for distinguished service awarded in 118 years by Rensselaer Polytechnic institute went to Louis H. Newkirk, White Plains, N. Y., and Miss Janet Newkirk, New York City, father and sister of the youth who died in action in Burma March 24 with 25 Japanese planes to his credit.

Its presentation brought this tribute, prepared by Dr. William Otis Hotchkiss, president of R. P. I.: "He was the first American in the Burma war to be selected by the British for their distinguished service order; and today Rensselaer Polytechnic institute recognizes him as the greatest hero of all its thousands of alumni in its 118 years."

RAF ATTACKS 2 CONVOYS; SETS 3 VESSELS ON FIRE

4 Others Believed Hit Off Dutch Coast.

LONDON, May 16 (AP).—Rounding off a week of intensive day and night attacks on German shipping off the continental coast, United States built Hudson bombers blasted at two convoys off the Frisian Islands, off northern Holland, last night, leaving three supply ships burning and four others probably damaged.

Calling the attacks "the most devastating of the week," air ministry sources admitted, however, that five British bombers were lost.

The air ministry news service said one bomber crew saw a pilot of one of the Hudsons, on fire from a hit, "drive his blazing machine straight into the deck of the nearest ship, the aircraft exploding."

"The ship is believed to have been destroyed," the service added.

28 Ships Hit in Two Weeks.

Spitfire pilots resumed the daylight offensive today, leaving a large gasoline storage tank at Ostend, Belgium, in flames, shooting up a freight train, and blowing the roof off a railway station near St. Valery en Caux.

Air ministry sources said coastal command planes had hit 28 axis ships engaged on the supply route to northern Norway in the last two weeks. These ships take munitions, aircraft parts, and other supplies northward, and return with iron ore, pyrites, and timber for Germany's Ruhr.

In addition, the two attacks last night brought to 14 the number of German supply ships hit in the last week off the French and Netherlands coasts along with two minesweepers destroyed and a third hit.

14 Planes Downed, Say Nazis.

BERLIN, May 16 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command today reported the destruction of 14 British planes in the last 24 hours in sea and air engagements off western Europe.

The high command said "fairly weak" RAF forces "were over Heligoland bight [bay] and off the Danish coast last night."

DIES AFTER SHOOTING SELF.

Harold H. Mager, 24 years old, died in St. Francis hospital in Blue Island yesterday after shooting himself Friday in his home at 6611 174th street, Tinley Park. He was a crane operator.

MASS REDISTRIBUTION OF POPULATIONS SEEN BY GLIDER AFTER WAR

St. Louis, Mo., May 16 (AP).—Covered wagons of the air were predicted today for Europe's millions in a mass redistribution of population after the war.

Gil Robb Wilson of New York, president of the National Aeronautical association, prophesized that, when hostilities cease, "there will be such a movement of humanity over the surface of the world as has never before been known."

"The richest areas of the world will be available for settlement," he said, "because economical means of transportation will be provided. An airplane with a dozen glider trailers attached will provide a poor man's type of transportation."

Wilson, speaking at a Missouri-Illinois conference on "Education for the Air Age," said it was the duty of teachers to give their students a proper conception of the new world that is being created by aviation.

Cuba Rations Gasoline by Horse Power Quota

HAVANA, Cuba, May 16.—The government today began issuing gasoline rationing cards. Small, medium, and large cars were classified according to their horsepower. Commercial, industrial, and official vehicles are not affected. No gasoline can be sold on Sundays or holidays.

KERCH CAPTURED, BATTLE IS WON, GERMANS CLAIM

Admit Hard Soviet Blows on Kharkov Front.

BERLIN, May 16 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command declared tonight that the battle of Kerch "has been brought to a victorious conclusion."

Kerch and its harbor have been captured and the Nazi army has overrun practically the entire Kerch peninsula after beating down stubborn soviet resistance in a week-long battle, German authorities reported.

[London heard the German controled Paris radio say last night that the Germans and Rumanians had taken 50,000 Russian prisoners on the Kerch peninsula but that Russian units remained between Parpatsch, at the neck of the isthmus, and Kerch.]

Admit Hard Fight at Kharkov.

Farther north, the high command reported, Russian attacks on the Kharkov front were repelled in hard fighting and "German counterattacks were successful." The high command said the Russians have lost 180 tanks on this front.

On the far northern front, the Murmansk area, futile soviet attacks cost the Red army more than 8,000 dead, much war material, and many prisoners, the communique said.

The German air force destroyed an enemy transport in Kola bay, the high command said.

The communique was almost devoid of details on the Kerch action, merely reporting the German troops penetrated the city yesterday "after overcoming stubborn resistance."

OIL WELLS NEAR KERCH.

Rail terminus and seaport, prewar Kerch had a population of more than 60,000. Oil wells, asphalt diggings, iron, and sulphur are nearby.

It has been ruled thru the centuries by Celts, kin to the present day Irish; Greeks and Romans, raiding Huns and Goths, Genoese from medieval Italy, and oriental Tatars and Turks.

Battered in Crimean War.

The city dominates the narrow Strait of Kerch, which separates the northern Caucasus and the Crimea.

The strait links the Black sea and the Sea of Azov and is a gateway from Rostov, on the mainland, to the Batum oil depot in the south and the Dardanelles in the west.

2,000 DUTCH OFFICERS, 460 CIVILIANS SEIZED BY NAZIS IN 'PLOTS'

LONDON, May 16 (AP).—German authorities in the Netherlands have thrown back into prison all regular officers and cadets of the Dutch army heretofore on "parole" and have arrested 450 prominent civilians on charges of sympathizing with or aiding "conspirators against the occupying power," the Dutch news agency Aneta reported today.

Aneta quoted the German controled radio as saying the officers reimprisoned numbered 2,000 and that their arrests were taken as a precaution against such conspiracies as that for which the Germans this week executed 96 Netherlanders accused of leading a secret organization preparing for an allied invasion. A number of them were army officers.

The radio said that if this did not stop opposition, all reserve officers and noncommissioned officers would be imprisoned as well.

Nazis Forbid Norway to Observe National Holiday

LONDON, May 16 (AP).—The Quisling government in Norway ordered police today to stand by for tomorrow on the 128th anniversary of the country's free constitution, the Norwegian independence day, it was reported here. The Norwegian telegraph agency said meetings and demonstrations were forbidden.

CHINESE DRIVE 10,000 JAPS OUT OF BURMA TOWN

Inflict 1,000 Casualties and Capture Guns.

CHUNGKING, China, Ma. 16 (AP).—The Chinese command announced tonight that a Japanese force numbering 10,000, with heavy tanks and 20 field guns, which occupied Mong Lin, in eastern Burma, Wednesday, had been driven out of town by counter-attacking Chinese.

One thousand casualties were said to have been inflicted on the Japanese and prisoners, rifles and munitions captured. Mong Lin, in the southern Shan states, is about 200 miles south of the Burma road battle theater.

To the west of Mong Lin, other Japanese were said to have attempted a plane protected crossing of the Salween river at Keng Hkam Tuesday and made two other attempts Wednesday, all repulsed with the sinking of their barges.

Other fighting was reported in the vicinity of Kengtung, capital of one of the Shan states, and Mong Hai.

Japs Open Offensive.

This theater is some 250 miles south of the Yunnan province battleground in southwest China, where Japanese are believed still to be held on the west bank of the Salween river, about 125 miles by road inside China and 55 miles short of their supposed objective, the Burma road city of Paoshan.

The Chinese command announced tonight that the Japanese had opened an offensive in Chekiang, a Chinese maritime province of Shanghai, with "many columns" driving southward.

Prepare for Last Stand.

LONDON, May 16 (AP).—A handful of the British army in upper Burma is preparing a last rear guard action against the Japanese along the Chindwin river parallel to the Indian border while its comrades are withdrawing westward thru the hill country, a London military commentator said today.

For the second day New Delhi military spokesman said there had been no contact with the enemy for 24 hours, but the commentator said Gen. Harold Alexander was posting his men to hold the Japanese back from India as long as possible.

The wounded and those who have lost their equipment are making their way into India to rest and reorganize. This movement led to reports here yesterday that the army already had retired into India, said the commentator, but there has not yet been a general withdrawal.

Only 5,000 British Left.

The remnents of the British are estimated to total only 5,000 and the number available for the latest stand was deemed to be pitifully small.

The commentator said the British had established contact with the Japanese north of Shwegyin, but this report had apparently taken several days to reach London, because New Delhi said there was now no contact.

From the India side United States bombers and the RAF continued to harass the Japanese. Thursday's American raid on the Myitkyina airdrome in northern Burma was reported today to have destroyed 15 Japanese planes. The British again bombed Akyab, Burma seaport near the Indian border.

Tokio Claims Advances.

TOKIO, May 16 [from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—Successful large scale Japanese army operations in four Chinese provinces and air assaults on still other areas were reported today.

Domei news agency asserted that mopping up operations were destroying concentrations of Chinese regulars, guerrillas, or communist troops in the three northern provinces of Shantung, Hopei, and Shansi.

Imperial headquarters announced the occupation of Tengyueh, important caravan route town in Yunnan province, where Japanese columns are driving into China from the Burma back door.

SAILORS FOUGHT JAVA SEA BATTLE WITHOUT ORDERS

They Needed None, U. S. Commander Asserts.

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—When it comes to night fighting at sea, take it from a commander who knows, "you just tell your men what you expect of them before the battle begins, and then you let them alone."

"The idea of a captain standing on the bridge of his ship in a night battle and giving orders is nuts," Commander Henry E. Eccles of Flushing, N. Y., told newsmen today in praising the crew of his destroyer for the way they fought in the battle of Java.

"I gave two orders during the whole battle," he recalled.

Eccles was given the navy cross for his work under fire, but he said the decoration was rather a recognition of the meritorious way the crew handled the ship.

Losses Spur Men On.

In one instance, he related, the crew of one gun lost two men.

"From then on, two loaders took over the gun and the task of supplying ammunition, but they doubled their work and fired faster than normal. This is an example of the kind of men we have in our navy."

Eccles told how Frank A. Woodke, second class quartermaster from Schallar, Ia., steered the ship in a zigzag course to avoid enemy shells while blinding gun flashes turned the dark night into a fiery glow.

"At that time we were in narrow waters and the way Woodke handled the ship was largely responsible for the ship getting away," he continued. "It was one of the most interesting examples of what it takes."

Seaman Takes Over Gun.

When other members of the gun grew became blinded, Penner took over and kept up deliberate and accurate fire," Eccles said. "He got one and possibly two hits and has been recommended for decoration."

The work of a demolition squad left behind at the scene of the battle to sink a disabled ship drew special commendation.

With Chief Electrician James K. Brodie in charge, the squad accomplished its task, escaped to a south Java port, where it boarded an old Dutch coal burner with a "miscellaneous crew of airmen and stray diplomats" and headed for safety, Eccles recounted.

Grin Is His Report.

"They made it," he said, his eyes sparkling. "When they walked into my cabin I was delighted to see them. It was a damned good job."

Asked whether Brodie made a formal report, Commander Eccles replied:

Japs Claim 65 Ships Sunk by Submarines to May 10

TOKIO, May 16 [from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—Imperial headquarters declared today that Japanese submarines in the Pacific and Indian oceans had sunk 65 vessels totaling 444,000 tons up to May 10. It gave this tabulation: Pacific-Hawaiian area, 15 ships, 101,700 tons; southwest Pacific, 15 ships, 96,000 tons; Indian ocean, 35 ships, 246,300 tons.

SPEEDY ACTION PREDICTED FOR DEPENDENT AID

Committee Will Vote on Bill Tuesday.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Members of the house military affairs committee today predicted speedy action next week to bring to the floor pending legislation providing subsistence allowances for dependents of men in the armed forces and opening the way for the drafting of additional fighting man power from the 3-A deferment classification. The committee concluded public hearings on the measure this week and is scheduled to meet in closed session Tuesday to vote on amendments and draft its report to the house.

The bill is regarded as the most far reaching step in mobilizing the nation's men for war since passage of the original conscription bill. Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, head of the selective service system, has said and witnesses have testified that the bill will end dependency as a cause for draft deferment, leaving essential occupation in war industry as the only reason henceforth for not being summoned to the colors.

Plan Lower Age Limit.

Under the present law this mobilization would affect all men from the age of 20 thru 44 inclusive who are subject to combat service. Plans already are being discussed on Capitol hill for lowering the minimum age to 18 for enforced military training, if not for service on the battlefields. The army already has announced arrangements for using in noncombat duties men in the 1-B classification who have been deferred because of physical defects.

Thus, it was seen, besides disruption faced by American family life, business houses in the nonwar category appeared due for a thoro shaking up with many men employés, heretofore carrying on seminormal lives by virtue of dependency classification, facing conscription and replacement by women. Far reaching effects in the sporting world including major league baseball, hockey, football also appeared imminent.

Two classes of dependents, A and B, are provided for in the measure which is based on expected congressional approval of another pending bill raising the pay of enlisted men. Under the senate version of the pay bill, the raise would be from $21 to $42 per month while the house increased it to $50 and sent the legislation to a conference committee where an agreement on the $42 figure is considered likely. Class A dependents are wives and children; class B are parents, grandchildren, brothers, and sisters.

Alimony Aid Included.

Wives and children would receive $20 monthly, which would be taken from the pay of enlisted men. To this the government would add $20 for a wife with no child, $30 for a wife and one child, with $10 more for each additional child; $15 if there is no wife but one child, $25 if two children, and $10 for each additional child, and $20 to a former wife divorced, to whom alimony has been decreed.

Allowances to the B class dependents would be optional with the man in military service. If he already had A class dependents another $5 would be taken from his monthly pay, or $25 in all. If not, he could pay $20 monthly to his B dependents. In addition the government would pay $15 for one dependent parent, $25 for two parents, and $5 each for each grandchild, brother, or sister. Class B allowances would be limited to a top of $50 monthly.

McNutt, as head of the Federal Security agency, urged the committee to provide the FSA with flexible authority to grant additional government funds in so-called hardship cases or wherever the amounts under the bill are deemed insufficient to meet individual needs.

ARMY REPORTS SHIFT OF 58,000 JAPS IN WEST

27,000 Others Under Evacuation Order.

San Francisco, Cal., May 16 (AP).—Approximately 58,000 Japanese have been moved from military area No. 1, comprising southern Arizona and the western sections of California, Oregon, and Washington, and about 27,000 are under orders to be evacuated by Friday.

Lieut. Gen. J. L. De Witt.

The army issued a summary of its activities in evacuating Japanese following promulgation yesterday by Lieut. Gen. J. L. De Witt of five new exclusion orders.

Other Orders Expected.

Lieut. Col. Martin F. Hass, who is in charge of initial evacuation operations, said orders affecting Japanese still remaining in the military area would follow rapidly.

The 58,000 Japanese had been moved to assembly, reception or relocation centers up to Wednesday night.

"When evacuations under the first orders are completed our main coastal cities, with the exception of Los Angeles, will have been cleared of Japanese," Col. Hass said.

Strategic Areas Affected.

"This will include San Diego, San Francisco, Portland, and Seattle. In addition, our surrounding strategic area will be practically cleared of Japanese.

"The bulk of the Japanese living in the big cities and near, or adjacent to, vital war industries have been evacuated. For instance, we have issued some 20 exclusion orders affecting Los Angeles county Japanese alone. Other areas afford situations almost as complicated."

14 Injured as Street Car Runs Wild and Rams Store

Cincinnati, O., May 16 (AP).—A street car went out of control on a steep hill today and smashed into a grocery, injuring 13 passengers and a pedestrian. Front supports of the three story brick building were demolished.

It's in Use, Too

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—White House callers observed a new do-dad today on President Roosevelt's gadget covered desk. It's a little statue of Hitler representing him bent over with his hands between his knees, and affixed to Hitler's posterior is a pincushion. And the pincushion is in use.

CAPT. WHELESS, ARMY AIR HERO, CALLS ON F. D. R.

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—President Roosevelt today personally congratulated the "modest young man" he cited for heroism in his last radio speech.

Received at the White House for a hand shake and a 20 minute chat was Capt. Hewitt T. Wheless of Menard, Tex., the army pilot who bombed six Japanese transports in the Philippines and escaped after a running battle with 18 enemy planes altho his own ship was all but torn apart.

Capt. Wheless was awarded the distinguished service cross and given nation-wide prominence when the President singled out his exploit, with two others, for praise in his radio speech of April 28.

Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, in command of the army air forces, and Col. Charles W. Kerwood accompanied Wheless to the executive mansion. Capt. Wheless told reporters he had been assigned temporarily to the army air corps public relations office here.

SOLDIER'S MEDAL GIVEN SEVEN FOR ACTS OF HEROISM

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—The war department awarded the soldier's medal today to seven officers and men for heroism under noncombat conditions.

First Lieut. James J. Gillespie, Des Moines, Ia., was awarded a decoration for rescuing a soldier from drowning near De Ridder, La., last Sept. 2.

Other awards included:

Pvt. Ray C. Gurd, Doster, Mich., for rescuing a child from a canal March 7 at San Luis, Ariz.

Pvt. Gordon Harrison, Dumbar, W. Va., for rescuing a soldier from a burning plane at Lowry field, Colo., La., last Sept. 21.

Pvt. Michael G. Heick, Detroit, Mich., for trying to rescue a man swept from rocks by high surf March 1 at Point Lobos, San Francisco, Cal.

50 U. S. CARRIERS WOULD END WAR, SAYS PACIFIC VET

Seattle, Wash., May 16 (AP).—Our Pacific fleet is "getting stronger and stronger," Congressman Warren G. Magnuson [D., Wash.] assured today, and "if we had 50 more aircraft carriers out there today the war would be over in a hurry."

The Seattle lawmaker, on leave from congress as a naval lieutenant commander, saw active duty with two hard hitting task forces of the Pacific fleet. He returned to Seattle last night.

He had this comparison to make about American and Japanese fighting ability at sea:

"Every time we met them ship for ship, man for man, in the air and on the water, we've routed them, and their losses sometimes have been 10 to 20 times as many as ours. That's why morale is so high in the fleet; the boys know that.

"The Japanese thought in the beginning that we didn't have the guts to take this thing, that we were soft, but they're changing their minds very rapidly."

Find Parachutes but No Trace of 2 Army Flyers

Wendover, Utah, May 16 (AP).—Four opened and abandoned parachutes attested today to the escape of all the crew of an army bomber which crashed and burned 10 miles north of here last night. Only two of the men had been found this morning. Crews from the air base here searched for First Lieut. James H. Payne, the pilot, and Second Lieut. Richard H. Drake, co-pilot. Pvt. Robert E. Johnson, New Orleans, La., and Pvt. Robert S. Evans, Quinnemont, W. Va., walked back to the base.

TERMS HITLER'S WAR ON U. S. HIS BIGGEST BLUNDER

Writer Discloses Amazed Reaction of Germans.

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

LISBON, Portugal, May 16 (AP).—Adolf Hitler committed the greatest blunder of his career when he took upon himself the odium of declaring war upon the United States. That is the opinion held by those of us who lived in Germany and believe we understand German psychology. The Fuehrer flabbergasted the German people.

Apparently he also so effectively stunned even his own intimate followers that Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels for once failed correctly to estimate German psychology.

For weeks and months the Nazi slogan in response to unfriendly acts by the United States had been: "We won't let ourselves be provoked."

Did Not Expect War.

Even after Japan attacked the United States German friends and acquaintances in every walk of life insisted that Hitler would merely offer a declaration of solidarity with Japan but wouldn't go beyond that.

Hitler had been able to "sell" his war to the German people by claiming that their foes were the first to attack, prepare to attack, or declare war. The rank and file of German people thought Hitler too "smart" ever to declare war.

President Roosevelt was represented as a man already in his dotage. He wants war, it was said, so don't do him the favor of giving him a war.

And then on Dec. 11 the astounding, the amazing, the unbelievable thing happened—Hitler declared war. This was like an ice-cold shower to the German people. Their leader was slipping.

Surprised by Speech.

Altho he had promised the "completion of the greatest victory in history during 1941," he now told the people to get ready for a prolonged conflict.

Psychologically, too, Hitler was slipping. We American journalists were guests of the Gestapo [secret police] while the Fuehrer spoke to the Reichstag Dec. 11, hence we didn't hear him. We were later surprised, however, to see in a Berlin daily how the German dictator ended his speech not with a pep talk to fire the nation but with dire threats against saboteurs at home.

Correspondents also believe it was a grave error to present the German people with the fable about the heart disease of Field Marshal Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch. Large sections of the German people look to soldiers of the old school such as Von Brauchitsch as their last hope to stave off the worst aspects of Nazi domination.

Von Brauchitsch's "resignation" and Hitler's assumption of the supreme army command put the German people in the doldrums.

Ask People for Furs.

At a time when people in Germany were freezing for want of coal and when no more "real" wool was available and furs were practically unobtainable, Goebbels four days before last Christmas asked the nation to give up pelts and other warm things to be shipped to the Russian front. German people couldn't believe their ears.

Only a few weeks previously a newsreel had been brought out showing how soldiers were being furnished with everything needed for the winter. That newsreel even then was running in thousands of smaller movie houses. Clearly, somebody was lying.

Goebbels blamed the winter for the unusual appeal. But only shortly before Reich Press Chief Otto Dietrich had declared that Hitler had foreseen the rigors of a Russian winter.

Goebbels on Christmas Eve suddenly warned the people not to forsake their leaders and the fighting troops as they had done in 1918. It was decidedly poor psychology to remind Germans of their defeat in 1918 so soon after the declaration of war on the United States. It was even worse psychology to admit the possibility of a recurrence of 1918.

Remember Last War.

Besides, the older generation remembered too well how the United States gave the decisive turn to the last World war.

From early 1942 and until our departure in mid-May one depressing fact after another was revealed to the German people by Hitler and his lieutenants. The Ukraine, according to the German press, wouldn't yield tangible agricultural results until 1943. Germans had been led to believe that grain and other raw materials would pour in from the Ukraine from the moment of its conquest.

On March 16 Hitler told his people the Russians definitely would be beaten this summer. A month and 10 days later in an address to the reichstag he promised that German transportation in the east would be better next winter than last. This seemed to indicate Hitler expects to face another Russian winter.

an hour. In moving phrases he asked that America help to the utmost.

"You are France's last hope," he said.

At Biarritz, where the travelers remained for a day at a seaside hotel, the German police slipped up a little. Several of us managed to take an unescorted walk thru town.

Germans Get Everything.

"Everything is reserved for Germans," said a girl in a shop which used to sell silk stockings.

"All cognac has been sent to Germany," wailed a barman.

Biarritz teemed with German soldiers. They do not have to salute on the beach, so that sunbathing officers will not have to rise. At Biarritz buses taking the party to a train moved among German soldiers who were slipping from building to building, apparently working out some problem in street fighting. Planes roared low over the housetops and coast artillery fired into the Bay of Biscay.

On the beach, which in peacetime was one of Europe's smartest promenades, German soldiers were digging themselves into the sand. Burning smudge pots covered the city with dense, evil-smelling smoke. The whole thing looked like a practice maneuver to repel a landing. It also looked like a show that might have been staged for the benefit of the departing Americans.

The French said there had been no previous operations on such a scale and the idea apparently was to try to scare us with a demonstration of German military power.

Suspicious of Strangers.

All contacts with the French were fleeting and furtive. Citizens obviously were suspicious of strangers, but the impression was that France was thoroly unhappy, yet could do little against Nazi domination. Some Frenchmen said, however, that opposition still was keenly alive around St. Nazaire, where fighting continued bitterly for some days after a recent British commando landing.

At Hendaye the party changed from the cramped German train to wider Spanish cars. The Gestapo uniforms disappeared, the blackout was lifted, and meals trebled in size and quality.

Spain, officially friendly, extended itself to make the transit pleasant and swift. At Burgos there was a pro-American demonstration, cheering crowds causing much distress to the German foreign office representative on the train.

The friendliness increased in Portugal. At the town of Cotencas two attractive little girls and boys overwhelmed the American women with great bouquets bearing cards with such phrases as "Long live Portugal; long live liberty."

Among the Americans from Italy were the Rev. Hiram Gruber Woolf of Elmira, N. Y., rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church in Rome, who was arrested Nov. 18 on suspicion of espionage; Harold Denny, New York Times correspondent, and Maj. Michael Buckley, United States army observer, both of whom were captured in Libya before the axis went to war against the United States.

One of the outstanding nonofficial Americans on the last train from Rome was Louise [Teddie] Lynch, former society debutante torch singer in a New York night club, who in private life is the wife of J. Paul Getty, Los Angeles, Cal., oil man. She is a granddaughter of Henry C. Lytton, dean of Chicago's State street merchants.

The Rev. Mr. Woolf had been tried secretly and sentenced to 30 years imprisonment by a special tribunal for defense of the state and held incommunicado nearly six months before he was pardoned by King Victor Emmanuel four days ago.

United States Tools Hand.

The United States government had insisted upon his inclusion in the official repatriation party under threat of criminal prosecution of 13 Italians in the United States against whom it was said serious charges could be made.

The correspondents were arrested immediately after Mussolini's declaration of war Dec. 11, and were first jailed with common prisoners in Rome's Regina Coeli [Queen of Heaven] prison for 24 hours. They then were moved to another cell block where they could buy a few comforts.

After 48 hours, when Italian authorities learned that their correspondents in the United States were not in prisons, the correspondents were transferred to a shabby fourth rate boarding house under police guard. They were held there eight days before they were taken to Siena.

TEXT OF JOINT ARMY AND NAVY COMMUNIQUE

CALL OFFENSIVE U. S. CONCEPT OF WAR'S CONDUCT

Tell of Moving Troops to Battle Stations.

"On Dec. 7, 1941, while diplomatic negotiations were in progress in Washington, the Japanese made a series of surprise air attacks on naval vessels and military and naval installations in and near Pearl Harbor, territory of Hawaii. These attacks resulted in the sinking of several naval vessels and serious damage to several others. In addition, a number of army and navy combat planes were destroyed at various air fields in Hawaii, and many buildings, including barracks, hangars, and repair shops, were wrecked.

"While these attacks were still in progress and in accordance with joint plans, the army and navy took immediate steps to meet the situation. A considerable portion of the navy was then engaged, as it had been for several months, in convoying American vessels carrying troops and supplies to our outlying bases and supplies to other countries under the provisions of the lend-lease act. The existence of a state of war required a strengthening of these convoys and in some cases the use of army bombers to furnish additional protection.

ALTER COURSE OF SHIPS

Troops Reach Australia; Form Nucleus of American Forces.

"Shortly after the attack on Pearl Harbor, a large force of Japanese land based aircraft bombed the Philippine Islands. This attack had been expected in the event of war and, as a security measure, steps had been taken by the army to reënforce the Philippine garrison in training troops and modern materiel prior to Dec. 7. These reënforcements had been under way since late spring of 1941, and between August and the outbreak of the war sizable augmentations in aircraft, modern artillery, and tanks had been sent. Further reënforcements were on the high seas en route when the attack came and these transports were ordered to alter course for Australia. Proceeding under naval escort they arrived safely and formed a nucleus for the American forces subsequently dispatched to that country.

"We had several small outposts in the western Pacific which were held by slender defense forces made up entirely of navy and marine corps personnel. These included the Islands of Midway, Wake, and Guam. After a gallant resistance the defenses of Wake were overcome by the enemy. Guam, after a similar gallant defense, also fell into enemy hands. Midway Island still remains in our possession.

Man Far Flung Outpost.

"Four days after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Germany and Italy declared war upon the United States. This immediately involved the nation in a conflict global in extent and involving strategic considerations unique in the history of this country. It necessitated the immediate garrisoning on a war basis of outposts extending from Alaska to Australia in the Pacific ocean and from Iceland to South America in the Atlantic. During the first three weeks of the war, and in conformity with previous plans, approximately 600,000 American troops were moved to battle stations, many of them thousands of miles distant, across the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, under naval escort, thru submarine infested waters. Others went to our island bases in the Atlantic and Pacific, to the Canal Zone and to Alaska. A primary factor in the rapid movement of large numbers of troops and supplies overseas was the functioning of the ports of embarkation which had been established prior to the beginning of the war.

"Organized for the purpose of expediting overseas shipments, these ports of embarkation were handling, even prior to Dec. 7 tonnage greater in volume than the vast amount required during the World war. Also, careful staff planning and the efficient coöperation of the entire American railroad system permitted the rapid movement within the United States of thousands of troops by rail from training areas in the central part to strategic points on both coasts. In addition, there existed the urgent requirement of maintaining channels of sea and air communications thruout the world in order that preparations for offensive action could be undertaken.

"Immediately becoming the focus of interest from the American viewpoint, the defense of the Philippine Islands presented a complicated problem. Located upon Japan's doorstep, within bombing range by land-based aircraft from Japanese bases on the coast of China and Formosa, at a distance easily susceptible to movements of large bodies of troops by ship from Japan, the Philippines were placed in a state of virtual siege from the outset under Japanese dominance of the sea and air.

Naval Strength Depleted.

"Plans for the defense of the Philippines which had been currently revised from year to year anticipated that in the event of a war with Japan, the islands would be attacked by superior numbers. The American land forces there consisted of a relatively small number of trained American troops and Philippine scouts augmented by a considerable number of soldiers in the partially developed army of the Philippine commonwealth. The naval force in far eastern waters consisted of a relatively small number of cruisers, destroyers, submarines and auxiliary vessels. The naval strength of the united nations in the orient was further depleted during the first few days of the fighting by the loss of the British capital ships Prince of Wales and Repulse.

"Convoyed by a fleet which included capital ships and airplane carriers, the Japanese dispatched a powerful expeditionary force to the Philippine Islands. After several feints and abortive attempts at widely separated points, they were able to land troops in the northern and southern extremities of Luzon. These landings enabled them to seize air fields from which their bombardment and pursuit aviation could operate against our installations.

Sink Number of Vessels.

"Subsequently, during the dark of the moon and in the face of determined resistance by our defense forces and submarines, the enemy landed in numbers at Lingayen gulf, northwest of Manila. About two-thirds of the submarines of the Asiatic fleet were used to oppose these landing operations and in spite of strong anti-submarine measures, they succeeded in sinking a number of enemy vessels and troop laden landing barges. Heavy bombardment aircraft, which had been ferried to the Philippines prior to the war, took a heavy toll. It was only by sheer weight of numbers and in face of heavy casualties that the Japanese were able to land and push back our beach defenses.

BATAAN BEST FOR DEFENSE

Movement to Peninsula Described as Skilful Achievement.

"Long standing tactical studies of Luzon indicated the Peninsula of Bataan, adjacent to the fortified Island of Corregidor, as the terrain most suited for prolonged defense. Altho this plan involved evacuation of the city of Manila, the retention of the fortified approaches to Manila bay denied the use of the Philippines' greatest port to an invader as long as Corregidor held. The operations then resolved themselves into the matter of delaying the Japanese advance to the final defensive position and making it as costly as possible. This movement was skilfully accomplished by the American-Filipino forces under Gen. MacArthur's command.

Bombers Sent to Netherlands.

"As the carefully timed withdrawal toward Bataan peninsula progressed, landing fields for heavy bombardment airplanes became unavailable and these airplanes were sent to Australia. The navy bombers were sent to the Netherlands Indies. Altho beset with difficulties, these army and navy aircraft were able, by operating from the new bases, to continue the support of the Philippines. However, with the enemy in local control of the air, Manila bay, was rendered insecure for ships of any type and submarines could not be serviced, so Adm. Hart withdrew the remainder of the Asiatic fleet to the south, leaving behind a few auxiliary vessels and several small, but highly effective, motor torpedo boats.

"Covered by the guns of Corregidor and other harbor defenses, the small craft controled the waters of Manila bay and the fast torpedo boats constituted an important element in the Philippine defense by exacting a heavy toll on Japanese shipping. Many of the vessels which were withdrawn to the south were subsequently engaged in the battle of the Java sea. The few pursuit aircraft which were able to operate from Bataan gave a remarkable account of themselves and on one occasion made a devastating bombing attack on Japanese shipping and installations in Subic bay, tho the planes had not been constructed for this purpose.

"Established in his defensive position on Bataan peninsula, Gen. MacArthur was able to stabilize his front and beat off repeated and determined attacks which the Japanese made in strong numbers. However, the tightly drawn naval and air screen which the Japanese were able to place around the Island of Luzon made delivery of food and ammunition to the American forces difficult.

Blockade Runners Get Thru.

"With respect to food, the problem was further complicated by the presence on Bataan of thousands of noncombatants who had moved into the areas with the American forces. In January the effect of the blockade was felt and the Bataan garrison was placed on half rations and all necessary steps taken to conserve the ammunition supply. Determined efforts were made to move supplies to the Philippines from Australia and other places. Some naval and some blockade runners succeeded in getting thru with food and ammunition, but for every ship that succeeded in running the blockade, two were sunk by enemy action. As time progressed, the Japanese blockade, operating in central Philippine waters, was so tightened that it became almost impossible to move the supplies accumulated in Mindanao and the Visayan Islands to our beleaguered forces on Bataan.

"For more than three months the defenders of Bataan, reënforced by marines and bluejackets, held out against every type of onslaught by the Japanese. Fighting side by side, Americans and Filipinos alike met these attacks with a determination and unity of spirit which Japanese superiority in men and materiel could not overcome. Due to heavy casualties and his inability to advance, the enemy was required to move to the Philippines additional combat units which had been scheduled for action elsewhere. With these fresh troops he was able, thru the prodigious use of aircraft, tanks and artillery fire, to keep the weary defenders under constant harassment day and night. Finally, reduced to 15 ounces of food per day for several weeks, the defenders became so weakened by exhaustion from the heavy fighting and continuous infiltration that they were physically unable to carry thru a last desperate counterattack and were overwhelmed.

FINAL PHASE OF BATTLE

Heavy Attacks, Lack of Supplies Caused Island Forts to Fall.

However, small portions of this force were withdrawn to the Island of Corregidor during the last hours of the epic struggle.

"With the fall of Bataan, the defense of the Island of Luzon entered upon a final phase. Corregidor and the other island forts at the entrance to Manila bay were subjected to continuous air and artillery attacks. Corregidor was bombarded day and night by enemy aircraft and by hostile batteries from the north and south shores of Manila bay. The morale of the defenders was high and Corregidor was held with the same grim determination as was Bataan. However, the devastating artillery and air attacks, combined with a shortage of food and ammunition, sealed the fate of the brave garrison. The enemy on the night of May 5 made a successful landing attack and after several hours of savage fighting the forts capitulated.

Epic of Fortitude.

"The defense of the Philippines will stand as an epic of the fortitude and tenacity of the American soldier and his Filipino brother in arms. From a practical viewpoint, it demonstrated the comparative weakness of the Japanese as an individual fighter. This feature alone forbodes disaster for the enemy Japanese in the future when the battle is met on terms approaching equality.

"An outstanding feature of the defense of the Philippines has been the fortitude and gallantry of the Filipinos themselves in the defense of their homeland. The singular bravery with which not only the soldiers, but the entire Filipino people, have conducted themselves in this time of trial has been a constant source of admiration for the American soldiers and the entire American nation.

"The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941, transformed overnight the American outlook with respect to world affairs. In fact, at the time of the Japanese attack, our announced purpose was hemisphere defense and only regular army troops, which constituted a small proportion of our growing military establishment, were permitted by law to be moved outside the western hemisphere except to our own territory. In engaging in an amphibious war, world-wide in extent, tremendous distances, both by air and by sea immediately become a primary factory. The American concept of conducting a war has always been and will continue to be offensive in nature. Sound military policy requires the concentration of all available resources on a main effort with the maximum economy of forces in secondary theaters. This situation may result in apparent reverses which are, within the large strategic picture, actually successes.

Disrupt Borneo Invasion.

"During the preparatory phase for offensive action, both the army and the navy have carried out a number of successful thrusts which will have a lasting effect upon the strategic situation. The navy has conducted spectacular raids on Japanese installations and shipping in the Marshall and Gilbert Islands, at Wake and Marcus Islands and in the Lombok and Macassar straits. In this latter action against numerically superior enemy forces, various units of our Asiatic fleet disrupted a large scale landing operation on the coast of Borneo, sinking many transports and damaging a number of enemy war vessels, with no loss of ships and only minor injuries to our personnel. Combined American and Australian land-based air forces participated in a highly successful joint operation which severely crippled Japanese shipping and shore facilities at two ports on the Island of New Guinea. The army air force has carried out raids on Japanese shipping and on shore installations in the Philippines, the Netherlands Indies, the Bay of Bengal, and the Japanese homeland, itself, while our submarines in the far east and in the southwest Pacific have repeatedly struck at the enemy, damaging and sinking many naval vessels, merchant vessels, and transports. In Burma, Chinese forces under the command of Lieut. Gen. Stilwell upset the Japanese time table in that area.

"Early in May a task force of the Pacific fleet, assisted by army reconnaissance planes, and bombers, and several united nations' naval units engaged a Japanese naval force in the Coral sea. Severe losses were inflicted on the enemy and what appeared to be an attempt at further invasion ended in a withdrawal of the enemy forces.

ARMY, NAVY REORGANIZED

"A most encouraging feature since the beginning of the war has been the rapid manner in which machinery has been established for the efficient prosecution of the war. This commenced with reorganizational changes, both within the army and the navy, progresses thru closer coördination of joint operations between the army and the navy, and reaches its peak in machinery established for close collaboration among the united nations. Both the war and the navy departments have been reorganized since Dec. 7 with a view to eliminating delay and expediting administrative procedure. In the war department, the war department general staff has been materially reduced in size, and most of its administrative duties have been transferred to other divisions. The heads of the three major divisions of the army—the army air forces, the ground forces, and the services of supply—report directly to Gen. George C. Marshall, the chief of staff, and relieve him of an enormous burden of administrative duties. Similarly, the reorganization of the navy department has combined the office of the chief of naval operations with that of the commander in chief of the United States fleet. This position of highest naval command in held by Adm. E. J. King. The chief of staff, United States fleet, and the vice chief of naval operations, acting directly under the commander in chief, relieve him of many administrative duties and leave him free for the strategic direction of naval combat units.

"On all of our far-flung battle fronts the army and the navy are coöperating to the closest possible degree. The principle of unity of command has been put into effect in every theater of operation. In the southwest Pacific Gen. MacArthur has been placed in supreme command of the land, air, and sea forces of the united nations. In the Pacific area, military and naval forces are under the command of Adm. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet. In the Panama canal and the immediate adjacent areas, the army has control of military and naval forces. In the eastern Caribbean, all military and naval forces are under the navy. In the defense of the Atlantic and Pacific coastal frontiers, the efforts of the army and the navy are completely unified.

"With respect to collaboration among the united nations, tremendous progress has been made as compared to the World war. Three weeks after the beginning of the present war, in conjunction with a visit of the prime minister of England and the leading members of the British army, navy, and air forces in Washington, machinery was established that will insure complete unity of purpose on the part of the nations concentrating their efforts on the defeat of the axis powers. The existing machinery also permits collaboration with the members of the British commonwealth and other powers which have dedicated their efforts toward achieving this purpose.

"During the first five months of American participation in the war we have met reverses and have enjoyed some successes, but the unity of purpose of the American people and their grim determination to avenge the foul blow of Dec. 7 and rid the world of militaristic aggressors cannot be denied and will, in the end, prove the righteousness of the cause to which the united nations have so unstintingly dedicated their man power, their resources and their futures."

Japan Deporting Coreans to China in Famine, Report

San Francisco, Cal., May 16 (AP).—Many Coreans in Japan are being deported to China because of food shortages in the island empire, the Chungking radio reported today. A dispatch from Lotang, the commentator said, declared a Japanese train transported more than 3,000 poor Coreans from Peking to several areas in North Honan province.

WINDSOR ORDERS WENNER-GREN'S HOLDINGS SEIZED

Seven Big Bahama Firms Confiscated.

Washington, D. C., May 16 [Special]. —Thru an order signed by the Duke of Windsor, as governor general of the Bahama Islands, the island's government has seized seven of Axel Wenner-Gren's huge commercial enterprises, according to a copyrighted story in the Washington Times-Herald. This means, the article says, that the pro-Nazi "Rockefeller of Sweden," who is on the American black list, is definitely out of the financial picture in this hemisphere.

The confiscated properties are the Bahamas Dredging Company, Ltd.; Grand Bahama Packing Company, Ltd.; Paradise Beach and Transportation Company, Ltd.; Sunny Isles, Ltd.; Bank of Bahamas, Ltd.; Mobile Corporation and Mababa, S. A. Most of these properties will be sold or leased, the story says. There is a report that General Foods is negotiating to buy or take over on long lease the Grand Bahama Packing company interests.

Ends Tie-up With Duke.

This move of the Bahaman government brings to an end the "honeymoon" of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor with one of the chief backstage characters in the financing of World War II. and serves notice of Anglo-American solidarity to axis agents in Latin America, the Times-Herald said, in reporting his activities as follows:

In the past two years, Axel Wenner-Gren has been one of the headaches of the American state department.

The 63 year old Swedish steel king has spent much time in recent years traveling around South America. The supposition was that he had agents in this country. Whenever the United States was completing deals with Latin American countries, Wenner-Gren was sure to come steaming into port in his yacht, the Southern Cross. The technique was simple: Give glamor parties aboard the Southern Cross, wine and dine officials of Latin governments, finally to offer better terms than the United States. In this way several United States-Latin American projects were hamstrung.

Yacht Long Suspected.

The Southern Cross was long a suspect vessel to American observers. They noted she was often on hand to rescue passengers from torpedoed ships. The yacht rescued 399 persons from the unarmed British liner Athenia when she was sunk without warning by the Germans in 1939. Charges were made that she was a fueling station for Nazi submarines.

So important did the rôle of the Southern Cross appear to the state department that the vessel was placed on the black list as one of the Wenner-Gren assets. Her Swedish owner protested vigorously. He claimed to have presented the yacht as a gift to Señora Maximino Avila Camacho, sister-in-law of President Manuel Avila Camacho of Mexico. He knew her and her husband when they visited the Windsors at Nassau.

Married to Missourian.

Wenner-Gren's career rivals that of his fellow countryman, Ivar Kreuger, the match king who committed suicide in Copenhagen in 1932. He is called the "Rockefeller of Sweden" because he gave $7,500,000 for a research institute and $100,000 for antiaircraft batteries to defend Stockholm. He got rich by making guns, vacuum cleaners, and electric ice boxes. His wife—Marguerite Liggett—hails from Kansas City. Once asked by a friend how the Southern Cross happened to be in the vicinity of a German torpedoed ship, she replied, "I had a dream that a ship would be sunk in that spot and ordered the captain to sail there."

While yachting off Nassau in February, 1940, Wenner-Gren received a cable from Field Marshal Hermann Goering asking him to come home and mediate the Russo-Finnish peace.

Followed Welles.

Wenner-Gren sailed to Italy on the same ship as Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and proceeded to Berlin around the same time. Later that same year he was reported in Rio de Janeiro offering Brazilians exploitation of their steel industry by a Swedish-German combine.

The United States crushed any such aspirations by loaning Brazil, thru the Export-Import bank, $20,000,000 to help establish that country as an important steel producer.

Mrs. Proctor drew the attention of movie scouts when she was a cheer leader at Northwestern university.

DONOR NO. 18,000 GIVES BLOOD IN RED CROSS DRIVE

Chicago donor No. 18,000 yesterday marched into the American Red Cross quarters at 624 South Michigan avenue in the steady drive toward the quota of 135,000 pints of blood. The national goal, as the result of a recent increase, stands at 1,280,000 pints.

Every week since the local Red Cross chapter began accepting blood Feb. 2, Chicago has met its quota of about 1,200 pints. To eager volunteers who chafe because the Red Cross is not taking the vital fluid 24 hours a day, instead of from 9 to 5 o'clock, Arno Holm, director of the service, provided this explanation yesterday:

"Limited laboratory facilities for turning the blood into dried plasma control the scope of our operations. These facilities soon will be expanded, but it is a precise process and no makeshifts will do where saving lives is concerned."

Gardeners Happy; That Frost Fails to Appear

Victory gardeners and suburban truck farmers were happy yesterday when the frost predicted for Chicago and vicinity failed to materialize. The temperature, which dropped to 39 degrees during the early morning, climbed upward in the afternoon and evening.

CALLS BROWDER'S RELEASE 'WORST NEWS OF THE WAR'

Legion Leader Fears Its Effect on Troops.

"Very Much Alarmed"

Milwaukee, Wis., May 16 (AP).—The Military Order of the World War is "very much alarmed" by the release of Earl Browder from prison, Maj. Ennalls Waggaman of Washington, its national commander, said today. "The communists are altogether too close to the administration," he said. "Letting communist ideologies creep into this country is dead wrong and thoroly dangerous. Browder was convicted of a felony and now he is let out. We've got a right to worry."

The order is composed of World war officers.

New York, May 16 [Special].—Officers of World war veterans' organizations today denounced President Roosevelt's release of Earl Browder from Atlanta penitentiary as "the worst news that patriotic Americans have received since Pearl Harbor."

Lawrence A. McNally, New York county commander of the American Legion, said the President's action "would have the same effect on national morale as an announcement that the entire Pacific fleet had been sunk by the Japanese," and he expressed the hope that the censors would prevent news of Browder's release from reaching the soldiers and sailors in combat zones.

Spurs War on Communism.

Similar sentiments were voiced by other state and local Legion leaders. They said that as a result of Browder's release their organizations would intensify its campaign to stamp out communism and other subversive doctrines.

Browder's release created general rejoicing at the offices of the Citizens' Committee to Free Earl Browder, where plans had been going forward for a Madison Square Garden rally Wednesday to mark Browder's 51st birthday and to demand his release. Committee members said they hoped to convert the rally into a celebration, with Browder as the principal speaker.

Luigi Antonini, right wing state chairman of the Communist tainted American Labor party and first vice president of the AFL International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, said he believed the influence of Maxim Livinov, soviet ambassador, was more potent in bringing about Browder's release than the activities of any of his supporters in this country.

VFW Leader Protests.

Maj. Paul F. Lawrence, state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said he regarded Browder's release as a "most unfortunate deterrent to the progress of the war effort and the national unity of the American people.

"Ever since Pearl Harbor," he observed, "we in the VFW have made 'national unity' our slogan and we have called on the people to forget petty politics and bury minor differences, all on the ground that we are unalterably opposed to dictatorship or totalitarianism, whether it be by Hitler, Hirohito, or Stalin. Now something like this comes along and we wonder whether our exhortations make any sense."

Sees Legions "Up in Arms."

A prediction that the Legion in Brooklyn would "rise up in arms" against the freeing of Browder was made by John J. Kenney, Kings county commander. Asserting that the news had the impact of "a blow below the belt," Kenney said:

"It is a very strange thing that when our boys are enlisting in the armed forces to make it possible for the whole world to enjoy the four freedoms that our President so aptly describes that this same President should see fit to release from jail a man whose every action has been to destroy those freedoms in this country."

Maurice Stember, state adjutant, and James E. McCabe, state chairman of the Legion's Americanism committee, expressed the fear that the President's action would undermine support of the war effort and contribute to disunity in the nation.

RINGS AND WATCH STOLEN.

Mrs. Margaret Candella reported yesterday that two rings and a watch, valued at $340, were stolen from her home at 3039 Parnell avenue Friday.

Freed by Roosevelt

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Earl Browder, freed by President Roosevelt after serving 14 months of a 4 year sentence for passport fraud, relaxes with a cigar in Atlanta, Ga., hotel.

CIO FUR WORKERS CHEER NEWS THAT BROWDER'S FREE

President Roosevelt's commutation of Communist Earl Browder's prison term was hailed yesterday in a 12 minute tumultuous demonstration by several hundred fur workers meeting in the Stevens hotel. The group telegraphed the President congratulations on his "courageous action."

Ben Gold.

Dramatically, Ben Gold, president of the International Fur and Leather Workers' union [CIO], broke into the morning session of the biennial convention with the announcement that President Roosevelt had freed Browder.

"Hurrah for the President," shrieked one young woman during the demonstration. Then, almost in one breath, she shrilled, "and hurrah for Browder."

dency, but because he was a crook and a perjurer who had violated the common law of the land.

"This action of the President's will increase concern in the minds of the people who have been so greatly disturbed as to the way in which the administration is leading the government. We are all in favor of aiding Russia in her fight against a common enemy, but we have no sympathy with those who have been persistent in their efforts to tear down our form of government.

Shocked at Action.

"I am shocked that the President acceeded to the pressure of those whose purity of motive is open to serious question."

When Germany attacked Russia the Communist party endeavored to place a halo of martyrdom around the head of Browder. The Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist party in the United States, has been clamoring for Browder's release as the only stumbling block in the way of complete national unity.

Browder himself raised the cry that he was being persecuted for his political beliefs. On Jan. 22, 1940, the day he was convicted for twice using an American passport obtained by fraudulent statements, Browder, in addressing a Red rally in Madison Square Garden, New York City, blamed his conviction on the desire of New Dealers to remove the taint left by Communist support of Democratic candidates for office. At the time Communists were in bad odor because of the soviet attack on Finland.

Case Is Reviewed.

The White House statement today briefly reviewed the case against Browder, recalling that he was convicted in the United States District court of using a passport which had been obtained by false statements, an offense against federal law.

"It appears that in April, 1937, and again in February, 1938, Browder, on board steamship in New York harbor, returning from Europe, had used, for the purpose of identifying himself and proving his American citizenship, a passport which had been issued to him in 1934 and extended upon a renewel application until Sept. 1, 1938," the statement said. "The false statement which formed the basis of the indictment as shown by the evidence was that Browder had in 1921, 1927, and 1931, obtained passports under assumed names by means of false statements ,and that in procuring the passport issued to him in 1934 in his own name he stated under oath that no passport had previously been issued to him."

Reds Call Violation Trivial.

The tack that Browder's violation of law was trivial has been taken by the Communists in liberation efforts. However, Browder could not be prosecuted on more serious charges because of the expiration of the statute of limitations.

At his trial the government produced evidence that he had obtained passports in the names of Nicholas Dozenberg in 1921, George Morris in 1927, and Albert Henry Richards in 1931. Because of the seven year statute of limitations the government could not prosecute him directly for obtaining these passports under false names. He was convicted for having presented to immigration officials, on his return to this country in 1934, a passport obtained in his own name. In securing this application he had made the false statement that he had not secured a passport previously.

The White House statement said that Browder paid fines of $2,000 and has been imprisoned a year and about two months—a longer sentence than that usually imposed for offenses involving fraudulent obtaining and use of passports.

"The President believes that the principle of obedience to law has been sufficiently vindicated by the punishment already suffered by Browder and that the commutation of his sentence which brings about his release at this time, just shortly before he will become eligible for parole, will have a tendency to promote national unity and allay any feeling which may exist in some minds that the unusually long sentence in Browder's case was by way of penalty imposed upon him because of his political views."

Broad War Cabinet Asked by New Zealand Veterans

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, May 16 (AP).—An appeal for a broadened basis for the government has been made by the War Veterans' association to Prime Minister Peter Fraser. Thru Legislative Councillor William Perry, the veterans asked for establishment of a national war cabinet including personnel drawn from outside parliament. Perry claimed the parliamentary labor party and national labor party executive already had endorsed the principle, altho the nationalist opposition held such a plan impracticable.

SUBS STILL LEAD AS SHIPBUILDERS SET NEW RECORD

White House Says Sinking Rate Must Stop.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—While ship building is being accelerated in American yards, the serious shortage of ocean tonnage which this country has known since the outbreak of the war in 1939, will continue until the submarine menace is ended and the construction program reaches full production, the White House announced tonight.

In a formal statement issued on the basis of reports furnished by the maritime commission, the White House gave the first official figures on merchant ship construction released during the war. The figures showed that the united nations are losing ships faster than they are being built in American yards.

From Jan. 1 to May 10, the statement said, American shipbuilders delivered 120 into service. Altho this number was 20 per cent greater than the entire 1941 production, it is still short of production goals and below the level of sinkings. In the same period submarines accounted for approximately 172 ships in American waters.

The statement was issued by the White House in order to give the nation word that ship production is improving and that merchantmen are being turned out faster than ever before in the world's history. Three weeks ago President Roosevelt said that with the exception of shipping, the nation's war production is moving on schedule. He blamed a shortage of steel plate for the bogging of merchant ship building. Today's statement said the situation is improving altho production goals have not yet been reached.

8 Million Ton Goal Set.

The 120 ships turned out are believed to represent 1,200,000 deadweight tons as most vessels being built today are of 10,000 tons. In his annual message to congress the chief executive set a goal of 8,000,000 tons for 1942 and 10,000,000 for 1943. About 1,000,000 tons of ships were built in 1941.

"The latest reports of the progress of the victory fleet program are reassuring and should clarify some of the confusion as to a shortage of ships," the statement said. "They show no lag today in cargo shipbuilding.

"The United States has been short of merchant tonnage since the war began in 1939. The condition has been aggravated continuously since that time, particularly since Dec. 7, due to the far-flung battle fronts of the World war and to increased activity of axis submarines.

Now on Schedule.

"Some shipyards are well ahead of schedule; others are on schedule; a few are behind but are catching up rapidly. The over-all average, however, shows that the program is on schedule. At first the task appeared fantastic, but now records are being made that once were believed impossible."

The statement said that Liberty ships are now being completed in 90 days, where original schedules had called for 180 days. The construction time is being reduced constantly. At Portland, Ore., the Jonathan Edwards, a Liberty ship, will be put into service in 60 days after the laying of its keel and the Thomas Bailey Aldrich will be launched in 36 days.

105 Day Average Set.

In the World war, yards averaged 350 days a ship on the Atlantic coast and 309 days on the Pacific. Today the yards are averaging 105 days, it was said.

"The progress made thus far is easing our shipping problem, but there will be a shortage of ships until sinkings thruout the world are brought under better control and the shipbuilding program gets into full production," the statement concluded. "The American people can be assured that the shipyards will do the job assigned to them."

MILITARY AREA ON EAST COAST IS PROCLAIMED

New York, May 16 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding general of the eastern defense command and 1st army, formally proclaimed a military area tonight for the entire eastern seaboard covering 15 states, part of Florida, and the District of Columbia.

The declaration put into effect plans announced April 27 to set up an eastern military area as a security measure by direction of the President and the secretary of war.

Made a part of the proclamation were all restrictions and orders issued from the four corps areas involved in the military area for control of lights along coasts.

Deliberate violations by alien enemies will be deemed cause for expulsion, internment, or prosecution, and similar violations by other persons will be cause for expulsion or prosecution.

War Output and Workers' Health Linked, Says Briton

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 16.—Jack Tanner, president of the Amalgamated Engineering union, at a conference in London today on the health of war workers, expressed the conviction that the question of medical care of workers, particularly preventive measures, was "inseparably bound with war production." Dr. T. O. Garland, member of the British Medical association's committee on industrial health in factories, estimated that 40,000,000 working weeks yearly were now lost as the result of ordinary sickness, not including accidents.

She'll Give It Up

Washington, D. C., May 16 [Special].—Mrs. Evie Robert, wife of Lawrence Wood [Chip] Robert, former treasurer of the Democratic national committee and former undersecretary of the treasury, today prepared to surrender the jeep she has been using to make social calls and run errands.

The vehicle was loaned to her a week ago by the Washington representative of a motor company manufacturing jeeps for the army. She had sold her farm tractors to save gasoline, she said, and complained to the representative that she was worried about the work she would have to do moving a hen house and marking trees on her Maryland farm.

When she finished the farm work she brought the jeep back to town and used it for everyday driving, parking it in front of the Mayflower hotel, where she and her husband have an apartment. She said the company plans to pick up the vehicle for demonstration purposes any day now.

TORPEDO BOATS SINK AN ENGLISH SUB, SAYS ITALY

ROME, May 16 [from Italian broadcasts]—(AP).—The Italian high command today said Italian torpedo boats escorting a convoy had sunk a British submarine in the central Mediterranean. On the Libyan land front, Italian planes were said to have attacked British truck concentrations. A British plane was reported shot down in an RAF raid on Bengazi, Libya, and two others were said to have been destroyed in axis attacks on Malta.

[The German high command yesterday said German submarines sank a British patrol boat and a submarine chaser in the Mediterranean.]

Down Two Planes at Malta.

VALETTA, MALTA, May 16 (AP).—The royal air force destroyed two axis planes and damaged four in fights here today, a communique announced. This brought to seven the number of axis planes destroyed over the fortress from noon Thursday.

RAF Reports Three Raids.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 16 (AP).—British planes raided Bengazi, Benina, and Martuba last night, royal air force headquarters announced today.

KILLED BY CRANE BOOM.

Carl Wennenberg, 28 years old, of Springfield, Ill., a crane oiler employed on a lake front job near the Adler planetarium, was crushed to death between the crane boom and a seawall yesterday.

ESCAPE OF 250 IN SUB ATTACK TOLD BY WOMAN

Ship Sunk by Torpedo Off Bermuda.

New York, May 16.—The story of how she and 249 men escaped in lifeboats when their ship was torpedoed and sank was told today by Gwen Canfield of Long Beach, Cal., a former show girl.

172

Survivors previously had been taken to Hamilton, Bermuda, and Miss Canfield came here by Clipper. She said the ship, a Canadian vessel on which she was coming home after a vacation trip, was attacked about 200 miles out of Bermuda. The date of the attack was not made known.

Three U-Boats Reported.

"The torpedoing occurred about 9 p. m.," Miss Canfield said. "I was told that three submarines were sighted off our ship.

Miss Canfield said 12 persons were killed in the attack. The sinking was the 172d in American waters since Pearl Harbor, with 1,075 dead, 1,252 missing and believed lost, and 5,554 rescued.

"One torpedo whizzed past the vessel, but a second hit the stern. The boat immediately listed, and there was an explosion.

"A few people leaped into the sea, but the morale was splendid. I was in one of the lifeboats which put out from the ship.

"Several people were killed—two or three, I believe—when a sixth lifeboat jammed on its davits and crashed against the side of the boat.

Sees Ship Roll Over.

"We got away in the lifeboats and in less than 25 minutes after the torpedo struck we looked back and saw the ship roll over and sink."

She said the lifeboats were at sea three days and two nights and that on the third night they were sighted by a plane and the survivors were picked up and taken to Bermuda.

7 Killed on Norse Ship.

Eight survivors of a small Norwegian merchant ship who also reached New York said a submarine machine gunned their vessel after torpedoing it April 10 off the east coast of South America.

Seven crew members, including the captain, Jens Tender, and a stewardess, Margit Halten, were killed either by the explosion or by the bullets, according to Ange Andersen, third engineer and one of the 24 who were rescued.

The seaman at the wheel, Knud Kristoffersen, escaped from the wheelhouse and three himself into the sea altho his thigh bone was fractured by a machine gun bullet.

85 World War Veterans Honor Dead Buddies Today

Eighty-five World war veterans of ambulance company 129, 33d division, will honor their dead buddies in ceremonies at five cemeteries this morning. The cemeteries are Waldheim, Oakridge, Acacia, Montrose, and Rosehill. The veterans, many of whom are from out of town, are attending their 23d annual reunion at the Hotel Sherman today.

FEMALE ARMY WINS APPROVAL OF 'WAR PAINT'

WAAC to Be Permitted to Wear Rouge.

BY MARCIA WINN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Members of the American Women's army auxiliary corps will march, salute, and go thru daily calisthenics just as their brothers in the army do, but they may wear nail polish, if inconspicuous, and makeup, if in good taste.

These and approximately 3,000 other details became public property today when the new WAAC held its first press conference. That is, Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, its national director, held hers.

With Mrs. Hobby as the conference progressed into a merry circus carnival were Secretary of War Stimson, who made a speech; Judge Advocate General Myron Cramer, who inducted Mrs. Hobby as director; a phalanx of army generals, who smiled genially thruout, and a score of minor officers who kept hushing the assembly so this historic event could be recorded for the newsreels. It was—four times.

Four Speeches Do It!

Mrs. Hobby made four speeches before starting the conference proper. The first was in reply to Secretary Stimson. The second was into the newsreel cameras. The third and fourth were retakes of the second.

Some one then remembered that Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers [R., Mass.], author of the bill which created the WAAC, was there, sitting quietly and in momentary oblivion in a corner. She was asked to pose with Mrs. Hobby. She did.

Some one else with a "where is Mr. Hobby?" brought up another forgotten quantity, and up turned William P. Hobby, former governor of Texas, attired in a gray suit, a tie of lavender and pink, and an admission pass. He posed patiently and said nothing. Mrs. Hobby smiled warmly, for distant and closeup shots alike, and repeated her speech.

A Hat of Military Bearing.

With this prologue the conference to describe the work and setup of the WAAC progressed. Designers for the WAAC uniform, after battling for six weeks, have not been able to agree on the style. Thus, its new director was not in uniform. She wore a neat black suit with a beige blouse, gloves, and cartwheel hat, the colorful crown of which was described by one newspaper man as: "It fires a 37 mm. cannon thru the hub."

Now for the details of the WAAC, in whose ranks 25,000 women will be enrolled before the year is out:

Enlistment of candidates for the officers' training school at Fort Des Moines, Ia., will begin around June 1. Candidates for the school must be between 21 and 45 years of age, married or single. They must have had a high school education or its equivalent, be of good health and excellent character, pass an intelligence test [comparable to that given prospective army officers], submit proof of birth and citizenship, and qualify according to a height and weight chart.

105 Is Minimum Weight.

No applicant will be accepted who weighs less than 105 pounds. Her weight must come within a 15 pound variation of standard weight charts.

Altho many women have been working diligently in recent months in such semi-military groups as the Red Cross Motor corps, the American women's voluntary services and others, special consideration will be given only to women who have been working as volunteers with the Aircraft Warning Service.

Recruiting will be on a corps area or regional basis to obtain fair representation from the country as a whole. Applications must be obtained in person from local recruiting stations. A corps area recruiting officer and two women assistants will examine and sift them.

Approximately 450 women will be selected for the first officer training school, with 60 candidates recommended by each of the nine corps areas. Other candidates will be selected from volunteers who have served with the Aircraft Warning service.

Mrs. Hobby said the first school will contain 40 Negro women and two of the first eight companies to be formed will be of Negroes. These will be trained for administrative jobs.

Training to Start in July.

Actual training will begin July 15 in the 640 acre post at Fort Des Moines, now an army induction center. The candidates will receive an intensive eight weeks' course. Each officer candidate will receive her equipment, uniform, subsistence, and $50 a month while in training.

Women in the corps will be known as auxiliaries. They will not be recruited until the first group of officers has been trained. The new officers, in turn, will train the auxiliaries.

The first basic course for auxiliaries will begin Sept. 15. It will be a four week course, followed by an eight week course in specialized fields. Sixty-two fields, ranging from chauffeur to dental hygienist, will be open to the women.

Qualifications for auxiliaries are the same as those for officers except they are not required to be high school graduates. At present their recruiting will be limited to 700 a month.

A mere man will command the officers' training school. He is Col. Don C. Faith, infantry, who also attended the press conference. He made a brief speech about the fort and said it is a beautiful post with enough acreage to accommodate an eventual female population of 5,500.

No Idea of Cost.

Mrs. Hobby said the uniform accepted will conform to War Production board specifications.

"Will the government provide girdles?" one eager voice asked.

"I can't tell," Mrs. Hobby replied mysteriously.

"Will officers [female] be permitted to have dates with privates [male]?"

This nonplussed Mrs. Hobby. For guidance she turned to Gen. Alexander D. Surles, but first said the WAAC would attempt to follow army tradition.

The general, smiling broadly, said that as a rule army officers stay away from privates.

"I haven't been out lately," he parried.

Mrs. Hobby is a pretty woman 37 years old, with graying hair. She was a banker, attorney, and co-publisher with her husband of the Houston [Tex.] Post until August, when she came to the war department to head a women's interest division for its bureau of public relations.

When asked, she said she does not wish to be called "Madame Director."

13 NATIONS MEET TOMORROW IN AIR TRAINING PARLEY

OTTAWA, Ont., May 16 (AP).—Representatives of 13 of the united nations meet here Monday for the inter-allied air training conference, which aviation authorities rate as a major event in the war effort. Participants are to be the United States, Canada, Britain, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, China, the Netherlands, Belgium, Norway, Greece, Poland, and Czecho-Slovakia.

The importance attached to the discussions is indicated by the presence in its delegation of Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the United States army air forces; Robert A. Lovett, assistant secretary of war for air, and Artemus Gates, assistant secretary of the navy for air.

On the word of Canadian Air Minister Charles G. Power, the conference is not expected to produce discussions of the higher strategy, but will strive for pooling of man power, as aircraft are pooled, despite national pride and differences of languages and customs.

BIG SANITARIUM AT BATTLE CREEK WILL GO TO ARMY

Detroit, Mich., May 16 [Special].—The army will take over the $12,000,000 Battle Creek [Mich.] sanitarium Aug. 1, for use at a general base hospital, it was disclosed today.

John C. Lehr, United States district attorney here, said he had filed a declaration in Federal court on behalf of the war department. Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, who built the hilltop institution after fire destroyed its predecessor, may file objections to the price offered, but this is not considered likely.

The declaration of taking virtually is an offer by the army to assume payment of a $1,271,500 mortgage, $18,300 in unpaid taxes, and other liens up to a total of $2,250,000. The property was appraised in 1937 at $12,000,000.

WOMEN POLICE! THEY'LL DIRECT PARK TRAFFIC

Offer Jobs to 'Matronly, Settled' Types.

Motorists, accustomed to traffic policemen of the "Where-do-you-think-you're-going?" school, will be startled this summer to be pulled to the curb by nattily uniformed women and reprimanded gently in feminine tones for running thru red lights.

That is, if the motorists are fortunate, or unfortunate as the case may be, to be stopped by one of 50 women "service guards" who will be hired by the Chicago park district as an auxiliary corps to its traffic department.

Replace Men in Services.

Announcement of the new job for women was made yesterday by Blaine Hoover, superintendent of employment for the park district. Hoover, who has spent the last year observing the effect of the draft on the traffic force, will set up the new system to alleviate the increased shortage of men available for jobs other than in war production and the armed forces.

Since the idea is not to stop traffic but just to direct it, the service guards need not be "lookers," Hoover stated. In fact, the park district will prefer women who are "married, matronly, and methodical." Their duties will be to direct traffic at boulevard crossings near schools during the hours when children are coming to or from school, to aid in the parking of automobiles in park district lots and to serve as guides and monitors at special park events such as contests, and band concerts.

Blue Uniforms, White Belts.

Altho officially not policewomen, the guards will look authoritative in snappy, navy blue uniforms with white Sam Brown belts and peaked caps similar to those of their brother officers. Hoover said the red insignia of the park police will decorate the cap and the park district emblem will be prominent on the left sleeve. The uniform will not come equipped with a police club or gun but it will have one "persuader," . . . a book of tickets.

No tiny tendrils of femininity or beanpole varities need apply. Applicants must stand [and they will for hours] between five feet two inches and six feet tall. For once they will have to tell their age correctly and it must be between 24 and 50. They must pass medical and written examinations, prove their citizenship and good character and be emotionally stable. Mothers and wives with husbands in the service stand a good chance of being hired, Hoover indicated.

Hours to Be Short.

The hours will be short for school crossing assignments, between four and five hours, five days a week, and the pay will be at least 40 cents an hour. The job will be civil service and subject to pension.

Applications will be taken by the department of personnel and civil service at 425 East 14th boulevard and women who do not qualify as service guards will be considered for other occupations.

As service guards, the women will not have the power to arrest but for once, their having the last word will be official.

Prepare for next C. P. A. EXAMINATION

. . . . NEW CLASS PLAN

Thoroughly tested over 7 years, this new plan embodies strikingly different and efficient methods. The quizzer method (so effective in preparation for the bar examinations), an optional laboratory period of 3 hours each Saturday afternoon for practice in answering problems under examination room conditions, an intensive review of accounting, continuous coaching by successful C. P. A.'s, thorough study of A. I. A. examination problems, and consultation at any time with an experienced C. P. A.—these are some of the facilities and services.

Evidence of our success in coaching for the examinations is seen in the fact that over 10% of the C. P. A.'s in the U. S. are LaSalle members. Furthermore, if you fail in passing the examination, we will continue coaching you without further cost until you do pass.

These loop evening classes begin the week of May 25 and continue for 25 weeks. Classes meet once a week—one on Tuesday, one on Thursday and one on Friday—at 6:30 P. M. The cost is moderate and convenient payment terms can be arranged.

FRENCH PLANNING DRIVE TO KEEP GRIP ON COLONIES

Alarmed by Loss of 31% of Vast Empire.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, May 16.—The French are trying to hold on to the elements of a former empire. Much of what made up a vast colonial domain of 60 million people scattered over the seven seas has gone—so far as direct control from the central French government in Vichy is concerned.

Statistics compiled here estimate that with British seizure of Madagascar and America's "semi-protectorate" over the French West Indies, 31 per cent of French colonial territory and 23 per cent of the colonial population have been taken from direct Vichy control.

But the French have not given up. Beginning tomorrow, the observance of what is to be called an "imperial fortnight," will impress upon the French people the necessity of preserving an empire won at great cost.

The campaign will be marked by demonstrations in 200 French towns and cities, its main objects being to arouse popular interest in the value of colonies, inspire French youths to seek careers in the colonies and encourage other citizens to emigrate.

A train carrying exhibits will be sent thruout occupied and unoccupied France to stimulate interest in the colonies.

Lecture courses will be conducted in big towns of the unoccupied zone. Motion pictures illustrating the colonies will be shown. In Toulon and Marseilles, teachers and professors will be taken to see the French fleet.

Empire "Disintegrating."

This demonstration comes at a time when France's colonial holdings appear to be slowly disintegrating. Remaining to France under direct control now are North Africa, which includes Tunis, Algeria, and Morocco; French West Africa, which includes Senegal and Dakar; Djibouti; several Indian ocean islands and the Wallis Islands in the Pacific northeast of Fiji.

Lost or semi-lost to French control are Equatorial Africa; Syria and Lebanon; the Cameroons and Togo; the Indian trading posts of Chandernagor, Yanaon, Pondichery, Karikal, and Mahe; St. Pierre and Miquelon Islands near Canada; Madagascar [in part]; Tahiti and the Pacific islands—except Wallis Islands which have remained loyal to Chief of State Marshal Petain; New Caledonia; New Hebrides [held in co-dominion with England]; and the French West Indies.

Besides these territorial and population losses the French estimate shipping losses at 650,000 tons seized and 73,000 tons sunk by their former friends and allies.

SHOWERS BOW OUT JUST IN TIME TO LET TULIP PARADE BEGIN

Holland, Mich., May 16 [Special].—The sun that helped color the bright parade opening the annual Holland Tulip Time festival today seemed twice as bright as usual. For it had broken thru weeping clouds only at 1:30 p. m., a scant hour before starting time for the parade.

Only once before in the 14 years of the festival has rain fallen on opening day.

A crowd of 60,000 bordered the line of march, a small group compared with the 125,000 of a year ago, but this year's group was better able to see the proceedings.

At 4 p. m. the crowds still were increasing. It was estimated that continued sunshine would bring 100,000 visitors to the festival tomorrow. The affair will continue six more days, with the climax planned next Saturday, when 23 bands will play.

ONE PLANE FINDS A BIG ROLE FOR ITSELF IN WAR

Washington, D. C., May 16 [Special].—The plane was known variously as "Red Cap" and "Gravy Train," but she has traveled 125,000 miles since Dec. 6, has carried nearly every British and American general stationed in the western Pacific, evacuated about 100 civilians from Java, and rescued two loads of men from the Philippines. What's more, during four months in the South Pacific, this American bomber never saw an enemy plane or fired a gun at a Japanese.

In all that stretch "Red Cap" was navigated by Lieut. Theodore John Boselli of the air corps ferrying command. On Monday he will receive the distinguished flying cross from Brig. Gen. Harold L. George.

EXPLAINS ROLE OF PSYCHOLOGY EXPERTS IN WAR

The part played by psychologists in the war effort was told yesterday by Dr. Steuart Henderson Britt at a meeting of the Illinois Society of Consulting Psychologists in the La Salle hotel. Dr. Britt is executive director of the office of psychological personnel of the National Research council in Washington, D. C. Hundreds of psychologists are engaged in war work, he said.

SPINSTER SLAIN IN DINGY STORE; GAGGED, BOUND

Money Found Under Hops, Malt and Grain.

A strange murder mystery began unfolding last night in a dingy frame store building that has stood for 75 years at 1635 West 47th street. There an elderly spinster was found dead yesterday, gagged and bound. And there money, mainly in old coins, was being dug up from beneath the hops and malt and grain she sold.

The victim of the murder was Miss Emma Wokohn, 66 years old, whose parents built the store and operated it for many years. She had maintained the business since their death, with her brother, Benjamin, who died March 1, leaving an estate valued at about $35,000.

Because her strange assortment of merchandise included many kinds of tobacco, the store was a gathering place of policemen from the New City station, half a block away.

Visits Her Attorney.

Miss Wokohn was taken to the bank to deposit $300 Friday by her nephew, Policeman Louis Stephens of the Grand Crossing station. Thence he took her to see her attorney about her brother's estate of which she is administratrix.

Policeman Stephens took Miss Wokohn home late in the day. He tried to telephone her Friday evening, but received no answer. Yesterday morning he telephoned again. But there was no response. He and his wife and their daughter, Mrs. Bessie Porns of 5252 Wentworth avenue, hurried to the store.

They found the door locked, and summoned New City police. In the living quarters behind the store they found Miss Wokohn dead on a couch. She was wearing the clothes she wore to visit the attorney. Her hands were bound behind her with rags. More rags were tied about her ankles, and rags had been stuffed into her mouth.

Uncover Old Coins.

Capt. John Ryan of the New City police and Sergeants Walter Payne and Frank Byrnes of the detective bureau homicide squad said they believed she had been suffocated by the gag. The police said she might have been killed by an intruder hiding in the store when her nephew brought her home.

Delving beneath the seeds she kept for sale and in the musty bins containing malt and hops, the police began to find the coins—the loot which the killer had evidently sought in vain. There were old large size bills and old coins.

Late last night the search had uncovered $536. Of this, $450 was in old coins, some of which bore dates as early as 1837. Police said they would look in every bin and container for more hidden wealth.

FALL INJURES WOMAN.

Mrs. Emma Theilsen, 49 years old, was seriously injured yesterday when she fell from her second floor apartment at 2329 North Kenneth avenue. She had been washing windows.

STRANGE MALADY KILLS HUNDREDS OF BIRDS ON WING

Pageland, S. C., May 16 (AP).—Several hundred small birds, apparently affected by a strange malady while in flight, fell dead or dying onto this community yesterday.

Police said they tumbled like rain before dawn and estimated between 500 and 1,000 fell. Health officers sent baskets full of them to Columbia, where the state veterinarian and the game warden were puzzled. Game Warden A. A. Richardson said they might have drunk toxic substances from a pond.

Prof. P. J. Philson of the University of South Carolina said the birds were Maryland yellowthroats, also known as black-masked ground warblers.

"With a Banjo on my Knee"

An Unknown Soldier stepped off the troopship gangplank at a port—also unknown—in Australia. With one exception, he resembled the thousands of other boys who shuffled ashore on sea-legs. Garand rifles slung over O. D. shoulders . . . bayonets swinging from the hip . . . overseas packs tightly rolled.

All these he had, and a banjo that he clutched in his left hand. On the six weeks voyage across 6,000 miles of sullen water, his "outfit" had come to love that banjo . . . "The lifesaver with four strings," they called it.

Days off-duty they gathered 'round while he strummed Star Dust, or sat through black-outs to his hushed Stephen Foster favorites . . . clapped and whistled till they could be heard Deep in the Heart of Texas . . . and fell asleep at last in their bunks thinking of The Girl I Left Behind Me . . . And now, that banjo went ashore in a foreign land—the symbol of an unbeatable race—a race that can play and fight and sing!

When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin, as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and feel world's better. Get genuine Dr. Caldwell's.

Demand City Continue Free Parade Permit.

The Grand Army of the Republic Memorial Association of Cook County last evening completed plans for its annual Memorial day parade, which may not materialize if the association and the park district do not come to terms on the expenses incurred by the annual observance.

Delegates to the meeting in Memorial hall in the Chicago Public Library building, Randolph street and Michigan avenue, adopted a resolution appointing a committee of five to confer with the park board concerning the special annual parade permit, which has been granted to the association free of charge for the last 50 years.

Letter Causes Discord.

The bone of contention which caused outspoken indignation among the delegates was a letter read to the assembly from the park district. The letter, phrased in polite but determined language, stated the park district would not furnish the parade permit until a check for expenses, amounting $556, was received. The park district also reserved the right to cancel the parade at any time if some national defense event should be held at the same place and time.

The resolution, adopted after more than a half hour of heated discussion, was a substitute for an original motion submitted by the association's administration council which declared the check for the expenses of the reviewing stand would not be sent until the formal permit for the parade was issued.

May Not Have Reviewing Stand.

Capt. Carlin H. Woodbridge of the American Legion, adjutant general of the association, pointed out that if the park district did not coöperate in this matter, the parade would be held without the reviewing stand and the public and the press would be informed of the reason why it had been omitted. He stated the check for the funds donated by Mayor Kelly to the association would be returned to him.

"I'd see them in hades before I'd pay them for their permit especially at this time when we would be commemorating the memory of many of our boys who have died in this war," John B. Wleklinski, commander of Camp Schley of the Spanish American War Veterans, shouted. "I can see the fine hand of James Petrillo behind this. What does he want to do? Save all the money for his concerts? Ye gods!"

Yelling Out of Order.

Wleklinski was called out of order by Woodbridge for yelling. "Commander Thomas Ambrose can hear the sound of what you say but not the sense," he reprimanded.

Wleklinski returned to his seat muttering and plans for the parade continued smoothly.

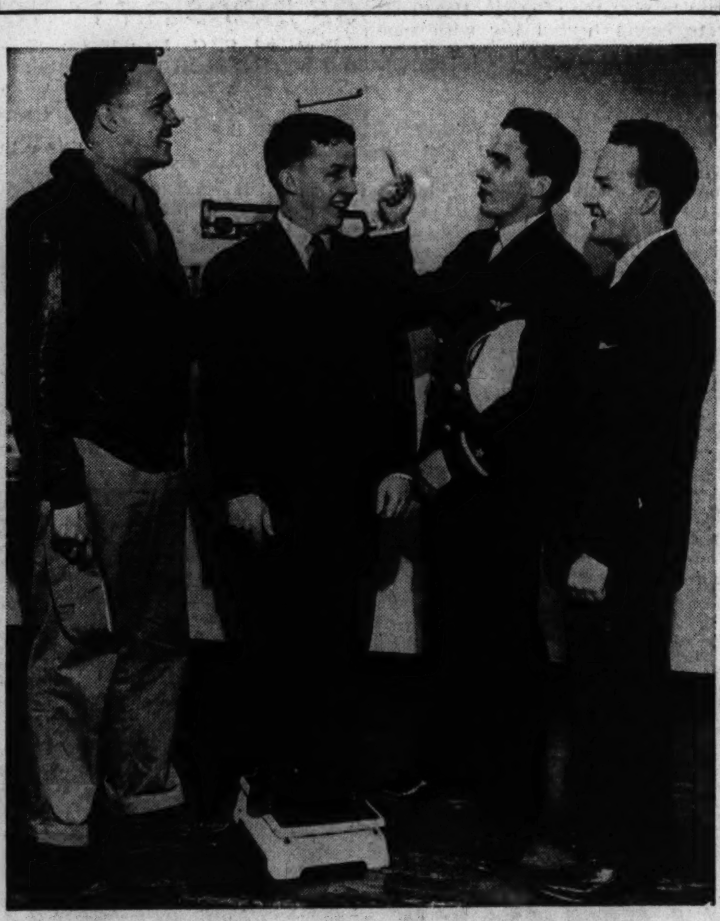
Committee chairmen reported that several hundred speakers would give Memorial day addresses at schools thruout the city and that flowers would be laid on the graves of veterans. It was decided that the annual reception for the surviving members of the Grand Army of the Republic would be held in Memorial hall prior to the parade.

It was determined that the order of the parade would follow its traditional line of march on Michigan avenue and that it would be held regardless of weather conditions, and the park district.

Bishop Will Be Honored at Testimonial Dinner

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, resident head of the Methodist area of Chicago, will be given a testimonial dinner on the occasion of his 10th anniversary as bishop of the area, Tuesday, May 26, in the La Salle hotel. The Chicago Methodist Social union is in charge of the event.

More Altitude, Says the Air Corps



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

All from Wisconsin

Richard Dudley, 18 years old, tried to join his three brothers in the navy air corps yesterday, but recruiting officers sent him back to his home in Wausau, Wis., to grow another inch and three-quarters. Richard is 5 feet 2¼ inches tall, and the navy minimum is 5 feet 4.

Jay Dudley, 24, has just been awarded his navy wings. Robert, 22, is in training at the Glenview naval reserve aviation base, and Lauren, 20, was sworn in recently as a member of the University of Wisconsin's latest Flying Badger squadron.

WARNS ATTACKS ON ADVERTISING AIMED AT PRESS

Defense Leader Cites Control Attempts.

Sacramento, Cal., May 16 [Special.]—Subversive forces in the United States which hope to destroy a free press are seeking to discredit and destroy advertising as a means of weakening the financial structure which makes a free press possible, Don Belding, president of the Pacific Advertising association, said today.

Belding's statement was released by A. Harold Noon, chief of defense information of the California State Council of Defense. Belding is a member of the council's committee on public information.

Public Gets All Facts.

"The press today, under a voluntary censorship, is giving the American people the news—quickly, fairly, and freely," Belding declared. "The fact that all editorial and news comment is not exactly the same is proof in itself that there is no arbitrary control of news. The people are not given just one side of it—they get all sides and can thus draw a fair conclusion."

Belding called attention to the fate of France, which he said was largely brought about by the fact a controled press told the people only what the forces controling it wanted them to know.

"Under the guise of assumed war necessity, there are those who would like to control the press so that only one side is presented," Belding said. "They would like to do away with our democratic way of life and put in its place a controled system.

Keeps Press Free.

"One of their ways of doing this would be to discredit and destroy advertising, which is the main basis of support of the press, and which helps the press to remain financially solvent."

Belding asserted that it is the function of the press to inform, whether thru news columns or in advertising pages. Thru the press, he said, the public, including business, labor, and organizations of every kind and creed, should at all times have the right to express opinion, provided that utterance will not give aid and comfort to the enemy.

Church Will Honor Legal Profession in Services

The legal profession will be honored today in special services at First Unitarian church, Woodlawn avenue and 57th street, in the annal vocation day observances of that church. Judge William H. Holly of the United States District court and the Rev. Dr. Von Ogden Vogt, pastor, will deliver addresses.

TRAFFIC FADES TO A TRICKLE IN RATIONED EAST

No Gas, Motorists Forced to Stay at Home.

Ration Amid Plenty

Tallahassee, Fla., May 16 (AP).—Gov. Spessard Holland, stil urging removal of Florida and Georgia from gasoline rationing, told Petroleum Coördinator Harold L. Ickes today that barges have recently brought more gasoline into Florida ports than storage facilities could hold. Barges and tugs have been tied up at some ports, he said, their crews "twiddling their fingers at a time when their 100 per cent efforts could be so well utilized" if Ickes lifted restrictions from the two states. The governor said Georgia was entitled to be removed from gasoline rationing because much of its gasoline clears thru Florida ports.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The eastern seaboard inaugurated its first stay-at-home week-end yesterday.

Due to stringent gas rationing, Saturday travel dwindled to a trickle, while erstwhile motorists discovered new ways of entertaining themselves around the house.

At bridges, highway intersections and other points where traffic could be accurately checked, the slow-down was pronounced. The OPA placed a staff of investigators on the Delaware river and Tacony-Palmyra bridge approaches in the Philadelphia area to check the use of cars for pleasure jaunts to the seashore.

New York state police said the great parkway boulevards were decidedly "lonesome."

List to Be Made Public.

From Florida to Maine, millions of motorists were swiftly readjusting their modes of travel to meet strict government requirements.

OPA officials announced plans were being studied to make public all lists of gas ration cards, while state authorities and oilmen sought ways and means of alleviating the gas shortage and the manifold problems arising out of the government's edict.

Gov. J. M. Broughton of North Carolina sought relaxation of the rationing in his state, declaring that gasoline brought in by pipeline was being transported in huge quantities to neighboring states not under the program.

Fight Bootlegging.

The eastern states gasoline dealers, representing 15 states and the District of Columbia, urged gas station men to police their own ranks to make the rationing system work and to prevent bootlegging.

Used car dealers said business was virtually at a standstill since rationing began, and parking lot owners were seriously considering construction of old fashioned hitching posts and bicycle racks to get a little trade.

CHICAGO SAILOR MISSING, NAVY INFORMS AUNT

Everett Roy Feldt, first class electrician's mate in the navy, is missing in action in the Philippines, according to a telegram which his aunt, Mrs. August Kastilahn of 3842 North Harding avenue, received from the navy department yesterday.

Feldt, who was 27 years old, enlisted in the navy after his graduation from Carl Schurz High school and served six years on the Aircraft Carrier Ranger. He returned to Chicago for a year in 1940, but was recalled to active duty in 1941. After instruction in deep sea diving and mine laying at Norfolk, Va., and Washington, D. C., he was sent to the Philippines in April, 1941. The last word received from him was a cablegram Dec. 10, 1941, saying he was at the Cavite ammunition depot in the Philippines and all right.

OPA PREPARES TO PUT BICYCLES ON RATION LIST

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—The government will begin rationing bicycles in about three weeks, the Office of Price Administration announced today.

At the same time OPA amended its orders freezing bicycle sales to permit manufacturers to ship to distributors in preparation for rationing.

All sales under the program will be made under ceiling prices soon to be established. About 50,000 machines were on hand when sales were stopped April 2. Since then, only "Victory" model bicycles have been manufactured, and it was understood that the price on this type would be fixed somewhere between $30 and $40.

Children's bicycles were not affected by the freeze and will not be rationed. All dealers, distributors, and manufacturers are required to report their inventories, as of May 8, to OPA's inventory unit in New York.

JOHNNY PATTON DENIES DEMAND FOR GOLF COURSE

Burnham Transfer Sought by Others, He Says.

Johnny Patton, the aging "boy mayor" of the village of Burnham and a relic of Al Capone's palmy days, last night wrathfully denied that he and Democratic overlords connived to transfer the Burnham Woods golf course from the Calumet Memorial Park district to his own government.

"We haven't closed the deal yet with anybody," Mayor Patton said. "I wasn't crazy about getting the golf course, anyway. It should be a profitable proposition, but we plan to put all the money we take out of it right back in."

Board Plans Action Tomorrow.

Roman E. Posanski, attorney for the park district, said that a special meeting will be held tomorrow night to consider possible legal action. Officials of the district, which has sunk more dollars than putts in the course during the last 13½ years, charged that the county board vote was dictated by "the boys at the Morrison hotel" [headquarters of the Democratic county committee].

P. A. Nash, Democratic county committee chairman, remained unavailable last night, but his son-in-law, George F. Ross, secretary of the committee, granted a brief interview.

"It's the bunk," Ross said. "It's ridiculous. This is the first time I ever heard of the Burnham Park golf course. And I don't know Patton."

"Patton told me, 'You fellows are butting your heads against a stone wall, because my fellows want the golf course and we're going to get it!'" Pazkowski said.

Patton Tells of Complaints.

"Listen," he said, "those guys made a private playground out of that golf course. They had all their relations there all the time. I don't think it was run right the last three or four years.

"It was the people and the sportswriters around here who started complaining, not me. And it's right at our front door, too. That's supposed to be a poor man's course, so I say let's give him a chance and keep up the grounds. Our record of operation is a lot better than the park district's; we pay our debts."

MISS ROBINSON, ENSIGN KIRKLAND WED IN NEW YORK

New York, May 16 [Special].—Ensign Weymouth S. Kirkland and Miss Virginia Lee Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Robinson, of Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y., were married this afternoon in St. Barnabas Episcopal church, Irvington-on-Hudson.

The Rev. Dr. George Metcalfe performed the ceremony at 5 p. m. The bridesmaid was Miss Robinson's sister, Ann Roane Robinson. Weymouth Kirkland, Chicago attorney and father of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride carried valley lilies and wore a wedding gown that her great-grandmother, Mrs. Mary Roane Beltzhoover, wore at her wedding. There was a reception at the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony.

Miss Robinson was graduated from Miss Master's school in 1939 and is a member of the Junior Service league. Kirkland attended Hotchkiss school and Princeton university. He left the Harvard law school early this year to enter the navy.

2D USO LOUNGE WILL BE OPENED AT UNION STATION

The United Service organization will open a lounge on the mezzanine level off the main concourse of the Union station at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. Representatives of the army, navy, and marines, the mayor's office, railroads, and USO officials will be present at the opening ceremonies.

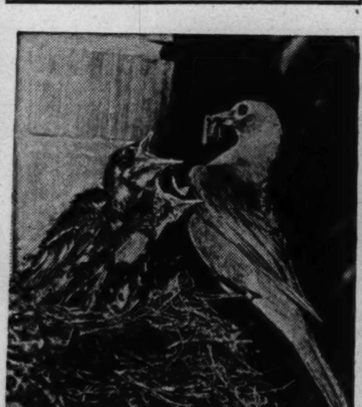
The lounge is intended for small, casual groups traveling from one post to another. Trained volunteer hostesses will be in charge of the room, which will provide free checking, reading and writing facilities, as well as games and informational service for men in uniform.

This is the second transit lounge opened by the USO in Chicago due to the increased number of men in the armed forces. The other was opened recently in the Illinois Central station at 12th street.

FOUND DEAD IN CAR.

Thomas Formansky, 51 years old, was found dead yesterday in his car in a garage at 6435 Cermak road. Formansky, an electrician living at 2214 South Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, had attached a hose to the exhaust pipe.

Nests on Window



Robin feeding a worm to young in nest on sill of window in Anderson house. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Three weeks ago a pair of robins picked a window ledge of the Carl Andersons' second floor apartment at 5932 North Virginia avenue, built a nest, and laid eggs. On May 5 the first of the fledglings cracked its blue shell and two others followed suit. "I put out fresh crumbs ever so often," Mrs. Anderson said yesterday, "and rice and raisins make a tempting change. And I never knew birds could drink so much water."

Apparently the robins like their window sill nest, with its ready supply of food, varied with worms, for so far they've shown no inclination to move.

STRITCH TO TALK AT OUR LADY OF LOURDES MASS

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch will preside and preach the sermon this morning at the golden jubilee mass of Our Lady of Lourdes church, Ashland and Leland avenues. The Most Rev. William D. O'Brien will be celebrant, assisted by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John P. Campbell, pastor; the Rev. Gregory Cloos, and the Rev. Edward V. Dailey, editor of the New World.

Celebration of the jubilee will continue tomorrow with a children's mass at 10 a. m. The Rev. William Rogers will be the celebrant. Mass for departed members and benefactors of the parish will be celebrated by Msgr. Campbell on Tuesday morning.

One of the historic Catholic parishes of the city, Our Lady of Lourdes church received special recognition when the building was moved from the east side of Ashland avenue to its present location. The moving was considered a remarkable engineering achievement.

1,000 VACCINATED, AND NOT A CASE OF TUBERCULOSIS

The University of Illinois college of medicine reported yesterday that 1,000 Chicago children have been successfully vaccinated against tuberculosis in the last five years at County hospital. Not one of those vaccinated has ever developed tuberculosis or suffered any ill effects from the vaccination, according to the college officials.

Eight cases of tuberculosis have been reported among 1,000 other children from the same section of the city who were not vaccinated, according to the medical authorities.

The vaccine used is bacillus Calmette-Guerin, developed at the Pasteur institute in Paris, France. In 1934, Dr. Sol R. Rosenthal of the university medical school brought some of the vaccine to Chicago. After three years of tests, physicians began administering it at County hospital.

WE'RE GOING BACK TO BATAAN!

LABOR AND WEALTH.

Police and prosecutors are investigating the drive for power of Danny Stanton, the gangster, in a group of Chicago unions. Stanton is a member of the Capone-Nitti underworld syndicate. He has seized control of the Chicago council of unions of bartenders, waiters, and other food handlers. He and his hoodlums exploit union members, employers, and the public. One of their rackets is to use their control of bartenders to push sales of brands of beer and liquor in which they are interested.

The public is told that Stanton is not typical of labor leaders, and this is true, but it is also true that the labor movement has done nothing effective to drive out such men. When their inroads into the bartenders' union were exposed in the past Edward Flore, international president of that organization and a vice president of the AFL, was found more often on the side of the gangsters than on the side of the exploited members of his union.

The Building Service Employés' International union recently freed itself, with the aid of the courts, of the rule of George Scalise. Scalise, like Stanton, Nitti, and the unspeakable Willie Bioff, got his start as a business agent in a brothel. At the union's convention in Minneapolis its members were warned by the Rev. John P. Boland, a member of the New York state labor relations board, "to look upon communism as your bitterest foe, opposed to the very wage system upon which unionism is built." He urged them to be vigilant against officers of the totalitarian type, who are willing to wreck unions to obtain authority.

The public is also told that only a small proportion of union leaders are Communists, and the Communists seek to defend themselves with the cry that any one who exposes their activities is hostile to all organized labor, and a friend of Hitler to boot. Yet it is a fact easily proved that a considerable number of unions are dominated by Communists who follow implicitly instructions from Moscow. Until last summer they used those unions to aid Hitler's war effort. They have consistently sought to use them to destroy the form of government that has given unions greater privileges than they enjoy anywhere else in the world.

Forty years ago the United States was greatly concerned over the power of wealth. Men of great wealth, of whom the elder Morgan and John D. Rockefeller were most prominent, were feared because it was felt that they were virtually above the law. The public became alarmed and imposed a long series of restraints.

Coincident and partly allied with this bridling of the power of money came a growth in the power of labor organizations. That increase of power, accelerated during the last decade, has produced excesses as great as ever were charged against the "men with hard faces and soft bodies," and will just as surely produce its remedy in the form of more and more stringent regulations of labor organizations and, more particularly, of labor rulers.

The abuse of union power by gangsters and Communists arouses public wrath more quickly yet it is doubtful whether in the aggregate it is more costly to the nation that the abuse of economic power by union leaders who are neither subvertists nor criminals. To cite examples at random, David B. Robertson and A. F. Whitney of the railroad brotherhoods are men of personal probity and no one will question their faith in our American form of government. Yet by the drive to force unnecessary employés on railroads, for the benefit of the groups that they lead, they have probably imposed as great or greater loss on the American people as that incurred from the depredations of gangsters in the labor movement.

The regulation of wealth did not come about because of the intrinsic immorality of the men who wielded its power, but because that power was used for the benefit of a special group. The regulation of labor unions and leaders, while it may be accelerated by the spectacle of gangsters and Communists using unions for their selfish ends, will be forced by the same cause—the abuse of power to gain advantages for special groups at the expense of the general population.

HAVEN FOR SLACKERS.

Two photographs of night life in Washington are reproduced this morning in the picture section. Washington is a gay and crowded city these days. Young men and young women by tens of thousands have flocked to the capital to find jobs. So far as the young women are concerned, that's all right provided they are usefully employed. So far as the young men are concerned, it's all wrong.

There may be a few able bodied men of military age with unique abilities and talents who can be more useful in Washington than in the armed services but there can't be very many of them. There may also be some men of military age who lack the physical qualifications for active service, but the pictures don't show many such young men. They look hale and hearty and most of them aren't even wearing glasses.

The presence in Washington of large numbers of able bodied young men in civilian clothes is a disgrace. Such young men, whether they all deserve it or not, are regarded as slackers and cowards. While others of the same age are risking their lives and undergoing the hardships of military life, thousands of husky boys are hiding out in the government offices. It is disturbing to find that so many of them have so little self-respect. It is even more disturbing to find that the administration is coöperating by giving them employment.

There are plenty of women in the country and plenty of men past military age to staff the essential government offices without loss of efficiency. It is shocking to find that the government is the only employer in the country which is providing a haven for slackers. The youth of America, which with few exceptions has answered the call of duty magnificently, deserves better of the administration. The slackers should be driven from the capital.

THE FAT KINE AND THE LEAN.

Financially speaking, the state of Illinois right now is in clover. There is an unobligated balance in the state treasury of 30 million dollars, realized almost wholly from the collection of sales taxes beyond the estimates set up in the budget. The state is mustering the fat kine today. Nobody doubts that within a few months the lean kine will come to devour the fat.

Retail sales in the state, as measured by sales tax collections last December and in the first three months of this year, were approximately 25 per cent greater than in the corresponding period a year ago. That can't last and nobody expects it to last. Most sales increases obviously represent the general desire of people to put on a little fat while goods are obtainable. The sales of clothing stores were up 38 per cent in February and those of shoe stores approximately the same amount. That means not only that people were afraid that they might be unable to buy suits or shoes a year from now but that even if suits and shoes are widely available a year from now a great many less of them will be bought because there will be extra suits and extra shoes in closets.

There has until now been no real shortage of any variety of consumer goods except automobiles and tires. Automobile and tire sales were shut off at the retail level. Sales taxes collected from automobile dealers, who are still selling second hand cars and operating repair shops, fell off 68.8 per cent in February as against February, 1941. There will be no more radios, no more phonographs, no more electrical devices, very little hardware, but the war restrictions on such articles were applied to the manufacturer. The existing stocks were not frozen and as a result the sales tax figures on such articles reflect the rush of consumers to get these articles while they are still available.

The sales tax furnishes more than two-thirds of the money for the general operation of the state government. Obviously there is going to be a decline, probably even more severe, in the motor fuel tax and in automobile license receipts. This revenue, however, is pledged to specific purposes, largely the building and maintenance of highways. Priorities will make it impossible to carry out any large highway building or maintenance programs anyway, so the shrinkage of revenue will not be particularly troublesome.

The sales tax is a different matter. The calls on the general activities of the state government may be expected to increase rather than decrease because of the war. The most optimistic view that can be taken is that the present 30 million dollar surplus will provide enough fat to carry the state thru the increasingly lean times of its biennium, of which 15 months remain on April 1.

Obviously this approaching decline in revenues calls for the strictest economy in the conduct of the state government. The state differs materially from local governments in Chicago in the use made of its revenue. The local governments pay out between 75 and 80 cents of every dollar of revenue in salaries and wages. They cannot achieve any substantial economies except by trimming their swollen pay rolls. The state government, on the other hand, spends more than three-fifths of its revenue in a variety of subventions paid out in cash, either to local governments or to individuals. Only 18 cents in every dollar goes for salaries and wages of state employés. This does not mean that there is not ground for economy in the state pay roll. There is. But the room for economy there is not so great as in the field of distributive payments.

The current state budget made a considerable reduction in the appropriations for relief. This was fully justified at the time the budget was passed by improved economic conditions. The time is fast approaching when the country will face, instead of unemployment, a labor shortage. Obviously there is room for the salvage of millions of dollars in relief payments. State relief agencies have not been unaware of this change in economic conditions. They have already ordered all able bodied single men off relief, on the sound theory that there are jobs available for them if they are willing to work. The time is fast approaching, and will probably arrive by fall, when the war plants emerge from the construction into the production stage, when it will be both possible and desirable to refuse relief to any able bodied person, regardless of dependents. There will be a job waiting for him if he is willing to work, and if he is not the state owes him no living.

Old age pensions have been a political football in Illinois as in other states. Their administration needs tightening up to exclude from the benefits those whose children are capable of supporting them and to give the state the first lien on the assets of those whom it has supported.

There is sound ground for permitting old age pensioners to retain homesteads and certain other assets. There is no excuse for denying the state the first right of recovery against those assets for the money it has given them. As the law now stands, the state can support old age pensioners for years, permitting them to retain considerable assets, and on their death those assets go not to reimburse the state but to the heirs who, thru the years, have neglected the support of their parents. That is a matter requiring legislative remedy, which should be applied at the earliest opportunity.

The people of Illinois have had a mild dose, and a mild one only, of what awaits them in the way of necessary federal taxes for the conduct of the war. They will be in no mood to pay increased taxes to the state. They have, on the other hand, every right to demand that the state reduce its exactions to permit them better to bear the federal taxes.

Editorial of the Day

THE FABLE OF THE THREE STICKS.

[Calumet Record, Calumet City, Ill.]

The fable of the three sticks runs something like this: A father had three sons who quarreled individually and severally. He called them together and showed them three sticks. He handed the bundle to one son and asked him to break it. The son tried and failed. "Now break them one by one," the father said. The son did this easily.

"And that is the way it is in life," the father explained. "If you boys stick together, you will be hard to beat."

Uncle Sam's forces are now scattered in 30 or more different places from Iceland to South Africa. Our humiliating defeats at Bataan and Java were inevitable. Why not concentrate where we can win?

At present the government's large staff of paid press agents appears to be getting a very bad press.
—Arkansas Gazette.

NEW COMMUNIST DRIVE

[From Editor and Publisher.]

When PM lashed out last week with a campaign against Col. R. R. McCormick of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Capt. J. M. Patterson of the New York Daily News, and William R. Hearst as pro-Nazi, anti-Russian, and anti-British, we thought there was something more than met the eye behind the game. We have just come across a document confirming that suspicion. From a May day pamphlet put out by a national committee, Communist party, U. S. A., we quote:

> On May day, the American workers will demand that fifth columnists like Charles E. Coughlin be jailed. That defeatists in congress like Hamilton Fish and Martin Dies be removed from public office. That defeatists within the labor movement like John L. Lewis be repudiated and isolated. That the treasonable activity of the Norman Thomases and Trotskyites be stopped. That defeatist publishers like William Randolph Hearst, Patterson, and McCormick be called to account.

In a word, the "party line" now calls for the destruction, under the screen of war, of the men and newspapers which have given most bitter opposition to the American Communist party's machinations in the past. The four freedoms for which Americans are fighting—including the rights of free speech and free press—mean no more to the Communists in America than to their party brethren in Russia, to whom they are mere bourgeois folly.

These freedoms have meaning here now, but they will not have if Communist fanaticism is to prevail. Their meaning here is the right to advocate what any majority or minority of us may believe at the moment to be wrong, and to take the consequences of that advocacy. If a statesman or a publisher or a priest violates the law, he is subject to the prescribed penalties, and our wartime laws seem to have teeth enough to cope with any violation. If they are not, they can be amended by congress.

Charges have already been brought by the department of justice against Father Coughlin's Social Justice and other publications for alleged obstruction of the war effort. No action of any nature has been taken against Hearst, Patterson, McCormick, or any of their newspapers—and, writing as an editor, we doubt that any utterances in the Hearst newspapers, the New York Daily News, or THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE could be woven into a case against any of them. They have expressed their views—in strong terms—but they have not advocated sedition.

Editor and Publisher has disagreed often and on many subjects with all of the men and newspapers mentioned, in peace and in wartime—which is our privilege in this so-far free country. It has been their privilege to disagree with us and with any others who favor the President's major program, as it has been stated. If that privilege is revoked, under the stress of war, for reason less serious than advocacy of sedition or treason, our battle for the four freedoms will become meaningless. It will mark a long step toward a totalitarian régime.

And we don't need that to win the war. We are out to beat the forces of darkness and repression, we are bent on avoiding the ignorance and fears that cloud our enemies in Germany, Italy, and Japan, and our friends in Russia. We stand for advancement of our free ideals, and not for their destruction at the behest of the Communist party, which, in the last analysis, has smirched and destroyed everything that it has ever touched.

BRITAIN'S EDITORS AROUSED

[From the Newspaper World, London.]

The view that unless every encroachment on the freedom of the press is fought the introduction by the government of a single national newspaper is a very real possibility was expressed by Mr. Michael Foot, leader-writer of the Evening Standard, when he addressed in London on April 11 a large meeting sponsored by the National Council of Civil Liberties on the freedom of the press.

Mr. Foot told the story of how, when Mr. Churchill was preparing to make war on Russia about 20 years ago, he was discussing the project with a colleague, who asked him what he would do if the newspapers objected to the campaign, and Mr. Churchill's reply was: "Square or squash."

Editors in Fleet street [Mr. Foot said] were well aware of the squaring process by cabinet ministers. In the Evening Standard office they kept a special list or large table of ministers' protests, giving one point for a dirty innuendo, two points for a direct protest, and a three point bonus for a protest received within an hour of the newspaper appearing on the street!

The next time they read of a cabinet minister saying it was the resolve of the government to maintain responsible criticism in this freedom loving country they could be fairly sure that the previous night he had been bitterly complaining to some newspaper proprietor about the attitude of his paper.

But the government had now gone past the squaring stage and had reached the squashing process. Did it mean that the government had embarked on a campaign to root out independent criticism? One newspaper had been squashed, and remained squashed, while another had been threatened with the most arbitrary weapon at the disposal of the home secretary.

It was not right that one man should have judgment on the issue of what consisted of a systematic campaign to undermine the war effort. In those circumstances what newspaper was safe?

It was difficult to define what such a systematic campaign was. At the time of the Russian war with Finland the Evening Standard opposed the government's policy of unofficial intervention, in the belief that it would cause war with Russia. That might have been held to have discouraged the workers from making munitions, the sailors from manning the ships, and troops from embarking on the expedition. It was a systematic campaign against the government, but it proved to be a wise one.

Other speakers who maintained that Mr. Morrison had, by his action, done far more to sabotage the war effort than any newspaper, included Mr. T. L. Horabin, Mr. Aneurin Bevan, Prof. C. E. M. Joad, Mr. Richard Coppock, Mr. D. N. Pritt, Dr. Edith Summerskill, and Miss Rose Macaulay.

Mr. Bevan, who referred to Cassandra's departure from the Daily Mirror, declared that in effect the government had suppressed the paper and at the same time had suppressed the rest of the British press.

Messages were received from all parts of the country, and Mr. John Gordon, editor of the Sunday Express, in one, said:

"All thoughtful men see that in the fight for the restoration of our freedom which will follow this war a free press must play a great part. In war the rights of the individual must give way to the needs of the state.

"The people have no champion so potent as a free press. It is the one force that no dictatorship or vested interest has ever yet been able to stand up against. If we lose it, liberty is gone for our lifetime.

"I do not deny that the press as we know it needs a good deal of purging. But it needs purging to make it stronger, not weaker, to make it an even more free and vigorous guardian of the rights of the people, rather than a soporific to keep them quiet while evil designs are being worked out against them."

The meeting passed a resolution demanding that the censorship by British authorities should only be used to assist in preventing facts which would be valuable to the enemy from being published, and calling for the repeal of defense regulation 2D, the lifting of the ban on the Daily Worker, and a consistent policy with regard to the subsidization for the export from this country of all journals sent abroad.

ARTHRITIS—EXPLORING THE SOURCE.

THERE is no telling from whence arthritis comes. If recovery occurs, no one knows where it goes. The term "mysterious" may well be attached to the malady.

In attempting to trace the source, we should investigate the digestive tract, which may have fallen down in its handling of food. Again, bacteria may have injured a vital organ, with the production of poison having a particular affinity for the joints. In other instances, there is reason to believe that the endocrine glands have swung out of balance. And, finally, a true infection with some virulent microbe may constitute the "starter."

But, whatever the cause, our chief objective in treatment is to restore strength and virility to cells, regardless of where they are located. The alimentary tube must be performing at top efficiency if we would expect improvement. This does not mean stuffing with nutriment, but better management of the substances provided.

If too little hydrochloric acid is present in the gastric juice, this material may be added at mealtime. If the stools show considerable undigested starch, the diet must be modified. If fats are poorly assimilated, we can decrease the quantity or help the bowel to manipulate them. If the patient is lugging about 10 to 20 per cent excess baggage a reducing program may be in order.

We must make certain that the endocrine glands [including the prostate in males] are functioning at par. In trying to find a hidden focus of infection, we need not become faddists and demand the extraction of every tooth. But we can, at the proper time, urge the removal of tonsils riddled by minute abscesses and care for sinuses that have become diseased.

Even before our inventory has been completed we may inaugurate a schedule which will insure the highest possible body reserve. Rest comes first. This must include the nervous system as well as the muscles and organs. The circulation may require attention, as strain on the heart and the blood vessels is one of the prominent factors in the establishment of arteriosclerosis.

The emotions must likewise be considered. With comfort and peace of mind, relaxation will result, which is quite in contrast to the unrest which accompanies anxieties and mental irritations. We probably possess no more important healing agent than gentle manipulation subsequent to the application of heat. Massage will activate muscles, lessen the collection of water beneath the skin, and aid elimination.

Rather more calories should be taken than under normal conditions of work, but only if every particle of food is dissolved and burned up. Most victims gain under a generous allowance of meat [protein], a fair amount of fat, and far fewer carbohydrates [starches and sugars]. This slight imbalance will assist in the absorption of vitamins and the successful utilization of minerals.

After all, intelligence on the part of the patient is essential—in adhering to the directions of a skilled physician and in interpreting the progress and effects of the regimen adopted. Usually victory lies within us if we will take the ailment seriously and attack it with all the energy we possess. Recovery is a partnership between the sufferer and a conscientious and interested medical adviser.

RELAXED POSITIONS.

B. B. writes: During sleep do the eyeballs turn upward or down? What happens to the tongue? Does it retreat to the gullet or hug the palate?

REPLY.

In deep slumber [unconsciousness], the muscles which govern the eyeballs relax. In consequence, the organs turn upward slightly. In like circumstances, the tongue falls back into the throat. This situation is observed in expert snorers and with those who are under an anesthetic.

PROTECT EYES.

Mrs. T. M. writes: Is it safe to allow the sun to shine on an infant's face when lying in the buggy?

REPLY.

Quite all right but cover the eyes as the lids may not be thick enough to filter the bright light.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 9, part 2.

1. The Gideons are responsible for which of these hotel conveniences?
   Towels Telephones Writing desks Bibles.
2. Which name is inappropriate in this grouping?
   Jack London Buffalo Bill Wild Bill Hickok Daniel Boone.
3. Which one of these types of cheese is made, backwards?
   Cheddar Edam Roquefort Swiss.
4. Which one of these types of hay is especially linked with horses?
   Timothy Clover Alfalfa Soy bean.
5. Which one of these popular sports was originated by the North American Indians? Polo Baseball Lacrosse Basketball.
6. Try to match the Biblical leaders named below with the events or situations which pertain to them. You are entitled to one point for each correct matching.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names, and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed, attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

SOLDIERS' MAIL.

Chicago, May 12.—I have just finished listening to the W-G-N broadcast from a hospital somewhere in Australia. Coupling that information with first hand information gathered from fellow members of an AEF club, a single festering item blazes forth: Why do not our soldiers receive any mail? I know and every one knows that we need more ships and planes, but letters are morale, and when every blessed woman relative of such a soldier pours her own or her husband's money into packages and her heart into letters, should not these letters be interpreted by the government and the army as morale builders?

My own son, isolated in the jungles of New Caledonia without stationery, cigarettes, matches, or news from home, is helpless, and so am I, who would pour out my heart's blood for him if need be, but surely our government is not helpless and impotent!

AGNES J. MARTI.

CRITICIZES MR. CUDAHY.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 8.—John Cudahy's "Spain Draws Closer to War" cites, as reasons for Spain's imminent "espousal of the axis cause," that Franco's judgment, like that of all successful European statesmen, will be based first and last in national self-interest. Too facile, too simple, by half. . . .

What of Franco's personal, selfish, dictator-minded "self-interests"? What of his having no alternative to all-out collaboration—with Hitler's Stukas and panzer divisions ready to take over if Franco proves unwilling?

Like Cudahy's curious tribute to Ireland's De Valera as a "farseeing statesman," Cudahy is too kind to Franco and his Fascist followers in appraising Spain's next move. Nor does the same article have one good word to say for Russia's heroic and perhaps decisive rôle in the war.

CARLTON F. WELLS.

THE BATTLE OF PERRYVILLE.

Chicago, May 11.—I congratulate THE TRIBUNE upon the beginning of what promises to be a fine serial: "MacArthur, Man of Destiny," in Sunday's paper.

The author, Mr. Trohan, has made a little slip in locating the battle of Perryville. It was not in Tennessee but Kentucky where Buell's army was saved from defeat by the bravery of Sheridan and the foresight and strategy of Thomas.

The sword of the rebel general Zollicoffer, killed at Perryville, is to be seen in the G. A. R. memorial hall, 85 East Randolph street.

THOMAS AMBROSE, G. A. R.

OPPOSES OPEN SHELVES.

Chicago, May 8.—As a user of the Chicago public library for about 50 years, I protest any attempt to throw open the book stacks to the public. Trained people only should remove or replace these books. Volumes of priceless value, out of print, are now available and might disappear on an open shelf. Every inch available in this crowded building seems to be given over to open shelves, and I can't think of a general reference book they do not contain. Let me add, in my years of contact, I have found the attendants courteous, intelligent, and extremely helpful.

A CHICAGOAN.

ATTACKS ON TELEPHONE PENSIONS.

Chicago, May 9.—Does the winning of this war really need our every effort? Is it actually a fact that nothing should be done to undermine morale of our citizens?

I ask because two administration agencies are wasting valuable time of essential war industry workers and at the same time putting fear of insecurity into the hearts of 400,000 loyal Americans.

The treasury department proposed a tax on trust funds and, either carelessly or deliberately, so worded its bill to include the Bell Telephone system pension plan for employés. A treasury spokesman appeared before a congressional committee to uphold the bill. Company officials and telephone workers' union representatives had to go to Washington to point out that passage of the bill endangers the continuance of the pension plan. The bill is still pending.

At the same time, the Federal Communications commission is trying to force telephone companies to charge the cost of pensions to stockholders and not to operating expense. This proposal would be just silly if it were not for the worry it is causing linemen, installers, operators, and collectors, because it also threatens the continuance of the pension plan. The expense of sickness, death, and pension payments are as much a part of the cost of operating a company as are wages. It's obvious, still, officials and employés have to take time—a lot of it—to combat this sort of thing.

TELEPHONE EMPLOYE.

AT THE WATER BUREAU.

Chicago, May 6.—My husband went to the water bill department to complain about several previous water bills being increased over 100 per cent. After being chased here and there from one to the other like the sucker he is [landlord to you] another political seat warmer said loud enough to be heard on all sides, "Ho, hum, such a stink about a few dollars." My husband does not receive $9.65 a day where he works and the $5 he does receive he does not get for making smart answers.

BLOOD DONOR'S REACTIONS.

Chicago, May 4.—It was a wonderful experience—my donating a little blood to save a soldier's life. The attendants were so very solicitous and kind that any nervousness that I had left me at once, and I learned that there was nothing to be nervous about. Just a little smarting for a moment, and then I lay relaxed. With each pulse beat came exultation that I was able to give part of myself for my soldiers, for my country, for my own, and for my children's future in a free country.

A DONOR.

NEGRO FIRST AID PROBLEM.

Chicago, May 8.—This letter is occasioned by my experience with the Red Cross, 616 South Michigan avenue, where I appeared for authorization to teach first aid to a group of fellow Negroes in Maywood.

The young lady who organized this group did so because no one else appeared interested in the Negro people of Maywood. She made an attempt both to organize the class and secure the teacher. Because it was to be a Red Cross unit, the teacher necessarily had to apply in person at Red Cross headquarters for authorization. The strings that were necessary and the people whom I had to see to volunteer my services [without remuneration, of course] were so costly in time and inconvenience that I feel justified in complaining.

I take this means to advise my people that unless they form themselves into an organization and train themselves under their own leadership for first aid in an emergency they will be lost in such an eventuality.

JAMES M. SCOTT, M. D.

CITIZENS AREN'T CRIMINALS.

Chicago, May 5.—Today I sought help at West North avenue station. When I explained my case, the man in charge began speaking to me as a human being, but as the conversation got along he must have noticed that I weighed very little, so this brave law enforcer sat all over me as if I were a first class criminal. I always was under the impression that the police are to serve the public, not treat them as a bunch of cattle when it becomes necessary to seek their aid or advice. It would not have been so bad if I were alone, but my mother was present. It seems that even the presence of an elderly woman has no effect on the manners of these public servants.

The upshot was that I was directed to the Austin police station, where the sergeant in charge knows how to deal and talk with human beings, but I had to go about three miles to have my problem clarified. What can one expect of the masterminds of North avenue when they didn't even know the address of the Austin station?

CITIZEN.

ANTI-PUNCTURE CAMPAIGN.

Briggsville, Wis., May 8.—Why not a campaign urging kids as well as grown-ups to pick up all nails and broken glass lying in streets and alleys or wherever they are a tire hazard? The other day while taking a shortcut thru an alley behind a business block in Portage I picked up sixteen potential tire-wreckers in the shape of large crooked nails. Hundreds of cars and trucks drive thru this alley every week.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problems a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self addressed envelope will expedite handling.

Chicago, May 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some years ago I went on a demand note for two other people [note S. bank of Illinois]. Later this note was put in judgment and I paid it as the other people had left the state going to the state of Indiana.

1. How long can I wait before I can have to do anything to keep this good against them?

2. How long is this judgment rendered against us all good for in the state of Illinois?

3. How long is it good in the state of Indiana?

4. Is there some other way I could sue them in the state of Illinois or Indiana and get a judgment against them for the amount I have paid out for them under this judgment?

F. C.

1. The Illinois limitation period on written contracts is 10 years and on oral agreements 5 years, but your right to enforce contribution is not contained in the written agreement and hence, to play safe, we would advise you to act within the five years.

2. A judgment becomes dormant at 7 years but the ultimate limitation period is 20 years. Nevertheless we would consider it safest for you to start within five years after your right to contribution arose. We see no advantage in delay.

3. Why not place it in the hands of an attorney now and leave the procedure to him?

4. Other than what?

MONEY LOANED.

Valparaiso, Ind., May 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some time ago my mother, without the knowledge of my father, borrowed a sum of money from a private party and signed a note for this amount giving no other security.

This note is not yet due but [1] a few weeks ago my mother died and this party is now seeking to collect the balance due [payments were made at various intervals] on the note.

I would like to know [2] whether or not my father is liable for the remainder of this note at the due date or [3] if he can escape paying this money since he had no knowledge of the transaction and gave no consent for it.

S. T.

1. We assume that your mother left no assets.

2. Not unless it was for a family expense.

3. See 2.

TERMS OF WILL.

Menominee, Mich., May 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother died in Indiana in 1923, leaving five children—A, B, C, D, and E. Father died in 1907 willing his entire estate to my mother. Mother wrote her own will without the advice of an attorney. She owned 10 acres of land in Florida, her only property in that state.

1. In her will she simply wrote—"Florida land to B and E" without inserting a description of the land.

2. What steps would be required to get the title properly recorded in the names of B and E? B has paid the taxes on this land in his name since 1923.

3. What rights does this give B to secure a warranty deed to the land in his name?

V. M.

1. Such wording is common.

2. If the estate is probated in Indiana then it seems possible that the filing in Florida of an exemplified transcript of the Indiana proceedings might satisfy a purchaser.

3. Merely paying the taxes does not necessarily give him any right to a deed.

We advise the employment of an attorney.

HITLER MUST WIN THIS YEAR—OR NEVER!—DEWEY

N.Y.'s Young Republicans Indorse Ex-Prosecutor.

Hamilton, N. Y., May 17 [Sunday]—[Special].—Hitler must win the war before next winter or be defeated, Thomas E. Dewey declared last night at the banquet of the annual convention of New York's Young Republican clubs. He added that America faces its gravest crisis during the intervening seven months and that personal interest must be subordinated to insure national unity.

Following his speech, the convention early today indorsed the former Manhattan prosecutor for the party's nomination for governor. It took this action at a closed session by an overwhelming vote after sources close to Dewey and to Wendell Willkie, former Presidential candidate, had reported that no candidate would receive indorsement.

Action on the resolution long was delayed. Fear that an indorsement would cause party dissension was believed responsible for the delay.

Praise National G. O. P.

In the platform, the delegates commended the action of the Republican national committee committing the party to a policy of postwar international coöperation.

"The American people will not stand for the bickering that attended the fall of France," Dewey said. "The President of the United States is our elected leader in this fateful war. We shall all support his every effort to win the war. We shall even support him in spite of mistakes, provided they are solely the result of zeal to win the war."

Saying that all of his hearers had differed with the national administration, Dewey said Republicans would continue to criticize when they believed that criticism would help the common war effort.

Discussing the postwar period, Dewey said he did not fear chaos and a resumption of our 10 year depression as anticipated by those in high places who expect such a condition to furnish opportunity for new experiments on the economic body of America.

Sees Limitless Future.

"It is a view I totally reject," Dewey continued. "I see an America with a proved capacity to produce the greatest quantity of implements of war just as capable of producing the greatest quantity of peacetime goods for human consumption. I see an America whose frontiers have not only not been reached but whose frontiers have not even been discovered. I see an America with an absolutely limitless future.

"It is the well being of 130 million Americans that must be our primary concern in assuming our position as a great nation. With this objective before us our foreign policy will never become the tail to any other nation or aggregation of world powers."

RELICS OF WAR REACH U. S. FOR EXHIBITION HERE

The first shipment of war scarred exhibits from overseas for the Chicago United Nations War exposition has arrived in an Atlantic port and now is en route to Chicago, Charles F. Glore, chairman of the exposition, announced yesterday.

Glore said a number of items assembled in Egypt to illustrate the war in the middle east were lost several weeks ago when a united nations vessel was sunk by enemy fire.

Approximately two-thirds of the material needed for the exposition now is in America. The date for the show will be set after future shipments are completed. It will be held in the International amphitheater.

N. Y. REPUBLICANS URGE A DEFINITE POSTWAR POLICY

New York, May 16 [Special].—The convention of the Association of New York State Republican clubs today adopted a platform calling on the party to commit itself to a system of postwar collective security, supported by appropriate economic and military sanctions. It declared however that all other considerations must yield to successful and effective prosecution of the war.

The platform urged abandonment of "politics as usual" and appeals to class prejudice and called for drastic reduction of all federal and state appropriations on nondefense items, strict enforcement of all rationing and price ceiling regulations, greater coördination of the national ship building program and appointment of a leading industrialist as director of ship production, and a sweeping "reorganization and consolidation of overlapping, confused, and ineffective agencies dealing with public information."

The platform recommended payment of all overtime wages in war bonds and called for appointment of a responsible representative of organized labor as secretary of labor to succeed Frances Perkins.

Recent Robbery Victims Asked to View 2 Suspects

Victims who during the last several weeks have been followed from a north suburban roadhouse and robbed have been asked to appear for the showup at Central police headquarters this afternoon. Among the suspects to be viewed for possible identification are Albert Firek, 220 Pine avenue, and Nick Liberatore, 1529 Noble street, both of whom were arrested for robbery of a tavern at 2025 North Cicero avenue last Wednesday. Liberatore is a bartender.

JEWS OBSERVE ONEG SHABAT AT OPENING SESSION

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The observance of Oneg Shabat was the opening feature of the war emergency sessions of the American Jewish congress yesterday at the Hotel Sherman. The name of the observance means "make the Sabbath pleasant," and calls for cultural expression in various patriotic, religious and artistic fields, but with no relaxation of ancient regulations intended to maintain the Sabbath's peace.

The press was uninvited to Oneg Shabat as the devout regard writing as a violation of Sabbath regulations. But the lack of an invitation was not a sign of being unwelcome. It was a kindly gesture toward writers for the Jewish press whose work would be restrained by the ancient law.

Rabbi Wise Opens Session.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York, president of the congress, opened the service with a prayer which called for the Sabbath peace to be symbolic of the righteous peace which must be brought to nations, and Rabbi Charles E. Shulman of Glencoe told the throng of delegates from all parts of the nation that the Sabbath recalls the birth of the world, and that "my people having seen one world born now want to see another world born which shall be free."

With the coming of sundown, the Sabbath passed and last night the session cleared the formalities of welcome and congratulation for today's work sessions. Dr. Wise read letters of greeting from President Roosevelt and heads of exiled governments of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly extended the welcome of Illinois and Chicago.

In his keynote address, Dr. Wise urged that as Americans, Jewish groups thruout the country use the freedom of this country to right wrong wherever inflicted or threatened.

"It would be a poor return on our part to America if we were to fail to do whatever could be done in order to save our fellow Jews in other lands from being the victims of laws designed to inflict injustice and wrong on them," said Dr. Wise. "The American Jewish congress at this emergency session will make it clear that we stand with our unhappy and wronged brother Jews in Hitler ruled lands.

Grieved by Talk of Survival.

"It must be made clear that our concern for our brother Jews must be more than mere concern for refugees. I am grieved when I hear Jews discussing the question of Jewish survival. I know no Britisher would ever dream of questioning whether Britain will survive, and what American outside the wretched fifth column groups would dare to question whether our country will survive."

Sigmund W. David, former president of the Chicago division of the congress, called on American Jews to subordinate everything to the assistance of the country's effort to win the war and make a decent world. Today's sessions open with a conference of the Chicago division of the congress. Max A. Kopstein, president of the division, will read his presidential message on the year's activities.

An "I Am an American" session this afternoon will be addressed by Dr. Malcolm MacLean, president of Hampton institute, and Dr. Wise will preside at a dinner symposium on "The New World Order."

CONVICT KILLED; WIFE, PAL CAUGHT AFTER GUN CHASE

Commerce, Okla., May 16 (AP).—A gun fight in autos that started on Main street and continued 10 miles into the country brought death to an escaped convict today and the capture of his wife and a companion.

Killed was Pascal Ramsey, who fled the Missouri penitentiary at Jefferson City two months ago and left a trail of armed robberies in three states. His 21 year old wife, Jean, and George Devine, 35, dropped their weapons and surrendered.

The gun fight began after Police Chief Aubert Sidwell spotted Ramsey in a store. He telephoned the sheriff's office at Miami, Okla., and stalked the trio until reiforcements arrived.

Devine, wanted for questioning in an Ottawa county robbery, and Mrs. Ramsey were jailed without charge.

Miss Betty Robinson of Aurora and Miss Charlotte Watkins of Detroit, Mich., were Miss Hueter's two senior attendants.

THREE IN FAMILY KILLED WHEN CAR AND TRUCK CRASH

Dominic Lobravico, 52 years old, 2940 North Long avenue, and his wife, 50, and his sister, Mrs. Mary Martocci, 60, of 3014 Polk street, were killed early yesterday when the car in which they were riding collided with a truck at the south intersection of U. S. highway 6 and Indiana highway 43, 14 miles southwest of La Porte, Ind.

Lobravico and his sister were killed instantly. Mrs. Lobravico died later in Holy Family hospital at La Porte. Harold V. Smith, 30, of Indianapolis, driver of the truck, was uninjured.

Benjamin Cohen, 54, of 1246 Newberry avenue, a laborer, died in Peoples hospital of injuries suffered Wednesday when he was struck at Roosevelt road and Jefferson street by an automobile driven by Sylvester Smalley, 40, of 1243 Newberry avenue.

Messages from Indianapolis last night said Harold Chammes, 25, of Chicago had been killed in a collision of his trailer truck with another truck in that city. Chammes' truck was set afire by the crash.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 288 persons had lost their lives in Cook county automobile accidents since Jan. 1. Of this number 227 were killed in Chicago where 7,552 were injured.

SOUTH SIDE AREA PAYS TRIBUTE TO WAR DEAD TODAY

Veterans of Foreign Wars of Illinois and various American Legion posts will participate in a memorial mass for dead service men in St. Francis de Paul Catholic church, 74th street and Ellis avenue, this morning. Ulness of 5110 George street, died Friday in the Norfolk, Va., naval hospital of injuries suffered Thursday when his plane crashed in a training flight. Ensign Ulness, who was 26 years old, was a graduate of Foreman High school and had attended the University of Idaho. He enlisted in the naval reserve in January, 1941, received his air training at Pensacola and Miami, Fla., and had been stationed at Norfolk since receiving his commission last November. He is survived by his parents and one brother, Norris.

135 Year Old New Bedford Paper Quits Publication

New Bedford, Mass., May 16 (AP).—The 135 year old Morning Mercury, oldest morning newspaper in Massachusetts, discontinued publication today. An announcement by Basil Brewer, publisher, blamed "rising costs, dwindling circulation, and war restrictions." Brewer also is publisher of New Bedford's Standard-Times, an afternoon newspaper, and the Sunday Times, both of which continue publication.

Taxes Consume $2,097,969 of M. N. Rothschild Estate

State and federal taxes on the $5,541,708 estate of Melville N. Rothschild were reported in the County court yesterday as totaling $2,097,969. The federal government's share is $1,853,694 and the state's is $244,275. Mr. Rothschild, founder of the National Bond and Investment company, died last July 17. He left $100,000 to charity and the rest to his family.

MORRIS GEST, 61, DIES; PRODUCER OF LAVISH SHOWS

Associate of Mary Garden and Eleanora Duse.

New York, May 16 (AP).—Morris Gest, 61 years old, theatrical producer who won fame thru his production of the spectacle "The Miracle" and other lavish shows, died today of pneumonia.

Morris Gest.

As a producer Gest brought the great Eleanora Duse to the United States to appear in five plays with him. In association with Oscar Hammerstein he was credited with raising Mary Garden to her first real success. He induced Geraldine Farrar to go into the movies. The Moscow Art theater was brought to the United States thru his efforts.

In Clown Act at 9.

Gest's love for the theater began when as a boy of 9 he crawled under a circus tent flap in his native Russian town and persuaded the show manager to hire him in a clown act as the rear legs of an imitation horse.

He was fired, however, because his legs were too short.

Coming to the United States, he worked as a box packer, a newsboy, a bootblack, and then a theater usher.

Becomes Producer at 40.

From that he progressed up the theatrical ladder as a bill poster, scene shifter, and then to a small part on the stage. At the age of 40 he was a producer.

His wife, Reina Victoria, the daughter of David Belasco, was with him when he died.

BOAT CAPSIZES; TWO WILMETTE BOYS RESCUED

Two New Trier High school boys, 16 years old, were rescued from Lake Michigan yesterday by Coast Guard Chief John Kinumen and three seamen after the boys' boat capsized a half mile south of Wilmette harbor. The boys are John Corliss of 616 Lake avenue, Wilmette, son of John Lester Corliss, an insurance engineer, and Jack Horner of 400 Isabella street, son of Walter A. Horner, former secretary of the Utilities Power and Light corporation of Chicago and now a captain in the air corps at Oklahoma City, Okla. They were thoroly chilled by their few minutes in the water but not seriously injured.

Raymond Swanson, 15, of 1748 Larrabee street, was feared drowned in another lake mishap. The canoe in which he and three other youths were riding capsized off Webster avenue.

When the canoe overturned two of the others, William Pearce, 17, of 1163 North La Salle street, and William Wilcox, 14, of 1526 North La Salle street, swam ashore. They left Swanson and his brother John, 17, clinging to the craft about 300 yards from shore.

The police notified the coast guard and one of its boats rescued John Swanson, who was unable to tell what happened to Raymond.

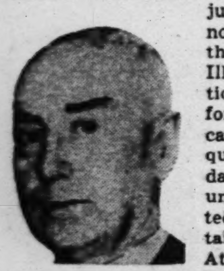
U. OF I. TRUSTEES OVERRIDE ORDER OUSTING COUNSEL

Refuse to Heed Ruling of Attorney General.



Sveinbjorn Johnson.

Whether Sveinbjorn Johnson, former North Dakota Supreme court justice, is or is not counsel for the University of Illinois, a position he has held for 16 years, became a debatable question yesterday when the university trustees voted to retain him over Attorney General Barrett's fiat that he was fired.

The board voted 5 to 2 to retain Johnson after a letter from the attorney general to President Arthur Cutts Willard had been read stating Barrett had accepted Johnson's resignation "as an attorney general and so-called university counsel" on April 22. The board in the same action voted to retain N. D. Hodges as assistant to Johnson, altho Barrett said he also had accepted Hodges' resignation on May 7.

Trustee Tells of Saving.

President Willard said that Johnson, who also serves as a professor of law at a total salary of $9,000 a year, never was an assistant attorney general. Trustee James M. Cleary, a Democrat, former president of the board, said Johnson during his years as attorney has saved the university "millions of dollars." He added:

"Barrett probably promised the job to some one before he was elected."

Barrett, informed of the trustees' vote, said he dismissed Johnson because he accepted a post as Illinois director of the federal Office of Government Reports while drawing his salary from the state.

"As attorney general I am solely responsible for the conduct of legal matters for the university," Barrett added. "I can't have one of my assistants devoting his time to the federal government and still permit him to be paid by the Illinois taxpayers. I'll see to it that he receives no further compensation from the state."

Voice Charge of Politics.

The attorney general did not say exactly what he intends to do. It is explained he cannot stop Johnson's salary merely by refusing to certify the attorney's name to the state auditor.

The university trustees wrangled for an hour, during which charges of "politics" were passed around, before they agreed to vote on Johnson's status. Several members said Barrett's action is "unprecedented in Illinois." Park Livingston, Chicago trustee, said, "The whole thing smacks of politics!"

Chester R. Davis, Republican member, countered: "I can understand the attorney general's position. He is ex officio chief counsel for the university." Mrs. Helen M. Grigsby, Pittsfield Republican, was almost tearful.

Hits "Partisan Politics."

"I have sat on this board for 12 years," she said with a break in her voice, "and this is the first time I've seen partisan politics introduced at a session. I don't think it has any place here and that goes for both sides."

John A. Wieland, Democratic state superintendent of public instruction, an ex officio member, said: "This isn't partisan politics. It's a question of Barrett. He's just overambitious and we ought to give him a kick in the pants."

Trustee Davis then remarked, "I think the matter has been reduced to personalities."

When the vote came on a motion to continue Johnson and Hodges on the university pay roll, only Davis and Livingston voted against it.

President Willard thereupon indicated that it's Barrett's next move.

ASSERT SPEEDUP ADDS ENGINEERS FOR WAR EFFORT

Illinois Institute of Technology of Chicago estimated yesterday that it is making more than a half million additional engineering man hours available for the war effort thru speeding up its current year's program, acceleration of future graduations, and the establishment of a preengineering program.

The largest addition of man hours results from establishment of a schedule which will graduate the 300 engineers of the 1943 class in January, five months early. This program, which makes an added 300,000 man hours available, requires all juniors at Illinois Tech, the largest school of its kind in the country, to start the first semester of their senior year this summer at the close of the current school year.

This plan is required, not optional, and will be followed thruout the duration of the war.

In addition, 180,000 man hours are being provided thru the preëngineering program, under which 60 high school juniors, chosen thru interviews and competitive examinations, will be given 13 weeks of intensive training this summer.

KILLED BY SOUTH SHORE TRAIN.

Charles Phillips, 45 years old, 2970 La Salle street, a Negro WPA laborer, was killed yesterday by a South Shore train at the 27th street Illinois Central station.

Mayor Speaks at War Bond Show

Throng listening to Ted Weems' orchestra yesterday at war bond program addressed by Mayor Kelly (right on platform). Before the microphone is George Jessel, who was master of ceremonies.

Praises Response

Mayor Kelly praised Chicagoans for their coöperation in the Minute Man drive to obtain pledges of war bond purchases at a special program presented yesterday from a Bond Wagon in front of Nathan Hale court between Tribune Tower and W-G-N studio.

The program was broadcast from noon to 12:30 p. m. by W-G-N and the Mutual network as a feature of the closing day of War Bond week.

A tremendous increase in the sale of war bonds was noted in the Tribune public service offices last week as a result of the Minute Man drive.

The total sale for the offices at 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower was $5,243. This is approximately $5,000 more than the previous weekly average. A grand total of $343,305 in bonds has been sold at the Tribune offices since Dec. 30, 1941.

POLICE LIGHTNING STRIKES TWICE IN THE SAME BOOKIE

Throws Loop Gaming Into a Turmoil.

First, Capt. Thomas Duffy and his South State street police raided three loop bookmaking joints with the following results:

161 North Wabash avenue: 25 patrons were chased, handbook sheets and racing forms were seized, and police arrested Harry Gordon, 34 years old, 1509 North Drake avenue; Pete Scherner, 41, 2324 North Kilpatrick avenue, and John Birza, 50, of 925 Loomis street, on gambling charges.

Five Are Chased.

223 North Clark street: Five patrons were chased, gambling paraphernalia seized, and George Kubreener, 44, of 2757 Pine Grove avenue, arrested.

201 North La Salle street: Thirty patrons were dispersed, handbook sheets seized, and Fred Tosi, 35, of 1323 South 51st court, Cicero; Frank Rody, 24, of 211 West 23d street; and James Pacelli, 35, of 2445 Wentworth avenue, arrested.

On the basis of past activity, that was a full day's work for the police. But about the time Capt. Duffy and his squad were completing the report of their last raid—201 North La Salle street—Capt. Michael Naughton, head of Police Commissioner Allman's gambling detail, called Central police station.

His squad had re-raided the 223 North Clark street handbook and Capt. Naughton demanded three patrol wagons to carry the 32 patrons to the lockup. It was not learned whether the original five patrons chased from the same place by Capt. Duffy were among the luckless second lot.

They Strike Again.

Capt. Naughton still wasn't thru. His squad then struck at 141 North Clark street—in full view of Sheriff O'Brien's office in the County building—and arrested Joseph M. Hirsch, 38, and seized more handbook equipment.

Hirsch will be remembered as the bookie who last fall was sentenced to five days in jail for molesting a woman grand juror in a handbook case. He was found guilty of contempt of court but the sentence was subsequently vacated by Chief Justice Robert Jerome Dunne.

At last report, Capt. Naughton was still stalking the loop with a gleam in his eye.

Liquor License Deadline Is Tuesday, Allman Warns

All liquor dealers must have their 1942 licenses by 6 p. m. Tuesday night, Police Commissioner Allman warned yesterday. Any dealer without the license at the deadline will be closed by police, Allman ordered.

REP. PIERCE RETAINS NARROW MARGIN IN OREGON'S PRIMARY

Portland, Ore., May 16 (AP).—Rep. Walter M. Pierce, in the national eye because of his movement to ban polls of public opinion, held a margin of only 294 votes today in his struggle for Democratic renomination in Oregon's 2d district. The 81 year old veteran congressman led Charles H. Mack, 34 year old Klamath county assessor, 6,692 to 6,398 in returns from yesterday's primary, with 92 of the 433 precincts missing, mostly in sections where Pierce is believed to be strong.

In 1,491 of 1,770 precincts, Senate Minority Leader Charles L. McNary was leading 97,840 to 21,237 against Arthur L. Geary, Portland, attorney, for the Republican senatorial nomination. McNary will oppose Walter W. Whitbeck, Democrat, in November.

Representatives Homer Angell [R., Portland] and James W. Mott [R., Salem] won renomination. Angell's Democratic opponent will be State Sen. Thomas R. Mahoney, Portland, while Mott probably will oppose Earl A. Nott.

500 Walther Leaguers in Talent Festival Today

More than 500 members of the Northern Illinois district of the Walther league are expected to participate in the annual talent festival which closes today at Concordia Teachers college in River Forest. Contests were held in more than 100 activities, including music, art, dramatics, creative writing, story telling, and spelling. Winners will be eligible to participate in another contest to be held in Denver, Colo., in connection with the 50th International Walther league convention in June.

Getting Up Nights Makes Many Feel Old Too Soon

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Worry, Colds, working too hard, or overeating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded. Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, under this positive money back guarantee. Don't take chances on any Kidney medicine that isn't guaranteed. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c. The guarantee protects you.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Phil Marchildon yesterday afternoon was all ready to accept congratulations on his sixth victory of the season, his fifth in a row, when the White Sox rose up in the ninth and made two runs to beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 3, in Comiskey park. The triumph lifted the Sox' winning streak to four straight, a glorious contrast with the 4 out of 22 they had won up to a week ago yesterday.

Joe Haynes, who won his first victory in two seasons with the White Sox in the 10 inning game with the Boston Red Sox last Wednesday, was the victor yesterday. He replaced Eddie Smith in the ninth after the pudgy lefty had given way to a hitless pinch batter with the bases loaded and two out in the eighth inning. Joe confined the A's to one infield single in his one inning of tossing.

Here's How They Won It.

Wally Moses got his third straight pass to get the victory ninth under way. He was walked after a three and two count. Luke Appling, only Sox batsman who hadn't made a hit in the first eight innings, crossed up the pulled-in infield by lining a single to left center, Moses hastening to third. Joe Kuhel, banged a single to right, Moses scoring the tying run and Appling taking third. Myril Hoag was called out on strikes, but Don Kollaway sent a long fly to Mike Kreevich and Appling skipped home with the winning run.

A single by Moses and a double by Kuhel failed to accomplish anything in the first inning but in the second the Sox registered the first tally of the contest without a hit. Kolloway walked, took second when Hal Wagner lost the ball between his heels and reached third on Sam West's sacrifice. Don scored on Bob Kennedy's fly to Elmer Valo.

A's Take Command.

The A's tied the score in the fourth on Wagner's first double and two infield outs, then went ahead in the fifth on Marchildon's single, a single by Pete Suder, Wagner's second double and a force out. The rally was halted at two runs when Smith struck out Lou Blair with the bases loaded.

In their fifth, after two were out, the Sox loaded the bases on singles by Tom Turner and Smith and a pass to Moses. Many were pulling for Appling to make a hit, thus getting credit for his first run batted in of the season. But Luke was conserving his skill for the dramatic ninth and supplied the third out with a grounder to Suder.

The Sox got busy in the sixth after the first two batsmen were retired and this time gleaned a run. Kolloway singled and went to third on West's single. Kennedy then lined a single to left, Kolloway scoring and West taking third. Kennedy stole second but the inning ended with Turner's fly to Suder.

Chance to Escape Cellar.

In the eighth the Sox again loaded the bases, starting action after the first two batsmen had been knocked off. West walked, Kennedy smacked his second single and Turner walked. George Dickey, co-hero with Haynes in Joe's Wednesday success, batted for Smith and flied to Suder.

In the ninth Haynes walked Suder on four pitches, but Pete was caught trying to steal second. Wagner bounced to Kolloway and Bob Johnson caromed a single off Haynes' glove. Then Haynes tossed out Dick Siebert, who previously had received cheap credit for batting in two runs with infield outs.

The Sox victory gave them a mathematical chance to get out of the cellar this afternoon in their double header with the Washington Senators. They are only a game and a half behind the seventh place Browns.

SPEED AND HEIGHT AS BIG 10 TRACK STARS BID FOR VICTORY

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Sportsman's Park closed its 19 day spring meeting yesterday with the biggest afternoon in the history of the track. Attendance and betting handle far surpassed all previous figures. The record for total mutuel turnover for any meeting had been broken on Thursday, when the wagering went over the previous high of $5,028,120.

The crowd of 20,000 poured $620,811 thru the mutuels, which was $128,004 more than the previous record of $492,807 wagered on opening day of the present meeting. The 19 day session closed with a total handle of $6,559,137. This was $1,531,017 more than the highest previous total.

Bob's Dream, Beamy Win.

Bob's Dream and Beamy shared the honors of closing day. Bob's Dream scored by a nose in the seven furlong fifth race and Beamy dominated his field to win by eight lengths in the sixth at a mile and a sixteenth.

Bob's Dream was a longshot, returning $31.40, $18.60 and $4.40 across the board, but Beamy was quite popular, his payoff being $6.60, $3.40, and $2.60.

Bob's Dream was forced to hustle all the way. He ran fairly close to the leaders in the early stages, while Golden Goose and Can't Lose, the 1 to 2 favorites, set the pace, running as an entry. Golden Goose gave way after a half mile, but Can't Lose held on until the last few yards. Then he weakened while Bob's Dream was coming up on one side of him and Lichema on the other. Bob's Dream held a margin of a nose over Lichema and the latter was a half a length in advance of Can't Lose.

$640.40 Daily Double.

Beamy left his backers in no suspension at all. He took command almost immediately after the start, drew out to a lead of six lengths and increased it in the later stages to cross the line eight lengths in advance of Relious. Cherry Trifle was third.

A 22 to 1 shot and a 7 to 1 shot scored in the first two races of the afternoon to make up a $640.40 daily double. Arched accounted for the first by lasting just long enough to beat Chief's Boy by a nose in this five furlong sprint. His pay off was $46, $15.60, and $8.40 across the board.

Epizar scored with considerably more ease in the second, at seven furlongs. He crossed the line four lengths in advance of Extremus. His prices across the board were $15.80, $6.80, and $4.60.

Jockey Is Thrown.

A spectacular fall occurred on the clubhouse turn in the third race. Truda, with Steve Murphy aboard, fell as she went into the curve and The Marker, following close behind, tumbled over her. The Marker's jockey, Dan Trombley got up and limped off but Murphy was thoroly knocked out. For a time it was feared that he might be badly hurt, but after examination and treatment by Jim Bryson in the jockey room, the boy came around all right, tho he was forced to cancel his remaining mounts.

"HIT HOME RUN" ON CARD MEANS MANUEL SANK SUB

Mobile, Ala., May 16 [Special].—"Played one game on wet field, hit home run on second pitch."

That was the wording on a post card received by Oscar J. Bosarge of Bayou la Batre today from his nephew, Manuel Petronas Jr., who was a star semipro ball player here before he joined the United States merchant marines. Bosarge figures his nephew was advising that his ship had sunk an enemy submarine. The card was mailed from Nova Scotia.

Hammond Prep Golfers Win La Porte Tourney

La Porte, Ind., May 16 [Special].—Andy Granack's medal winning 78 paced Hammond High school golfers to victory in the sixth annual La Porte High invitational tournament today. The Hammond foursome was low with 339.

OAK PARK WINS STATE PREP TRACK TITLE 14TH TIME; URBANA SECOND

Champaign, Ill., May 16 [Special].—Led by Sophomore George Geyer, Oak Park's strong squad won the 48th state interscholastic track meet today. It was the 14th time Oak Park had won the meet. Previous championships were in 1907, 1908, 1913, 1915, 1919, 1920, 1923, 1924, 1930, 1931, 1932, 1937, and 1938.

One record was broken, by Paul Behan of Crystal Lake, who threw the discus 154 feet 6¾ inches. Behan yesterday had hurled the discuss 153 feet 4⅜ inches to exceed the former record of 149 feet 3 inches achieved by Louis Schilling of Pinckneyville in 1941.

Geyer Leads the Way.

Geyer won the 100 and 220 yard dashes and ran anchor on the victorious Oak Park relay team. Capt. Parker Preble in the low hurdles added another first to the Oak Park record, but his teammate, Bob Nussbaumer, undoubtedly would have won the event except for an accident. Nussbaumer was leading by 10 feet when he fell between the last two hurdles. Nussbaumer came back to run with the champion relay quartet.

Other Oak Parkers who contributed to the victory were Ed Lyon, fourth in the 220 yard dash and a relay runner; Ed Nichols, second in the high jump, Westgate and Flohr, who tied for fifth in the pole vault, and John Coon, relay team.

Eddleman Wins High Jump.

Dwight Eddleman retained the high jump championship, clearing 6 feet 4 inches, but failed in his ambition to beat the state record of 6 feet 5⅛ inches made by Lowell Spurgeon of Centralia in 1933.

Urbana's performers were headed by Bruce Brenneman, who made the best mile time, 4:28.8, Bill Olliverson was the best pole vaulter, and Bud Lauchner second in the 880 yard run.

Harold Anderson paced Du Sable to third place with a second in the 100 yard dash and third in the broad jump. D. Sable was second in the relay. Summaries:

BY NELSON'S 139 WINS BIG EIGHT CHARITY MATCH

Newton, Mass., May 16 (AP).—Byron Nelson, winner of this year's Masters' tournament, produced mechanically perfect golf today to put together a five under par 67 and a revulation 72 in winning the second annual Massachusetts big eight golf meet at Charles River Country club.

Nelson's 139 total for the 36 holes of medal play for the benefit of the Navy Relief society was two strokes better than those of National Open Champion Craig Wood and Ben Hogan, who deadlocked for second place with totals of 140.

A surprising fourth in the final standing was Sam Byrd, former outfielder for the New York Yankees and the Cincinnati Reds, who has turned to professional golf for a living. Byrd notched a 70 and 71 for 141 which was three strokes better than Jimmy Thomson could produce.

Thomson came back in the afternoon with a two under par total after taking a 74 in the morning. His 144 assured him of fifth place, a stroke ahead of Sam Snead, who toured the course in par in the morning and went one over in the afternoon for 145.

Elmhurst Edges Out Wheaton Nine, 9 to 8

Elmhurst defeated Wheaton yesterday, 9 to 8, in Wheaton. B. Bizer, Abele, and Melgaard of Elmhurst, and Doud, De Wolfe, and Baptista of Wheaton got two hits each. Gregson was the winning pitcher.

The Scarlet and Gray of Ohio State university was raised over the Western conference track meet yesterday in Dyche stadium for the first time in history. The Buckeyes, with 10 men scoring points in all except three events, captured one-half of the 14 championships and rolled up 66 points, second highest team score in history.

There was no question of Ohio State's supremacy at any time. Far back at the end of the long afternoon were Indiana and Illinois in a tie for second place with 30 points. The Hoosiers, who were defending champions, compiled one-half of their total by individual victories in the half mile, one mile, and two mile races. Ohio State was shut out in these middle distance runs. Illinois garnered its 30 points without aid of an individual triumph.

Minnesota Takes Fourth.

Fourth place went to Minnesota's highly improved squad with 24½ points and Wisconsin's 20 points nosed out Michigan for fifth. The Wolverines failed to win an event, something of a record in itself since Michigan, until today, had won seven of the last 10 meets.

Ohio State's smashing triumph was anchored by two men. Capt. Ralph Hammond climaxed his competition with conference titles in the dashes and Bob Wright, husky hurdler, who failed miserably in his outdoor test in the Drake relays high hurdles, came back yesterday and successfully defended his Big Ten honors in both hurdle events.

The Bucks' other championships were garnered by Russ Owen, who soundly whipped Michigan's Bob Ufer in the quarter mile; by Dal Dupre, who took the broad jump, and by a brilliant mile relay team. Since Wright also won third place in the 100 yard dash, his 13 points made him high point man of the 42d annual games. Certainly, Capt. Hammond deserved equal credit for his fine quarter mile on the third lap of the mile relay which contributed to Ohio State's tremendous success.

Relay Victory Follows Pattern.

Ohio State's relay victory followed a pattern set in the individual events. Altho Indiana's Harry Price had a yard lead over Gil Yates at the end of the first quarter, Ohio State was in front immediately because of a fine pass of the baton to Le Roy Collins. Hammond then carried on easily to a five yard lead and Owen won the final lap by 10 yards.

Indiana's relay team was second and the Hoosiers were anchored by Campbell Kane, superlative middle distance runner. Kane retained his mile and half mile championships, and his victory in the former was his sixth in Big Ten competition, indoor and outdoor.

Kane won the mile as he pleased. He permitted his rivals to make pace while he came on with his usual backstretch drive on the final lap to win. Kane's time yesterday was 4:19.8, the slowest time in his conference outdoor competition. In his sophomore year he ran the mile in 4:15 and last year in Minneapolis he was only one-fifth of a second slower.

Jentsch Is Pace Setter.

Al Jentsch of Purdue made pace for the field of 15 for the first lap with Earl Mitchell, Paul Kendall, and Kane following in that order. Mitchell went to the front and ran the half mile in 2:10 with Jentsch, Kane, and Kendall trailing. Then Kendall took over at the end of the third lap. Mitchell was at his heels with Kane in third position. On the back stretch

LINCOLN FIELDS RACE MEETING TO OPEN TOMORROW

30 Day Schedule Includes Five Stake Events.

The Chicago racing season will go into its second phase tomorrow when Lincoln Fields opens its 30 day meeting following the close of the Sportsman's Park session yesterday. Racing Secretary William H. Shelley has drawn up a program which is calculated to bring out spirited competition for juveniles and older horses, sprinters and route runners.

The schedule includes five stake events, each carrying an added money value of $5,000. Sprinters 3 years and up will compete in the Crete handicap at 6 furlongs next Saturday. Three events are planned for horses with greater distance ability. These are the Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap at a mile and a sixteenth on Memorial day, the La Salle handicap at a mile and three sixteenths on June 13 and the Lincoln handicap at a mile and quarter on June 30.

Shot Put Back Again.

Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put, a perennial favorite of the Lincoln Fields fans, will be back again to defend his prestige. He won the La Salle handicap last year and the Lincoln handicap in 1940. He is a highly consistent performer over a route and will be making a bid to sweep the three longer stakes of the meeting.

The best juveniles on the grounds will compete in the Joliet stakes at five furlongs on June 6. This event was won last year by Alsab.

During the last week there has been a steady succession of arrivals at the Crete track. Many of the horses have come up from Churchill Downs and quite a few others have been vanned over from Sportsman's Park.

Coyne Handles Church String.

R. L. Coyne brought in the Norman W. Church string; Herbert M. Woolf has quite a few capable horses, including Technician, at the track; Dixiana, Cleveland Putnam, Howard Wells, T. D. Grimes Leslie Combs and other well known racing establishments will be represented.

Matt J. Winn, executive director of Lincoln Fields and Churchill Downs, is looking forward to another successful meeting. The list of racing officials will include C. Bruce Head, William Hamilton, and Sam McMeekin in the stewards' stand. Larry Boganschutz, Harry Lindenberg, and W. R. Dahlstrom will be the judges.

To Run Special Trains.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad has announced that it will operate one train daily to the track and two on Saturdays. The daily train will leave the Dearborn street station at 1 p. m. In addition there will be a 12:45 train on Saturday. These will stop at the Englewood station on the return trip only.

The Lincoln Fields meeting will run until June 20, after which the summer meetings at Arlington Park and Washington Park will begin.

Harvard Wins Adams Cup 5th Straight Time

Cambridge, Mass., May 16 (AP).—Harvard's unbeaten crew today won its fifth consecutive Adams cup by two and one-half lengths over Wisconsin in a mile and three-fourths race on the Charles River basin. Harvard waited only until the half-mile mark—where pace-setting Pennsylvania faltered—to take a commanding lead and finish in 9:18 3-5.

The battle was for second place with Wisconsin shading previously unbeaten Navy by one-fifth second, or less than a deck. Wisconsin's time was 9:25. Massachusetts Institute of Technology took fourth and Penn, slumping after a strong start, finished last.

Harvard also won the freshman race with a three and one-half length victory over M. I. T. in 9:24, with Penn and Navy trailing in that order. Harvard missed a clean sweep, however, when Pennsylvania was clocked in 9:40.5 for a length victory over the Crimson in the junior varsity race. M. I. T. finished third and Navy last.

PRINCETON BEATS CORNELL.

Derby, Conn., May 16 (AP).—A Princeton crew, beaten in four previous starts, today scored a surprise triumph in the 23d Carnegie cup regatta by whipping Cornell by more than three-quarters of a length with favored Yale a length and a half off the pace.

Princeton sprinted over the course in 10:46 1-5, good time under the conditions, to capture the trophy from Cornell, which finished in 10:49 4-5, three seconds better than Yale.

Cornell's freshmen and junior varsity shells won the preliminary skirmishes. The big red frosh won by three lengths in 11:07, while the Jayvee scored by about one and a half lengths in 11:24 4-5. Princeton was second in both races.

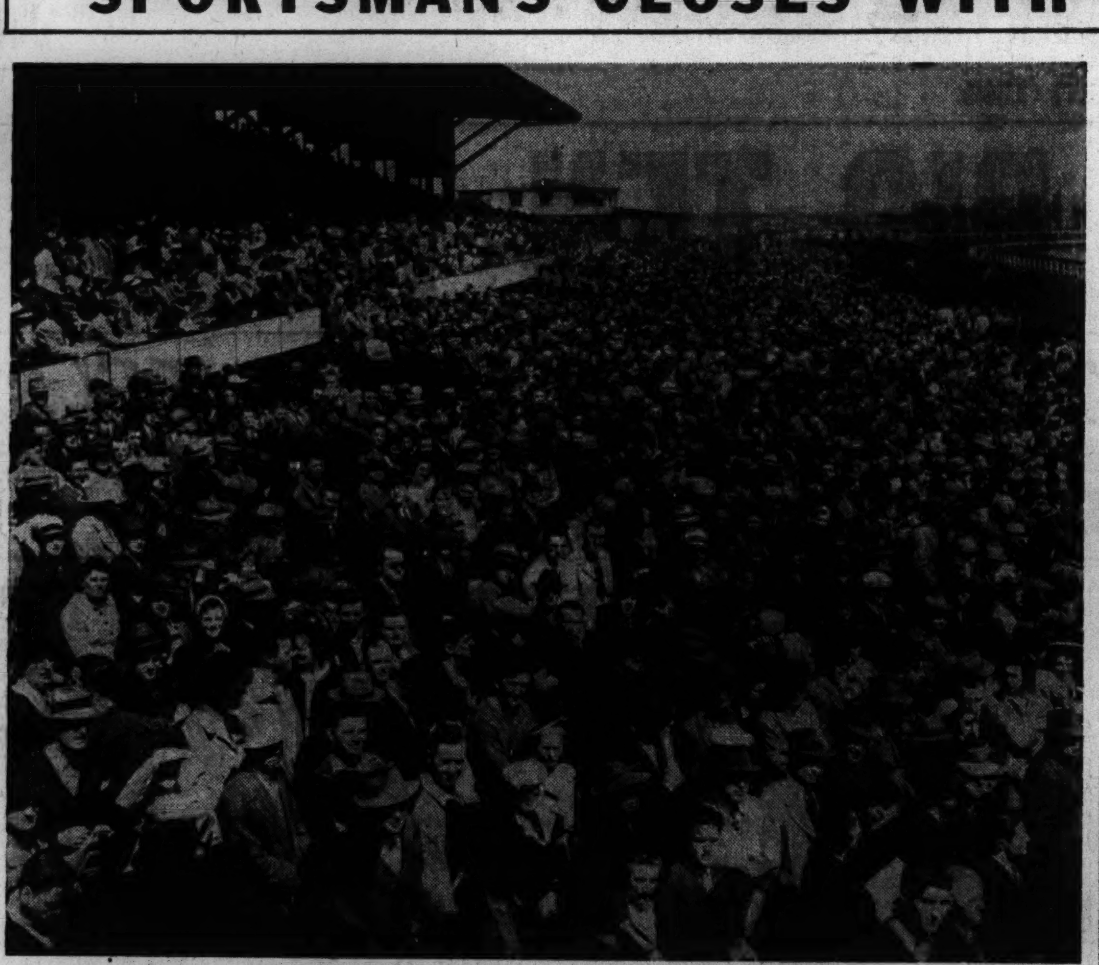
SPORTSMAN'S CLOSES WITH A RECORD CROWD



A portion of the 20,000 who helped Sportsman's Park bring its successful spring meeting to an end yesterday. It was the largest crowd in the history of the half mile oval in Cicero. The horses move to Lincoln Fields tomorrow for 30 afternoons of racing. The mutuel handle was a record breaking $6,559,137.

It was just a romp for Epizar in the second race at Sportsman's. Jockey W. Gillespie brought in the 7 to 1 shot four lengths in front in the seven furlong dash.

Photo for first, third, and fourth. Claim: Bold Grafton, by Mrs. H. P. Bonner, $1,500. Time, :24 3-5, :50, 1:03 3-5. Track slow. Two dollar mutuels paid: Arched, $46.00 straight, $15.60 place, $8.40 show; Chief's Boy, $10.00 place, $6.00 show; Nani Leonai, $5.40 show. Winner trained by W. L. Hoag. Went to post at 2:22. At post 1¼ minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

ARCHED, a forward factor from the beginning, forged to the front after reaching the backstretch and, under a drive in the final furlong, lasted to win narrowly. CHIEF'S BOY, always within striking distance of the pace, moved up swiftly in the last sixteenth mile and was wearing the winner down at the end. NANI LEONAI, very slow to settle into stride, closed a lot of ground rounding the final bend and was going gamely at the finish.

Time, :26 1-5, :52 1-5, 1:20 3-5, 1:49 1-5, 2:19 1-5, 2:47 2-5, 3:18 1-5, 3:45 2-5, 4:01 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Little Banner, $23.20 straight, $7.80 place, $4.00 show; Wee Scot, $3.80 place, $2.60 show; Ardour, $3.00 show. Winner trained by A. Hudkins. Went to post at 6:02½. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

LITTLE BANNER, far back in the first mile and a half, moved up strongly on the outside rounding the final bend and, under a drive in the last sixteenth, got up to win narrowly. WEE SCOT, well back in the early stages, closed with a rush after reaching the homestretch but was not good enough. ARDOUR, well up to the last furlong, weakened when the real racing began.

North Park Nine Beats George Williams, 4 to 0

North Park college defeated George Williams, 4 to 0, yesterday on the field at Cicero and Foster avenues. Paul Lindwall held Williams to five hits.

New York, May 16.—Chalking up his first victory since his upset over Whirlaway last July, Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention turned on the heat in the stretch today to win the ancient Metropolitan mile at Belmont Park.

Cheered home by a crowd of 32,724, the bay colt who is regarded by many as Equipoise's best son, came around the field entering the stretch and and then drew away to hit the wire a length on top in the same race his famous daddy won in 1932 and '33.

All records for New York betting for a single day were shattered when $1,899,607 was poured into the mutuel machines during the eight race card. The previous New York high for the three years of mutuels was the $1,881,160 bet at Belmont last Memorial day.

Holds Off Pictor.

Under top weight of 126 pound and handled by Don Meade, Attention tired a bit just at the end, but he had enough edge to hold off the late rallying Pictor, owned by W. L. Brann, and Market Wise, from Lou Tufano's barn. They finished heads apart in that order behind him.

In coming from sixth place at the half mile mark to victory at the wire, Attention clicked off the mile in 1:36 2-5, one and two-fifths seconds off Jack High's record, but faster than either of Equipoise's trumphs in this traditional spring tussle. Today's was the 49th running of the fixture.

Won Arlington Classic.

The last time Attention hit the winner's circle was in the Arlington classic last July 26 when he ended the long string of victories Whirlaway had started with the Kentucky Derby. He has been out four times previously this year, winding up second to Whirlaway in the Dixie handicap last week in his most recent trip to the post.

Today, however, he had it when he needed it. Backed down to the favorite's spot at $7 to $2, he let Crispin Oglebay's Ocean Blue and John Galbreath's Best Seller cut out all the early pace, then on he came. Ocean Blue stopped cold and finished last in the field of a dozen. The $11,300 Attention picked up for today's victory boosted his earnings to $98,305 for his career of two and a fraction years.

WHIRLAWAY IS READY TO AID WAR CHARITIES

Warren Wright, owner of Calumet farm, yesterday offered to run Whirlaway against any horse or horses in the world at Arlington Park this summer in connection with the north side track's contribution to the war effort. Wright's offer to contribute his great horse was announced by John D. Allen, president of the Arlington Park Jockey club.

If You Want a Battle, Pike Is Your Foe!

BY BOB BECKER.

If there are two species of fresh water fish which can be charged with starting many arguments, the northern pike—commonly called pickerel—is one and the muskie is the other. The cult of muskie fishermen is large and enthusiastic. But when the pickerel or northern pike is mentioned the eraction is likely to be mixed. Thousands of fishermen consider this lanky, long fish the equal of any muskie that ever lived in a weed bed, while others deride the big pike by calling it a snake.

But whatever a fisherman may think about old Esox, the pickerel or northern, nobody can ignore him. This species is so widely distributed, will strike so viciously, and pull and tug so lively when hooked that it's no wonder we see so many letters every year asking where northern pike fishing can be found.

Neither Show Much Finesse.

There is little doubt that a large pickerel or northern pike has the weight to put considerable strain on anybody's tackle altho there's nothing clever about the fight this fish puts up. Neither the pickerel [nor the muskie] show much finesse or cleverness in trying to outfit the fisherman. The cunning fighting tactics utilized by other game fish—the startling, spectacular rushes and the acrobatics of the Atlantic salmon, the thrilling leaps of a hooked rainbow trout, the terrific high speed of the small but sporty bonefish—you get none of these from a pickerel or northern pike. If you hook a good sized one it thrashes around, pulls and bulldogs, and does a little sprinting. But the fight you get from this fish is mostly the result of sheer weight and power with a minimum of finesse.

We can recall nights when we were trying to catch black bass in Canada when it was almost impossible to connect with those fish because the pickerel hit just about everything we threw at the bass. They tangled us in the rushes, bent our wire leaders, and generally proved a nuisance. It was a wild night for anybody who likes pickerel fishing. But it was a headache to us trying to keep spoon and pork rind lure away from those fish so the large mouth bass could get it.

Not Much Pickerel Won't Hit.

There isn't much a pickerel won't hit. We have caught a number of them while casting flies for black bass. They like plugs. Flashing spoons with or without pork rinds look like a million dollars to them. On one of our small mouth bass trips into Canada we had northerns grabbing our single hook spoon lures constantly. We've tried at least 30 different lures on this widely distributed fish and all of them looked like meal tickets, judging from the number of strikes. And now we're going to experiment with a new plastic type spoon which we believe the pickerel will sock because this crazy acting lure with the anything but fishy name of Fanny has a combination weaving, wobbly, dip-si-do action that makes you think it is loco. A weedless spoon with a pork rind usually is irresistible to pickerel. And with such a lure you can get right into the weeds—the habitat old Esox lucius likes.

Sawyier Beats Greenberg As N.U. Wins Title

Columbus, O., May 16 [Special].—Northwestern's tennis team won the Big Ten title this afternoon despite the unexpected defeat of the Wildcats' captain, Seymour Greenberg.

Greenberg, who won the singles title in 1939 and 1940, lost his first match in three years of conference competition to Cal Sawyier of Chicago, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, in the No. 1 singles finals.

Kemetick Beats Jake.

Greenberg's running mate, Bobby Jake, was beaten by Walter Kemetick, also of Chicago, in the No. 2 singles, 6-4, 0-6, 6-2.

Harrie Hall pulled Northwestern thru to victory. Harrie edged out Wayne Stille of Michigan, 6-0, 5-7, 6-3, in the No. 3 singles final. Then—paired with Bob Goodkind—Hall added the No. 2 doubles title by whipping Irwin Tobkin and Bob Harbrecht of Ohio State, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4.

The Vital 15th Point.

The Hall-Goodkind victory was the final match of the meet and gave the Wildcats the 15th point needed to edge out Chicago and Michigan who tied for second place with 14 points each. Illinois was fourth with eight points. Ohio State, Minnesota, and Purdue scored three points each. Wisconsin failed to win a match. Indiana and Iowa did not enter. Summaries:

Two Boxing Shows Head Chicago Card

Two shows will be offered boxing fans this week. Tomorrow Willie Joyce, Gary lightweight, will meet Mike Evans of Philadelphia in Marigold Gardens, and Wednesday Anton Christoforidis, once holder of the light heavyweight championship, will oppose Johnny Colan of New York in Chicago Stadium.

Evans, who is 26 years old, will be making his Chicago debut, but he is a seasoned performer. Mike started boxing in 1934 under the direction of Phil Glassman. Management difficulties forced him out of the ring for two years, or until Jack Puggy, former heavyweight, placed him under his supervision in 1937.

Won 26 Straight.

The new arrangement was so satisfactory, Evans went undefeated for nearly three years, during which stretch he scored 26 consecutive victories. His chain of triumphs was broken by Bob Montgomery in Philadelphia Oct. 23, 1939. In his 17 starts since then the Pennsylvanian won all except four. He defeated Bill Davis of Minersville, Pa., last March to register his third decision in a row. Previously he conquered Julie Kogon and Slugger White. Supporting matches tomorrow:

Isaiah Wells, Catholic Youth organization, vs. Billy White, Baltimore [6].
Bobby Root, Cleveland, vs. Willie Pryor, Peoria, [4].
Jack Gregg, Peoria, vs. Bruce Heriman, La Porte, Ind., [4].

Christoforidis will be appearing in this city for the third time when he faces Colan. In his first appearance he stopped Jimmy Burns in the Coliseum and in his next won over Tony Bruno in the old Mills stadium. Both matches were held in 1940. In the interim, Anton won recognition as world 175 pound title holder by scoring a surprise decision over Melio Bettina in Cleveland.

Can Spoil Plans.

Christoforidis is seeking an opportunity to regain the honor. If he upsets Colan Wednesday he will be a long way toward gaining his objective. Mike Jacobs, New York promoter, is reported to be negotiating for a championship match between Colan and Lesnevich for presentation in June. Christoforidis can spoil the plan by dealing Johnny his first Chicago beating. Anton knocked out Paulie Mahoney in Buffalo on April 29. Earlier he conquered Jimmy Reeves in Cleveland. Supporting matches Wednesday:

Harry Teaney, Cleveland, vs. Tony Motisi, CYO [10].
Booker Beckwith, Gary, vs. Bill Nichy, Pittsburgh [10].
Jackie Nichols, Gary, vs. Chick Sanchez, Detroit [5].

TRIBUNE PICKS 5 WINNERS WITH A DAILY DOUBLE

The first choices and the straight prices were Rolls Rough, $16.60, High Blame, $11, Hiblaze, $4, Spectator, the best bet, $5.60, and Pit Terrier, $6.40. Rolls Rough and High Blame, winners of the second and third races, respectively, formed the daily double combination. The selections included 14 winners at 5 tracks.

Table Tennis Stars Will Give Exhibition in USO

Four top ranking Illinois Table Tennis association players will give a men's singles, women's singles, and mixed doubles exhibition matches in the Chicago Service Men's center, 176 West Washington street, at 4:30 p. m. today. Also featured at the center today will be Joe Mesick, champion archer and trick shot artist of the Chicago Archers club.

BIG NINE MOVES UP OPENING OF FOOTBALL DRILL

Teams Cannot Start Before Sept. 1.

In consideration of the 10 game football schedules the faculty committee of the Western conference granted at its March meeting, the same group yesterday announced that the date of the start of practice this fall will be moved forward. Teams last fall started preparations on Sept. 10.

Three weeks drills before the opening game will be permitted with the exception that practice may open on the first day of classes, but that this date can not be in advance of Sept. 1. Purdue, Iowa, and Wisconsin, which play their opening games on Sept. 19, will begin practice on Sept. 1. Indiana university's schedule opens with Butler on Sept. 26 but since the Hoosiers report for classes on Sept. 3 this will be the date for beginning gridiron drills.

Five Open Drills Sept. 7.

Ohio State, Michigan, Minnesota, Northwestern, and Illinois will begin practice on Monday, Sept. 7, for their games on Sept. 26. The variation from the 21 day period occurs because Sept. 5 falls on Saturday and Big Ten teams do not practice on Sunday. Since classes will not be in session, these football squads will have an advantage of twice a day practice over the other four schools.

The faculty committee granted these changes in the start of practice for 1942 only. They acted on the recommendation of the directors of athletics.

Revise One Eligibility Rule.

The faculty committee also revised rule 5, section 1 of the conference eligibility code to permit an added year of competition for an athlete, who, after playing in his first game of the season, is then prevented from further competition that year because of injury or illness. Varsity athletes are permitted three years of competition and the change was made yesterday by the faculty men because practically all requests for extension of eligibility have been requested for athletes who participated in a game and then could not continue because of injury. In general, these requests have been granted.

Each case will be investigated, the committee intimated, to verify the illness or injury. It is noteworthy that the new rule specifies the athlete's first game and not the first game of the schedule.

Plan to Aid Relief Funds.

At their final meeting yesterday in the North Shore hotel the athletic directors passed a resolution that all football revenue above actual cost of financing the sports program at each of the conference universities should be pooled. This sum then will be given in the name of the Western conference to the army and navy relief funds.

The directors' resolution will be submitted to the governing body of each university and will go into effect this year if the trustees, board of regents, and similar governing bodies agree. Universities with no bonded indebtedness on physical equipment naturally will contribute larger sums. It was the consensus of the directors, however, that where a fixed sum has been paid on indebtedness each year this sum could not be increased if the resolution is approved. Excess profit over this average sum should go into the conference fund.

MIDGET RACERS OPEN RIVERVIEW SEASON TONIGHT

Leading midget auto racing drivers from six states have filed entries for the eight event program which will usher in the season tonight at Riverview Speedway, Addison street near Western avenue.

Ted Duncan, 1941 champion who set the competitive record of 14.74 seconds for a single lap in 1940, was clocked at 14.66 seconds in a practice spin and will attempt to establish a new mark in the time trials tonight. Duncan will meet the challenge of Ray Richards with whom he dueled all thru last season for the track title. Richards led in the point standing when the drivers lined up for the final 30 lap race, having an edge of five on his rival. Duncan won the race and the championship.

Iowa City, Ia., May 16 [Special].—Iowa's Hawkeyes made their final bid for the Big Ten baseball title here today by beating Ohio State, 7 to 5, thereby sweeping the two game series for a record of 10 victories and two defeats.

A three run rally in the seventh sewed up the game for the Hawkeyes after the score had been tied, 3 to 3, and 4 to 4. A pair of singles, a walk, and another single by Tom Farmer comprised the winning rally.

Iowa chased Art Maley from the box in the third and then jumped on Bob Mart for five more hits and four runs. Dick Hein, Iowa hurler, was relieved by Wendell Hill, the winning pitcher, in the fourth. Hill allowed but three hits and a single run.

MAYOR BUYS BOX FOR ARMY-NAVY BENEFIT GAMES

Mayor Kelly bought a box yesterday for the army-navy relief baseball games to be played in Wrigley field May 27. The mayor's check for $9.90 was accepted by Arthur Canty, commander of the Cook county council of the American Legion; Lieut. Col. Walter R. Jeffery, representing the army relief organization; Lieut. Comm. Thomas F. White Jr., of the navy relief society, and Mrs. Thomas F. McManus, president of the Cook county Legion auxiliary. The Camp Grant army team will play the Great Lakes Naval Training station, and the Cubs will play the Cincinnati Reds.

NEBRASKA WINS BIG SIX TRACK; FOURTH IN ROW

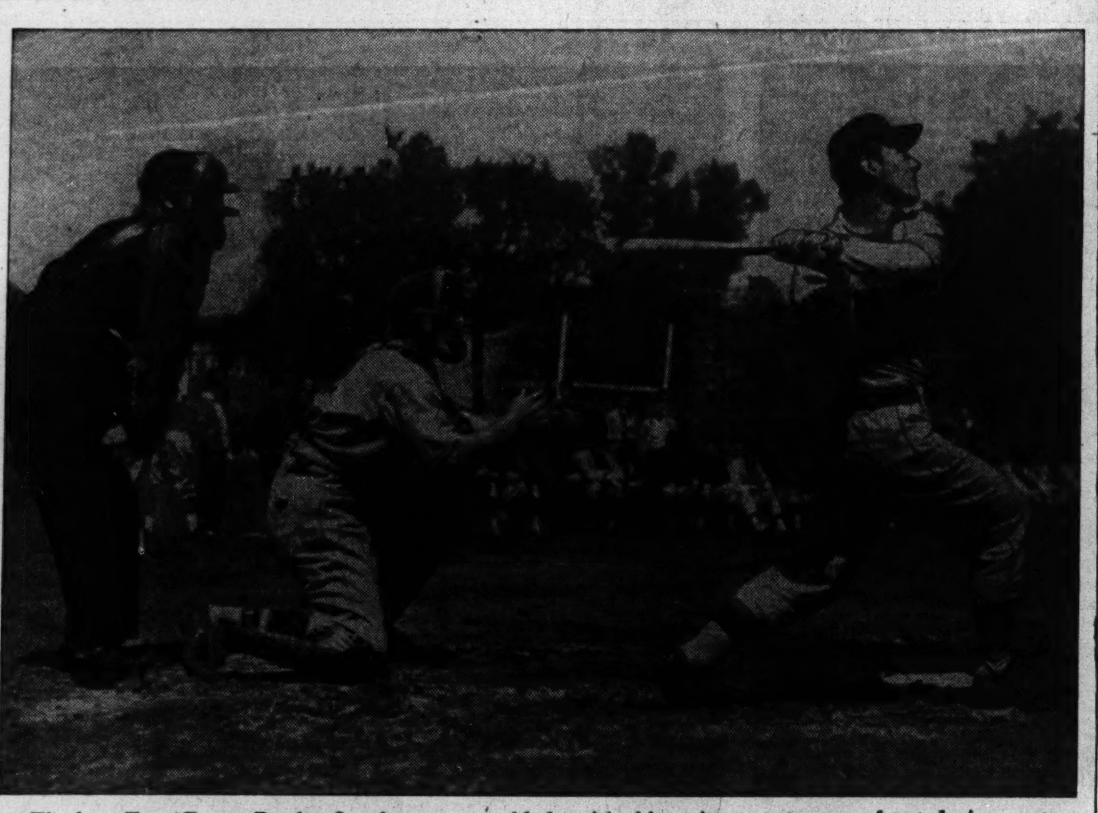
Lincoln, Neb., May 16 (AP).—The University of Nebraska won its fourth consecutive Big Six track championship today and produced the annual meet's only record setter in Harold Hunt, who pole vaulted 14 feet ⅝ inches to better his own mark of 13 feet 11¼ inches set last year.

The Huskers scored 82⅗ points, followed by Kansas State with 43 2/5;

CHUCK WIGGINS FOUND ON WALK SERIOUSLY HURT

Indianapolis, Ind., May 16 (AP).—Charles [Chuck] Wiggins, 42 years old, former heavyweight boxer and a colorful figure in and out of the ring, was in a serious condition in City hospital today with a fractured skull. Police found him on a sidewalk in the downtown area. They expressed belief he had fallen down a stairway.

A PURDUE BATTER IS OUT



The best Tony Berto, Purdue first baseman, could do with this swing was to ground out during yesterday's double header with Northwestern in Evanston. Bruno Gargas is the catcher and Dan Beaver the umpire. Purdue won the first game, 6 to 5, but lost the second, 3 to 2.

OHIO WINS BIG 10 TRACK MEET WITH 7 FIRST PLACES

Kane lengthened stride and won by three yards. Kendall and Mitchell were second and third and gave Indiana 12 points for the race.

Kane returned to the track an hour later to get his second championship as easily. He made no effort to break his own all-time record of 1:51.3 and it is unlikely he could have come close because of a slow track softened by Friday's storm. His time yesterday was 1:55.3.

Kane was sixth down the long stretch after the start. He moved into third for the last lap behind Earl Trager of Ohio State and Dave Matthews of Michigan. Matthews and Kane led in that order on the back stretch. After the final turn Kane sprinted to the front and Rehberg of Illinois passed Matthews in the last 30 yards to take second.

Beierle Wins Shot Put.

The shot put championship, as expected, was won by Bob Beierle of Wisconsin. The Badger weight man, who was unplaced last year, took the title with a put of 48 feet 7¾ inches. Bob Shaw, Ohio State's versatile sophomore who played football and basketball this year, was second with a mark of 47 feet 5 inches.

Bob Hodgell, also of Wisconsin, surprised a well matched field in the high jump. His winning height was 6 feet 4 inches. Northwestern's Don Smith, who had shared the conference title last year, failed to place and the Wildcats were saved the ignominy of scoreless Chicago by the one point Don Clawson made in the shotput.

Hammond Beats Farmer.

Lee Farmer of Iowa was the victim of Hammond's brilliance in both sprints. Farmer won the conference indoor sprint title last March. Yesterday Hammond pulled away at the 50 yard mark in the short dash and won by a stride. In the longer sprint Farmer was badly beaten and barely saved second place from Dick Kelley of Minnesota. Iowa's Henry Vollenweider, who ran a fine high hurdle race against Wright, stumbled after the last barrier in the 220 hurdles and dropped back from a certain second to fourth position.

Earl Mitchell maintained Indiana's supremacy in the two mile. He took the lead in a field of 16 at the mile and a half. While Floyd Foslien of Minnesota and Clarence Dunn of Illinois challenged thru the seventh and eighth laps, Mitchell had the stamina to pull away to a 10 yard victory. Dunn beat Foslien by two yards for second place. Summaries:

WINKLER MOTOR, CHANUTE NINES TO MEET TODAY

The Winkler Motors semipro baseball team, the former Spencer Coals, will play the Chanute Field Planesman nine from Rantoul, Ill., in a double header this afternoon in the opening games of the season in Rockola stadium, 4200 North Central avenue.

Bob Weiland, former St. Louis Cardinal left hander, now on the voluntary retired list, will pitch the first game for the Winklers. The big southpaw has seen service with four major league clubs. They include the White Sox, Red Sox, Cleveland, and the Cardinals. His best year in the big show was in 1938 when he won 16 games and lost 11 for the Cardinals.

The soldier nine will encounter with Bill Math, who last year performed for Houston in the Texas league. The Chanute club has 13 players on the squad who last year played with minor league teams. The club has scored 18 victories out of 21 games.

Riggs to Meet Greenberg in Tennis Today

Bobby Riggs will take over his new duties as master of tennis ceremonies at the Edgewater Beach hotel this afternoon.

Bobby will play in and direct the first of a series of Sunday afternoon free exhibitions which will bring the leading amateurs and professionals to Chicago.

This afternoon's inaugural sends Riggs against Seymour Greenberg and Jimmy Evert against Morrie Lewis. Despite Greenberg's unexpected loss to Cal Sawyier in the finals of the Big Ten meet yesterday at Ohio State, Chicago fans will be eager to examine Seymour's 1942 form. Ranked No. 19 nationally last year, Greenberg is expected to hurdle to a first ten position in the depleted amateur ranks.

The Evert-Lewis match will open the program at 2:15 o'clock. Evert, the third ranking junior last year, has just completed his freshman year at Notre Dame and should be in good shape after daily workouts with the undefeated Irish varsity. It will be Jimmy's first hometown appearance of the year.

Lewis, a former teammate of Don McNeill's at Kenyon college, won the Canadian singles title in 1940. Riggs will team with Lewis in a concluding doubles match against Evert and Greenberg.

St. John's M. A. Loses in Golf, Baseball, Crew

Delafield, Wis., May 16 [Special].—St. John's Military academy athletic teams were beaten in baseball, crew, and golf this afternoon. North Fond du Lac High school won the baseball game, 3 to 2, in 10 innings. Hartland High won the golf match, 10½ to 7½. Marmion Military academy's crew won by three-fourths of a length in a mile race.

YANKEES WIN 2 FROM TIGERS ON STRONG PITCHING

Bonham, Chandler Star in 6-1, 2-1 Triumphs.

Detroit, Mich., May 16 (AP).—The New York Yankees won a double-header from the Detroit Tigers, 6 to 1 and 2 to 1 today, stretching their lead in the American league to a game and a half over the Cleveland Indians, who divided two games with the Washington Senators.

Ernie Bonham, unbeaten pitching leader of the American league, turned in his fifth straight triumph with a five hit performance in the opener, altho Barney McCosky snapped the Yankee Ace's string of consecutive shutout innings at 22 when he hit a home run in the fourth inning for Detroit's only run.

Spud Chandler pitched the Yanks to victory in the second game, yielding seven safeties for his fourth triumph against one defeat. Joe DiMaggio hit his eighth home run in this contest. DiMaggio, who now has hit safely in his last five games, has batted in 27 runs in that number of contests. The Yankees made four double plays in the second game, boosting their total for the season to 37. Scores:

RED SOX, 4; BROWNS, 2.

St. Louis, Mo., May 16 (AP).—Ted Williams' homer was the decisive blow in the Boston Red Sox's 4 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns today, but Pitcher Tex Hughson held the Browns to two singles in winning his first victory of the season.

Williams' homer, his eighth this season, came in the ninth after Lou Finney had doubled and broke a 2 to 2 tie. Bobby Doerr's sixth home run started the Red Sox scoring in the fourth.

Babe Dahlgren, newly acquired from the Chicago Cubs by the Browns, went in as a pinch hitter in the ninth and made the final out with a fly to Dom DiMaggio. Score:

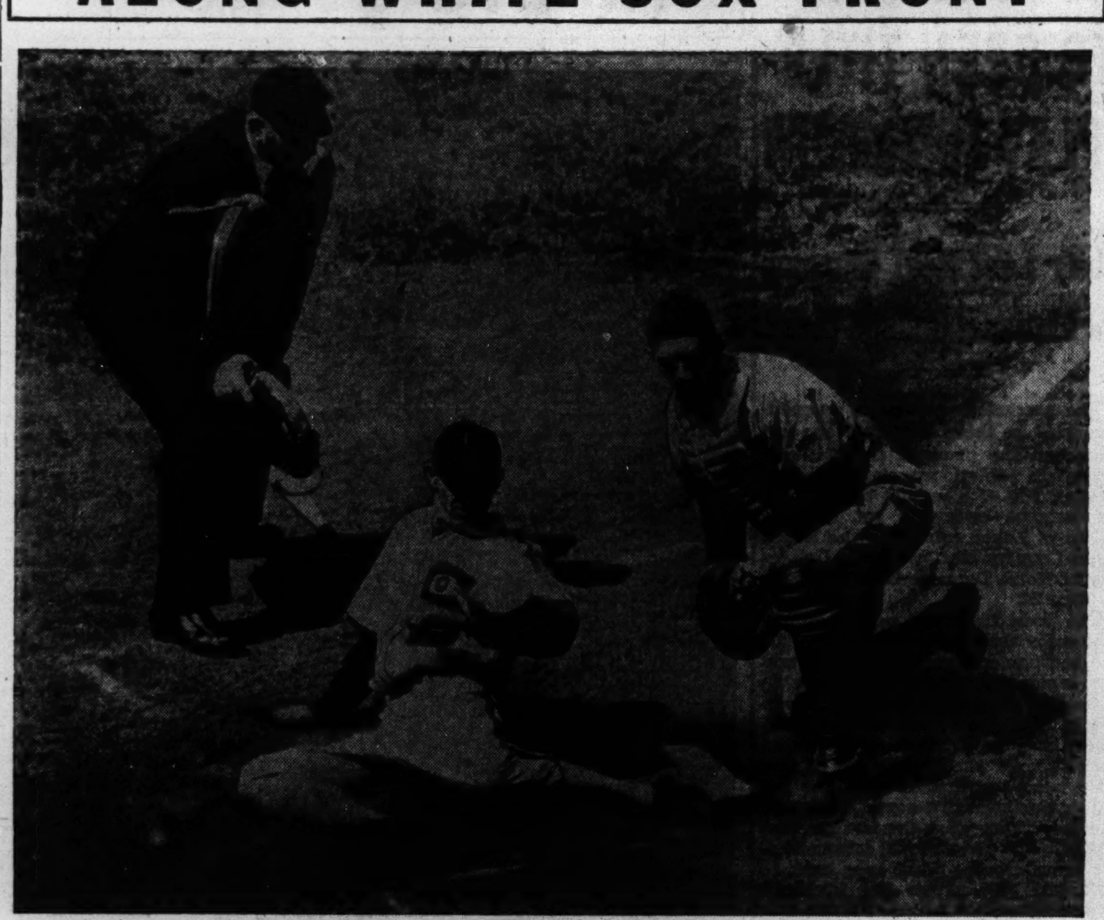
ALONG WHITE SOX FRONT



Wally Moses, who led off yesterday's game against the A's with a single, is out at the plate on Second Baseman Pete Suder's throw to Catcher Hal Wagner. Moses had taken third on Joe Kuhel's double. The umpire is Steve Basil. The Sox won, 4 to 3.

Indians Whip Senators, 5-4, Then Lose, 7-1

Cleveland, O., May 16 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians divided a double header with the Washington Senators today, taking the first game, 5 to 4, with a one run rally in the ninth inning. Sid Hudson outlasted a parade of Indian pitchers in the second game to win, 7 to 1.

Les Fleming, the tribe's first baseman, was the star of the first contest, hitting three doubles and driving in two runs. Les' third double in the final inning set the stage for the Redskin's winning tally. Scores:

CUBS TO SEND SCHMITZ, OLSEN AGAINST DODGERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 16—Confident that the Cubs can whip the league leading Brooklyn Dodgers, Manager Jimmy Wilson today nominated John Schmitz and Verne Olsen to face the Dodgers in the first two of the four game series which starts with a double header in Ebbets field tomorrow.

Wilson made his selection on the train bringing the club to New York after the final game with the Phils was called because of weather in Shibe park, Philadelphia, today.

"We haven't had a chance to see what the Dodgers look like," said Wilson.

Schmitz and Olsen Are Ready.

"I know they can hit, but we have the defense and the pitching to stop them. If we can get a few runs we'll give them plenty of trouble. Schmitz and Olsen are ready. Olsen told me his finger is okay again, even if it is a bit bent."

The two-game series with the Phils was not only profitable from a victory standpoint, but it may bring big dividends in the shape of Lou Novikoff. Before the second game with the Philadelphians Wilson called Novikoff aside and urged him to step up to the plate and STOP thinking.

Wilson Tells Lou How.

"The trouble with you," said Wilson, "is that you go to the plate and start thinking about your stride, the position of your hands, your shoulders, your feet—and then by the time the ball arrives you are tied in knots.

"What I want you to do from now on is to get up and swing—swing and keep swinging. . . . It's simple. You see the ball and you try to hit it."

Novikoff tried out the new idea in batting practice and hit three successive balls into the left field bleachers in Shibe park for what would have been home runs.

Lyons Changes Dykes' Mind; to Pitch Today

Three invalids, star performers all, and all more than eager to get to work. They're Ted Lyons, Thornton Lee, and Taft Wright.

Lyons, in fact, yesterday defied Manager James Dykes in his desire to keep him on the invalid list. Ted spent all day Thursday undergoing a rigorous physical checkup, then spent Thursday night and Friday morning in a hospital bed, and Friday afternoon in his own bed.

Ted Changes Jim's Mind.

When Manager Dykes was asked before yesterday's game to name his pitchers for today's double header with Washington, he said they would be Johnny Rigney and Orval Grove. He added that Lyons would be given four or five more days of rest. But he reckoned without Lyons.

After yesterday's game started the Sox manager sent a note to the press shelter. It said: "Lyons changed my mind. He will pitch the first game, Rigney the second."

So Lyons' invalidism will end after 10 days of anxiety and considerable suffering.

Thornton, Taft Are Rarin'.

Lee and Wright perhaps are more eager than Ted to resume work, for they have been out all season. But they have been suffering from muscular ills and simply have to wait for the healing processes to function. Both are coming along swell, however, and both are working out daily.

Buck Newsom and Steve Sundry will pitch for the Senators tomorrow. Buck scored one of the three victories the Senators turned in against the Sox in Washington. The boys didn't see Sundra when they were east.

CARDINALS BEAT BRAVES, 7-4, TO SQUARE SERIES

Mort Cooper Yields Only Four Hits.

Boston, Mass., May 16 (AP).—Wildness of three Boston Braves pitchers, who gave up 11 bases on balls, today enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to gain a 7 to 4 victory. Meanwhile, Mort Cooper was pitching airtight ball for the Cards, except in the third inning when Chet Ross' homer brought Boston three runs. The Braves found him for only four hits, three of which were made by Tommy Holmes.

Dodgers Beat Pirates, 8 to 1; 5th for Head

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 16.—The Dodgers formally unfurled their 1941 National league pennant today, then made a payment on a similar piece of bunting for unveiling a year hence. They were assisted by Frankie Frisch's Pirates, who own flag dreams received additional deflation, 8 to 1. Rookie Ed Head yielded only two hits in winning his fifth straight victory of the season.

Frisch benched his nonhitting first baseman, Elbie Fletcher, and also turned loose a left hander, Ken Heintzelman, in hopes of salvaging one decision in the three game series. The two hits off Head is sufficient proof that the Fletcher benching didn't fetch a dividend. As for the belief that the Dodgers are suckers for southpaws, Heintzelman said a hurried good-by in the fifth after surrendering six runs.

A Lucky Break for Ed.

Head was a lefty until he broke that arm several years ago. He then decided to continue in baseball simply by putting the other arm to work. Ed had 16,978 customers, and the Pirates as well, worked into a no hit fever for five and two-third innings, during which the Pirate loot was confined to two passes. But as soon as he dealt his third pass in the sixth, Johnny Barrett shattered the prospective no-hitter by doubling to score Pete Coscarart. Barrett also authored the second hit—a wasted single in the ninth.

Wilkie Doesn't Last Long.

The busy Dodger fifth opened with a pass to Pete Reiser and a single by Rizzo. Medwick's double chased both runners home and also finished Heintzelman. Camilli welcomed Aldon Wilkie, another left hander with a low line drive, but Vince DiMaggio grabbed it. Mickey Owen doubled over first base, scoring Medwick. The Pirates tried to get Owen at third on Reese's grounder to Coscarart, but missed the bus. A base filling pass to Head came next. Hank Gornicki then trotted forth and disposed of the next two batters.

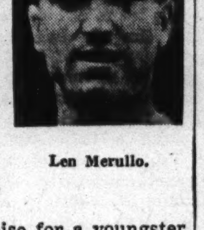
Wilson Rates Merullo Best N. L. Shortstop

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 16.—Jimmy Wilson calls Len Merullo, former Villanova college star, the best shortstop in the National league today. The manager of the Chicago Cubs went all out for the young man, who a year ago was tagged no good by the Los Angeles farm club of the Bruins, and named Len as the sparkplug of the entire outfit.



Len Merullo.

It was high praise for a youngster who four years ago was doing his best to earn a letter at Villanova.

"He is the best looking shortstop who has come into the National league since Billy Jurges made his appearance," said Wilson. "He can go to his right or left and can cover as much ground as Jurges. He has a better arm and can hit as well.

A Tagger of Base Runners.

"He is the best tagger of base runners I have ever seen; at times he almost performs miracles as he stretches in the air, pulls the ball down, and puts it on the man coming into second."

Merullo is leading the Cubs in hitting with .284. "He never hit higher than .240 in his life," said Wilson, "but I think that a change in his style has made him a good hitter. He used to swing a light bat from the end. I induced him to try a heavier bat and move his hands up four or five inches on the handle. It has worked wonders.

"This year he steps in and hits outside curve balls as well as outside fast balls to right field. When the season is over he should have an average around .270 which is more than any manager has a right to ask of as brilliant a fielder as Merullo."

Took Sturgeon's Place.

The Villanovan was not in the lineup when Chicago opened the season. Wilson played safe and started Bob Sturgeon. When Sturgeon made four hits in his first nine times at bat, it appeared as if Merullo was due for a seat on the bench or another trip to the minors. Sturgeon then hurt his leg.

"I'll never forget that night in St. Louis when Sturgeon came to me and said he did not think it was for the best interests of the club that he remain in the game," said Wilson.

"He told me that he thought Merullo should play—but he added, 'I hate to get out of there, Jimmy, because I know I will have an awful time getting back once this kid gets a chance.' And Sturgeon isn't back yet."

GRADUATION DAY TODAY FOR GOLF SCHOOL PUPILS

Tribune Free Instruction Winners to Be Named.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Today is graduation day for the 32 prize students of THE TRIBUNE's tenth annual free golf school, pioneer of all sports group teaching systems. The final exercises of this 1942 school will be held at the Diversey golf location in Lincoln park, located at Diversey boulevard and Lake Michigan. The judging by members of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, who have taught these pupils the fundamentals of the game, will begin at 2 o'clock. Each of the 32 finalists is advised to appear at the Diversey classroom 15 minutes before that hour.

Instead of using caps and gowns, these prize students will earn their diplomas with a golf club and a swing based on what they, as beginners, learned during the four regular lessons of the 1942 school.

Here Are Graduates.

The 32 graduates who will vie for prizes at Diversey this afternoon follow:

DIVERSEY—Manfred Bengtson, 5425 Roscoe street, and James O'Neill, 4020 Clarendon avenue, men; Ethel Harrington, 1419 Roscoe street, and Frances Duncan, 2507 Wellington avenue, women; Bill Rice, 530 Forest avenue, Wilmette, and Jack Davidson, 477 Deming place, boys; Ommye Rice, 530 Forest avenue, Wilmette, and Mary Donahue, 5500 Pensacola avenue, girls.

COLUMBUS—Robert Ellsworth, 2212 North Kostner avenue, and Robert Collins, 1133 South Gunderson avenue, Oak Park, men; Vera Swinfin, 442 South Lombard avenue, and Loretta Wesson, 615 North Trumbull avenue, women; Wayne Solomon, 5554 Cortland street, and Donald Stuart, 5648 West Washington boulevard, boys; Ruth Schlegel, 4575 Mulligan avenue, and Jeannie Pollak, 200 North Mason avenue, girls.

Jeanie Pollak.

Manfred Bengston.

The final class consists of eight boys, eight girls, eight men, and eight women. They were chosen the most apt swingers on their work in the four lessons of the regular series on the four park courses of the Chicago district. They were selected at the finish of Thursday night's final instruction by the Illinois PGA members who have donated their services for 10 years to this method of spreading the gospel of golf's A B Cs.

These professionals also will serve as the jury for this afternoon's final at Diversey. They will judge the finalists in the four divisions in the following order: Boys, girls, men, and women. The pupil in each division adjudged to have made the most progress during the regular four lessons of the school will receive a golf bag and a complete set of clubs. The other 28 finalists will be awarded a golf merchandise certificate which can be exchanged for shoes, rain jackets, and other sports equipment.

Pros Who Did Work.

Alex Cunningham, North Shore; Bill Gordon, Tam o' Shanter; Jerry Glynn, Knollwood; Matt Matteson, Ridge; Tom Walsh, Westgate; Harry Kinnell, Edgewood Valley; Dick Dickerson, Mill Road Farm; Bob Ledger, Deerpath; Maurie White and John Harley, both of La Grange; Jack White, Green Diamond Driving Range; John Bird, Bob Shires, and Frank Lovrine, all of South Shore; Willis Foland, North Shore; Walter Keller, Keller's Fairways; Jock Anderson, Techny Fields; Johnny Revolta, Evanston; Charley Penna, Medinah; Pete Thomas, Park Ridge; Chuck Blasgen, Great Lakes Naval Training station; Bill Cunningham and John Chovanec, both of Tam o' Shanter; Packey Walsh, Marquette; Lew Waldron, unattached, and Hank Foley, Columbus park.

Eleanor Dudley, national intercollegiate women's champion and former Illinois state and western junior title holder, contributed a ball-hitting demonstration during the lessons at Jackson park.

1,500 TO ATTEND CYO DINNER ON TUESDAY EVENING

Fifteen hundred leaders in the civic, business, professional, and sports world will attend the 11th annual corned beef and cabbage sportsman's dinner sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization Tuesday evening at 6:30 in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House.

Among the sports writers and columnists who will be at the speakers' table will be Arch Ward, Warren Brown, Ed Cochrane, Lloyd Lewis, Herb Graffis, and Gene Kessler. The only formal address of the evening is to be given by Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, director general of the CYO.

Among the entertainers will be Eddy Duchin, Vince Gottschalk, and others. Reservations are being received at the CYO center, 31 East Congress street, Wabash 1114.

THEY'LL GRADUATE TODAY

Catherine Seay. Eleanor Zinder. Jack Klusendorf. Mrs. Leslie Devore. Joseph Zilincar. Charles Kletcke.

James O'Neill. Dorothy Klould. Esther Martin. Donald Mulhall. Mrs. Thomas Preston. Julius Thomas.

Wayne Solomon. Robert Ellsworth. Robert Collins. Donald Stuart. Ruth Schlegel. Loretta Wesson.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

The above novice golfers are among the 32 finalists who will compete in the graduating exercises of the 19th annual free Tribune golf school this afternoon at the Diversey location, Diversey boulevard and Lake Michigan. The best swingers in each of four classes—men's, women's, boys' and girls'—will be awarded a golf bag and a set of clubs. The 28 runners-up will receive a golf merchandise certificate.

Slovak Star Acclaimed by Soccer Fans

No young player ever to come to the United States from abroad has aroused interest of soccer fans as has Pete Matevich, inside left with the Slovaks. Matevich gets another opportunity to sustain his quickly won reputation when the Slovaks meet Sparta a week from today in the final for the State Peel cup in Sparta stadium. It will be no easy test for the 22 year old amateur, for Sparta possesses an outstanding defense in Joe Silovsky, goalkeeper, and Tom Scott and Laddie Mrnka, full backs.

Pete Matevich.

What has aroused fans' admiration of Matevich? The experts will tell you that Pete has everything needed to make a soccer star—speed, ball control, and the ability to make a terrific shot with either foot from any angle.

Has Many Offers.

So brilliantly has Matevich been playing that several offers have been made him by professional clubs. Among them have been the Prague club of New York, the Magyars of Los Angeles, the Chryslers of Detroit, and Sparta, the team he is out to beat next Sunday. To all of these offers Matevich has returned a quiet "No." He prefers to remain with the amateur team which he believes gave him his break in the United States.

Matevich arrived in Chicago from Jugo-Slavia in 1938 after having helped win the European junior soccer championship for Belgrade. In Chicago he soon found his way into the Slovaks' ranks, and began setting a record for American amateurs to shoot at. In three years with the team he has averaged two goals per contest, including league and cup matches, a record no other amateur in this country has approached.

Best in Nation.

Experts who have watched him play are unanimous that he is without equal in this country at inside left. Veterans affirm that Matevich easily could take his place on any of the leading British teams. These veterans, some from the British Isles, have watched such squads as the Celtics and Glasgow Rangers on tour in recent years in this country.

The soccer season now is nearing its close, and Matevich will finish with the only team for which he has played in the United States—the Slovaks. If called to the nation's service he will be greatly missed by a host of friends attracted to him by his unassuming disposition, and his brilliance as a soccer player.

RADIO RIGHTS TO ARMY-NAVY GAME SOLD TO SPONSOR

Anapolis, Md., May 16 (AP).—Radio broadcast rights for the army-navy football game have been sold for the first time, Commander L. S. Perry, navy's graduate manager of athletics, announced today.

Perry said the broadcast of the 1942 contest in Philadelphia Nov. 28 would be sponsored by an oil company and that the navy relief society and the army emergency relief fund each would receive $50,000 from the company.

NEWS FROM ARMY AND NAVY POSTS

BY JOSEPH MORANG.

Camp Grant.

THE camp's varsity baseball team added two more victories to its record last week, whipping the University of Chicago and then adding the Janesville Cubs of the Wisconsin State league in the Warriors' first start against a professional club. . . . Eddie Zydowski, Joe Skurski, and Bruno Zelasko continued their almost incredible pace at bat. . . . Each is hitting in excess of .500. . . . The work of Joe Rogalski in hurling against Janesville was gratifying to Grant fans, for Joe will be assigned the mound chores when Grant faces Great Lakes in Wrigley field a week from Wednesday. . . . Camp Grant entered only five men in the Viking relays at Rock Island last week, but took fifth place in the team standings thru the efforts of William [Mickey] Anderson and Jim Orwig. . . . Anderson won the 100 yard dash and placed second in the 220, while Orwig was second in the pole vault and high jump.

Fort Sheridan.

A SCHEDULE of 25 games has been drawn up for the newly formed Sheridan varsity baseball team. . . . Most of last season's veterans have been transferred, but some promising newcomers indicate that the fort, tho small compared to some other army posts, will gain its share of victories. . . . The post softball team, which won 14 and lost 11 in 1941, has again entered the North Shore league. . . . Things are picking up in the intramural line, too. . . . Soldiers have been provided with facilities for badminton, tennis, archery, and swimming, as well as the more popular summer sports. . . . Children of North school in Glencoe last week donated athletic equipment to the Finance and Casual detachments, bought thru collection and sale of papers, coat hangers, magazines, and tinfoil. . . . A presentation program was held at the fort, with the school children honored guests of the affair. . . . Raymond Van Benthuyson of the MP detachment has issued a call for candidates for a post wrestling team. . . . Two battalion softball leagues began play last week. . . . A pair of Fort Sheridan boxers invaded Hammond, Ind., last Monday and returned to the fort with a .500 average. . . . Harold Dockum scored a three round victory over Wild Bill Baker in a heavyweight match, and Bob Carr lost a three round decision to Howard Edwards in a welterweight bout. . . . Monty Rudolph, civilian athletic director, is making plans for an all-soldier boxing show in the post gym in a week or 10 days. . . . Johnny Williams, 1933 novice division Golden Gloves welterweight champion, is coaching the fighters, who include Dockum and Carr; Ozzie Remer, middleweight; Al Richardson, featherweight, and Irving Sadernsky, welterweight.

Great Lakes.

FIVE station swimming instructors were transferred last week to the naval armory at the foot of Randolph street to take special training before joining the fleet. . . . They included Charles Tibbitts, Al Rust, John Elam, Gordon Cornelius, and W. R. [Dick] Smithers. . . . All expect to be with combat units by early summer. . . . American sailors will hoist the Japs on their own petard—jujitsu—if Coxswain Rupert Hawkinson has his way. . . . Hawkinson, who conducted a jujitsu school in Milwaukee as a civilian, has been offering instruction in the Camp Bronson recreation building, and insists the Jap wrestling art is overrated and not to be compared with the American variety, adding that an American with even a slight knowledge of jujitsu could flatten a Jap in a jiff. . . . Harry Stephens, 1941 captain of the CYO boxing team, and Bob Burns, 1942 Intercity Golden Gloves welterweight champion, will headline the next Happy Hour fight program. . . . Both are in "boot camp" at present. . . . Ten softball games make up the intramural league program this week, five of the games being scheduled for Tuesday and the other five on Thursday. . . . When De Kalb Teachers met the Great Lakes nine last week on the station it brought back some happy memories to Coxswain John Saxer, who sat in the grandstand. . . . Saxer, a pitcher for the University of Wisconsin last season, hurled a no hit game against De Kalb as the highlight event of his collegiate career. . . . Athletic Director Paul Mattei, Basketball Coach Ray Meyer, and Arthur Morse, graduate manager of athletics of De Paul university, last week paid a visit to Lieut. Paul D. [Tony] Hinkle, former athletic director at Butler university. . . . Another visitor was Ralph [Toddy] Giannini, once of Santa Clara, who bade good-by to two close friends, Bob Calihan and Forrest Anderson. . . . Giannini goes into the army at San Francisco next week. . . . Pete Newell, once of Loyola [Los Angeles], recently completed "boot" training. . . . Carl Meyer, who pitched last year in the Evangeline league, is yeoman for Lieut. Mickey Cochrane. . . . Gone are the luxuriant curls of Chester Hajduk, formerly of the White Sox, whose hirsute glory was sacrificed on the altar of smart naval appearance. . . . Umpires in the intramural softball league get a scorching, but most of them are built for it. . . . Charley Carey and Wes Bruckner played football at Michigan State, Chief Carl Sorenson of Syracuse was runner-up in the NCAA boxing finals, and Roger Larson directed a swimming pool in Wausau, Wis., where WOMEN ONLY were admitted. . . . And 25 years ago this week: Ritchie Mitchell, lightweight contender, enlisted as a chief quartermaster.

Navy Pier.

THE pier's softball season is in its third week. . . . Three teams on the south pier, Companies M, 13, and 5, have won three games and are tied for the lead. . . . On the north pier, Company 16, with two victories, and Companies 4, 6, and 8, with one each, share the lead. . . . Ray Frankowski, former Washington football star, is an apprentice seaman in Company 12. . . . Companies 3, 12, 16, and 23 tied for the pier bowling championship and engaged in a roll-off on Friday night. . . . F. E. Newby holds the high series mark with an aggregate of 572; Company 12's 927 is high team single, Company 16's 2,493 is high team series, and R. C. Hoy's 221 still stands as the high single. . . . A summer bowling league will be held on the Chicago Arena's eight alleys. . . . The marine baseball team whipped the Ald. Rowan Tops, 4 to 2, in its opener last week, but lost its second game, 13 to 6, to the Sen. Connors. . . . J. A. Peebles is organizing a pier soccer team, and among those who hope to be on the team is Pete Matevich, inside left of the Chicago Slovaks, who soccer experts claim is the finest player in the United States. . . . Pete is seeking to get into the navy.

Chanute Field.

WITH a record of six victories and four defeats, Chanute's baseball team faces another tough week of play. . . . The Planesmen open today against the Spencer Coals in a double header in the Coals' park, entertain Illinois Wesleyan tomorrow, and De Kalb Wednesday, and invade Bloomington for another game with Wesleyan Friday. . . . Dave Hammes, new hurling sensation at the field, yielded one run in 14 innings against De Kalb and the Benda Coals last week. . . . Hammes was with Oklahoma City of the Texas league before joining the army.

BIG 10 GOLFERS TO OPEN TITLE PLAY TOMORROW

Their Last Real Warmup for National College Meet.

The precarious nature of competitive golf in these wartimes has not disturbed the plans of the National Collegiate Athletic association in conducting the 45th annual tournament for campus swingers, set for the Chain o' Lakes course of the South Bend Country club, with the University of Notre Dame as host, the week of June 22.

The kids from the central states will enjoy their last real warmup for the tournament tomorrow and Tuesday, when the Big Ten championship is decided over the handsome University of Michigan course in Ann Arbor. There may be a hunch contained in that site, for the Wolverines of this year were the first to stop the talented Northwestern squad, and, furthermore, they were the last Big Ten outfit to win the national intercollegiate team crown. That goes back to 1934 and 1935, when the Michigan two-man team of Johnny Fischer and Chuck Kocsis ran off with just about all there was to be had. Incidentally, both John and Chuck won the individual college title as undergraduates, Fischer in 1932 and Kocsis in 1936.

Holmstrom Leads Illinois.

Northwestern and Illinois also must be reckoned with in the party at Ann Arbor tomorrow and Tuesday. The Illini made a runaway out of the 1941 race at the Mill Road farm course, but their individual champion, Alex Welsh of Rockford, has been graduated and is now in the navy. Johnny Holmstrom, former state and western junior champion, will lead the Illinois defense.

Thus far, all of the schools who have been contenders for the national individual and team championships of recent years have indicated they will send full delegations to the event whic hnow stands as the one established simon pure golf show of the year. In addition, a number of schools who did not qualify for the tourney because they did not carry NCAA memberships have since joined and are now eligible.

Stanford Wins Title in 1941.

To date, no official word has emanated from Dr. Eddie Twiggs, the dapper little gent whose Stanford boys last year ran off with the team championship for the third time in four years, and in the doing, shot a foursome aggregate of 580 strokes which should be difficult to touch for some years. Certainly, it is doubtful if the Chain o' Lakes course will tolerate such scoring freedom as the wide open leas of the Ohio State course, scene of the 1941 meet. Chain o' Lakes, already the scene of a Western Amateur and Western Open, will penalize the lashing undergraduates whose youthful aim usually is directed at yardage rather than control. [Note to the whole field—look out for the 16th, lads!]

Entries for the national intercollegiate must be filed with Ted Payseur, Northwertern coach and secretary-treasurer of the NCAA golf committee, by 5 p. m., Wednesday, June 10, at 1525 Central street, Evanston, Ill. The entrance fee for the team competition covering from four to six players, is $20, and for individuals not members of teams, $5.

Two 18 Hole Rounds.

The team championship will be decided within the qualifying round for the individual match play brackets. This will consist of 18 holes on June 22 and another 18 on June 23. The school with the lowest foursome aggregate for the 36 holes of medal play will be awarded the team trophy. Double match rounds of 18 holes each will be played on the 24th and 25th, with the semi-finals on the 26th and the championship match on the 27th all set for 36 holes.

Bespectacled Earl Stewart, who won the individual championship, the qualifying medal, and the driving contest in the 1941 meet, will lead the Louisiana State squad to South Bend.

METROPOLITAN BASEBALL PLAY TO OPEN TODAY

The Metropolitan Amateur Baseball league will open its 1942 season today with 18 games. Defending champion Clarion A. C. will face Assumption in Paul Revere park as part of a three game schedule in the Lincoln-Revere bracket. Other games in this bracket pit Wilson Sports against the Orioles and Indians against the Norwood Clippers. The schedule:

LINCOLN-REVERE BRACKET.
Wilson Sports vs. Orioles.

Manuel De La Torre of Northwestern will be making his first appearance in Big Ten golf when he tees off in the conference tournament at Ann Arbor Tomorrow. He is a Northwestern sophomore and is the son of Angel De La Torre, one if the pros at Lake Shore Country club.

Winning with Wood

Masters' and Open Golf Champion Recalls His Start in Game

[This is the first of a series of articles on golf by Craig Wood of the Winged Foot club of Mamaroneck, N. Y., who last year, at the age of 40, won the Masters' and National Open championships.]

BY CRAIG WOOD.

Maybe there's been a little too much made of my winning the Masters' and Open golf titles in my 40th year. The thing that's never been brought out is the fact that I never played any competitive golf between the ages of 13 and 20. Sure, I did swing clubs in that stretch of time, but that was largely back lot practice, and mostly for exercise. Or was it exercise? I can't remember when I didn't want to hit a golf ball, from the time I first caddied until I holed that 3 on the last hole of the Open tournament in Fort Worth last June.

It's going back a bit to trace my beginnings in golf. First of all, I got a wire at Fort Worth last June from a man who discouraged me when I announced that I wanted to devote my life to the game. He congratulated me on winning the Open, yet he was the same who first insisted that I swing an ax at trees in a lumber camp rather than spend my summers lugging golf clubs.

Thanks again, dad. Yes, that man was my father, whose sound advice led indirectly to the three-quarters swing that I still retain. Just try and take a full windup with a hefty ax at a balsam tree, and you'll undertsand.

Spent Early Days Swinging Axes, Not Golf Clubs.

I was born in Lake Placid, N. Y., on Nov. 18, 1901, the son of parents of English descent. My father was superintendent of all the outlying properties of J. & J. Rogers Paper company, with headquarters in Ausable Forks, N. Y. One of his chief duties was the supervision of the cutting of all pulpwood used. My father felt that working summers in the company's camps would be more beneficial to my two brothers, Ray and Scott, and myself, than continuing to caddy. That spell with axes and cross cut saws accounts for the fact that I played no competitive golf between 13 and 20.

I attended grammar and high school in Lake Placid, and from the time I was 7 until I was 13, caddied like most of the other kids in town. I did most of my bag toting at the Russamount club, where I first came into contact with Scott North, who was the professional there and who did more than any other man I know to give me a good foundation in this game.

Didn't Make Baseball Team Despite Prep Reputation.

I entered Dean academy in Wayland, Mass., and failed to make the baseball team there in spite of my prep reputation as a good hitter. My golfing activity was confined to batting a ball around for fun, my competitive career having been interrupted by my dad after I had won the Russamount caddy title when I was 12 years old. At that time, I could score in the low 80s, and had a short swing. It was Scott North later who realized that my lumbering activity had given me a build which was adapted to a three-quarters swing.

Next, I matriculated at Clarkson Tech, located in Potsdam, N. Y., with an engineering career in mind. I played defense on the hockey team, but wasn't there a year before I got back into golf with the result that I found myself in it for good. I began to play seriously again at the Potsdam Country club, where I came into contact with Mr. Dwight Pendleton. I played with him frequently, and he eventually offered me a job at the Winchester, Ky., Country club, of which he was president. I was to work in a tobacco warehouse in the winter and to serve as golf pro at the club during the summers.

TEE TIPS.

Craig Wood, National Open golf champion, recommends the overlapping grip. He points out that the left hand is not very far over in the case of such long hitters as Jimmy Thomson, Sam Snead, and Lawson Little, and that the right hand is considerably under, with three knuckles of the left being plainly visible. In the grips of a majority of other players, the V formed by the left hand points to the right eye, and the V on the right hand is directed to the left eye.

He Made Up for Time Lost by Playing 72 Holes a Day.

That was in the fall of 1922, and I can tell you now that Craig Ralph Wood more than made up for all the golf he had missed in his teens. Mr. Pendleton and I frequently played as many as 72 holes a day, arising at dawn to go out on the tee. After playing 36 holes, he would return to work while I mowed fairways and greens of this nine hole course, Then he'd come back and we'd go out on another 36 holes.

In June of 1923, Mr. Pendleton took me down to the Kentucky Open tournament at the Louisville Country club. It was a 36 hole event, and I was mighty happy when I finished with a 145 that looked good enough to win. But that string of second places that was to pursue me for years took out after me right there in my first tournament appearance as a pro. Bob Peebles took only 12 putts on his last nine holes, and beat me out by a shot.

SOCCER LEADERS MEET TODAY IN SPARTA STADIUM

Vikings Battle Spartas for First Place.

BY OFFSIDE.

The Vikings, last year's Major league soccer champions, will meet the Sparta Ogden Dairy in the Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, in one of the feature games of today's soccer schedule which is confined to league matches. The Vikings, in second place in the point standings by winning today's game can delay the issue of settling this year's championship.

The Spartas, who have a lead of four points, by winning can rest on their laurels. The Spartas, after their easy victory last week over the Chicago Sport club in the state cup semifinals, 5 to 1, will field their strongest lineup as next week they face the Slovaks in the State Peel cup finals. The Vikings, who have been without their star full back, Weck Henny, most of the season will depend on the same team that carried them to victory over the strong Nickeloid's last Sunday. Fred Granquist, who was switched to take Henney's place, has proved a real star. The game starts at 2:30 with the reserves of both teams playing a curtain raiser. Lineups:

SPARTA OGDEN DAIRY.		VIKINGS.
Silovsky	G. K.	R. Camplin
Scott	R. B.	Granquist
Mrnka	L. B.	Kuhl
Hamous	R. H.	Sebbi

Vlcek	I. L.	Dalquist
Wolf	O. L.	Brsotrom

Another game in the Major division that will attract a large crowd to the north side is the meeting of the Schwabens and Slovaks at California avenue and Roscoe streets. Their last game ended in a riot, with 18 minutes left to play and the Slovaks leading. Today, after playing the unfinished 18 minutes, they will meet in their second and final league game with double points going to the winner of both matches.

The First division, with the Linneas and South Side Swedes fighting for first place, has close encounters today. The Linneas meet the Center Sport club in Washington park, and the South Side Swedes oppose the Hakoahs in Jackson park. The Sam Reda's, playing on their home grounds, hope to emerge with their first league victory when they play the American Eagles. The schedule:

International League, Major Division.

Sparta Ogden Dairy vs. Vikings in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, 2:30. Referee—Fred Linstow.

Chicago Sport club vs. Swedish Americans at Kedzie avenue and Roscoe street, 2:30. Referee—Leroy Appelhans.

NEW MICHIGAN ATHLETIC PLAN GETS APPROVAL

Ann Arbor, Mich, May 16 [Special]. Michigan's board of regents gave the go ahead signal today to the University of Michigan war board's new compulsory physical "hardening" program.

The plan will virtually send every Michigan student thru an intensive four and a half hour a week conditioning process, beginning June 15.

Affected will be all students registered under the selective service act or enrolled in special enlistment programs, and will include a mass participation program similar to that suggested by the army and navy. Provision will be made for calisthenics and rough and tumble drills in addition to a competitive program of boxing, wrestling, track and swimming.

WISCONSIN FIRM BETTERS NAVY'S SUB SCHEDULES

Building Speeded by Assembly Line.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Adm. Van Keuren.

Manitowoc, Wis., May 16.—The navy's gamble—the word is that of Rear Adm. A. H. Van Keuren—that "cheesemakers" and "cherrypickers" from Wisconsin's hinterlands could build submarines, one of the most delicate and technically precise weapons, has paid off beyond the fondest expectations. This report was given here today as the admiral indicated that the Peto—first navy submarine ever launched in fresh water—would be in action against axis powers by autumn.

There is a new sub on the ways of the Manitowoc Shipbuilding company, where the Peto was launched April 30, and eight sister ships—long range fleet submarines of a tonnage and type that the navy has adopted as more or less standard—are being constructed.

Assembly Line Method.

Success of the Manitowoc company is the result of its adoption of radically new construction methods. Subs are turned out in sections in the shops, lifted by giant cranes to the yard's ways, and there welded together.

The method is another application of that universal American principle: "Make 'em in parts and put the parts together on an assembly line."

How well this has worked out is best told by A. L. Pitz, vice president in charge of operations, who said: "We were granted 35 months to complete the first sub. The contract was signed in September, 1940, and by fall she will be commissioned."

Pitz attributed the plant's speed to the fact the shops are tooled to make similar parts, plates, and sections and to the increasing skill of the teams of men who fill the round, slender hulls with the motors, plumbing, tanks, torpedo tubes, and all the multiple electrical apparatus required on a fighting submarine.

Milking First, Then to Jobs.

The navy's local construction chiefs, Lieutenant Commanders G. C. Weaver and W. R. Ignatius, said the terms "cheesemakers" and "cherrypickers" were expressions of affection for the workmen who are doing the job. They said many of the workmen still milk the cows before coming to work.

A recapitulation of the navy's submarine program reveals that when Pearl Harbor was attacked on Dec. 7 there were 111 subs operating with the fleet and 73 on order—including the Manitowoc company's 10. Since then 23 more have been authorized in one act, according to congressional hearings, and Rep. Carl Vinson [D., Ga.], chairman of the house naval affairs committee, disclosed that 200,000 more tons of shipping just authorized has been wholly allocated to submarines. It is estimated that the 200,000 tons will provide more than 100 subs.

Totol: 200 New Boats.

Thus including those authorized before Dec. 7, the navy is to get about 200 more submarines.

A huge "Uncle Wants His Ships" sign decorates a shop wall. Within the building 15 different sections comprising one sub hull are cut, fitted, welded, and internally braced. These sections weigh 37 to 68 tons each and vary in length from 15 to 58 feet.

The Peto was and all its sisters all will be launched sideways, and put thru certain cruising tests and perhaps diving tests before their delivery cruises begin. Delivery is to be made at the tide water and the problem of getting them there is one that for months had the navy and the Manitowoc company worried. The decision now is to send the boats down the Illinois waterway and the Mississippi river to salt water at New Orleans.

Problems of Delivery.

Delivery eastward was blocked by the St. Lawrence river locks which are 265 feet long, less than the length of these subs. Their draft is too deep for the Mississippi and for parts of the Illinois waterway so that it will be necessary to float them on a pontoon or low floating drydock.

Lieut Comm. W. R. Ignatius pointed out to the survey party the Peto, tied up at a yard dock with a score of specialists working aboard. She is one of the finest craft of her type in the world and a fitting successor to submarines built on the Great Lakes since 1845. The first of these was "invented" by Loedner Phillips of Michigan City, Ind., an erratic genius of his day.

Loedner built four in all, none for the navy. While able to dive they were never practical vessels. Other lake submarines were built at Oshkosh, Wis., in 1897, and a one man submarine successfully crossed Lake Michigan a few years ago.

Industry Increases War Output and Tightens Curbs on Civilians

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Industry increased the production of war supplies and further curtailed civilian goods output last week while the public was giving attention to preparations for retail price control and proposals in congress for heavier taxes.

Here is the way the Associated Press weekly index gauged the trend in industrial activity [1929-'30 equals 100]:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Steel mill activity...	*144.0	142.5	136.7
Elec Power Prod....	158.8	157.6	143.2
Total car loadings..	89.4	91.0	89.1
Composite index.....	147.8	147.6	128.0

*New 1942 high.

Trend of Industry

As more and more factories completed their conversion to war work, the supply of steel from which they are fabricating weapons was increased. Steel mills raised the national average ingot production rate to 99.6 per cent of rated capacity, making 1,691,800 tons of the metal. In the preceding week operations were at 98.6 per cent.

Freight Volume Falls.

The curtailment of consumer goods manufacture cut the railroads' freight volume, but the movement of ore showed another steep upturn.

Electric power flowed into machinery in increasing volume to speed America's military preparations. A 1.4 per cent expansion in power output was more than seasonal. The electric utility industry disclosed it plans to spend $1,069,309,387 this year on construction, 23 per cent more than in 1941.

In retail trade there was a spottiness that reflected hesitancy resulting from the approach of the retail price freezing date tomorrow. Dun & Bradstreet said the freezing program "somewhat dulled appetites for stocking ahead." Merchants sold less goods than a year ago, but higher prices made the dollar volume about the same as in the 1941 week.

Thirty washer and ironer factories in the east and midwest halted peacetime production and were in various stages of conversion to war tasks.

Centers in Little Plants.

The War Production board, trying a new approach based on a British practice, picked the stove industry for the experiment of concentrating civilian production in little plants, ordering the big factories to halt civilian output by July 31.

Indications that Washington authorities are leaning toward some kind of aid to businesses caught in the squeeze between frozen prices and rising costs were seen in the senate banking committee's proposal to empower the Reconstruction Finance corporation to subsidize firms suffering from inequities in the price controls. Wholesalers and manufacturers' prices were limited to March peaks last Monday, a week earlier than the date set for retailers.

Martin Warns Against Killing Little Business

Concord, N. H., May 16 (AP).—Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. [R., Mass.] declared today that small business enterprise has been "the glory of America" and said it must be utilized to the greatest possible extent both in the war effort and in necessary civilian production.

Rep. Martin, who is chairman of the Republican national committee, told the Women's Republican club of New Hampshire that "the structure of small business must be intact after the war ends, for it is the basic foundation of our entire free enterprise economy."

Industrial Result Told.

"If it is destroyed," Martin continued, "there would have to be a complete readjustment of our economy, individual and national, private and governmental, along lines of governmentally controled and perhaps operated corporations, a few of them—perhaps 50 or 75—handling all the production of the nation."

He said such a happening would mean the end of community industries, locally operated, and would sound the death knell for many prosperous American communities.

"The American people are ready to make any sacrifice, to pay any price, to perform any labor actually necessary to win the war," he said. "The all-consuming issue is the necessity to produce and deliver to our armed forces, and those of our allies, in time, and in sufficient quantities, machines and munitions of war by which they can win a conclusive, absolute victory in the shortest possible time with a minimum of people killed or injured and money expended.

Warns Against Inefficiency.

"No carelessness or deficient sense of responsibility on the part of any officials in the multifarious departments, boards, commissioners, and bureaus should be allowed to bring upon the people any unnecessary hardships.

"We must not only carry on a successful war effort, but we must also be considering as carefully and appraising as accurately as we can problems which will confront us when we have won the victory and have to readjust the nation to a peacetime basis and activity."

40 Chicago Area Firms Get Arms Orders in Week

Armament contracts were awarded last week to 40 Chicago area companies, including 7 which had not received them previously, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. Since the beginning of the defense program, the association said, 1,483 Chicago area companies have received $1,618,439,000 in federal contracts and an estimated 2 billion dollars in subcontracts and other undisclosed war orders.

Cost of Living in Big Cities Rises .7 Per Cent in Month

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—The cost of living increased 0.7 per cent between mid-March and mid-April in large cities, the labor department reported tonight. The rise brought the index to 115.1 per cent of the average 1935-'39 level. By mid-April, the department said, families of wage earners and lower salaried workers had to spend $1.17 to buy the same things for which they spent $1 before the outbreak of the war in 1939.

Exchange Will Start New Delivery Plan Tomorrow

The new central delivery plan of the Chicago Stock Clearing corporation, subsidiary of the Chicago Stock exchange, will begin operating tomorrow, C. Russell Bergherm, vice president, announced yesterday. The member will deliver securities for other members to the central delivery department by 12:30 p. m., pick up securities left for him at that time, and then call back at 1:30 to pay or collect the net difference between his deliveries and receipts.

SENATE BLOC FAILS TO AGREE ON GRAIN PRICES

Expect Floor Fight on Selling Plan.

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—A two hour conference of the senate farm bloc failed today to produce an agreement on price levels at which the government should sell its surplus wheat, corn, and other grains for live stock feed.

As a result, most senators believed the entire controversy was headed for a floor fight in the senate chamber, starting Monday, with possible injury to the usual solid front presented by the farm bloc on legislative issues.

Senators Predict Course.

Each of the 26 senators who sat in the parley had a slightly different version of what transpired, but Senators Richard B. Russell [D., Ga.], John H. Bankhead [D., Ala.], and Charles McNary [R., Ore.], who talked over the dispute with President Roosevelt late yesterday at the White House, predicted this course:

First, the senate appropriations committee would propose that 83 cents a bishel be the lowest permissible price for sale of 125 million bushels of government wheat for feeding purposes. If this failed to meet senate approval a motion would be made to strike from the farm appropriation bill all proposals for restricting government sales of wheat, corn, or other live stock feeds.

It was believed the figure of 83 cents a bushel would be agreeable to the administration. This is about 85 per cent of parity. [Parity is a price which gives a farm commodity the same purchasing power it had in some base period, usually 1909-'14.]

Dispute Is Explained.

The dispute is this: Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard contends government owned grains should be sold at about 85 per cent of parity to encourage farmers to increase production of meat and dairy products. Some farm-minded members of congress, objecting that this policy holds down market prices for wheat and corn, have proposed to forbid sale of the government stocks at prices below parity.

The agriculture department announced today it had taken title to about 197 million bushels of 1941 wheat stored in commercial warehouses by farmers under the government's price supporting loan program. The loans expired on April 30 and farmers failed to redeem the grain. The department now holds about 320 million bushels of wheat, including 109 million bushels from the 1939 and 1940 crops.

DEMAND BROAD CEILING

Ceilings on wages, farm prices, and profits were recommended yesterday by midwestern state officials attending a regional conference on emergency fiscal problems conducted by the Council of State Governments in the Stevens hotel.

The policy was adopted in the form of an amendment to a report developed in the two day conference. After warm debate on the wording of the recommendation, the amendment was adopted overwhelmingly by a voice vote.

The conference's fical program will be presented by Leon J. Nowicki, Michigan state budget director, State Senator Rolla W. Coleman of Kansas, and Simeon E. Leland, chairman and University of Chicago economist, to a committee of the federal treasury.

Recommendations to States.

The conference recommended to state governments that they pay off their debts, reduce spending, build up cash reserves and sterilize them for postwar needs, maintain tax rates, develop public works programs for postwar development, conserve manpower and materials, participate in national efforts to control living costs, study the educational system with special consideration to vocational training and rehabilitation, and reconsider existing health and welfare services.

John K. Langum, manager of the research and statistics department of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, cautioned the conference that the nation faces "lots of trouble" unless ceilings are clamped on wages and farm prices. He urged adoption of a "hard boiled fiscal policy."

2 Point Decline Scheduled in Chicago Area Steel Rate

The Chicago district's ingot steel production will start tomorrow at 103.5 per cent of theoretical capacity, a decline of nearly 2 points from the 105.3 per cent last Monday.

Rail Embargo Brings Sharp Drop in Grains

Grain prices declined sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, wheat breaking about 2 cents at one time to the lowest price in two weeks on the announcement that railroads would embargo shipments of grain to terminal markets effective Wednesday because of a shortage of elevator storage space.

New complications in the already strained transportation situation have developed as the result of the diversion of a large number of lake steamers from the grain to the ore trade, elevator men reported. Effective yesterday grain can be shipped via lake only on special permit.

Fear Loss to Chicago.

Altho a number of steamers which cannot be adapted to the movement of ore have been allocated for the shipment of grain, Chicago handlers say that the boats are engaged in the package trade to a large extent and that few if any of them come to Chicago.

This, they say, threatens not only to destroy this port as a large scale shipper of grain by lake, but may result in lower prices to farmers.

Several million bushels of cash grain held in Chicago elevators have been sold for shipment via lake to the east, and efforts to contract for boats have been unsuccessful, it was said. Elevator interests say that they would take a heavy loss if forced to ship the grain entirely by rail.

Freight Rates Advanced.

Unsuccessful efforts were made to permit Canadian steamers to haul grain from Chicago to Georgian Bay and other eastern points.

Rates on cash wheat from Fort William to Buffalo are reported to have been advanced 1 cent a bushel. Under existing regulations, Canadian steamers are permitted to transport grain from the dominion to an American port, but the same boats cannot haul grain from one American port to anotehr.

Grain markets showed little disposition to rally and closing trades were near the lows. Wheat lost 1 to 1⅝ cents, corn ⅜ to ½ cent, oats ⅞ to 1⅛ cents, rye ½ to ⅝ cent, and soy beans ⅜ to ⅞ cent.

88 ROADS' APRIL REVENUES TOP '41 BY 48 PER CENT

April operating revenues of 88 class 1 railroads totaled $458,632,579, an increase of 48.9 per cent over last year, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday. Their freight revenues were $375,345,307, against $250,519,676 a year ago. Passenger revenues totaled $52,899,655, compared with $31,418,233.

The Santa Fe railway reported net income of $8,764,873 for the quarter ended March 31, against $2,309,448 a year ago. March net income was $3,643,665, compared with $519,142.

BUTTER FUTURES DECLINE UNDER LARGER RECEIPTS

Record receipts for the season depressed butter futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, the November contract slipping 0.15 cent a pound to the three-week low established Thursday. Receipts were 1,467,638 pounds.

Eggs were steady, the October contract gaining 0.10 cent a dozen. The Agricultural Marketing administration announced that, as of May 1, it had outstanding orders for 76,700,430 pounds of dried eggs, 1,442,613 pounds of frozen eggs, and 2,855,000 pounds of butter.

Meat at Peak May Levels in Last 22 Years

Despite the fact all meat except lamb and mutton are under Office of Price administration ceilings enforced in wholesale markets, most of the principal cuts are at the highest May levels since 1920. The price ceilings for many classes of meat were established near the high point of the sharp advance that was stimulated by lend-lease buying and by America's entry into the war.

A survey yesterday showed that wholesale buyers got 31 to 49 per cent less tonnage of the principal pork cuts than they obtained for the same investment a year ago, and 51 to 69 per cent less than in 1940. A dollar bought 9 to 30 per cent fewer pounds of the main beef cuts than last year and 6 to 29 per cent fewer than two years ago. Lamb buyers, with the same amount of cash, got 11 to 37 per cent less than in 1941 and 11 to 35 per cent less than in 1940.

Buying Power Shrinks.

	Yesterday.	1941.	1940.
Pork.

Buyers paid an average of $13.25 a hundred pounds for last week's supply of steers and yearlings.

Hog Average Unchanged.

Packers' live hogs averaged $14, the same as the week before. Yesterday's prices were 10 to 25 cents above the final levels of the week before. Advances of 25 to 50 cents were registered in lambs.

The department of agriculture announced the week's purchases of pork and lard by lend-lease agents totaled 73,887,178 pounds, the second largest total of the last year.

GOVERNMENT HELPS 64 ILLINOIS FIRMS TO WAR LOANS IN APRIL

Government agencies helped 64 Illinois companies arrange $2,906,000 of financing for war production in April, Harry R. Kimbark, Chicago representative of the WPB bureau of finance, reported yesterday. The largest loans were two for $800,000 each, received by Chicago companies, and the smallest was $1,500.

Many of the loans were made by banks in the localities of the borrowers. Others were made by the federal reserve bank, the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and other federal agencies.

The government recently adopted a plan under which companies that could not otherwise get credit for war work could obtain federal help if the army, the navy, or the maritime commission approved such aid as necessary for expanding arms production.

FAIR AND SOUND TRADE IS HELD NEED OF WORLD

Hull Says This Aim Will Win War.

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull said tonight that an "enduring peace" after this war could be established only on the basis of "fair treatment and mutual benefit" in international trade.

In a statement in connection with national foreign trade week, which opens tomorrow, the secretary asserted that "our war effort itself will be immensely strengthened if we make sure now that one of the principal things we are fighting for is the establishment of a new and better system of international economic relations."

Foreign trade week is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and its purpose is to emphasize the importance of exports and imports to the welfare of the nation.

States Trade Policy.

One of the aims of the Atlantic charter, Hull said, is to make the raw materials of the postwar world accessible to all states, victor and vanquished; an aim which involves the rehabilitation on a sound basis of trade, monetary, financial, and all other economic relationships.

A first step toward achievement of this aim already has been taken in the Anglo-American lend-lease agreement signed last February, Hull said. This agreement provides that repayment of lend-lease aid shall be in such form as not to burden commerce, but to encourage it.

"The far-reaching economic objectives of the Atlantic charter cannot be attained by wishful thinking," Hull continued. "We in this country must realize that their achievement will be impossible if we follow policies of narrow economic nationalism, such as our extreme and disastrous tariff policy after the last war.

View on American Policy.

"We must realize that our own prosperity depends fully as much on prosperous conditions in other countries as their prosperity depends on ours. We must show now, by our positive acts of collaboration with other nations of like mind, that we are prepared to shoulder our full share of responsibility for building a better world.

"With the prospect of a better world before them, I am confident that the people of our nation, and the peoples of all the other united nations, will relentlessly pursue with unflagging zeal our common paramount objective—an early and decisive victory over our enemies."

INSURED HOME LOANS IN ILLINOIS BELOW YEAR AGO

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—Home loans totaling $5,041,400 were made during March by insured savings and loan associations in Illinois, Oscar R. Kreutz, general manager of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance corporation, announced today.

In February loans were $3,676,300 and in March, 1941, were $5,918,329, by the same group of associations. Kreutz said the 201 insured associations in Illinois have booked home mortgage loans aggregating $216,419,900.

Kreutz said the public placed $5,430,700 of new savings in the insured associations in Illinois during March, bringing the total of such investments to $199,033,500.

STOCKS EXTEND RISE TO REGAIN EARLIER LOSSES

Market Sentiment Aided by War News.

New York, May 16 (AP).—Leading stocks extended their forward movement today and managed to offset average losses recorded earlier in the week. Altho lack of buying power limited the advance, favored industrials added fractions to more than a point to Friday's recovery.

Transfers of 122,130 shares were the smallest since Aug. 16. The week's volume was the smallest in about a year.

Bullish sentiment was aided by reports of further Russian successes against the Nazis. British Prime Minister Churchill's optimistic war speech also was a factor.

Air Line Stocks Firmer.

Previously weak air line stocks, depressed by the taking over of aerial passenger carrying systems by the government, recovered their balance. American Airlines, softest spot of the day before, ended up ¼ and Eastern Air Lines retrieved ⅛.

The market returned to the rising path Monday as war neews seemed a bit brighter. The direction was downward Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday as profit selling got under way on the two weeks' rally and commitments were lightened pending Washington development. Price rose Friday, with the exception of the aviations, as dispatches from the Russian front inspired selective demand.

CHICAGO LIST HIGHER.

Prices moved upward for the second consecutive day on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in light trading totaling 6,000 shares.

Middle West, volume leader, was unchanged at 3. General Finance declined ⅛, General Motors advanced ⅜, and Commonwealth Edison, Zenith, Butler Brothers, and Borg-Warner rose ¼. United States Steel advanced ⅛ in the half hour of trading after the close in New York.

Government Buys Chicago Plane Engine Plant Site

The government's Defense Plant corporation has completed purchase of the site for an aviation engine plant to be built in Chicago by the Chrysler corporation, it was disclosed yesterday. The tract, 363 acres, is on the southwest side, and the cost, as indicated by revenue stamps on the deed, was $600,000. J. J. Sullivan Jr. of the law firm of Rathje, Hinckley, Barnard & Kulp and A. C. Tomczak of Barrett, Barrett, Costello & Barrett, represented the seller. Chrysler expects to employ 25,000 to 35,000 at the plant when it gets into production.

Commodities

Selling near the market's close sent cotton futures down 35 to 50 cents a bale yesterday. Traders attributed the losses to new proposals for increasing plantings and to confusion created by the Washington controversy over farm price control. Hedging sales contributed to reductions of 1 to 1.2 cent a pound in wool top futures. There were no transactions in grease wool. Coffee, cocoa, and cottonseed oil remained at ceiling levels.

WESTINGHOUSE APRIL EARNINGS ARE CUT IN HALF

Canadian Gold Producer's Income Also Curtailed.

April earnings of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company were less than half as large as in 1941, the company announced yesterday from Pittsburgh. Net income was $974,228, compared with $2,277,740 a year before.

On the basis of the company's monthly reports Westinghouse earnings for the four months ended April 30 were $5,098,873, equal to $1.59 a common share on combined preferred and common stocks, against $7,905,003, or $2.96 a share, in the 1941 period.

McIntyre Profits Fall.

McIntyre Porcupine Mines, Ltd., Toronto, Ont., gold and silver producer, reported its earnings in the year ended March 31 were $3,432,105, equal to $4.30 a share, compared with $3,819,032, or $4.78 a share, in the preceding year.

Philip Morris & Co. earned $7,183,225, equal to $7.38 a share, in the 11 months ended Feb. 28, after provision of $5,958,554 for income and excess profits taxes, the cigaret and tobacco manufacturer announced from New York. In the year ended March 31, 1941, net profit was $7,338,019, or $8.11 a share, after a $2,766,298 charge for taxes.

TRACTION SECURITIES.

Interest in traction securities has been reawakened as a result of increased industrial activity and the diminishing use of the private automobile. The upswing in prices and demand for these securities since the latter part of 1941 has paralleled the rise in revenues of transit companies.

Transit securities were unpopular as investments in the last decade. Now, despite the fact that 80 per cent of industry receipts are absorbed by operating expenses, exclusive of taxes, it is believed the sharp rise in revenues will enable companies to show profits.

The cost of operating a public vehicle does not vary with each load. Once the vehicle is filled to a "break-even" capacity, every additional fare represents clear operating profit. If the traction industry maintains reasonable control over labor costs, and fuel and maintenance costs, larger profits will result.

Sixty years ago one of the major problems of the then 150 million dollar American transit industry was obtaining 11 million bushels of grain and 150,000 tons of hay for the animals which furnished the power. The problems facing the present 5 billion dollar traction industry are far more complex.

Transit companies must accommodate millions of extra rides monthly due to increased employment and automobile, tire and gasoline rationing. A 20 per cent increase in traffic was expected this year, but present indications are that this figure is too conservative.

The strain on traction facilities has increased with the rise in passenger traffic. During the lean years transit companies had difficulty purchasing new rolling stock due to a lack of funds. With a greater need than ever before, companies are not likely to obtain new equipment because of priorities and shortages of necessary materials.

The long term prospects of the traction industry are believed to be less encouraging. Assuming there are no postwar restrictions on manufacture or use of automobiles, a mass return to that type of local transportation is more than likely. As a result, revenues of transit companies will decline despite continued industrial activity.

Unless a surplus can be accumulated, a transit company in the postwar period will be left with smaller revenues, equipment worn by excessive use, and little funds for securing replacements.

War Boosts April Suburban Building to Record High

PERMITS ISSUED FOR 80 MILLION DOLLARS WORTH

Home Construction Begins to Feel WPB Curb.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Two huge contracts for war production plants—one for 75 million dollars and the other 1½ billions—boosted April suburban building permits to the record breaking total of $80,298,904. Adding the Chicago total of $2,572,694, the metropolitan area achieved a building construction total last month of $82,871,598, a high mark for the Chicago district, it is said.

According to the monthly survey of the Bell Savings and Loan association, from which the above figures were taken, home building in the Chicago region slumped drastically from April of last year as a result of the War Production board's allotment curb on "defense homes" and absolute bar on other types. Permits were issued last month for 498 homes, costing $2,440,186 in 89 suburban communities, compared with 762, valued at $5,024,262 during April, 1941. This is a loss of 264 homes, valued at $2,584,076.

Aluminum Plant Boosts Total.

The outstanding figure in the survey—$74,004,500—was for the plant of the Aluminum Company of America, an aluminum sheet mill which it is said will be one of the largest single buildings ever constructed in the Chicago area. Ground was broken in April at McCook.

The other big suburban industrial project is the $1,500,000 Bell & Howell company plant under construction in Loncolnwood.

Other war plant permits totaled a million dollars in Chicago and $350,000 for a factory in Kane county.

More Suburban "Defense Homes."

In the "defense home" bracket [projects costing $6,000 or less for houes and lot], suburbs and unincorporated areas in Cook, Du Page, Kane, and Lake counties showed a substantial increase. In Chicago, however, a heavy falling off was reported.

Suburban towns reported 398 "defense homes" last month, costing $1,625,229, compared with 309 in March, valued at $1,304,370. In Chicago there were 210, costing $938,130, compared with 296, valued at $1,752,416 in March.

Homes for War Workers

Looking southeast from Grand avenue, along Hawthorne street, in Westbrook development of Mills & Sons in Franklin Park, a half mile north of the Buick aircraft engine plant in Melrose Park. R. H. Maiwurm is architect of these homes for war workers.

Finish 21 War Housing Units in Westbrook

Completion of 21 homes for war workers in Westbrook, 86 acre development of Mills & Sons in Franklin Park, was announced yesterday by Laurance H. Mills, president. Materials are on hand for the remaining 79 of the first group of 100 units, and work is under way on several. Many have been sold in advance of construction, it was said. The complete building program calls for 400 homes.

Westbrook, which is a half mile north of the big Buick aircraft engine plant in Melrose Park, has winding streets, with the sidewalks next to the curb, thus adding 17 feet of lawn to the 30 foot building line setback. Improvements are completed in the first section and are being installed in the next portion to be opened.

The 21 completed homes, 12 of which already are occupied, have 4 and 4½ rooms, with expansion space in some for two additional bedrooms. They sold from $5,050 to $6,000.

Most have basements and are heated with coal, gas, or oil furnaces. Lots average 50 by 135 feet. Financing is by FHA loans thru Dovenmuehle, Inc.

Westbrook is bounded by Grand avenue on the north, Fullerton avenue on the south, Ruby street on the east and Scott street on the west. Mills & Sons, 55 year old construction firm, reported that its 1,500 home development in Elmwood Park, known as Westwood, is sold out.

PLAN TO AUCTION MIDLOTHIAN'S 85 REMAINING LOTS

Auction of the remaining 85 lots of an original home development of 160 acres marks the completion of a 22 year residential program by John R. Robertson & Co., which has resulted in the town of Midlothian. The sale will be held next Saturday and Sunday in a tent at Springfield avenue and 150th street, Midlothian.

It will be conducted by R. E. Gross & Co., Berwyn realty auctioneer firm. In 1920 Robertson & Co. subdivided 160 acres of land about a mile east of the Midlothian Country club at what was then a golf club stop on the Rock Island railroad. Midlothian now has a population of nearly 3,000. Robertson & Co. has built or financed more than 300 homes and several business blocks.

INCREASED UNITS OUT OF EXISTING HOMES IS URGED

Builders' President Calls Such Action Patriotic.

Rebuilding of privately owned homes into multiple units to care for incoming war workers and federal employés moved here from Washington was proposed to home owners of this area as both a patriotic act and a sound means of increasing their income for the duration by Joseph E. Merrion, newly elected president of the Metropolitan Chicago Home Builders association at that organization's annual meeting.

He called attention yesterday to the ordinance passed on Wednesday amending the city building code to facilitate the conversion of homes into apartments or large flats into smaller ones, and urged that it be utilized.

A list of all builders in the Chicago area who are willing to coöperate with home owners in a program of modernizing old living quarters, and also mortgage houses willing to finance these operations, has been made by C. L. Perkins, executive secretary of the association. This will be made available to any interested property owner, it was said.

"Federal agencies are coöperating in this plan and will assist in obtaining priorities for critical materials needed," Merrion said.

Gael Sullivan, Illinois FHA state director, last night announced that applications for authority to begin construction on only three types of construction now will be received and processed by the FHA instead of the 12 groups which have been considered for the last few weeks.

These three types are: 1. Residential construction, except farm houses and publicly-financed housing; 2. Privately financed roads or streets within the property lines of a privately financed war housing project. 3. Utility lines and systems within the property lines of a privately financed war housing project.

At the Realty Boards

Warner G. Baird.

Ronald J. Chinnock, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, yesterday announced the appointment of two members to the board of directors. Warner G. Baird of Baird & Warner and Morgan L. Fitch, former president of the board, were named. Baird is a grandson of the second president of the board, Lyman Baird, and a son of Wyllys W. Baird, who held that position in 1903. Chinnock also appointed Albin R. Hult chairman of the appraisal committee. He succeeds Arthur Kruggel.

The Chicago Real Estate board had 176 new members during the fiscal year just closed, according to a report by Arthur C. Kussman, membership committee chairman.

6 STORY BUILDING USED FOR AUTOS RENTED BY SEARS

Sears, Roebuck & Co. recently leased for warehouse purposes the six story Argyle-Broadway building, 5050 Broadway, one of the largest automobile properties on the north side, containing 80,000 square feet of floor space. Howard L. Storch of Ross, Browne & Fleming was broker. The building formerly was occupied by the Kailer-Youngquist Oldsmobile agency, which has moved to 5043 Broadway.

BUILDING 100 PER CENT RENTED.

With the lease of the first floor in the Nielsen-Platter building, 3915 South Lowe avenue, to James Frederick, that property is 100 per cent rented, according to Chandler & Montague, managers.

INSTRUCTION.

OPPORTUNITY TO Teach Dancing

There is an exceptional opportunity for refined, neat appearing young men and young women to become instructors in modern dancing: the RUMBA, TANGO, FOX TROT, SAMBA, CONGA, etc. We teach you to teach others. Our easy, short teacher's course at surprisingly low cost will thoroly train you in the new dances as danced in the fashionable night clubs of NEW YORK and PALM BEACH. We will qualify you to open your own dance studios, instruct others, and give professional performances. It's PLEASANT and PROFITABLE! You deal with high class clientele. For interview call Monday 11 a. m. to 10 p. m.

GRAY HEADS: WISE MINDS

Leading Industrial Organization Invites Retired Men to Help Win the Battle of Production.

CHEMISTS - PHYSICISTS CHEMICAL ENGINEERS

This message is addressed to men whose gray hair signifies years of service and experience in the field of physics and chemistry . . . men who under ordinary conditions would consider their life's work well done and be content with the ease and pleasures of retirement.

Today, many older men who are still able-bodied are anxious to leave their retirement . . . to go back to work and apply their experience and knowledge to help America build the materials of war.

To a limited number of such men, one of America's leading manufacturers, located in Eastern Pennsylvania, offers an opportunity to engage in research and development work in the fields of Chemistry, Physics, and Chemical Engineering. The men engaged will join the staff of a large and well-equipped laboratory. They will be active workers, not consultants.

IN APPLYING, PLEASE LIST THE FOLLOWING INFORMATION: 1. EXPERIENCE. 2. PRESENT LOCATION. 3. AGE AND PHYSICAL CONDITION. 4. SALARY REQUIRED. ADDRESS D D 10, TRIBUNE.

LIBERAL EXPENSE ALLOWANCE AND COMMISSION

guaranteed by large nationally known food manufacturer to men who can qualify in Chicago to sell exclusive items to retail stores.

This is STORE to STORE, not house to house, and in protected territory.

This is not a get-rich-quick scheme, but a legitimate business proposition offered by a manufacturer who has been in business 26 years and employs over 3,000 people, has national distribution and several million dollars invested.

You must be able to furnish a minimum cash bond as a deposit against working stock of merchandise and the use of display truck.

The earnings you attain will depend entirely on your ability and the effort you put forth to build a profitable business for yourself.

Please give full information as to your age, experience, number of dependents, and living expenses in your letter.

Address T E 344, Tribune.

United States Chamber of Commerce will appoint 5 salesmen to call on business and professional men. One to work in Chicago, one to work in northeastern Ill., one to work in northwestern Ind., one to work in southeastern Wis., and one to work in southwestern Mich. The work is permanent and will be fully discussed in an interview in Chicago. Applicants should be preferably over 30 yrs. of age. Successful applicants will be given a complete course of field training on a SALARY BASIS by our district manager. Liberal commission and bonus arrangement thereafter. For appointment Chicago applicants telephone F. C. Zeigler, Central 5046, tomorrow May 18, preferably in the morning. Out of town applicants write F. C. Zeigler, United States Chamber of Commerce, First National Bank Building, Chicago, Ill., giving sales experience, references, phone number, and address.

AGGRESSIVE SALESMAN

One of the largest roof coating manufacturers in the world offers a good specialty salesman a real opportunity to earn in excess of $100 per week on the sale of NUROOF, a product used by the leading industrial firms in the country. Protected territory.

We want a man with proven sales ability whose income has been reduced because his industry has been devoted to war production.

A short interview will convince a good salesman of the great opportunity the sale of this product affords under present conditions.

Complete field training given by factory representative—sales equipment provided at no cost—excellent commission arrangement. For personal interview address D D 44, Tribune.

SALES ENGINEER POWER TRANSMISSION, PULLEYS, ETC.

Immediate opening for man with past field sales experience—contacting salesmen, transmission supply jobbers, machinery manufacturers, industrials, etc., in Central West. Headquarters in Chicago with occasional trips to surrounding states. A permanent position with a responsible manufacturer. Must have a car—liberal mileage allowance and traveling expense. State fully experience, types of transmission equipment formerly sold, education, age and salary expected to start.

ADDRESS D C 46, TRIBUNE.

PRIORITIES

Have they hit you? Would you like a lifetime connection in a business that is permanent—a business that stands up splendidly for the individual producer even in periods of depression or war? We have an opening for a man 28 to 50 to establish himself in accident, fire, automobile, life, and other lines of general insurance. We teach, train, supervise, and carry on a mail follow-up program resulting in renewal commissions of $3,000 to $15,000 annually. Old reliable company.

ADDRESS T Y 162, TRIBUNE.

DISTRIBUTOR—Nationally known AAA1 manufacturer of maintenance coatings desires a middle-age man as a distributor for a territory consisting of southern part of Cook County, Ill., and Lake County, Ind. Frequent advertising brings many inquiries. Assistance given in establishing new contacts as well as calling on old trade. Credit on all business from territory. Excellent commission basis. Distributor must live in territory. Accounts financed by manufacturer. No capital required. Only active man who can stand thorough investigation will be considered. Phone A. F. CAN YOU SELL?

I Need Five GOOD SALESMEN

Present sales predictions in our field not affected by priorities necessitates an immediate sales force expansion in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota.

If you are looking for a dignified lifetime connection with an old established firm we can offer unusual commission opportunities made on high class leads, on a product recognized throughout U. S. as leader in its field. Any sales experience and a good record will prove helpful. Opportunities for area managership available to those who qualify. We require that you finance yourself for one week's training, during which WE DEMONSTRATE OVER $50-$100 WEEK earnings and upward. If you can qualify I will help you financially to get started. Car desirable. Mr. Harvey, Room 603, 307 N. Michigan-avenue.

All-Out Salesman Wanted

Priorities have "boomed" our maintenance product to greatest demand in our history. Therefore we find it advisable to expand our sales force. An opening exists in this locality. Even without priorities to boom sales, our salesmen have earned from $3,000 to $8,000 a year comm. Now, because of priorities in other lines, their earnings should be substantially greater. An "order taker" or "high-powered promoter" is NOT wanted. We want an all-out, straightforward, wholehearted salesman. No previous experience in our line required. You may have lost your job because of priorities or had your earnings cut because of them. Here is a proposition in which priorities in other lines help you sell more goods in our line. If you are a CAPABLE salesman, write us today, stating age and outline of previous sales experience. Sales Manager, Box 789, Fort Worth, Texas.

MEN! WOMEN!

AIRLINES NEED YOU

Trained women are badly needed in the teletype, reservations, sales, traffic and other departments. The pay is good, there is opportunity for travel, you meet interesting people and the environment is excellent. If you are between 18 and 40 investigate.

MEN!

Radiomen, both operators and maintenance, are in heavy demand. Here is your great opportunity to become a "Civilian Ground Soldier of the Airways." . . . To prepare for an airline positoin that will be good "now" and "after." The pay is excellent, with ample opportunity for advancement and travel.

INVESTIGATE

Midland is not an ordinary school. We serve both the Airlines and the U. S. Army Signal Corps. You need not enlist to become a Midland student. Our graduates, both men and women, are employed from coast to coast and the demand far exceeds the supply. For complete information, without obligation, call in person, phone Randolph 4015, or write. Day by Day on the Farm

By BOB BECKER

Bobolinks Arrive.

May 16, 1942.

THE arrival of the bobolinks and the new profusion of wild geraniums in the farm woodlots were the main incidents of this week's spring procession.

The exuberance of the gayly feathered bobolinks always is one of the high spots of the summer season for farm dwellers. The handsome male birds, their black feathers tipped with whitish or creamy buff fringe, are using a part of a meadow close to a fence as their singing pavilion. We walked along this fence row the other morning to enjoy our first free bobolink concert of the season. While the female birds, less boisterous and with duller plumage, stay on the ground, the bold males get into the air, hold themselves in one position on quivering wings, and sing in ecstasy as only bobolinks can sing during the courting season. It's a wonderful burst of song. One bird lover describes it as "mad music," a veritable flood of melody.

Wild Geraniums Bloom.

In the woodlots the wild geraniums, lavender rather than brilliant red like their cultivated relatives, are adding color to match that of the violets and the wild phlox. In fact, these three wild flowers, the most prominent of mid-May, all are in the purple class, with the violets a little deeper shade than the other two.

All of these wild flowers add beauty to the farm fields, but there is one other flowering weed in bloom now which the farm workers would prefer never to see again. It is the wild mustard, a bright yellow flower which would add brilliance to any artist's canvas but makes farmers "see red." This flowering weed has become a nuisance in several farm fields, particularly in alfalfa stands. When we were on the farm the other day an overnight rain had made field work almost impossible, so the men were working thru an alfalfa field to uproot the wild mustard.

Some of the farm's flock of Canada geese have been showing signs of wanderlust again. When we were on the Wheaton farm the other day about 15 of the big birds were in a newly sprouted oat field at the south edge of the farm—about 400 yards from their headquarters on the big pond.

Geese Object to Intruders.

A little later, when we walked thru the center woods to see if we could decoy a few crows, there was evidence that not all of the geese had wandered off the reservation. As soon as we got within 100 yards of the pond the cautious geese which have nests there started honking and squawking. It isn't a good idea to go too close to the big birds while they are nesting, so we didn't get a look at any of their nest mounds.

We did see the white swan nest on the southwest corner of the big pond, however. The flockmaster reported that one pair of swans has several eggs in this nest. The hen bird was on the nest when we walked along the south edge of the pond.

SIGNATURE LOANS

Persons with established employment records will welcome Commonwealth's signature loan plan. Just imagine getting from $10 to $300 without putting up stocks, bonds, furniture or real estate as collateral. Of course, if you are on a new job and even if you have just moved into the city, you too, can get a loan here, for Commonwealth has a loan plan to fit the needs of any one who can make regular payments. Don't borrow any place until you investigate Commonwealth's various loan plans. Phone for complete details.

SPURRED BY WAR, COLLEGES AWARD DEGREES EARLY

Seniors Now in Army to Receive B. A.'s.

Colleges in the Chicago area soon will send about 7,000 more graduates out into a world which this year eagerly awaits their services. Under pressure of war, the University of Notre Dame and the Illinois Institute of Technology already have graduated their seniors.

The largest coming out group is at the University of Illinois colleges at Urbana-Champaign and in Chicago. By eliminating the Easter vacation and condensing the final examination period, the downstate commencement was advanced two weeks to June 1.

Approximately 2,000 undergraduate degrees and about 500 advanced degrees will be conferred at Urbana. At the exercises in Chicago, on June 12 in the Civic Opera house, some 360 degrees will be conferred in medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy.

Production Chiefs Coming Here.

Dr. Arthur Cutts Willard, university president, will be the speaker at both the downstate and Chicago commencements in the interests of simplicity. Baccalaureate exercises in Urbana on May 31 will be addressed by Dr. Louis L. Mann, of the Chicago Sinai congregation.

Nearly 1,900 students will receive degrees and diplomas in Northwestern university's 84th annual commencement at 5 p. m. June 13 in Dyche stadium. Many of the degrees will be conferred in absentia to recent seniors who are in the armed services.

On commencement morning, 2,000 alumni will parade in the March of Classes following a week of senior activities. An outdoor lunch will be held at noon.

Northwestern university's new $6,735,000 Technological Institute will be dedicated on June 15 and 16. The importance of this occasion under present circumstances is indicated by the list of speakers, which includes Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, Lieut. Gen. William Knudsen, head of production activities; Charles F. Kettering, president of the General Motors Research corporation, and Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones.

Northwestern Changes System.

This commencement will be the last on the semester plan at Northwestern. Starting with the summer quarter, beginning June 22, the university will be on the quarter plan.

The University of Chicago, which originated the quarter plan several years ago, will graduate only an estimated 800 on June 19 because the system provides for four commencements a year. Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president, will speak at the convocation in Rockefeller Memorial chapel; higher degrees will be conferred at 11 a. m. and bachelor degrees at 3 p. m.

On June 14 there will be a convocation sermon by Dean Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the chapel.

Loyola university's commencement will be a week earlier than usual, June 3, when 650 graduates will be awarded degrees at 6:45 p. m. The Rev. Raphael McCarthy, president of Marquette university, will deliver the principal address. Baccalaureate services will be held May 31 on the lake shore campus with the Rev. Allan F. Farrell, dean of the Milford Novitiate, speaking at 4 p. m.

De Paul university, with approximately 500 graduates from both the uptown and downtown schools, also will have its commencement exercises on June 3; again the war has pushed the schedule a week ahead of the customary date. A baccalaureate sermon will be preached May 31 in St. Vincent's church.

Girl Graduates Get Jobs.

Mundelein college's 12th annual commencement will be at 10 a. m. June 1 for 65 graduates, with the address by Archbishop Samuel Stritch. Even this girl's school has moved its commencement ahead a week, to permit students to aid in the war effort; three of those to be graduated already have obtained jobs as chemists in the Du Pont plant at Kankakee.

Wheaton college will graduate about 170 students at 10 a. m. June 15, with the Rev. Arthur F. Williams of the First Baptist Church of New York City as the speaker.

Lake Forest college will confer degrees upon 53 students in its 64th annual commencement May 23 at noon, three weeks earlier than was planned before Pearl Harbor. Dr. Alan Valentine of the University of Rochester will speak, and receive an honorary LL.D.

DePauw university at Greencastle, Ind., will have its commencement—moved up a week—on May 31 at 6:30 p. m. About 300 will be graduated. Niles Trammel, president of the National Broadcasting company, will speak on "Broadcasting for Victory and for Peace."

G. O. P. CHAIRMEN FROM 13 STATES TO DRAFT POLICY

Pierre, S. D., May 16 (AP).—Republican party chairmen from 13 states were called today to meet May 22-24 in South Dakota to discuss party organization and internal affairs.

Glenn Martens, South Dakota chairman, said the meetings are to be held in Rapid City and in Custer state park in the Black Hills. National committeemen from the states were not invited.

Martens said acceptances have come from chairmen in Illinois, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, and Wyoming. He said sessions would be closed except for dinner meetings.

GROWING RUBBER OLD BUSINESS, BUT A SLOW ONE

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—The Office of Emergency Management today is offering a history of rubber. It's to be read and enjoyed by automobile owners who ordinarily might prefer to spend the time on a week-end tour. The OEM said in an official statement earlier this week that there shouldn't be any more pleasure driving and that there isn't any rubber, synthetic or natural, in sight for the ordinary passenger car before Jan. 1, 1945.

So, my fellow motorists, cancel your motor excursion, lean back in your chair, and read:

When Columbus visited the new world, his men were amazed at black rubber balls with which natives played. The balls were so springy they seemed to be alive.

Rubber Was Old Then.

But rubber was old then. Hundreds, maybe a thousand years before the Indians of South and Central America had coated their capes with rubber, they had waterproofed shoes with it and they had even made bottles by dipping clay moulds into raw rubber.

Rubber remained little more than a curiosity for 300 years. During that time it was noticed that if a pencil mark was rubbed with the substance it disappeared, hence the name "rubber." It was used as a waterproofing material, but it cracked in cold and had a noxious odor when warm and achieved no great popularity.

In the 1830's it was discovered that if sulphur were mixed with crude rubber and heated, the rubber retained its elasticity over a wide range of temperatures. This "vulcanizing" discovery was claimed for at least four men; it seems likely that each one contributed something.

With vulcanizing, rubber became an industry; with the automobile it became a great industry.

Native of Brazil.

The hevea, as its full name indicates, is a native of Brazil and for years Brazil held a rubber monopoly. In 1873 2,000 seeds were smuggled out of Brazil, but only 12 germinated and none of the trees thrived. In 1876 Henry Wickham, later Sir Henry, arranged to have 70,000 seeds taken to the Kew botanical gardens in London. Hothouses were emptied of other plants and in two months 2,000 plants were growing. The rubber monopoly was broken and rubber trees were transplanted to the rainy lands of Ceylon, India, Malaya and the East Indies—half way around the world.

World production figures for 1940 tell the story:

Far east	1,353,052 long tons
Amazon valley	17,661
Africa	16,314
Mexico, Guayule	3,634
Total	1,390,661

Synthetic Rubber Appears.

The briefest glance at these figures shows that all but a few shiploads of rubber were produced in Malaya, Sumatra, Java, Borneo, Ceylon, and the other lands of the middle east. Some synthetic rubber was being made in Germany, Russia, and other countries. Production figures are not available.

More of the same story: The United States was the world's greatest consumer of rubber. In 1940, of the total supply grown, 1,390,661 long tons, we imported 818,242 long tons.

Rubber is slow growing. It grows slower than wars are won. Sir Henry Wickham got his 70,000 seeds in 1876, but the far east produced only 2,879 long tons in 1906. In that year, the Amazon valley produced 34,274 long tons and Africa produced 20,539 long tons. In that year, too, Mexico produced 1,624 tons of rubber from Guayule.

Production Drops Down.

The Amazon valley produced 41,619 long tons in 1912 and never produced that much again. Production dropped down to 6,420 tons in 1932—a year that the far east gave the world 700,000 tons. Price fixing and world depression had much to do with it, of course, but whatever the cause, those were the figures.

African production went up and down over the years, never topping the 1906 figures and falling to 1,751 long tons in 1932. Guayule production fluctuated between 9,542 long tons in 1910 to almost nothing in 1931, '32, and '33.

Look at the figures and note the fact that the Amazon, Mexico, and Africa, each in its best year, never produced more than a total of 75,000 long tons.

"Take the fact that 30 years elapsed between the time the first 70,000 hevea tree seeds left Brazil and the time that more than 100,000 long tons of rubber was produced in the middle east," the OEM article concludes. "Take the fact that experts say it will take years to increase radically the amount of Guayule rubber. Take the fact that other experts say it will take years to turn out an appreciable amount of synthetic rubber in factories we haven't yet finished building.

"Take all those facts, add them together and what's the total in terms of new tires for the family flivver?"

Eastern Drivers Give Up Sugar, but Protest Rationing of Gas

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—The curtailment of motor fuel in 17 Atlantic seaboard states is irking the public more than did the curtailment of sugar. The restrictions on automobile driving have been accompanied by grumbling and acrimony while the restrictions on sweetening were accepted without complaint.

The motor car, it would seem, is even closer to the hearts of America than is apparent from its utility. And its utility is immeasurable in that there is no substitute.

A large portion of the present generation in America has been dependent upon the automobile for social and business transportation. In many families, the recreational hours awheel brought the husband, wife, and children closer together than at other times in the day or week when each was occupied by his separate activities. In this respect, the automobile displaced the proverbial fireside, which in modern life is in many instances a cramped apartment.

Rather Ride than Eat.

This affection for the automobile was exemplified in the heyday of WPA by reports that families on relief were spending part of their food allowances for gasoline for pleasure driving. They would rather ride than eat, as inexplicable as the drunkard reliefer who went without food to buy booze.

There is a historical parallel in the frontiersman's love for his horse. It is doubtlessly fanciful to presume that some of today's adoration of a transportation agency is hereditary from forefathers who would shoot to defend his mount. It's perhaps also fanciful that as descendants of immigrants we are a footloose people restless for mobility.

But there's nothing fanciful about the utility of the automobile. It carries more passengers more miles than all other transportation agencies combined. And according to a survey by the Automobile Manufacturers' association, the vast majority of the mileage is on business errands including trips to and from work.

The ration system which went into effect on Friday allows only three gallons a week for about a third of the passenger automobiles in the seaboard states. Government owned vehicles and those owned by doctors are given an unlimited gasoline supply as are taxicabs, buses and trucks. About two-thirds of the passenger cars received a ration card for various allowances, as high as 57 gallons for the 47 days from May 15 to July 1, on showing that the gasoline was needed for transportation to and from work.

Pleasure Driving Ends.

But there's no more pleasure driving in 17 states, unless cruising on three gallons a week can be called pleasure driving. And the automobile owners don't think that's enough.

The registrations in Washington brought crowds of grumblers to the high schools for signing up this week. Senators and congressmen, echoing sentiments of their constituents, joined in complaints of hardship, and the house of representatives was really turned topsy turvy when newspapers disclosed that some of the congressmen and their office employés had obtained the "X" cards, unlimited allowances, on a representation that their automobiles were used in government business.

The inauguration of the sugar ration program was tranquil.

NEWS AND VIEWS

The necessity for careful maintenace of automobiles is emphasized in the recent order of the War Production board which reduces the production of replacement parts for automobiles and light trucks for civilian use. Only specified functional parts may now be produced, and these only in amounts sufficient to satisfy actual demand.

Manufacturers now may produce only the following replacement parts: Engines, clutches, transmissions, propellor shafts, universal joints, axles, brakes, wheels, hubs, drums, starting apparatus, spring suspensions, shock absorbers, exhaust systems, cooling systems, fuel systems, lubricating systems [including generators, lights, and reflectors], guages, speedometers, rear view mirrors, windshield wipers, windshield wiper motors, control mechanisms and steering apparatus.

Among the items that are now prohibited are: Hoods, fenders, running boards, floor mats, bumpers, hub caps, robe rails, doors, body panels, and other parts not essential to car operation. All this means that there will be some strange appearing cars on streets and highways before the war ends.

The automotive branch of the WPB has indicated that part production facilities at the automobile plants probably will not be taken up completely by war production and therefore a low rate of production may be maintained at least until Sept. 30 in order to ensure an adquate supply of essential parts to meet the estimated needs for the remainder of this year and 1943.

The inventory provisions of the WPB order prohibit a producer from having a dollar value inventory of finished parts exceeding during the third month in each calendar quarter, four times his average monthly sales during the preceding calendar quarter. The average of the producer's inventory of raw materials or materials in process in either of the two calender quarters covered by the order cannot exceed the quantity required to complete production of parts permitted in that quarter.

The WPB order further requires that a distributor requiring a replacement part for the emergency repair of a vehicle which cannot be operated without such part must file with a producer a "certificate for emergency order" specifying the make and engine number of the vehicle involved. A producer to whom such a certificate is submitted must give the order precedence in shipment over other orders not of an emergency nature.

The WPB's order is expected to compel service stations and repair men to use their ingenuity in repairing a car. The WPB emphasizes the need for repairing or reconditioning of replacement parts where possible, such as rewinding of starters and generators, rebabbitting of connecting rods, more extensive reconditioning of engines and other items.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

POLICE FRIGHTEN MOTORISTS.

Chicago, May 12.—I was traveling east on Archer avenue about 9:30 o'clock on a Sunday evening. I saw a car just about go thru a red light. It bore an Iowa license. A police car started in pursuit. Evidently the young couple thought it was a holdup. I would make this same mistake. No siren was sounded and no red or green lights were shown by the police. The chase lasted about four blocks and then the police started shooting. They hit a tire and forced the Iowa car to stop.

I think that this is a demonstration of a bad police practice. Why not give the motorist a siren or colored light signal?

RUSSELL WILKINS.

GASOLINE RATIONS.

Chicago, May 14.—All of the rumpus in Washington about the politicians escaping the restrictions there on gasoline consumption would be quieted were full publicity given to the motor fuel rationing as is done with tires and automobile rationing. What is there that is being covered up?

J. G. G.

PLEASURE DRIVING.

Chicago, May 12.—You have printed so much from Washington about the tire shortage that I no longer enjoy a week-end drive into the country. I feel that I might be a slacker for using tires for pleasure. Is that the way the government officials want us to feel?

VETERANS OF 1919 ARCHANGEL WAR TO HOLD REUNION

Chicagoan Recalls Frigid Russian Winter.

Veterans of the Archangel expedition of World War I.—one of the most mysterious and futile assignments ever handed to American troops—will hold their 11th biennial reunion in Detroit, Mich., May 30 and 31.

Bernard J. Elfman.

The 5,000 American troops in the expedition, which docked at Archangel Sept. 4, 1918, were part of the 85th division, principally men from Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin. Approximately 1,500 are expected to attend the Polar Bear association reunion.

Murmansk, Onega, Kodish, and Vologda—names of Russian cities familiar to those following the battles of World War II.—are an old story to the Archangel veterans, according to Bernard J. Elfman, 47 years old, Chicago sandwich shop owner, who was a buck private.

Fought Until June, 1919.

It was in that region the American forces fought thru a terrible Russian winter when the temperature dropped to 55 degrees below zero; fought savagely against Bolshevik troops—their former allies—at overwhelming odds, and continued fighting until June 15, 1919—seven months after the armistice was signed.

"We never knew why we were suddenly jerked out of England, given heavy clothes and Sheckleton boots and shipped to Russia," Elfman said yesterday. "All we knew was we didn't like it. The men lived in dugouts and boxcars. It was impossible to take a bath.

"They'd have to pay me a billion dollars to put me thru it again," he said, "but I wouldn't sell my memories for two million."

Sold Cigarets at Big Profit.

A buck private could live like a king on his $30 a month salary, he continued, by doing a little judicious buying and selling. For example, he could buy cigarets for 40 cents a package from the canteen and on one occasion Elfman sold a package to a Russian for 25 rubles—then about $12.50.

"Candy bars, canned foods, and other stuff were at a premium," Elfman related. "Soap? We could get plenty, but as far as I could tell, the Russians never worried about their lack of it. I smoked three for a dollar cigars all thru the trip."

American units on the expedition included the 339th infantry, 337th field hospital, 339th medical detachment, 337th ambulance company, 310th engineers, and the 310th medical detachment.

500 Killed in His Outfit.

"When the Reds would find out they were up against Americans, usually they'd take it easy," Elfman said, "but when they could spot English or French troops, they gave them hell."

Approximately 500 men in Elfman's outfit were killed either in action or by disease. There were several thousand casualties, he said.

"But sometimes we had fun. It was hard to get any whisky or vodka, but once in a while we could sneak an issue of convalescent rum.

"Then there was the time I had a steak. For months I'd been dreaming of a sirloin, smothered in onions. A couple of my buddies said a café had some and in I went.

"That steak was really good but I lost most of the enjoyment when I got back to camp. My pals then tipped me off it was horse meat."

Two years ago the Polar Bear association, as the veterans call the group, met in Grand Rapids, Mich. Approximately 2,000 veterans attended.

FEDERAL JURIES TO OPEN PROBE OF WAR CONTRACTS

Washington, D. C., May 16 (AP).—Evidence of alleged frauds in war production contracts will be placed soon before federal grand juries thruout the country, Attorney General Francis Biddle announced today.

It was said preliminary investigations of complaints have been under way by the justice department war frauds unit for several months and that these will be intensified under an expanded organization. The unit also will prosecute cases arising under office of price administration ration and price ceiling orders.

Thus far it has obtained several indictments in connection with tire ration violations and has developed cases which officials estimated involved several million dollars in alleged chiseling on contracts.

Three Types of Cases.

Biddle said the cases soon to be ready for presentation to grand juries involved:

1. Faulty materials, supplies, and workmanship in products delivered to the government.
2. Alleged conspiracies to increase the cost of plants and factories built to produce war materials.
3. Practices which have increased the cost of food and supplies for the army and navy.

75 Attorneys on Staff.

The attorney general announced that Tom C. Clark, former chief of anti-trust activities on the west coast and later civilian head of the Japanese evacuation program in that area, would direct the investigation with a staff of 75 attorneys.

Clark succeeds Fowler Hamilton, who has joined the staff of the Board of Economic Warfare. John Darsey, formerly of the Federal Trade commission legal staff, will be Clark's first assistant.

ARMY PERFECTS 17 OUNCE STOVE FOR SKI TROOPS

Boston, Mass., May 16 (AP).—A tiny stove weighing 17 ounces and ignited by a device similar to that of a cigaret lighter has been desined by the army quartermaster corps for use by ski and mountain troops, the 1st corps area announced today.

The stove burns gasoline, kerosene, or alcohol, and is of such sturdy construction that it can support the weight of a 200 pound man. It was designed with a view to elimination of essential metals and its construction requires one-third fewer parts and 80 per cent less stainless steel than previous models.

Conventions of 10,000 Nurses to Open in City Tomorrow

How to increase the ranks of the nursing profession for war duty without lowering standards of service and preparation will be the principal consideration of the biennial convention of the nation's three large nursing organizations which will open here tomorrow.

Ten thousand registered nurses from all parts of the country are expected to attend the convention. The participating organizations are the American Nurses association, the National League of Nursing Education and the National Organization for Public Health Nursing. Sessions will be held in the Stevens hotel and the Palmer House thru Friday.

Theme of Convention.

The army and navy have called for 10,000 additional nurses this year and civilian hospitals and community agencies are in need of 20,000, Ernestine Wiedenbach, secretary of the nursing information bureau, explained yesterday. The convention, whose theme is "Nursing at the Nation's Service," will stress this need for more nursing service to care for the injured and ill in the armed forces and to safeguard the health of civilians.

The Nursing Council on National Defense, now called the National Nursing Council for War Service, was established in July, 1940, by the professional nursing organizations to carry forward an effective emergency program. The council works closely with a subcommittee on nursing formed by the federal government.

The five point program outlined by the subcommittee and the council will dominate the convention sessions. The program aims at the enrollment of every eligible nurse in the American Red Cross Nursing service, which is the first reserve of the army and navy nurse corps; the recruitment of 55,000 qualified high school and college graduates for good schools of nursing for the year 1942-'43; the expansion of nursing school facilities to permit admission of so large a number of students; the establishment of "refresher" courses to prepare able nurses who have retired or have been inactive in nursing to resume active work, and coöperation with the Red Cross in training volunteer nurses' aids and in giving courses in home nursing and first aid.

Discussion Leaders.

Various phases of this program will be discussed by Mary Beard, national director of the American Red Cross Nursing Service; Col. Julia O. Flikke, superintendent of the Army Nurse corps at Washington, D. C.; Stella Goostray, president of the National League of Nursing Education and director of the nursing school at the Children's hospital in Boston, Mass., and James A. Hamilton, president elect of the American Medical association and professor of hospital administration at Yale university.

Other speakers will include Ruth Hubbard, general director of the Visiting Nurse Association of Philadelphia, Pa.; James Mitchell, from the headquarters office of the Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada; Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States Public Health service in Washington; Julia C. Stimson, president of the American Nurses' association and chairman of the National Nursing Council for War Service, and George Zook, president of the American Council on Education at Washington.

CADETS PREPARED FOR BEST ROTC PARADE IN NATION

10,000 Will March in Sixth Procession.

With war emphasizing the significance of their training, 10,000 cadets from 28 Chicago high schools are ready for their biggest show, the sixth annual ROTC parade on Michigan avenue Wednesday noon, May 27.

The parade is the biggest of its kind in the nation. It is sponsored by the board of education in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE and will be headed by the two regiments adjudged winners of army inspections now being conducted.

The cadets will start their march at Balbo drive, continue past a reviewing stand at Congress plaza, and then disband at Michigan avenue and Randolph street. The color guards of the various high schools will add brilliance to the parade.

First in Line of March.

An all-city brigade staff picked from the high school units by competitive examination will be first in the line of march. Cadet Col. Wendell Zimmers of Calumet High school will be brigade commander.

The staff will include Lieut. Cols. Raymond Graham, Shurz, and Eugene Stigler, Crane; Majors Hugh Christian, Lane; Sidney Dell, Sullivan; Melvin Strauss, Senn; Lowell Glaser, Austin; Captains John Bogatto, Tilden; Raymond Kjellberg, Harper; Charles Harrison, Du Sable, and Allen Pfnister, Hirsch.

Before the parade begins Maj. Gen. George Grunert, commanding officer of the 6th corps area, will present two sets of colors on behalf of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, to the schools winning first and second places in the federal inspection.

Broadcast by W-G-N.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will be a guest at the ceremony and then will be in the reviewing party. The presentation of colors and the start of the parade will be broadcast by station W-G-N from 12 to 12:30 o'clock.

First place winners in past years were Tilden, four times and Lake View and Fenger High schools, once each. Second place winners were Crane Tech, twice; Von Steuben, St. Mel, Fenger, and Tilden.

In addition to the color awards, THE TRIBUNE presents medals to outstanding cadets in 82 midwestern high school and collegiate ROTC units each year.

LIQUOR CONTROL FORUMS SLATED FOR PENINSULA

Lansing, Mich., May 16 [Special].—Upper peninsula citizens will be given an opportunity next week to express their ideas regarding the state's liquor control system, it was revealed here today.

Public forums on the law will be conducted at Sault Ste. Marie Monday evening, at Manistique Tuesday afternoon, at Escanaba Tuesday evening, at Menominee Wednesday evening, at Iron River Thursday evening, at Ontonagon Friday afternoon, and at Ironwood Friday evening. Commissioner Felix H. H. Flynn, former Democratic state senator from Garden, will be in charge of the meetings.

Flynn said an effort will be made to obtain a maximum attendance of public officials, liquor licensees, representatives of organizations, and interested citizens.

BROWN U. HEAD RAPS CHICAGO'S TWO YEAR PLAN

Short B. A. Degree Period Called Defeatism.

Providence, R. I., May 16 (AP).—President Henry M. Wriston of Brown university said today that the new University of Chicago two year bachelor of arts plan of education was directly opposed to the American ideal of liberalism.

Speaking at a convocation to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the founding of Pembroke college, Wriston described the plan as "bold in appearance and weak in substance," and added it was "reminiscent of advertisments for learning to play the zither in six 'easy' lessons."

Terms Plan Negative.

The Chicago plan, said Wriston, was based "upon negative grounds and defeatist assumptions."

"The only way to overcome this or any other gesture of weariness and surrender," he said, "is not to argue with it. This, like all other defeatist manifestations, will sink to insignificance if those with faith in liberal education live steadfastly and replace confusion with confidence."

President Wriston maintained that the principal reason for the plan was an attempt to bring uniformity out of the inequality of college degrees.

Rufus M. Jones, professor of philosophy, emeritus, Haverford college, in addressing the convocation, assailed deterministic philisophy as the direct road to fascism. Such a policy, he said, made a person "as free as a snowflake in the teeth of a blizzard."

Calls for Return of Faith.

Dr. Jones declared that "we must restore moral health, faith in man, faith in human destiny, and faith in a living God. Spiritual slums are as dangerous to life as are city slums."

Five women scholars were awarded honorary degrees by the women's college. They are: Katharine Elizabeth McBride, dean of Radcliffe college and president-elect of Bryn Mawr, LL.D.; Margaret Bingham Stillwell, Brown '09, curator of the Ann Mary Brown Memorial library, Litt. D.; Nadia Boulanger, French composer, conductor and teacher, Mus. D.; Katharine Burr Blodgett, scientific researcher with the General Electric company, discoverer of the method for making glass invisible, Sc. D., and Katharine Everett Gilbert, Brown '08, professor of philosophy, Duke university, Litt. D.

A MIRACLE OF MASS PRODUCTION

By WAYNE THOMIS

NOWHERE ELSE in the world today is there an aircraft factory like the one you may visit in your imagination with me today. It is an "ideal" factory—laid out on blueprints that showed the placing of every machine tool long before the first earth was turned or foot of concrete was poured. It is a factory established for one job only—the making of vast numbers of B-24 bombing planes. These are one of the two heavy long-range types of airplanes that the nation must depend upon for striking thru the air at its enemies. When this plant really begins to roll in the typically American kind of mass production for which it was designed it will make more four-motored bombers in a month than have been made hitherto in the history of the whole world.

These are conservative statements. What proof is there? you ask. One proof is that this plant is one of Henry Ford's contributions to national defense. His engineers, who have been able to set up factories and production lines that turn out 5,000 Ford automobiles in a single day, designed this factory and also designed most of the jigs or "fixtures" that already are being utilized in making bomber parts. Their conservative statements are that when they begin to function they will produce finished bombers, ready to fly, around the clock.

What does it matter that these bombers have wing spans of 110 feet or that they are complex structures weighing 13 tons empty and close to 25 tons when loaded? Instead of a moving line carrying parts to make a 3,500-pound vehicle—like the Ford family sedan—there are overhead cranes that will move together wings, hulls, engines, control surfaces, and landing gear for an aerial equipage weighing eight times more. Instead of stamping out whole automobile bodies, plus fenders, in one operation, huge vises (the aircraft industry calls these jigs) hold duralumin bars and webs in place while they are riveted together to form a wing structure. Even these can be mass-produced, the engineers say.

There is little similarity between any part of the bomber and an automobile. But the key to the situation is the fact that the bomber is a machine—and the Ford engineers are familiar with machines. They know how to make them in large numbers quickly and how to eliminate hand labor from the process. They know how to make all the parts of (Continued on page eight.)

CASH FOR CROWNS!

THE AMAZING STORY OF A GOLD RUSH IN REVERSE—WHEN AMERICAN HEIRESSES TRADED FORTUNES FOR TITLES

By MARCIA WINN
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York.

LONG, LONG AGO, before America ever heard of the duchess of Windsor, the American for whom Edward VIII. renounced a throne, three American girls were within breathing distance of three separate thrones in Europe. One dreamed of being queen of Portugal, another of Albania, and the third of Hungary. One went so far as to have her coronation robe embroidered in New York.

That none succeeded is merely an inevitable dénouement to their part in the great comic opera beginning in America at the turn of the century when many of America's greatest fortunes were used to bulwark the tottering thrones of Europe. The plot of the opera was thin and as old as social ambition—the passion of American heiresses for a resounding European title and the reciprocal passion of titled Europeans for any American heiress.

No throne was too rocky, no kingdom too small, no claim to noble lineage too preposterous to be endowed by the millions of an American heiress. Many a rich American girl was as ardent in her quest of a coronet as was Parsifal in his quest of the Holy Grail. The race for titles extended across the Atlantic into Greece, Portugal, Austria, Hungary, Italy, Germany, and Great Britain, and into the race as stakes for conquest were tossed controlling interests in American newspapers, copper mines, oil fields, railroads, tinplate, steel, and land. Many of these stakes still are governed by the kinsmen or descendants of international marital alliances.

Into it stormed the great names of American wealth—Vanderbilt, Gould, Drexel, Whitney, Astor, Leiter, Mills, Thaw, Stewart, Smith, Goelet, Breese, Stallo, Field, ad infinitum. One heiress paid $10,000,000 for a crown she never gained. Another paid $7,500,000 that her son might be a German prince, which he never was. The mother of a third paid $5,000,000 that her daughter might be the bride of a duke she despised, and she, the mother, become the arbiter of continental society, a goal which she attained.

The whole colossal fable could be illustrated equally well by the equation of heiress + title = divorce, or by the ancient law of diminishing returns. Survivors of the alliances now are trickling back to America, old, battered, clinging to Pekingese and the remnants of their wealth, to exchange their ancient titles for American citizenship.

In retrospect it seems high farce, as amusing as it was tragic. European syndicates financed the wooing by an impoverished nobleman—any nobleman would do—of the heiress. Occasionally the wooing debt would be presented to the bride on her royal honeymoon, as was the case with Anita Stewart, who was married to Prince Miguel de Braganza.

This alliance took place in the Scottish highlands in 1909 just as all London was attending a play, "The Dollar Princess." The bride, daughter of William Rhinelander Stewart of New York, wore a fabulous pearl robe once worn by a shah of Persia, and the crowned heads of Europe attended. The prince was the son of the pretender to the throne of Portugal, but had to renounce his claims to marry Miss Stewart. For this her mother, by this time the widow of James Henry (Silent) Smith, Chicago millionaire, gave him a consideration of $3,000,000, the prince having made as much of his renunciation as if he had surrendered a really tangible prospect, but in atonement Franz Josef made Anita a princess of the Austrian empire.

The marriage went well for six days, until the bridal couple was ensconced in the Austrian hunting lodge of Archduchess Marie Theresa, aunt of the prince and sister-in-law of the emperor. A syndicate of Vienna creditors then sued for $1,000,000. The new princess was further embarrassed when she found she must repay the money Braganza had borrowed to come in suitable splendor to the Scottish highlands for his wedding.

For one brief, evanescent month Princess Anita dreamed of being a queen. This was during the Portuguese revolution which brought about the overthrow of King Manuel's rickety throne. A Braganza family council was called on the frontiers of Austria, and it was decided that despite Prince Miguel's renunciation of rights he could easily be put on the vacant throne of Portugal if a million dollars was placed in the hands of his family as sinews of war. The entire family voted with beautiful determination that the princess' mother, Mrs. Smith, should have this golden opportunity to give $1,000,000, and promptly telegraphed her. Her answer came as a considerable shock. She refused.

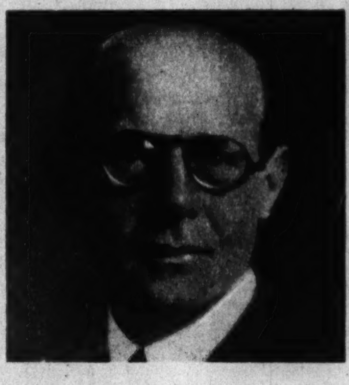
Then there was an Indiana girl who almost became mpetress or mpetrine of Albania. She was equipped with all the requisites of an Albanian monarch—an ocean-going steam yacht in which to make the inevitable flight into exile and a coronation robe embroidered with Byzantine eagles—but she never attained a throne.

This was Nonnie May Stewart, the first American woman to become a princess of a reigning family, who started out in life as secretary to William B. Leeds, the tinplate millionaire. Leeds paid his first wife $1,000,000 for a divorce and married Nonnie three days later. Upon her he heaped $1,000,000 in jewels, a $300,000 string of pink pearls, a 5th avenue mansion, and a yacht. Then, unfortunately, he died, leaving her $25,000,000 in cash.

Nonnie was not single long. Every improvident title in Europe soon was at her feet as she, alone on her queenly yacht, steamed in and out of continental society. In 1919, after careful consideration, she married Prince Christopher of Greece and assumed a name far more commensurate with her station than the homely one of Nonnie. She became Princess Anastasia, known more tenderly in Greece, where she spent $10,000,000 restoring her new brother-in-law, Constantine, to the throne, as the "dollar princess." There were even some unkind wits who referred to this match as the "Greek-check-o" alliance.

As by marriage she could claim remote and bloodless kinship with George V. of England, Victoria of Spain, ex-Kaiser Wilhelm II., and Alexander of Greece, she took to that marriage a $300,000 trousseau containing 90 new dresses. The royal family of Greece, in turn, sent a Greek destroyer out to meet her yacht.

The princess quickly became thoroly Hellenized. She hoped to make Greece into a super-Monte Carlo, and, that failing, succeeded in averting a strike of Greek government officials by opening a credit for the government of $7,300,000. She had high hopes of marrying her son, William B. Leeds Jr., to Princess Olga, eldest daughter of Prince Nicholas, but Queen Sophia shattered this, with the glum ultimatum, "There is enough common blood in the family now." She did succeed, however, in marrying him to Xenia, a penniless princess royal of the inoperative Russian Romanoffs, and altho he later married the daughter of a Philadelphia steel worker whom he rescued when she tumbled off an Atlantic City boardwalk, the Princess Anastasia died while his first alliance was still undisrupted by divorce. But before her death from cirrhosis of the liver in 1924 she almost wore the crown of Albania. The Greek dynasty toyed with the idea of placing her and Christopher on the throne as a token of their regard for her millions. She was ready even unto a resplendent coronation robe, but her royal in-laws demurred. "They toadied to me because they needed my cash," she said in angry dismay, "but now they seem ashamed of me."



Nevertheless the whole Greek royal family gathered at her deathbed, and she left her prince the residue of her fortune. It was less than $1,500,000.

In the same era, the early '20s, the American and European press had screaming headlines of another American woman who was about to become a queen. This was the former Gladys Vanderbilt, daughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt, who in 1908 was married to Count Laszlo Szechenyi. Szechenyi was not penniless when he married the $10,000,000 heiress, but by comparison with her estates the $60,000 a year he received from his battered estates in Hungary paled into insignificance.

The count's family was only distantly connected with the Hungarian royal family, but it had borne its title for 300 years, and the ensuing union of his title with Miss Vanderbilt's wealth took place in a 5th avenue wedding that 20 years later still was dubbed a social landmark. Titles from all Europe streamed in attendance. Before it took place the count and Miss Vanderbilt signed a contract to share their fortunes, and after it took place $5,000,000 was sent from New York and deposited to their account in Budapest.

The new countess soon took a strong hand in Hungarian affairs. One day, annoyed when the rattle of nearby tram cars penetrated into the depths of her palace, she gave the city of Budapest $50,000 to have the tracks removed to a more distant street. During the World war her American holdings, estimated at $9,000,000, were seized by the United States, but later were returned. Of their four children the youngest was born during the war, when they were in exile in Switzerland. A ton of clay was transported from Hungary and placed beneath the countess' bed so that she could say each of her children had been born on Hungarian soil.

Her approach to the throne came in 1924 when the count was Hungarian minister to the United States. A movement was under way in Hungary to restore the monarchy, but the entente powers forbade a Hapsburg coming back to the throne. Certain circles favored the prince of Teck, but the entire Hungarian aristocracy and military caste presumably sought to create a throne for Szechenyi. The movement was abortive, however, and the count died uncrowned in 1938.

One princely Italian family, the ancient house of Rospigliosi, managed to corner four American heiresses. They married with devastating financial success.

One, Prince Francesco, married Laura Stallo of Cincinnati, granddaughter of Alexander McDonald, the Standard Oil tycoon. As her sister Helen had married Prince Michael Murat, this brought two impoverished titles into the Stallo fold. For a while the new Princess Laura and her husband did well; they went on arctic cruises and African game hunts. Eventually, by inexplicable fate, the princess' fortune dwindled and was gone. So, too, by inexplicable coincidence, was her prince. She opened a hat store and beauty parlor and lived on borrowed money. Then she came home to America to be hostess at a Park avenue hotel. Her prince never reappeared, and in 1931 she divorced him. Not long ago she presented her daughters to New York society. Each is well equipped with a title and their mother's beauty, the only possessions she was able to pass on to them.

Another Rospigliosi, Prince Ludovico, married Mildred Hazeltine in 1904. This enterprise, endowed with the bride's great fortune, lasted a brief eight years. She acquired the courtesy title of princess, which permitted her to finance the prince's family and his extramarital adventures, but in 1912 she revolted, loudly proclaiming it a "mariage de convenance" on the part of her husband.

Mabelle Gilman Corey . . . engagement broken.

A third, Prince Gianbattista, married Ethel Bronson of New York. She, too, took a large dowry to Italy. When she died in Rome 25 years later she had $90,000 left. It, too, went to her prince.

• • •

Only one Rospigliosi, Giuseppe, presumably did not marry in pursuit of fortune, altho his bride, Mary Jennings Reid of New Orleans, was immeasurably wealthy. He was the head of the prolific family and an ageing bachelor, and his marriage brought considerable pain to the clan which he had been supporting. Thereupon neither the clan nor Roman society recognized his marriage. As a token of his love and wealth—the new princess having publicly proclaimed, "I am one American girl who is being married for love!"—the prince gave his bride a string of pearls which Louis XIV. gave to Mlle. Mancini, niece of Cardinal Mazarin. She once lent these to an exhibition with a card saying, "Pearls of the Princess of Rospigliosi." The committee changed the card to "Pearls of the House of Rospigliosi." The unhappy princess than withdrew both the pearls and her person from public sight.

If an American heiress were born to great wealth she usually would give it as dowry to any nobleman who came her marital way. If she acquired it by marriage and divorce, she often was canny. This was true of Mabelle Gilman Corey, once the toast of Broadway and divorced wife of William E. Corey, steel magnate. She was remarkable among expatriate Americans in that for four years she was engaged to one of the noblest titles of Europe and then tossed it aside because of its owner's monetary demands.

• • •

Mabelle Gilman was a noted Broadway beauty of the '90s. Ten years after she first starred in "The Runaway Girl" in 1897 she was married to Corey, a self-made millionaire who started out at $40 a month in the Pennsylvania coal mines. Like Leeds, the tinplate millionaire, and his Nonnie May, Corey's romance with Mabelle was immediate, chaotic, and extravagant. It, too, necessitated a divorce on the millionaire's part, with remarriage three days after the decree. One of his first gifts to her was a $75,000 Russian sable coat, then billed as the costliest coat ever made in America. He also gave her a 5th avenue mansion filled with treasures garnered from the ends of the earth, a château at Villengenis, France (once, showing a guest thru it, she indicated the room where Jerome Bonaparte died in 1860, and sighed, "Kings have lived here before me; a king died here"), and a $2,000,000 cash settlement when she divorced him 17 years later.

So wide was the fame of Mabelle's beauty that when a Paris surgeon later transformed her generous lips into a Cupid's bow, known as "the sewn smile," the operation was described in minute detail and emulated the world over.

After her divorce, rich and still beautiful, she was pursued by many title bearers. For a brief while she was engaged to the Duca di Isola, a young Sicilian nobleman, but the next year, 1925, she announced her engagement to Prince Luis de Bourbon, cousin of Alfonso XIII. and son of Mabelle's good friend, the Infanta Eulalia. For four years the engagement struggled on. Finally, a week before the date announced for the marriage, Mabelle broke it.

"I met Don Luis on my honeymoon," she said tearfully to the press. "We have loved each other for 20 years. It is hard, but it is impossible to turn the sacrament of marriage into a bargain counter."

Gradually distasteful details leaked out. Mabelle had an income of $3,500 a month from her $2,000,000. Of this she offered Don Luis $1,000 a month. It was not enough. Moreover, he wanted an irrevocable marriage settlement, whereas she wished it to endure only as long as their life together. Financial frost . . .

The next year the prince married the Princess Amedee de Broglie, member of one of the oldest families of the French nobility. She was 71, 30 years his senior.

Next Sunday—Anna Gould and her two French noblemen.

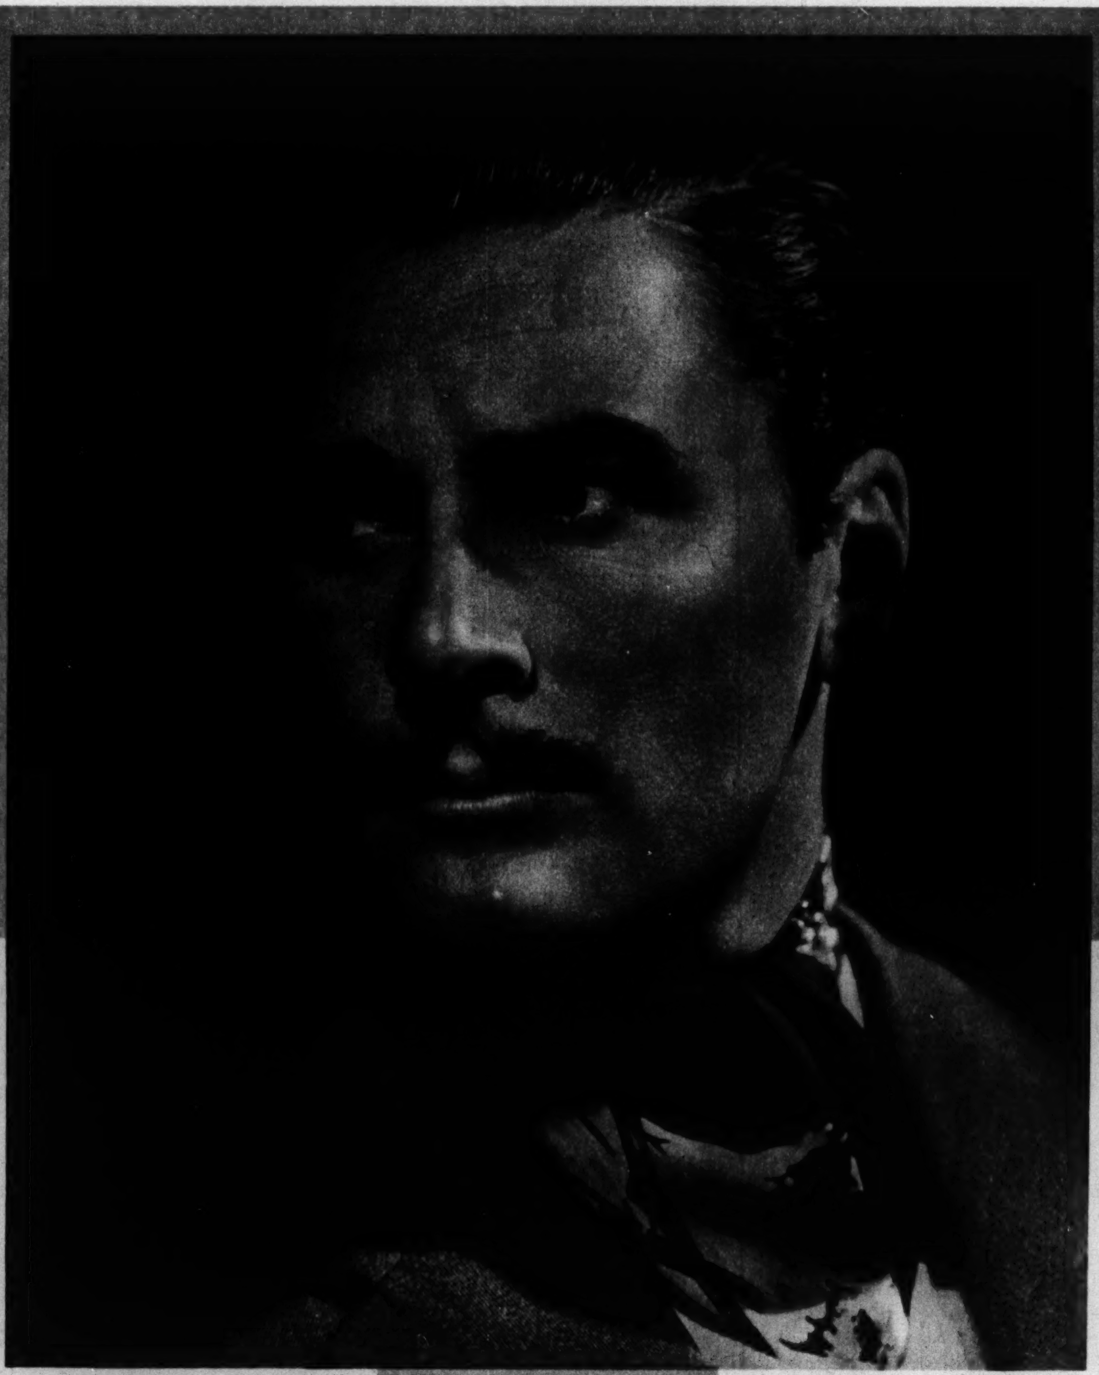
THE ERROL OF HIS WAYS



Errol Flynn with Olivia De Havilland in "They Died with Their Boots On."

A Very Individual Young Man Is Actor Flynn

Hollywood.

ERROL FLYNN is all alone, now that Lili Damita and their baby have left. All alone in a beautiful house, with nobody around except a cook, a butler, a character named Buster Wiles, a dog, a horse, and a tame sea gull named Randy who considers himself the sole proprietor of the swimming pool.

Flynn in his wildly varied career once studied a bit of architecture, and the house is the result. And it really is a beautiful place—unpretentious, smart, modern, and not overdecorated. It isn't like the movie executive's home described by Ring Lardner in "The Love Nest," where the living room "was five laps to the mile and suggestive of an Atlantic City auction sale."

The home is on a hilltop off Mulholland drive, the ridge road which separates seacoast communities from the Valley. Far below the house lies the Warner studio, where Flynn has worked up to an unbelievable but real $6,000 a week. Errol could literally hop down to work in a glider from the edge of the small pool fronting the house, but of course it would be a nuisance getting the thing back up the hill for the next morning's start. Speaking of his view of the factory, Flynn says, "On a clear day you can hear an option drop."

A couple of years ago Flynn, who has done quite a lot of writing, wrote a story which the studio bought — but has never produced. With this money the actor bought a big hunk of hill property. His first experiment in architecture was the stables, 'way down the hill. They worked out all right, so he began on house designs. Knocking wood, he says:

"I haven't made a mistake. Everything came out even—but I found I had an extra room I didn't know about when the place was finished. It's very handy."

• • •

Randy, the sea gull, was trapped by Flynn on his yacht—with a noose, Australian fashion. Sea gulls are the goats of the bird world and will eat anything. Randy dozes by the pool most of the day, but knows exactly when the cook and butler have cleared off a meal, and he scuttles around to the kitchen door for the scraps. He keeps the garden clear of bugs, too. Occasionally, wanting a change of diet, Randy will cruise out to the ocean early in the morning and come back with a big fish for breakfast. But he is getting so fat that it is hard for him to take off any more.

Flynn won't talk about domestic affairs, nor of Lili's complaint that he had interests in and aboard his yacht rather than in her and the child.

"Let sleeping dogs lie," he says. "That's all over—water over the dam."

What he did talk with me about—and for the first time for publication — was his effort to get into the army and the sudden, shocking, and hurtful discovery that he was physically unfit. It's a jolt to anybody to learn of a serious ailment that hadn't been suspected. Hollywood is a cynical place, and during the last couple of months there have been many—and all of them civilians — who have said:

"Why isn't that handsome athlete, who's so brave in pictures, in the army?"

Well, Errol tried and got bounced; but he has been trying some more, working in Washington to get a waiver on his disability—and by now he may be in the service.

In January Flynn decided for war.

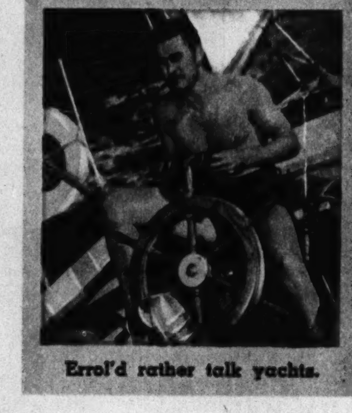
"I thought I could do some good in the army—more good than staying here being a star and paying big taxes," he explained. He figured that Ireland would be the spot where he'd be most useful, and he figured rightly that there'd be a big AEF there. He is Irish and as an actor is popular in Ireland. At the time I talked with him his final U. S. citizenship papers were due any day. Also importantly for his plan, his father, Prof. Theodore Thomson Flynn, a biologist at Queen's college, University of Belfast, is highly regarded in both the north and south of Ireland.

So Flynn's notion was good and was so considered in Washington. Even the President knew of it and was favorable. Errol took his physical examination along with several score colored draftees—and was rejected. He laughs about it now because he has courage, and says, "Imagine me, the great hero, getting turned down!"

The Warner studio biography says Flynn was born 33 years ago come June 20 in Antrim, North Ireland. The date is right, but the place isn't. Errol was born in Hobart, Tasmania, where his parents were on a trip. His middle name is Leslie.

ERROL FLYNN

The house that Flynn built.



Errol'd rather talk yachts.

Errol's education has been good—and varied. He went to St. Paul's and South Western in London, the North Shore grammar school in Sydney, Australia, and King's school in Ireland. When he was 17 he went with his father on a scientific expedition to Tasmania—but his father parked him in the Sydney school. This was in 1926, when new gold discoveries had been made in New Guinea. Errol wanted some gold, so he hung around the Sydney water front, finally managed to sign on a three-master as second cook and cabin boy. The ship headed for New Guinea and Port Moresby, which is a headline town these days.

Errol didn't get any gold. The fields were in a wilderness back country, and he didn't have any money to get equipment together. So he became a cop. A six-footer even then, Flynn lied about his age, adding four years, and became a member of the constabulary. He had about a year of being a constable, and it was an exciting one, for frequently there would have to be an expedition into the jungle territory of wild tribesmen and head hunters. Then he got a job as overseer of a copra plantation.

Flynn began writing articles on his experiences and sending them to a Sydney paper. He got paid, and he put this money by in case of an attack of itching feet. When he had about $1,500 he bought a small boat, the Kavieng. Then he went back to Sydney and entered the tryouts for the Olympic games boxing team. He won a spot on the team and represented Australia in the 1928 Olympics in Amsterdam. He went thru three bouts, then was knocked out by a great fighter—America's Eddie Eagan.

After the Olympics Errol went visiting his family in Ireland, then back to New Guinea for another try at gold. This time he found a good claim and sold it to an Australian syndicate for $10,000 cash and $50,000 in stock. The stock became worthless. So did the cash pretty soon.

"It was a fine party while it lasted," says Errol.

The only concrete thing he had left was a ketch, Sirocco. With three friends he set out in the ketch to make money however they could. They dived for pearls, they traded copra, they even went blackbirding—recruiting native labor for the mines. Out of these experiences came Flynn's book "Beam Ends."

A German photographer and explorer hired Flynn to guide him up the Sepik river into the head hunter country. This was a great adventure, and the German recorded it on film. Back in Sydney the pictures were developed and an Australian movie producer got one look at Flynn and offered him a job. It was the lead in "In the Wake of the Bounty"—the story of Fletcher Christian and Captain Bligh. The movie has never been shown here, for it would have interfered with Charles Laughton's celebrated "Mutiny on the Bounty." But it did get shown in England.

Errol followed the film to England, determined to have a career as an actor. He began with the Northampton repertory company and the Malvern festival; finally hit London in John Drinkwater's "A Man's House." A Warner talent scout arranged a screen test and late in 1934 Flynn was on his way to Hollywood.

On the boat was Marie Madeleine Carre, French musical comedy star, known on Broadway as Lili Damita. The studio's version of their romance is: "They met, fought, became friends, fought, became engaged, fought, got married, fought, were reconciled, and then finally separated."

In "Who's Who in America" Flynn states that he married Miss Damita in May, 1935. She got her divorce last April, and custody of their infant son, Sean.

Errol's Hollywood movie career began with his playing a corpse in "The Case of the Curious Bride." It was "Captain Blood" which made him a star, and one of the busiest and most highly paid in the trade.

Looking at Hollywood with John Chapman

Errol recently finished "Desperate Journey," a film about war aviators. What he does next depends on his success or lack of it in getting into the army. If he does another picture it will be the film biography of Gentleman Jim Corbett, who was a boxer, too.

Flynn's closest friends are Johnny Meyer of the Warner press department and Buster Wiles, a fairly fabulous stunt man. Buster lives with Flynn. He's a happy guy who looks much older than his 32 years because he's completely bald. Got that way from a high fever when he was a kid.

Buster has been in the stunt business for a long time and remembers when a fellow had to fall down two flights of stairs and land on a picket fence for five takes to make 10 bucks. Walking on an airplane wing might get $100. Now the life is better paid but less dangerous —altho Buster did drive a car over a cliff for "New Orleans Blues."

The silliest of his recent tasks was strapping a lead plate on the seat of his bathing trunks, sitting at the bottom of a studio tank, and putting live fish on Thomas Mitchell's fishhook for a scene in "Out of the Fog."

"All I had to do was come up for fresh air and a fresh fish every once in a while," he says. "It was an easy 50 bucks.

"Why, in the old days for 50 bucks a stunt man would come down in a parachute and ride off on a bicycle. . . . There were 32 top stunt men in 1930. There are only seven left, and nearly all of these have retired and taken to ranching."

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I read your column every Sunday, and I find it very interesting. I like the way you respond to your readers. You show your appreciation toward those who mean well, and you know how to make flouters feel like a bunch of fools.

Now, I'm not trying to be a flouter, but I would like to tell you that while reading some of your reviews sometimes I wonder if there isn't just a touch of the amateur in your work.

For instance: You said that Rita Hayworth didn't have technique in the picture "Blood and Sand," and I think that that was her best picture. You seemed to like Joan Crawford in "When Ladies Meet," and I do believe that Miss Crawford was most ineffective in said rôle. On the other hand, in your estimation Alice Faye was sort of bovine in "That Night in Rio." Well, if she's bovine I must say that oxen are mighty pretty people.

I mean no offense. I only wanted to speak my piece. After all, we don't all think alike, do we?

Good luck, and may your column continue to have a long and prosperous run. Most sincerely,

A DEVOTED ADMIRER.

Dear Devoted Admirer: Maybe you've hit the nail on the head! Anyhow, welcome! And come again!

Dear Mae: The movie reviewer travels a hard road. He can't please every one and seldom does —that would be superhuman. Every person likes to think his ideas on any particular thing are "biggest and best," altho as one achieves intellectual stature he must come to realize individual differences and respect them.

Thus when some individual such as J. R. McBride, who at least has an adult vocabulary, exhibits such bad taste in his recent letter, I appreciate your position to a still greater extent. Personally I have always found your reviews interesting, intelligent, and notably tolerant. We occasionally disagree, naturally, but that is no excuse for name-calling.

So keep up the good work, and let us hope—if only for his own sake—that McBride emerges from his intellectual adolescence in the very near future. Sincerely,

BOB SCHREIBER.

Dear Mr. Schreiber: I thank you most sincerely for your championing.

Dear Miss Tinée: I would be very grateful if you would please tell me what part Lana Turner played in "Love Finds Andy Hardy." Would you please print a picture of her also? I think your column is tops. Sincerely yours,

FLORINE LENZ.

Lana Turner

Dear Miss Lenz: You're tops to come spinning in with your encouraging comment! Lana Turner played the rôle of Cynthia in "Love Finds Andy Hardy."

Dear Mae Tinée: Mother and I would like to know the names of the pictures that Ray McDonald has played in. We do enjoy his dancing so much, and he has such a pleasing personality also. Thank you.

S. FLOOD.

Dear Mr. Flood: Films in which Ray McDonald has appeared are "Down in San Diego," "Life Begins for Andy Hardy," "Babes on Broadway," and "Born to Sing."

MacArthur Learns About War

This is the second in a series of articles about Gen. Douglas MacArthur—Man of Destiny. The first traced his family background, the brilliant career of his father, Gen. Arthur MacArthur, and Douglas' own spectacular career at West Point.

By WALTER TROHAN

Washington, D. C.

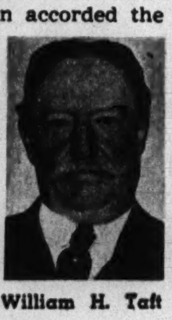
DOUGLAS MacARTHUR stepped out of West Point much as the goddess Minerva is said to have leaped from the brain of mighty Jupiter, fully grown and in complete armor. His character was formed and his personality developed. It was easy for him to make and hold friends, but in addition he possessed that magic quality which he was to display in times of stress which strain men's souls—he was already marked by fortune as a leader of men.

He was not a finished soldier by any means or yet thoroly equipped for his trade. But the training he had received was the best his country could give. The rest was up to him. And MacArthur soon began paying dividends. The study of his life has a peculiar charm in that it appears to be an unbroken string of military good fortune, but when each individual incident is examined it is found that MacArthur so seized upon opportunity that he appears time and time again as his own fortune's advance guard.

As this series on the life of the man of Bataan enters on his early career as a soldier, it would seem that this phase of his life should be examined by a fellow member of the profession of arms. In this connection it may be recalled that the place of Ulysses S. Grant among the great captains of all time was not properly estimated until his life had been appraised by men of military experience who picked up pens to say of Grant, "This was a man."

Thus may it be with MacArthur. Military men will later examine his early years and determine how much those years contributed to his methods of war and to his capacity as a soldier. Until such time as men of experience tackle this task, present-day readers must make their own appraisal of the weight of MacArthur's responsibilities on one hand and the mass of his capabilities on the other. And so, while a reporter attempting the life of MacArthur may be accused of presumption, he can supply the background and leave the interpretation to readers until such time as the rare, qualified military biographer measures the achievements of this military character.

Douglas MacArthur completed his years at West Point with a grand gesture, the first of the many that stick out and give more luster to his military career than the medals on his chest. On June 11, 1903, when he accepted his commission as a second lieutenant — the diploma of West Point — from the hand of Secretary of War Elihu Root, MacArthur saluted, did a smart about-face, and marched straight to where his father, Maj. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, sat, flushed with pride at the cheers the classmates of his son accorded the No. 1 man of the class and the cadet first captain. Beside the general, Mrs. MacArthur dabbed at her shining eyes with a bit of lace.



William H. Taft

MacArthur put the diploma in his father's hand with "It's really yours, dad; you earned it for me." And he sat down at his father's feet. The general dropped a hand on his son's shoulder—he could not speak—to let him know that he understood. Arthur MacArthur had been destined for West Point when the Civil war broke out, and he entered the army thru the ranks and thruout his days nursed a regret for the academy life he missed.

One cloud marred the occasion for the MacArthurs that day. It was that the son was to go to the Philippines—not for any dislike of the islands, but because William Howard Taft was their governor general. When Gen. MacArthur was in the Philippines as military governor general of the islands Taft headed a civilian commission and later in 1901 became the first civil governor general of the Philippines. There was constant friction between the soldier and the politician, and the ceremony at which MacArthur surrendered his military control to the first governor was most frigid. The general was irked at "political meddling" and Taft at what he termed "military harshness."

Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo's inaugural parade as first president of the Philippines, two years before his capture by United States troops. Aguinaldo was a bitter enemy of Arthur MacArthur.

In recent years when MacArthur was beset by troubles in his attempts to build a Filipino army — particularly criticism from his father's old enemy, Aguinaldo—the general would unloose a more or less mellow baritone to intone a song written about his father's Philippine plight. One verse runs:

I am Mac—and that's a fact,
As you must surely know—
Appointed by McKinley, Bill,
To run this blooming show.
I've been out here an entire year,
And haven't done a thing,
But I cable home, "The war is o'er,"
And to myself I sing:
"Am I the boss or am I a fool?
Am I the governor general or a hobo?
And I'd like to know who's boss of this show—
It is me—not Emilio Auginaldo!"

But the MacArthurs did not long let the cloud of Taft darken their joy. They enjoyed several weeks together before Douglas was due to sail for the Philippines and report for duty as a second lieutenant with Company I of the 3d battalion of engineers. During the weeks MacArthur plied his father with endless questions about the islands and learned all he could of the country he was to serve in.

• • •

Ninety days after he had received his commission, MacArthur had said his farewells and was aboard a ship to the Philippines. Not long later he got his first glimpse of wooded Bataan as his ship entered Manila bay thru the south channel, gliding past Caballo Island. Off the north was grim Corregidor and beyond the green clad slopes of Bataan, unmindful of destiny.

October, 1903, found MacArthur on Guimaras Island, a small island lying between much larger Panay and Negros islands. A detachment of his company had been given the task of clearing the island of resistance and building a wharf, sea walls, and roads thru the lush jungle growth. It was here the youthful MacArthur received his baptism of fire at the age of 23.

One afternoon MacArthur was in charge of a detail tunneling thru the jungle to permit the laying of surveying lines. Out of the fetid green growth came the roar of a gun. MacArthur's campaign hat was lifted from his head, tho the strap was tucked under his chin. He flung himself to the soggy ground, as did his men. When the expected attack failed to materialize, a sergeant picked up the lieutenant's campaign hat and fingered a bullet hole in the crown, loosing a speculative whistle. The men gathered around.

The bullet-torn hat held MacArthur's gaze. The sergeant, mindful of what was racing thru the young officer's head, said, "From now on, lieutenant, you're living on velvet." MacArthur took the hat and muttered a "yeah" to the sergeant as he put it on his head. Then, turning to the men, he issued the command, "As you were, men." And went on with the day's work.

MacArthur did his work so well and so thoroly that he won his first promotion six months later. He was made a first lieutenant in April, 1904, and in November of that year returned to the United States. The year in the islands is memorable for his baptism of fire, his first contact with the territory in which he was to play such a great part in world history, and because it was here that he first met the men who were to play a great part in his later life—Aguinaldo, Manuel Quezon, and Capt. John Joseph Pershing, who made a reputation for himself in battling the wily Moros on the island of Mindanao.

The official war department record of MacArthur's first service in the Philippines reads:

"Assistant to engineer officer, department of the Visayas, Iloilo, P. I., Oct., 1903, to March, 1904—survey of Camp Bumpus, Tacloban, Leyte; of Camp Connell, Calbayog, Samar, and of Cebu reservation, Cebu, Cebu; in charge of construction work at Guimaras Island, P. I., wharf, sea walls, roads, etc.; disbursing officer and assistant to the chief engineer's officer, Philippine division, Manila, P. I., Feb. 25, 1904, to October, 1904; survey of Caloocan, Luzon, P. I., and Mariveles, Luzon, P. I.

• • •

At the end of the busy year, which gave him an intimate knowledge of a section of the islands, MacArthur was assigned to duties in the Pacific division, which was commanded by his father. He was attached to the headquarters of the division as aide de camp to his father. While he owed this appointment to influence, he made the most of the opportunity put in his path.

Arthur MacArthur had brought his son home because there was war brewing in the Pacific, not to take that son out of the war zone, but to take him in. Friction between Japan and Russia broke into war on Feb. 8, 1904. The war marks one of the great turning points in history because it was a contest between Asia and Europe and because it was a challenge to western supremacy in Asia. The challenge was not so much one to the Russian bear which had sprawled over northern Asia as to the English system, which had soared into the orient in building an empire.

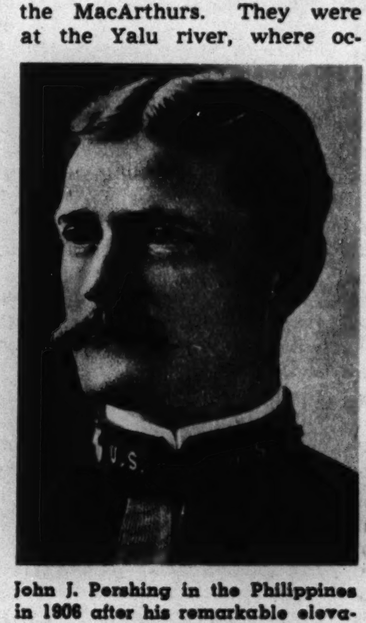
The war marks an important development in American history. At first President Theodore Roosevelt threw his sympathy with Japan, feeling that Russia's expansion in the Pacific area must be checked. The same attitude was taken by England and France. Only when it became apparent with Japanese victories that western or British supremacy was being challenged in Asia was a drive developed to end the war. President Roosevelt initiated the peace negotiations, which were concluded at Portsmouth, N. H. Some observers feel the peace overtures were a mistake because they came just as Russia was about to turn the tide. Tho they won the war, the Japs are generally conceded to have lost the peace of Portsmouth.

At any length the war is important because it marked British cultivation of the United States. The English worked assiduously to repair bad feeling occasioned by their efforts to split the Union in the Civil war, and worked to build an ally who could be counted upon to attempt to maintain the status quo in the Pacific. History records the success of the efforts, which were made possible by the stake this country had acquired in the southwest Pacific in the Spanish-American war—the Philippines.

Arthur MacArthur was named official American observer to the army of the Son of Heaven and took young Douglas along as his aide. The general was selected because of the knowledge he had gained of the area in his tour of duty in the islands. Father and son proceeded to Tokio.

The Japs struck with stealth and provided the treacherous pattern for Pearl Harbor. Jap torpedo boats surprised the Russian squadron in Port Arthur and inflicted serious losses. As at Pearl Harbor, there was no declaration of war before the attack. Tho the Russian squadron was not destroyed, it was paralyzed by the daring attack of Vice Admiral Togo. Later Admiral Makaroff attempted to take the fleet out. He was lured into a Jap mine field and the Petropavlovsk was struck and went down with the admiral and 600 men aboard and another battleship was seriously damaged.

Then began Jap land operations, which were followed by the MacArthurs. They were at the Yalu river, where occurred one of the most amazing incidents of modern warfare. An advance body of 1,000 Jap troops seeking contact with the Russian forces found that the enemy had crossed the river and was drawn up on the opposite bank. This was reported to the Jap headquarters and brought orders for the advance body to fall back and join the main army.



John J. Pershing in the Philippines in 1906 after his remarkable elevation to rank of brigadier general from captain.

The Japs could not comprehend that they were being ordered back in preparation for an assault on the Russians. They felt that they had disgraced themselves and were being recalled to be held up in shame to the army. To the 1,000 Japs there was only one course out—suicide. The 1,000 men committed wholesale hara-kiri to make the river flow with blood.

This went into the dispatches Gen. MacArthur sent home. So did the Jap assault on Port Arthur, where they witnessed the first attempt in history to storm a fortress protected by magazine rifles, machine guns, and quick firing artillery. One night at 11 o'clock Gen. Nogi, the Jap commander, ordered a general assault on the northeast front of the fort.

MacArthur's account of the charge is not available, but it could have been no more picturesque than that of Nojine, a Russian officer. He wrote:

"A living avalanche of men rolled irresistibly toward us, and from the valley, ditch, and ravine the Japanese appeared. Rifles cracked, machine guns spluttered, guns boomed again, and the air was turned into an inferno of shrieking missiles. The rays of the searchlights flashed up and down . . . blinding the heroic little infantrymen who were attacking us. They ran forward, fell, jumped up again, and pressed on in groups together. The noise became a horrible blur of sound—shouts, moans, and cheers—clash of arms and detonations. But at last it ended; the clamor gradually died away; the attack had been repulsed. In front of us not a living soul remained—only dead—piles of dead and wounded men. Never shall I forget that night."

• • •

Twelve hundred men started in that charge. Only 18 survived.

At 2 a. m. Gen. Nogi signaled another attack, this time with a larger force. Thousands of men poured up the slope into the mouths of Russian guns. At last the Japs rolled up to the breach in the wall and thru the breach, where they were stopped. In five days the Japs lost 15,000 men storming the breach, and the Russians lost 3,000 in its defense. This fanatical bravery occasioned the wonder of the MacArthurs.

How much their dispatches influenced President Theodore Roosevelt in reaching the decision he had played the wrong horse is not known. It is known that the MacArthurs recognized the Japs as a serious threat in the orient and so warned the commander in chief. A similar view was taken by Capt. John Pershing, military attaché to Tokio, who saw part of the campaign in Manchuria. After the war Pershing was promoted over 862 officers from captain to brigadier general, a leap that shook the army. Again the path of MacArthur and Pershing crossed.

At the battle of Mukden, Douglas MacArthur threw aside the rôle of observer and became a participant in the conflict. In that great battle some 310,000 Russians and an equal number of Japs were locked in the struggle. The Russians were behind entrenchments much as were the soldiers of the Confederacy at Petersburg in the last months of the American Civil war. Borrowing Grant's strategy, the Japs outmaneuvered the Russians and won a victory. The Russians lost almost 100,000 men in that prolonged contest and the Japs about half as many.

At one corner of the field—the hottest—young MacArthur was following a Jap attempt to storm a hill held by the Russians. A Jap company made six desperate charges up a steep hill. Each time they were driven back by stubborn Russian resistance. As the shattered Japs were taking stock of their plight, MacArthur discovered that they were without an officer and about to give up the attempt.

Remembering that the seventh attempt has been considered lucky for Scotsmen ever since the spider inspired Robert Bruce to make a seventh attempt for his crown, MacArthur rushed to the Jap company, pointed the way to the top of the hill, and led the company in a last and

THIS IS ANOTHER OF A SERIES DRAMATIZING THE EVERYDAY LIFE OF YOUNG AMERICA

THE girls crowded around the bulletin board in the main hall, and Lynn Taylor unconsciously fluffed her fingers thru her hair as she read.

"Sounds all right," she murmured half to herself, "but I wonder if I could get Saturdays off if I wanted to go up to the lake for the week-end?"

"That's just the kind of a job for you," said Dick Blackburn, who was standing beside her with her books under his arm. "Especially the modeling part."

Several of the others girls heard Lynn talking and walked off, shrugging their shoulders.

"If Lynn is gunning for the job I guess that leaves me out," one remarked. "I'd stand as good a chance against Betty Grable."

"It will be fun to see what happens, tho—I heard Ginie Owen say the other day that she was going to try to get a summer job," her friend replied.

The notice on the bulletin board was typed on a small white card and explained that one of the local department stores had called to say they were interested in finding a high school graduate for summer work as a clerk and model in their dress shop. Applicants were to see Miss Anderson on Thursday after 4 o'clock. Some of the girls in the senior class had worked during past summers and on Saturdays, but none of them had ever had a steady job before. At noontime they crowded around the tables in the school cafeteria, keeping up a steady chatter about what to wear, what was the best approach, and who in the end would be most likely to get the job. Lynn sat in confident silence until the bell rang for the first afternoon class.

"All right, girls," she said lightly as she gathered up her books, "back to the punch press."

Lynn was tall, slim, and pretty, and she felt sure that any job she bothered to go after would be hers.

That afternoon after school Ginie Owen stood beside her locker thinking. The job was just the kind she wanted. She had always been interested in dress designing, and work in a department store would give her an opportunity to study it at close range. But then there was Lynn Taylor. She was frowning to herself when Tom Woods came swinging down the hall.

"Hi, there!" he called to her. "Why the arsenic and old face?"

Ginie smiled when she saw him. "I've just been thinking about that clerking and modeling job all the girls are trying for—including Lynn. Wish I had a chance."

"Why not?" he asked, slamming his books into the locker. "You've got what it takes. Just put on your zoot suit and——"

"How about my brown gown?" she said, catching him up.

"Makes no difference," he answered. "You look like the queen of the May to me no matter what you wear."

As they walked home together she explained to him:

"You just don't understand about girls, Tom. Lynn has a lot on the ball. We could all try out for that job and she'd be the one to get it. She may not be a quiz kid, but John Powers never saw neater!"

"O, you snoods are all alike!" he said in disgust. "Use a little common sense, Ginie. It is more than smooth looks that is going to clinch that job. If you really want it you can get it."

• • •

On Thursday morning Lynn came to school with her hair piled high on her head in elaborate curls. Dick whistled in appreciation.

"What are you going to do, take a bath? Or are you supposed to look that way?" he gibed.

Ginie came in the same suit she wore to school every day, with a snowy white blouse and plain brown pumps, but her hair was shiny clean and the skirt pressed in knife plaits. At lunch time Lynn remarked:

"O, Ginie, if you get down to the department store first, tell the lady I'm coming in later, will you? I want to watch Dick at spring baseball practice for a little while first. I'll be there around 4:30."

During the afternoon Ginie found herself lining up thoughts that might come in handy in the interview. She knew that the employer, Miss Anderson, would listen to her grammar, and she resolved to be careful. And then she thought of mentioning that she enjoyed working with other people and that her interest in fashions was genuine; that she read several current fashion magazines regularly and that she had taken a course in dress designing in school for one semester. Before long she became so enthusiastic herself she felt almost sure she could convince Miss Anderson that she was the girl for the job.

After the last class Tom was waiting for her. Lynn Taylor went by with Dick and called to Ginie:

"Don't forget to tell the lady I'll be there!"

"You can just take the A train, my girl," Tom said to himself. "This job is Ginie's."

A few seconds later Johnnie Abrams came rushing down the hall flourishing a key ring and shouting:

"Hey, Tom, where does Lynn live? She decided to wear her high-heeled black patent leather shoes and wants me to go get them. She gave me her car keys."

"Her house is three blocks beyond Ginie's—but that's going to take you a long time, isn't it? The notice said that the interview—O, well," and Tom stopped himself. "It's the street with the big white house on the corner."

Lynn was tall, slim, and pretty, and she felt sure that any job she bothered to go after would be hers.

"I'll find it," Johnnie said, and sighed ardently. "I thought that girl probably came from Angel street."

Ginie and Tom laughed as they went out together.

"Dad let me take the car today so I could get you to the store early. You wait here and I'll drive it around," Tom said.

In front of the department store Ginie stood still a moment, crossed her fingers, and said in a weak voice:

"Well, here goes. My first job."

The wide, shiny plate glass windows, the trim chicness of the windows, and the uncompromising efficiency of the whole store filled her with awe.

"Go on," urged Tom. "Just walk in and ask for Miss Anderson. You look fine. Talk slowly, keep your voice low, and don't fidget around. If they want you to model she'll probably ask you to walk across the floor. If she does, just take it easy and remember you're not doing the Jersey bounce. Good luck."

Ginie went inside, asked at the perfume counter where she might find Miss Anderson, and was directed to the dress shop on the second floor. In the dress shop she inquired about Miss Anderson again and was asked to wait—Miss Anderson would see her in a few minutes. As she sat waiting she noticed the other salesgirls, neat and smart in black dresses. It was a quiet time in the afternoon and there were few customers. Tho the girls talked among themselves, Ginie noticed they kept busy rearranging dresses on the racks, checking price tags, and straightening the silk blouses laid out on display.

After a few minutes a tall woman with well coifed gray hair stepped out from the small office on one corner.

"You must be the girl who came to see about the job," she said, smiling at Ginie, and suddenly Ginie found herself on her feet, smiling back.

In a short while the interview was over and she thanked Miss Anderson, promising to report the Monday after school was out. As she left she noticed the other salesgales smiling after her.

Outside Tom was waiting.

"You got it, didn't you?" he said happily when he saw her face. She nodded. "I told you you could do it!" he went on.

• • •

"It wasn't hard at all," she explained. "She just asked me a few questions and said that I was the first girl to apply and that for a model I was just what she wanted, because I was 'typical.'"

"You are not," he protested loyally. "I think you're something pretty special."

"And she said she liked my posture," Ginie went on as they walked toward the car.

"Aren't you glad you went, now?" Tom asked as he held open the door.

"Now that it's over, I am," Ginie assented. "But, to tell you the truth, when she first came toward me I was so scared I almost sank thru the floor."

"It's lucky you didn't," Tom laughed at her. "You'd be surprised how many girls we lose that way!" And, shutting the door, he went around to his own side of the car.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

● This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic Section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1865.

DOLLY PAYNE MADISON, wife of President James Madison, was one of America's foremost women, her lengthy career as first lady of the land giving her a popularity rarely equaled by one of her sex.

The eldest daughter and third child of John and Mary Payne, she was born in what now is Guilford county, North Carolina, May 20, 1768. Some biographers, however, give the year of her birth as 1772. The name given to her at birth was Dorothea, after the second wife of Patrick Henry, but she always has been known in history as Dolly.

Most of her childhood was spent in Hanover county, Virginia, where as a member of a Quaker family she lived a restrained country life and obtained little schooling. In the summer of 1783, when Dolly was 15, her father liberated his slaves and moved with his wife and children to Philadelphia, where he engaged in unsuccessful business enterprises.

Dolly on Jan. 7, 1790, became the bride of John Todd Jr., an attorney. Two sons were born to them, one in 1792 and the other in 1793. The elder son grew to maturity, but the younger died in infancy soon after the death of his father, which occurred on Oct. 24, 1793, during the yellow fever epidemic which swept Philadelphia.

Mrs. Todd, after the death of her husband, took up her residence with her widowed mother, who operated a boarding house. Still a very young woman, her beauty and charm attracted many suitors, among them James Madison, who was introduced to her by Aaron Burr, then a United States senator.

• • •

On Sept. 15, 1794, Madison, then 43 years old, and Mrs. Todd were married at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. George Steptoe Washington, in Jefferson county, Virginia. Madison at this time was a congressman.

When her husband became secretary of state in the cabinet of Thomas Jefferson, a widower, Mrs. Madison, as the wife of the highest ranking cabinet member, was accepted as the first lady. This position she held thruout Jefferson's administration of two terms, and when her husband succeeded Jefferson as President she continued on as the ranking hostess of capital society for eight years—a period in all of 16 years. While Jefferson was President she innocently became the storm center of a battle for precedence waged by the British minister, Anthony Merry. The minister's wife likened her dinners, it is said, to "harvest home feasts," but few others in the capital circles objected to her generous and unassuming hospitality.

It was while Madison was serving his second term that British troops, in August, 1814, descended on Washington. Mrs. Madison managed to save important state documents and a portrait of George Washington before the executive mansion was burned by the invaders. The burning of the mansion badly scorched its outside walls, and when the structure was restored these walls were painted white to cover the ravages of the fire. As a result of this the home of the Presidents came to be known as the White House.

When President Madison left office in 1817 he retired with his wife to his estate, Montpelier, in Orange county, Virginia. There the two dwelt until the husband's death in 1836, after which Mrs. Madison returned to Washington. Her last public appearance was at a White House reception in February, 1849. She died in Washington on July 12 of that year.

PERSPIRATION IS ACID... it Eats stockings!

A TIMELY TIP FROM MISS IVORY SNOW:
IF YOU'D ONLY LEARN THE RIGHT WAY TO CARE FOR STOCKINGS, YOU'D GET UP TO 20% MORE WEAR

ONLY IVORY SNOW combines 2 great advantages you'll want in fighting acid perspiration danger

• To help you get up to 20% more wear from those precious silk stockings you have:

Simply bear in mind that perspiration is acid. It destroys delicate threads, leads to horrid runs. So don't ever be careless about washing your precious stockings . . . give them a daily sudsing in Ivory Snow. That way . . . you'll remove perspiration and other soil quickly and effectively.

But be sure you use only Ivory Snow. For Ivory Snow is really different! It's not a flake . . . not a powder, but is made in dainty "snowdrop" form to give mountains of suds almost instantly . . . the only soap that combines these two great advantages that your nice things deserve!

Only Ivory Snow Combines Both These Advantages

1. It's Ivory pure—wonderfully safe for all your fine washables.
2. It's made in tiny, pure-white "snowdrops" that dissolve like a flash in cool water—about 4 times faster than any popular soap in this form.

WANT LOVELIER HANDS IN 12 DAYS?

If your hands are red and rough from using one of those strong laundry soaps—change to pure Ivory Snow for all your dishwashing. It cuts grease as fast as the strongest washday soap. And in just 12 days you'll get softer, smoother hands!

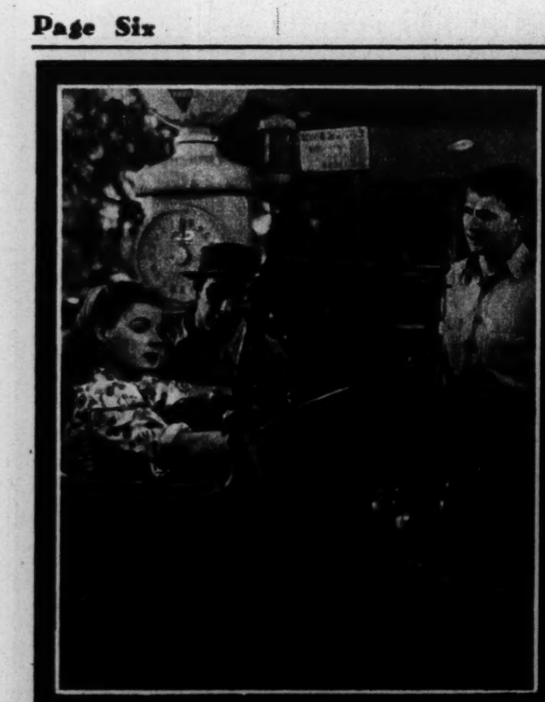
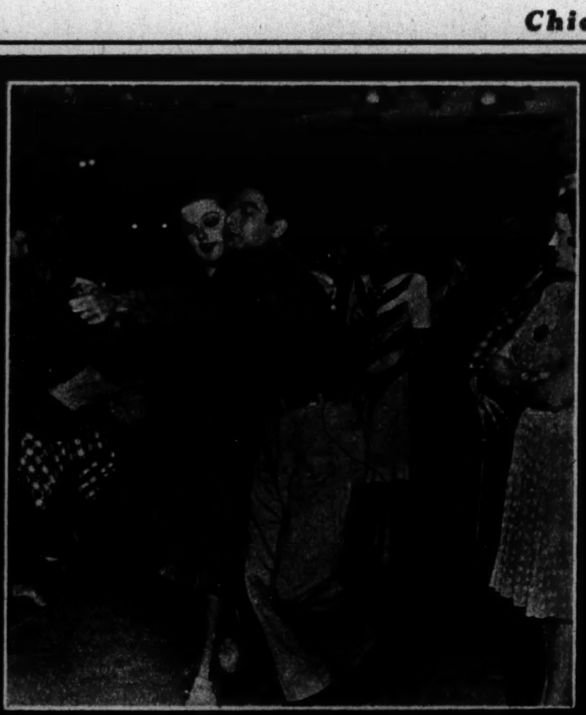
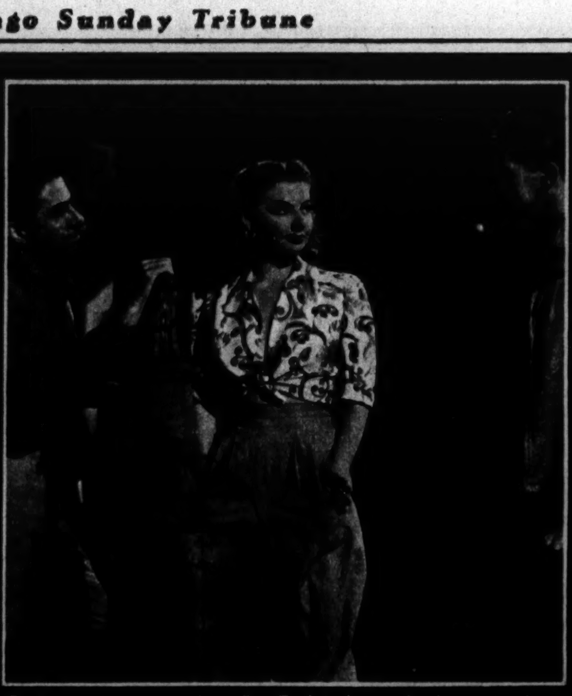
GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATE



1 Danny (Richard Whorf), a gruff, belligerent soul, and his pal, Steve (Ronald Reagan), leave a freight in Cat Tail, Fla., to hunt work. On the outskirts of town they meet Lola (Ann Sheridan), an itinerant "juke girl," taxi dancer employed by juke box operators.



2 Lola soon gets a job at a rough and tumble spot called Muckeye's. Danny takes quite a shine to her and puts many a nickel in the juke box so he can dance with her. But Lola remains unimpressed. Steve meanwhile is job hunting.



3 Steve discovers that Cat Tail belongs body and whatever soul it has to Henry Madden, packing plant owner. When Madden offers Steve's new friend, Nick Garcos, only half price for his load, Steve backs up Nick's refusal. On the way back to Nick's Steve meets Lola, and a love match is born.

4 When Madden (Gene Lockhart) spoils their chance to sell Nick's vegetables in a nearby town, Steve hunts him down at Muckeye's and gives Madden a tomato right in the face. In the ensuing brawl Nick's load is ruined.

5 Now partners, Steve and Nick (G grow a new crop. Using a truck with they hire enough men to pick and pa it into Atlanta by truck. Lola goes three are very happy in their succe Madden.

Could any ordinary shortening give you a one-egg cake as LIGHT as THIS?

SEE how light and tender it is, how delicate-tasting, how different from ordinary "plain Jane" one-egg cakes! Foods have rich FULL flavor when you bake and fry with purer Spry. It doesn't dull the taste of the other ingredients as ordinary shortenings may.

Chocolate Topper Cake

½ cup Spry
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
2½ teaspoons baking powder
2 cups sifted flour
¾ cup milk

Blend Spry, salt, and vanilla. Add sugar gradually and cream well. Add egg and beat. Sift baking powder with flour 3 times. Add to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, mixing after each addition until smooth. Bake in oblong 12 x 8-inch Sprycoated pan in moderate oven (375° F.) 30 to 35 minutes. Cool. Melt 1 seven- or eight-ounce bar of semi-sweet chocolate and let cool. Whip 1 cup heavy cream. Fold cooled chocolate into whipped cream very lightly to give marbled effect. Spread on top of cake.

Try Spry for tender, flaky pastry, too—crisp, delicate-tasting, digestible fried foods. Remember, Spry-cooked foods are rich in energy. Change to Spry for all baking and frying.

6 But in Atlanta, Lola drops a bombshell. "I'm staying here, Steve," she says. When he protests she cuts in: "No, you've found a place to settle down in. I'll always be restless—and I'll always remember you."

7 Back in Cat Tail, Nick spends his money on clothes and gambling. Steve gets him home before he can lose all his money, but good-hearted Nick goes back, trying to make a generous gesture to Madden. Misunderstood, he is involved in a fight and is killed by Madden.

8 The next morning Steve is arrested, at Madden's instigation, as the murderer. In Atlanta Lola is apprehended by detectives just as she opens a package from Cat Tail. Madden has tipped the detectives off to the "fact" that Steve would send her the money he stole from Nick.

9 All this time Danny has been separated from his pal—playing on Madden's side. But the murder charge against Steve is phony, he knows, and he sets about to save him. One of Madden's henchmen stirs a mob into a lynching fever, but Danny overhears something that convinces him of Madden's guilt. He captures Madden and, using the sound truck, broadcasts the latter's confession to the lynching crowd.

10 The next day Steve and Lola thank Danny and ask him to stay with them on Nick's farm, which now belongs to Steve. But he declines and trudges off. "Danny just can't stay in one place," laughs Steve. "I didn't think I could, either," smiles Lola, "but now I know I can." (THE END.)

BOMBERS BY THE HOUR!

the machine exactly alike so that any one part can replace any other one of a given type. They know how to make all the parts and all the subassemblies to exact tolerances, to the microscopic measurements required for aircraft work.

Given the time, the money, and the authority to prepare—and in this case all three have been available—they could make any machine conceived by man on a mass production basis. These are some of the basic reasons why this great plant—located in the heart of the middle west—is of importance to our national war effort.

Make mental notes of a few statistics before we drive out to the plant and walk thru it ourselves. The buildings and the equipment within them cost 47 million dollars. The buildings within which the bomber assembly line is located are two-thirds of a mile in length and a fifth of a mile wide. The great hangars, where airplanes in the final testing stages will be stored, have 1.2 million square feet of area within them, and a million square yards of concrete was laid on the 720-acre airport that stands at the finishing end of the long buildings. It has 150-foot-wide concrete runways, the shortest being 4,970 feet and the longest 6,250 feet, the alighting and takeoff strips in each case being paralleled and duplicated so simultaneous landings and flights may be made.

Now step into my automobile and we will drive to the gates. Ahead of us lie the buildings shown in the border pictures at the top of page one. At the right is the main plant as it was in May, 1941, while the steel work was still going up. In the center is the same building, completed, in its externals at least, last Sept. 1.

Around the 975 acres of the plant and airport is a 10-foot-high steel fence topped with barbed wire and with little blockhouses at frequent intervals along it. Guards patrol the fence night and day. More guards are at the gates, where a line of trucks and trailers await inspection before entering. These trucks are bringing parts and materials from cities 150 miles away. Off on a far side of the tract is a railroad spur line from one of the nation's main rail routes, and other materials shipped by the carload enter another railroad gate. After identifying ourselves and showing proof that the army air corps headquarters at Washington has approved our visit we are put into the hands of a Ford company representative. In our case this is H. H. Pulver, who until the war emergency froze the sale of passenger cars operated an Indianapolis, Ind., branch office of the Ford company. Pulver knows the plant and the men and women who are working in it.

• • •

First he shows us vistas; a look down the neon-lighted main assembly line, a glance at the "valley of the giants"—huge stamping and pressing machines rooted deep in concrete two floors below the foundation line and extending two stories or more in height above the level where men are feeding them bright aluminum sheets for shaping. Then from the balcony where some of the drafting and production accounting offices are situated we look at the main outer wing assembly jigs, ranked in double units many stations deep.

Then we get a closer look at individual jobs. The machine shop, occupying a fifth of the total floor space, is filled with row on row of machine tools, drilling, reaming, cutting, and shaping metal parts and pieces. The color photograph reproduced at top right on the first page shows a man at work on one of these machines. The part he is making is a unit in a landing gear retracting mechanism. This man was a machinist in a little Ohio town not long ago. He came to this unnamed factory and now is a tiny cog in the great team already at work.

But men are not the only workers. The Ford company is training a legion of women who will form a large percentage of the 24,000 odd persons who will keep this assembly of machine tools humming for 24 hours every day. The women excel at jobs requiring dexterity of the hands. Welding, cable splicing, drilling, operating riveting machines, and bucking small rivets in plane parts, and especially in forming plastic sheets for bomber nose and windshield sections, are their specialties. The border pictures on the first page show scenes in which some of the first women ever employed by the Ford company for shop work are hard at their tasks. The photographs were taken on a typical day and show women doing actual tasks for real bomber parts. There was no artificial posing.

The color picture at lower left on page one is a closeup of men at work on one of the outer wing panel jigs. The fittings of the huge jig rise 25 feet off the plant floor, and the fixture in its entirely is nearly 50 feet long. It is arranged so that the wing panel, as its construction progresses, can be checked and remeasured in every part to assure absolute accuracy and uniformity. When finished the top keel section of the jig can be rolled backward from its locked position and the finished panel lifted out with a crane without disturbing any other part of the jig. Thus once trued up it will remain true. Work on a new panel can start immediately after a completed outer wing has been removed. This feature is a new one in wing construction and was worked out by the Ford engineers after they had seen wing jigs in aircraft factories torn completely apart to get a finished wing out of the jig.

At the top left one of the engines is getting its final washing and inspection following its breaking run and tear-down inspection. These are stages in the motor building factory that every engine must pass. All motors are given short trial runs to prove that they are properly put together, and from every unit of 50 motors one is put thru a grueling run to see that standards of perfection are being maintained. All are torn down and inspected in every part following these runs. The engine pictured has been reassembled and cleaned and now is being given its final outward inspection preparatory to being packed into cellophane and a huge, cunningly made packing case that will protect it on its journey to an airplane somewhere.

The engine at the bottom right is mounted in one of the huge circular testing cells at the Ford engine plant. As mounted it is run thru every type of condition that might be faced in actual flight. Propeller blade pitch is controled from the test cell board, where internal workings of the engine are registered by twoscore sensitive electrical meters and measuring devices. By flattening pitch sufficiently even the severe high-revolution running of a dive bombing run can be duplicated. The blurred four-bladed propeller is barely visible in this photograph.

Last of all is the big B-24 that slashes across the page in full flight. That is the plane the Ford aircraft plant will turn out.

It is a superlative article and has been identified as one of the greatest load-carrying aircraft now flying. The motors for the B-24, however, are smaller than the 2,000-horsepower units the Ford engine plant is making, so the plane as shown does not represent a union between the plane plant and the engine plant products.

MacArthur Learns War

successful charge under heavy fire.

The incident was a source of embarrassment to Gen. MacArthur and the Japs. The Japs were chagrined that their troops had to have the way to victory led for them by the American aide and the general was moved to a public expression of regret that his son had given way to youthful impetuosity. Secretly he was proud of his son's mettle and told him so. However, he cautioned against any repetitions of the incident, because as an observer he was constrained to remain neutral.

In 1942 MacArthur could pay tribute to Japanese bravery. In a dispatch last Feb. 2 he wrote: "The enemy troops employed in this desperate venture were his best. . . . They resisted with the courage that is characteristic of Japanese troops, but in the end they were glad to surrender. They are being treated with the respect and consideration which their gallantry so well merits."

After the Russo-Japanese war young MacArthur was engaged on a number of confidential missions in the orient. These took him to China, Java, Burma, India, and Ceylon to give him familiarity with the area where his enemy—the Japs—are now operating against him and the united nations. These missions occupied him for months after the war.

In this period MacArthur became convinced that the Japs had their designs on the Philippines as part of a plan which would make Japan the dominant nation of Asia. The knowledge gained was behind his constant pleas for adequate preparedness thruout his years as chief of staff of the army and prompted him to accept the job of molding the Philippines' defense.

• • •

In November, 1906, MacArthur was ordered to duty with the 2d battalion of engineers, Washington barracks, District of Columbia. A few weeks later he was appointed a junior White House military aide. This does not mean that MacArthur was an intimate of the chief executive, as is Edwin M. Watson, present White House aide, who has been raised from lieutenant colonel to major general and to the status of a White House secretary during his nine year tour of duty.

Young MacArthur met the chief executive but in no way became a White House intimate. His tours of duty brought him to the White House for dinners, receptions, and similar state occasions. At dinners he glided about with a handful of envelopes, which he slipped to the male guests. Each bore the name of the lady the guest was to escort to the table and on the reverse side marked the place at the table the guest and his dinner companion were to occupy. If necessary the aide arranged an introduction.

At receptions MacArthur and his fellow aides de camp made themselves useful; at military functions they formed a background for the chief executive, forming a colorful array in full dress blue with the gold aiguillettes which White House aides wear looped to their shoulder straps as a badge of office.

MacArthur spent a year dividing his time between his work with the 2d battalion of engineers and the White House. In 1907 he was ordered to the engineer school of application, completing this army postgraduate course in February, 1908.

On graduation MacArthur was assigned to duty in Milwaukee. At the same time his father, Gen. MacArthur, visited the family home. During his stay the general made a remarkable prophecy in connection with a Washington birthday celebration at which he spoke.

"The solution of the problems in connection with the Pacific is perhaps to be the great work of the 20th century," the general said. "It will be impossible for Americans to keep the sea unless we meet quickly the desperate attack which Japan is now organizing against us."

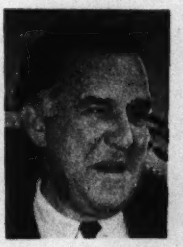
Thirty-three years later came the attack he dreaded and his son, who was also at the celebration, was to stand so courageously against. The prophecy is given because it showed how MacArthur and his father were thinking in days when Japan was considered too insignificant to be viewed in the status of a possible foe.

From 1908 to 1914 MacArthur served with engineering troops at various stations about the country. He became a captain in 1911. At the time of his father's death he was at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., and rushed home to comfort his mother, as did his elder brother, Commander Arthur MacArthur, then on duty at the naval college at Newport, R. I.

In 1914 MacArthur was on duty in the war department, when a force of Mexican soldiers at Vera Cruz arrested a small party of American sailors who came ashore to get supplies for the U. S. S. Dolphin. The boat in which they had come ashore carried the American flag at bow and stern. On their way to prison the party was released by another group of Mexican soldiers under command of an officer of higher rank than the leader of the arresting party.

The commander of the American naval forces was not satisfied with perfunctory apologies and demanded that the flag of the United States be saluted by the commander of the port at a special ceremony. President Huerta refused to do so. The refusal stirred the United States. President Wilson sent the fleet to Tampico. The Mexican senate upheld Huerta at a special session to consider a salute. The United States delivered an ultimatum that the flag must be saluted by sunset April 19.

When the ultimatum was ignored the port of Vera Cruz was captured by American sailors and marines on April 21 with a loss of 4 dead and 20 wounded. On April 24 Gen. Frederick Funston, who had served under Arthur MacArthur in the Philippines, left Galveston for Vera Cruz, and with his 3,400 troops was Capt. Douglas MacArthur.



Stephen Early, whom MacArthur persuaded to be an officer.

At Vera Cruz MacArthur attempted, and very creditably, to fill the shoes of Robert E. Lee. In the Mexican war, some 60 years before, Lee undertook a reconnaissance of the Mexican position, which contributed to the victory of Gen. Winfield Scott, known as "Old Fuss and Feathers." MacArthur served Funston in much the same way in what was an incident rather than a war.

MacArthur volunteered to capture three locomotives behind the enemy lines and pick up what information he could gain. Here the knowledge of Spanish he gained in the Philippines came to his aid. He disguised himself as a Mexican peon and located the engines. For this work, undertaken at the risk of his life, MacArthur won the commendation of his chief. In his operations behind the Mexican lines MacArthur met and was aided by a young attaché of the Mexican legation. The attaché was Franz von Papen, ruthless exponent of German diplomacy, who is regarded as one of the world's most sinister characters.

A situation which was dangerously near war dissolved just before the outbreak of the European war. The American flag was not saluted, but that fact was of small comfort to Huerta, as he was forced to resign July 15. MacArthur returned to Washington to serve on the general staff. On Dec. 11, 1915, he was promoted to major, corps of engineers.

In the period immediately preceding the entry of the United States into the war MacArthur was the officer in charge of press relations at the war department. He was an avid student of the war, following all the data gathered by American military observers. His superiors found themselves leaning on MacArthur for information. He had stored a mine of facts in his head. His suggestions of press policy were sound and won approval. In a short time he attracted the attention of Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, who later took credit for discovering MacArthur, along with a large number of MacArthur's superiors.

• • •

At the same time MacArthur maintained close relations with newspaper men. He found he liked them and they liked him. He made no secret of his belief the United States would enter the war and persuaded a number of the newspaper men to take military training. Among the latter was a young reporter for the Associated Press, Stephen T. Early, whose great-uncle, Jubal Early, was a Confederate military leader. MacArthur coached a number of newspaper men and other young men for commissions in the reserve.

Early, now a White House secretary, is one of the warmest admirers of MacArthur. He remembers that even then MacArthur was marked as a great leader. As he puts it:

"Anybody who can talk a reporter covering the war department for a press service on the eve of a war—a reporter who couldn't find enough hours in the day to answer queries from editors all over the country, to say nothing of writing stories—into finding time to study to be a soldier—is a Napoleon, with a graduate course in salesmanship."

MacArthur had cause to be proud of Pupil Early, who went into the war a second lieutenant, altho he was offered higher rank, and came out a captain after serving at the front with a machine gun company in the 2d division.

When President Wilson declared war against Germany with the consent of congress on April 6, 1917, MacArthur's one concern was to pry himself from his desk in the war department, where his superiors wished to keep him, and go to France.

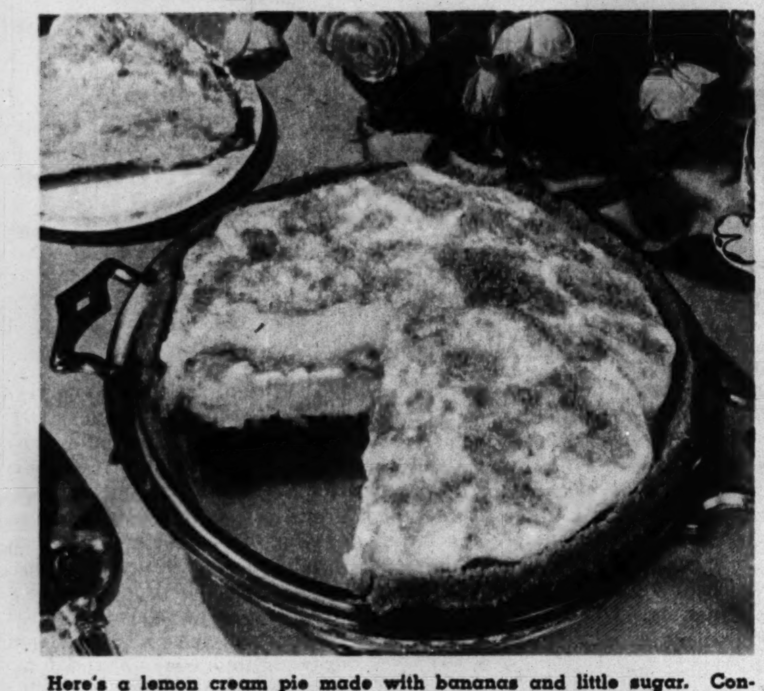
Surprise Pies—Sugar Savers

By MARY MEADE



Here's a lemon cream pie made with bananas and little sugar. Condensed milk furnishes the sweetening. Corn flake crust.

LEMON CREAM PIE with meringue topping usually takes a powerful lot of sugar for sweetening—something like 1¼ cups for filling and in addition ¼ cup or more for the meringue. But s'prise! s'prise! here's a lemon meringue pie with bananas which uses only a little sugar—and all of it is in the meringue!

LEMON MERINGUE PIE

1⅓ cups sweetened condensed milk (1 can)
2 tablespoons grated lemon rind
½ cup lemon juice
2 bananas
2 egg whites
⅛ teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla
Pastry shell or corn flake crust

Blend condensed milk, lemon rind, and juice, stirring until mixture thickens. No cooking is required. Pour into pie shell. Slice bananas on top. Beat egg whites with salt until thick, add sugar gradually, and beat until stiff but not dry. Fold in flavoring. Spread on pie. Brown in a moderate oven or chill without browning meringue. But serve an unbaked meringue soon after preparing it, before it has an opportunity to weep.

• • •

Corn flake crust will take a little more sugar, but not so much that it taxes your weekly ration. It's better than pastry with this kind of pie. You'll need about four cups or more of whole corn flakes to make a cupful of the crushed crumbs.

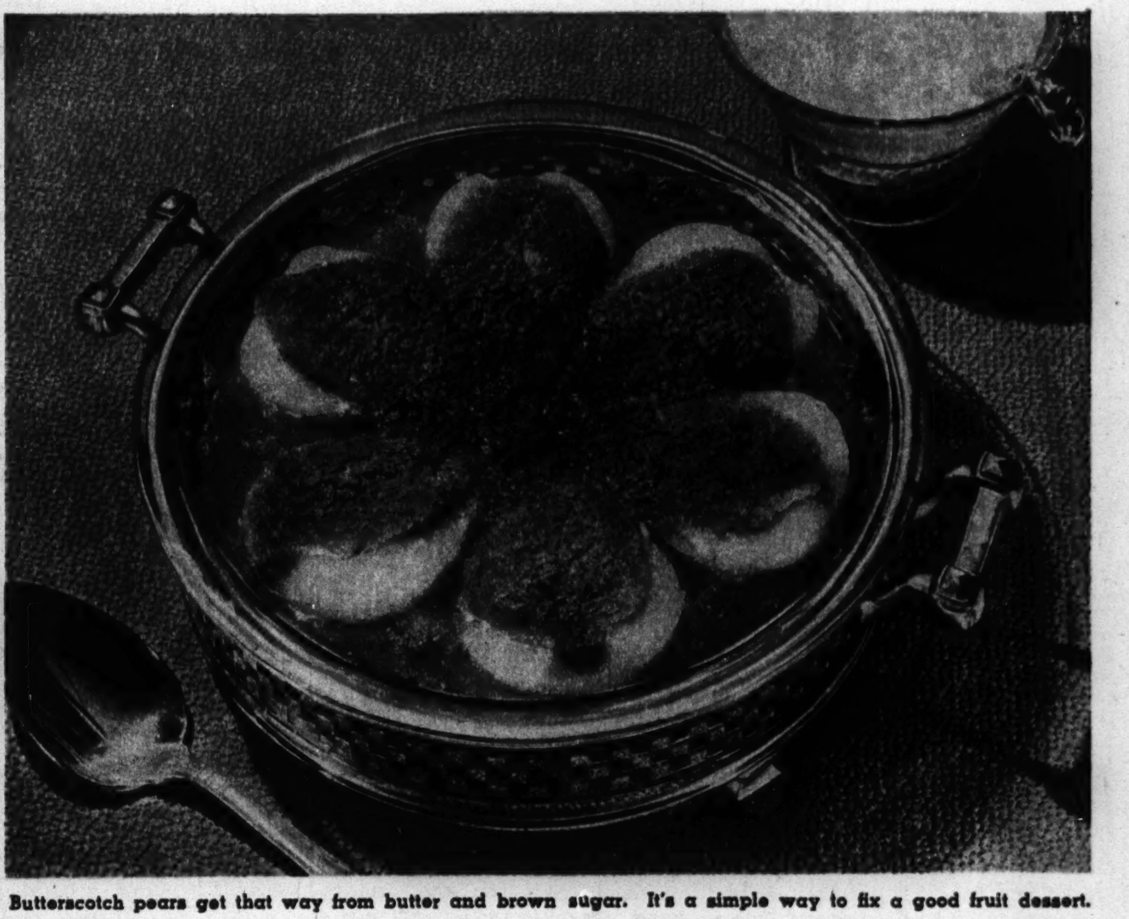
CORN FLAKE PIE CRUST

1 cup fine corn flake crumbs
¼ cup sugar
⅓ cup butter, melted

Combine crumbs, sugar, and butter thoroly. Reserve two tablespoons of the mixture to sprinkle on top of the pie. Press remaining crumbs over bottom and sides of pie pan and chill.

Corn flake crust is crunchy and good with almost any kind of chiffon filling, too. In my booklet "27 Choice Chiffon Pies" (5 cents by mail) there are recipes for a number of low-sugar fillings which may be used in a corn flake crust. There's an orange marmalade chiffon filling with no sugar, and all of these with no more than ½ cup sugar each: Grape juice filling, lemon chiffon, chocolate sundae pie filling, pineapple, tropical cream filling, date refrigerator pie, snow pie, peppermint chiffon, sherry chiffon.

Fresh whole strawberries, sweetened to taste and covered with whipped cream, are a luscious filling for corn flake crust right now. Later on, when fresh peaches come to market, we can taste the delight of fresh peaches, slightly sweetened and tucked into little corn flake tart shells under a blanket of whipped cream.



Butterscotch pears get that way from butter and brown sugar. It's a simple way to fix a good fruit dessert.

Fresh, frozen, canned, and dried fruits are now getting the attention they've long deserved from homemakers. Better nutrition and sugar rationing recommend the frequent use of simple fruits for dessert. And now and then, when the plain fruit gets a bit tiresome, one can get reckless with half a cup of dark brown sugar and make a delicious butterscotch fruit dessert, to be served with cream.

Canned peaches and fresh apples are particularly good prepared by this recipe for butterscotch pears. You'll need to add ½ cup of water for raw apples.

BAKED BUTTERSCOTCH PEARS

(Serves six)

1 No. 2½ can pears
2 teaspoons lemon juice
⅓ cup butter
⅓ cup dark brown sugar
¼ cup sifted flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground ginger

Drain pears and place cut side up in a nine-inch pie plate. Combine lemon juice with ½ cup of pear juice and pour around pears. Cream butter until soft and smooth, blend in sugar, flour, salt, and ginger. Beat until fluffy. Divide mixture and place a big spoonful on each pear half, and any remaining in the juice. Bake at 350 degrees until brown and crusty, about 25 minutes. Serve warm with cream.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

THIS IS A TRULY exceptional soup—exceptional for its good flavor and for its rich nutrititive value. The soup wins today's $5 prize for Mrs. P. Lejins, 4506 Guilford road, College Park, Md.

GREEN SOUP

(Four to six servings)

1 quart meat broth
Greens
1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon flour
2 hard-cooked eggs

For greens use tops from 2 bunches of beets or turnips, from 3 bunches of radishes, or about 1 quart of any other cooking greens. Wash well and cook until partially tender, about five minutes. Drain and chop slightly. Add to meat broth. Stir flour into sour cream and add to meat broth. Bring to boiling point, stirring constantly. Season to taste. Serve garnished with slices of hard-boiled egg.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

VASSAR COLLEGE is in Poughkeepsie but not of it. It is a large, self-sustaining community in itself and in the physical sense more formal and elegant than the campuses of most women's colleges. Its architecture tends to be imposing, and the landscaping of grounds and gardens is spectacularly beautiful.

The least of old Matthew Vassar's contribution to the institution he established in 1861 was 200 acres of land. Today's college grounds number more than 900 acres, including, in addition to its vast academic and operating plant, its own farm and golf course, an arboretum, and an outdoor theater with a semicircle of fine trees and Sunset lake as its stage background.

The town of Poughkeepsie has grown to Vassar's borders, but its encroachment is stopped in more than one sense by the college walls and gates. Vassar remains apart, beautiful, spacious, and serene.

Vassar girls, after the eastern fashion, have a preference for shirts and blue denim trousers for their at-ease hours, but on week-ends, when they occasionally trip down to New York or have visitors from the men's colleges near by, are probably the most chic of any group of eastern schoolgirls. They dress extremely well. But even for town they seem to loathe wearing hats.

In the spring and fall the 1,200 students within Vassar's walls find the out of doors alluring. The campus is studded with charming spots in which to study or sun-bathe. Vassar even boasts an outdoor classroom, given to the college by a former trustee, Russell Leffingwell, where small groups assemble on a large circular wooden bench braceleted by pines. Bikes fly constantly along the many paths; visitors and motorists must proceed with caution. One of the most charming of the numerous retreats on the grounds is the Shakespeare garden, modeled on an old English flower garden, where various plants mentioned in Shakespeare are growing.

All Vassar girls seem to like sports; the college's tennis courts (it has 18 in all), its hockey and lacrosse fields are in almost constant use. In the winter there are skiing and tobogganing on the grounds, and, under the aegis of the Outing club, frequent hikes almost all year around to the club's cabin on the college farm.

• • •

As at most exclusively feminine colleges in the east, there are no residence houses, such as sorority houses, where students live apart from the others. Rooms in college houses are assigned on entrance, with as wide distribution as possible of girls coming from the same schools, regions, and backgrounds.

Vassar's enrollment from the midwest is inclined to be large, with a good proportion from Chicago's suburbs. Among the Chicagoans are Ada Blanche Wrigley and Virginia Garrison, freshmen; Muriel MacChesney, Annie Ryerson, and Joan Huth, sophomores, and Frances Gordon, Gloria Knecht, Sidney Meeker, and Adele Pleasance, juniors. Suburbanites include Mary Louise Wieboldt, Laura Winston, Elizabeth Austin, Jessica Rattray, Patricia Ungaro, Caroline Johnson, Lurena Whidden, Eleanor Kritzer, Deborah Smith, Julia Adams, and Barbara Wakeley.

FLAKY PASTRY EVERY TIME —IT'S GUARANTEED!

Pie crust success or your money back—but only with Crisco, the different shortening!

Lady! Forget your pie-making troubles! For Crisco now guarantees flaky tender pie crust!

You see, pure, all-vegetable Crisco is different—due to an exclusive process, it contains a new pastry success secret found in no other shortening you can buy. And only Crisco's New Pastry Method guarantees success—or your money back.

Now two big causes of tough pastry ended! One—no more guessing how much water to use in pie dough. Two—no more sticky dough. Crisco's new way of measuring and mixing gives you dough that's easy to handle and roll out.

And hooray—what golden flaky pie crust! Folks'll say, "Gosh, Mom—it's wonderful!" Use digestible Crisco and its new guaranteed method as your winning combination—begin today!

GUARANTEE—Follow Crisco's method exactly and you'll get tender flaky pastry. If dissatisfied, write us on the back of a Crisco label, telling in what way pie crust was unsatisfactory. Tell what you paid for your Crisco and we'll refund the price of one pound. Address Crisco, Box 837, Cincinnati, Ohio. Offer expires August 30, 1942.

TRY CRISCO'S NEW PASTRY METHOD—IT'S GUARANTEED!

DOUBLE-CRUST MEASUREMENTS: Sift 2 cups flour and 1 teaspoon salt into bowl. Take out ⅓ cup of the flour and mix with ¼ cup water to form a paste. (Cookbook recipes don't tell you how much water to use—but look! Crisco's method does!)

Now add ⅔ cup Crisco to remaining flour (1⅔ cups): cut Crisco in until the pieces are the size of small peas. (You never need to chill Crisco. Notice how creamy it is, how easily it blends in!)

Next, add flour-paste to Crisco-flour mixture. Mix thoroughly until the dough comes together and can be shaped into a ball. Divide in half—roll out both crusts about ⅛ inch thick. (Notice, the new way of combining ingredients! No need to over-handle the dough now! It's not sticky—it's just right to roll out easily!) All Measurements Level.

TWIN PIES—

Instead of one double-crust fruit pie—make two turnovers. Lay pastry circle in pan—put filling on half of dough. Fold over, crimp edges. Repeat for second turnover in other side of pan. Use two different fruit fillings—or, for a small family, use identical fillings and save uncut pie for next meal. For rhubarb and strawberry pies illustrated, bake in hot oven (400°-425° F.) 30 minutes.

Diagrammatical drawing of the construction of a torpedo.

Torpedo—Potent Weapon in the War at Sea

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

MOST POTENT of all agents of destruction employed by the navies of the world, with the exception of the largest of air bombs favorably placed, is the torpedo.

Classified by our own navy department as essentially a missile and called by sailormen a "tin fish," it creates havoc whenever and wherever it explodes against a target. This has been demonstrated plainly in the present war.

Not only have axis submarines, by employment of the torpedo, taken heavy toll of the united nations' shipping in the Atlantic, but it appears that the torpedo has been a prominent factor and in some cases a deciding factor in a number of naval actions.

In the battle of Macassar strait torpedoes discharged from the tubes of American warcraft blew up transport after transport laden with Japanese soldiers and their equipment. In Subic bay in the Philippines torpedoes launched from swiftly moving motor boats accounted for at least two sizable Japanese ships. The crippling of the Italian fleet at Taranto by British Swordfish planes was a notable example of the power for destruction of torpedoes dropped from aircraft.

Moreover, it was the torpedo attacks by planes from the British aircraft carrier Victorious which first disabled the German superbattleship Bismarck, slowed it up, and enabled the surface craft of the Royal navy to catch it. Torpedoes from the cruiser Dorsetshire, heavier than those carried by the planes, finally sank the Bismarck. This was after the German man of war had taken a terrific pounding by British shells without showing any signs of sinking.

The torpedo is capable of doing more damage to a hostile warship than the heaviest shell fired by a naval gun unless the shell reaches and explodes the ship's magazines. The reason for this is that the shell almost invariably strikes the ship at a point that is heavily armored, or where it can do relatively little harm. It is the rarest of luck when a big shell penetrates a ship's hull at the water line.

The torpedo, on the other hand, traveling some distance below the surface of the water, strikes the weakest part of the ship. The torpedo explodes when it strikes its target in the complete confinement of water, a noncompressible or nearly noncompressible medium. Underwater plates of the vessel thus receive virtually the entire force of the explosion.

• • •

Altho the term missile has been applied here in discussing it, since our navy considers it as such and in this respect in the same category as the projectile fired from a gun, the torpedo, to all purposes, is a small-sized warship, complete in detail, with an engine room, a cargo, a mechanical crew, and armament.

If desired it can be made to travel in a complete circle. It can be set to move under water at any depth desired, within certain limits. It can be adjusted to travel at any speed wanted, also within certain limits. And, like a battleship, cruiser, of any other naval vessel, it is given test runs before it is added to the fleet.

While comparatively few have had the opportunity to examine torpedoes at first hand, virtually every one has seen pictures of them and knows them as long, cigar-shaped objects, streamlined to slip thru the water at the highest possible speed in relation to their motive power.

The typical modern torpedo employed by submarines and surface craft is 21 inches in diameter and from 21 to 24 feet long. The torpedo of 21-inch diameter now is in general use in the world's principal navies. The Germans, however, employed a 19.7-inch torpedo until recently, while the French navy mounts a number of 21.7 inch torpedo tubes. On two of Great Britain's big battleships, the Nelson and the Rodney, are tubes that take 24.5-inch torpedoes. By adhering to a standard caliber the American navy simplifies its problem of torpedo production.

KEY TO DIAGRAMMATICAL DRAWING

1—Firing pin which ignites detonator.
2—Detonator which sets off explosive in war head.
3—Up to 600 pounds of high explosive contained here.
4—Air compressed to 2,800 pounds to square inch in air vessel.
5—Water chamber.
6—Starting lever.
7—Depth control mechanism consisting of pendulum and hydrostatic valve.
8—Fuel tank containing alcohol.
9—Generator or combustion pot where fuel and air are burned to turn water into steam for engine.
10—Turbine engine consisting of two turbine rotors.
11—Gyroscopic wheel to hold torpedo on its course.
12—Propeller shafts, one turning inside the other.
13—Upper vertical rudder.
14—Port horizontal rudder.
15—Lower vertical rudder.
16—Two four-blade propellers.

The typical torpedo thus described weighs approximately 3,000 pounds and is launched from submarine or surface craft by means of a tube. The torpedo employed by airplanes in many cases is somewhat smaller, its diameter being 18 inches and its weight about 2,000 pounds. It is merely dropped from the plane as it flies close to the water directly toward its target.

The outside shell of the torpedo is made of steel. The missile itself consists essentially of two main parts, the propelling part and the explosive part or war head, which is fitted with a primer and contains up to 600 pounds of powerful explosive such as trinitrotoluene (TNT), a demolition substance made by nitrating toluene.

A more complete description of a torpedo, however, divides it into six sections or compartments, as follows: Head, air vessel or chamber, balance chamber, engine room, buoyancy chamber, and tail.

The head, which when the missile is ready for action contains the detonator and the explosive charge, is screwed into the air chamber. For target practice and other similar nondangerous tests various types of dummy heads are used that contain no explosive. These dummy heads are of the same weight and proportions as the war head and give identical performance in the water.

In the air vessel, as the term implies, is the air, compressed to 2,800 pounds to the square inch. This compressed air provides oxygen for combustion of the fuel that supplies the motive power of the torpedo. Alcohol is commonly used as fuel in American torpedoes. British torpedoes use paraffin oil, which is the British term for kerosene.

Next from the air vessel of the torpedo toward the tail is the balance chamber, a compartment of thin steel permanently attached to the air chamber. In it are water and fuel containers and the heater apparatus. Fuel and air are burned in a generator, sometimes called the combustion pot, and there turn the water into steam, which is passed on to the engine to produce power. In the balance chamber is a depth maintenance mechanism which consists of a pendulum weight interlinked with a hydrostatic valve. The weight corrects departures from the horizontal, while the valve maintains a set depth. The joint operation of the two, the weight and the valve, controls the horizontal rudders of the torpedo. The torpedo's underwater course, usually about 15 feet below the surface, must be kept level. The sensitive hydrostat, measuring depth by external water pressure, keeps the missile from deviating from the level desired.

Behind the balance chamber is the engine room, which in the case of American torpedoes contains two impulse turbine rotors. The typical British torpedo is powered with a four-cylinder radial engine. The propulsive power of the American torpedo is furnished, as already indicated, by a mixture of compressed air, alcohol (which the seamen call "pink lady"), and water. When the torpedo is launched, either thru a tube or from a plane, a number of things happen almost in the wink of an eye. A starting lever extending thru the outside shell of the torpedo is tripped by the forward movement or the dropping movement and turns on a fuel spray. Cartridges explode to ignite this spray. In the same instant water begins spraying on the flame and compressed air rushes into the generator. Therein is formed a mixture of steam and gas that is piped on to the little turbine engine, which, small as it of necessity must be, almost instantly develops 400 horsepower to drive the "tin fish" on its way. The temperature in the combustion pot is held at exactly 1,250 degrees.

The exhaust steam passes thru the after bulkhead of the engine room, its pressure opening two valves in this bulkhead. At the end of the run (when the power is exhausted) the lack of steam pressure permits these valves to close, but a lug, dropping between the valve and the valve seat, prevents complete closing. This allows the torpedo to fill with water and sink, so that it will not remain a navigation hazard or fall into enemy hands.

The greater part of the torpedo's buoyancy is provided by the buoyancy chamber, which lies to the rear of the engine room. This is strengthened internally with thin steel to withstand pressure. To the fore bulkhead of the buoyancy chamber is attached the engine, and thru the buoyancy chamber run two water-tight tubes, one carrying the propeller shafts and the other the connections with the horizontal rudders.

When the starting lever is tripped a heavy gyroscopic wheel in the buoyancy chamber is set whirling by means of a jet of compressed air. This wheel, kept in motion by the steady stream of air, is of bronze and about the size of a saucer. It turns at 18,000 revolutions a minute, its extraordinary speed supplying the gyroscopic force that holds the torpedo on its proper course. When this mechanism is so set as to be at an angle to the axis of the torpedo before the latter is discharged it causes the torpedo to turn in its course and assume a direction in line with the axis of the gyro wheel.

Thus a destroyer, for example, not being equipped with bow torpedo tubes, may, while it is speeding directly toward an enemy ship, fire its torpedoes thru its broadside tubes. Torpedoes fired at right angles to the straight line between the destroyer and the hostile ship will, thru the action of the gyro, swing and head directly for the target.

The tail of the torpedo carries the horizontal and vertical rudders, which are mounted on corresponding fins, and at the extreme end of the tail are the propellers, two in number and of four blades each, which turn in opposite directions. The pull or drift of one propeller counteracts that of the other, thus preventing the missile from drawing to one side or the other in the course of its flight. The gears thru which the rotors drive the propellers are located close to the rotors, or in some cases in a gearbox in the tail. One of the propeller shafts is hollow, and inside it is the other propeller shaft, the two turning in opposite directions.

All of the complicated mechanisms mentioned, with the exception of the rudders, propel-

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

Just one happy family now, but they'll soon be moving to new homes. These good looking cocker puppies posing so quietly for their first picture are owned by L. D. Goodman. They were sired by a western champion.

By BOB BECKER

"A DAY'S WORK ENDS, but the worries may not. And there are many reminders — the newspaper, the radio, the family budget, serious and often discouraging.

"Something to bring cheer and confidence is needed. And —that is a dog. Whether spirits are gay or sad, its friendship and sympathy are the same. Always a cheerful welcome, a companion for play or meditation, living only to please its master.

"All it asks in return is a kind word and a pat of the hand, a meal a day, a basin of water, and a place to sleep. Hope, trust, and loyalty never die in the home with a dog— what we must have in these trying days . . . ."

This is one man's eulogy of the dog and what it means in the home today. It might have been written by any one of the millions of owners, by a sportsman who hunts over dogs, or by a breeder of dogs. It so happens that a Maryland breeder, J. B. Wood, penned this concise tribute to the dog in Dog World —one that says so much in so few words that we wanted all owners to read it. A eulogy of this type is particularly appropriate today, when dogs are more valuable to all of us.

According to reports from many parts of the country, breeders are finding a big demand for dogs of all kinds. The reason for this demand is quite obvious as well as important. Thousands of families want guard and protection dogs, now that husbands and sons have gone into service and women and children are alone at home. Then there is a big demand for dogs specially trained for guard and sentry work. The army is ready to use these dogs, which are going to be enlisted for the duration.

If any family is thinking about buying a dog, spring is an ideal time, because puppies taken now can spend much of their time outdoors in the sunshine. Moreover, it's easier to house-break a puppy when days are warm so one can take a pup outdoors almost any time. Any family intending to buy a dog for companionship, for a children's pet, or to act as an alert guard around the home will find it worth while to keep these points in mind:

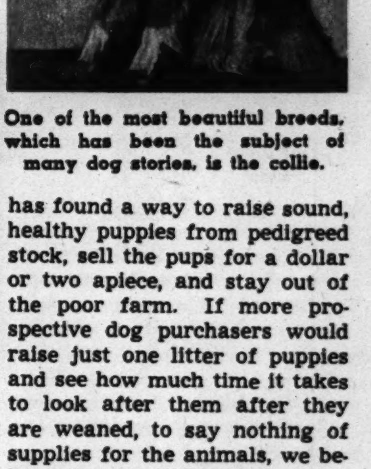
First, don't expect to get a good dog with a pedigree (one that you always can be proud of) for a dollar or two. It costs money to raise or buy the good stock from which litters of pups may be raised. And you can't raise a litter of dogs of any size or breed without spending money for veterinarian fees, medicines, inoculations, food, and other items which go into the raising of puppies. At least, so far no dog owner or breeder has found a way to raise sound, healthy puppies from pedigreed stock, sell the pups for a dollar or two apiece, and stay out of the poor farm. If more prospective dog purchasers would raise just one litter of puppies and see how much time it takes to look after them after they are weaned, to say nothing of supplies for the animals, we believe they would place a price of about $150 on each puppy.



One of the most beautiful breeds, which has been the subject of many dog stories, is the collie.

Another thing to keep in mind when buying is this: Be rather wary of the seller who assures you that a puppy can be registered and you can get your papers at the city hall, or it will take him three or four months to get the pup's papers ready. It doesn't take a seller three or four months to write his name on a blank so you can register a pup from a litter that has been put on the books of the American Kennel club.

SARAKA FOR CONSTIPATION

Pictures of people doing things, concentrating fully on the job at hand, always fascinate the spectator. This is especially true if they show a hobby and if a good deal of detail is visible. This type of picture usually has a good chance in contests.

Know Your Camera

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

HAVE YOU EVER entered a picture contest? Photographic contests have been increasing in number and importance, and, judging by the results they have produced, there is no reason why an average amateur with a few good pictures — or even mere lucky shots—to his credit should not enter them with a fair chance of winning a prize.

If you ever want to enter your photographs in a contest there are a few questions to which you should give some thought. First of all you must visualize the purpose for which the contest is conducted. The sole purpose of many contests is to find good pictures of an unspecified type. If you have reason to consider any of your own pictures outstanding or unusual in some way, by all means enter them in such contests.

Whenever it is obvious that the sponsor of a contest has such commercial purposes in mind as obtaining striking pictures of his product or outstanding examples of pictures that can be made with the equipment he manufactures, you will have to do some thinking about just what type of picture to take or to select from your files. Whatever you do, be sure that your pictures have plenty of sponsor appeal. If you enter a contest sponsored by a state tourist bureau, find out what that particular state features in its advertising and select your picture subjects accordingly. If the contest is to glorify some particular product, bring out the most important qualities of that product in your pictures.

• • •

Sponsor appeal decides the final selection in all contests. The selections are usually made by qualified judges who know photography but also know what the sponsor wants. And as most prize-winning pictures are intended for publication, the judges in practically any contest will give preference to human interest pictures. It is true that they require good photographic quality from a prize winner, but it is even truer that an uninteresting picture will never win a prize, regardless of how good it may be from a technical point of view.

Before you enter a contest study the rules carefully. First of all, stay away from contests in which the sponsors want something for nothing. Contests in which all pictures become the property of the sponsors, even if they have not been awarded prizes, are hardly worth entering. In other cases you must decide for yourself whether the prizes offered, including not only the top prizes but also the minor ones, are worth competing for.

Check the rules regarding the types of pictures wanted. If the print sizes and paper surfaces are specified, follow the instructions and fill out the entry blanks provided. Wrap your prints securely so that they will arrive in good condition, but avoid fancy wrappings.

This picture was a prize winner primarily because of its strong human interest and immediate appeal. From a photographic standpoint it is not at all perfect, yet the judges selected it because it appealed to them and they knew that it would be well received by others.

If you expect your prints to be returned, inclose sufficient postage and a self-addressed envelope or label. Some contests do not return pictures even tho they don't make use of those which have won no prizes. Whenever the return of entries is promised, usually every effort is made to get them back to you safely, but be reasonable and don't expect too much. In any large contest a minor percentage of the shipments is bound to get misdirected. Therefore, never submit the only print of a picture the negative of which you have lost. Make at least a copy if you want to submit the original. In the case of color pictures have duplicate transparencies made.

lers, and the tip of the tripping lever, are contained within the torpedo's slim figure, 21 inches in diameter. The number of parts required to make up these mechanisms is 1,325.

It takes about 20,000 man hours to construct a torpedo, while the cost of each to the government is about $10,000.

The maximum ranges and speeds of the torpedoes of various navies are items of a secret nature, altho it is no secret that for training purposes torpedoes may be set at speeds ranging from 27 to 45 or more miles an hour, and that target practice is conducted at ranges varying from 6,000 to 15,000 or 18,000 yards. The higher the speed the shorter the range, and vice versa. Hanson W. Baldwin's book, "What the Citizen Should Know About the Navy," published in 1941, gives torpedo speeds as varying between 25 and 50 knots and ranges as varying between 6,000 and 30,000 yards (30,000 yards is more than 17 miles). A knot is a nautical unit of speed equivalent to one nautical mile (6,080.2 feet) an hour. A torpedo traveling at 50 knots would be going 50 nautical miles, or about 57½ land miles, an hour. "The Fleet Today," by Kendall Banning, published in 1940, simply states that the torpedo's extreme range is more than 15,000 yards.

There are certain types of vessels whose main weapons are torpedo tubes. These are submarines, destroyers, and the recently developed high-speed motor torpedo boats. Torpedo tubes of destroyers are placed on deck, generally in groups or batteries of two, three, or four. The number of tubes to a destroyer may range from as low as five to as high as 16. These destroyer tubes discharge their torpedoes by means of light charges of explosives, barely powerful enough to kick the long, slender missiles over the side of the craft.

The high-speed motor torpedo tubes are provided with either two or four deck type torpedo tubes. In the case of those with two tubes the tubes are mounted so as to fire from each side of the bow in the direction in which the boat is traveling. On the vessels with four tubes the tubes are mounted two to a side, to swing out for firing. Twenty-one-inch tubes as a rule are used by the vessels with bow tubes, 18-inch tubes by those with the swing-out type. Because of the restricted space on these small boats the number of torpedoes that can be carried is limited. The usual practice in warfare with this type of vessel, which is designed only for short dashes, is to load the tubes at a shore base for each attack.

Other surface vessels, including cruisers and even battleships, possess torpedo tubes. In the American navy, however, battleships no longer are built with tubes, and from those thus originally equipped with these weapons they have been removed. From some of the American cruisers the torpedo tubes also have been removed, and the new cruisers are being constructed without them. Some of the foreign navies, including the Japanese, still have battle ships with torpedo tubes. The American theory now is that the torpedo tube has no practical use on a battleship, since all battleships going into action should be escorted by vessels amply supplied with tubes and better designed for accurate torpedo fire.

Among cruisers and battleships carrying torpedo tubes it is the common practice to have at least part of the tubes of the submerged type, that is, the same general type with which submarines are equipped.

In discharging torpedoes from submerged tubes compressed air is used as a propellant instead of light charges of explosives. The reason for this is that explosives give off gases that would present a problem in the confined quarters from which the submerged tubes are fired. Compressed air, on the other hand, throws off no gases.

Submarines usually are equipped with from four to eight torpedo tubes. The French submarine Surcouf, recently reported lost, however, possessed 14 tubes. Eight to 16 torpedoes are carried by most submarines, the number depending upon the tonnage of the craft. Firing from a submarine suffers from a handicap which affects all submerged tubes. Unlike the deck tubes of a destroyer, the submerged tube has no independent horizontal movement, or traverse, but is built into the hull, so that in order to aim the torpedo the vessel itself must be aimed thru a periscope.

The forward compartment of the submarine, which extends up into the bow of the vessel, is the torpedo room. On the modern subsea craft it is called the forward torpedo room to distinguish it from the after torpedo room in the stern. Contrary to popular belief, the torpedoes are not aimed by the crew that discharges them, since they have no way of seeing the target. These torpedomen perform a purely mechanical routine, loading and discharging the torpedoes only upon commands from the control room.

Torpedoes, as aforestated, can be set to travel at any desired depth within certain limits. The setting is made before the torpedo is launched. Against a deep-draft target such as a battleship, for example, the torpedo might be set to travel at 20 to 23 feet below the surface, while against a destroyer 5 to 10 feet would be the depth setting.

The aiming of a torpedo in many cases calls for involved mathematical calculations. Where a motor torpedo boat rushes in at high speed to torpedo an anchored transport at close range the problem is fairly simple — like shooting a bird with an air rifle. On the other hand, however, and in a majority of instances, the target may be moving at a rate comparable with that at which the torpedo travels. Hence the officer responsible for aiming the torpedo has to estimate as accurately as possible the speed of the target. Knowing the speed of his torpedo, he must determine where the target will be when the torpedo reaches it. He has to take into consideration other factors as well — the possible effect of a heavy sea on his missile and a tendency on its part to bear off its course very slightly. This is called the "creep" and is said to be due to the rotation of the earth. On top of all these complications, the vessel from which the torpedo is discharged also may be moving. In this case still further computations must be made.

In the course of the development of the torpedo, from that invented by Robert Whitehead in 1866 to the present-day highly perfected agent of destruction, there was a long time in which cold compressed air was used for engine power. This left lively white bubbles in the wake of the missile and sometimes gave the intended victim time to dodge. The torpedo of today, however, leaves virtually no wake. The hot mixture of spent compressed air and steam exhausted from the torpedo does not betray the missile's presence. The steam, on striking the cold water of the sea, condenses into water itself, while the hot air forms slowly rising bubbles which cannot be detected at any appreciable distance.

Torpedoes for many years had been recognized missiles of surface and subsurface craft when they finally were adapted to airplanes. This was in 1911, when an Italian flyer succeeded in dropping a 350-pound torpedo from a flying plane. Three years later the British designed a 14-inch torpedo weighing 810 pounds for use from aircraft. In 1915 a torpedo such as this was exploded against a German supply ship in the Sea of Marmora after having been launched from a British plane. That the ship already had been torpedoed and beached took away some of the glory of this exploit, but a short time later the same pilot with the same plane torpedoed an enemy ship at a distance of 800 yards.

The whole trouble with these early experiments lay not in the torpedoes themselves but in the planes, for which even a 14-inch torpedo was a heavy overload. In present-day planes, however, there is power enough to fly with a large torpedo. The Germans, for example, have developed a special type of torpedo-carrying plane which carries not one but two 18-inch torpedoes, a total torpedo weight of two tons.

The plane torpedo is much the same as the seacraft torpedo, except that in most cases it is of slightly smaller size and as a rule is more stanchly built to withstand the stresses that it must take. Its range also is considerably less. At its business end, connected with the detonator, it carries what are termed "whiskers." These are six radial antennae. Even a glancing blow on one of these whiskers is sufficient to explode the main charge of the torpedo.

The attack by a torpedo plane is made at a comparatively short range, since the aiming of the missile is accomplished by the aiming of the plane itself at the target. The plane, flown either from ashore, from the surface of the sea, or from the deck of a carrier, wings in close at no great distance above the water, drops its destructive missile, and then gets away—if it can. The torpedo is plummeted from a height of 20 feet to 150 feet or more, its propellers already whirling while it still is in the air.

THRILLING FACTS ABOUT THE NEW RAYON STOCKINGS!

"LOOK! SHEER.. WELL-FITTING.. FLATTERING!"
"YES! AND IVORY FLAKES CARE HELPS THEM GIVE WONDERFUL WEAR!"

Ivory Flakes tells you how to help yours WEAR LONGER!

LOUD, HAPPY CHEERS for our beautiful new sheer rayon stockings created for flattery and loyal service, too! Each tiny thread is twisted again and again for greater elasticity. And do they wear! Amazingly well, when given proper care!

WITH THESE NEW RAYONS, gentle washing in lukewarm Ivory Flakes suds is important. The danger time with rayons is when they're wet. That's when rayon threads are more apt to be delicate! Don't take chances of harming delicate rayon stocking colors with hot water and strong soap.

TO "KEEP 'EM WEARING" be sure your pretty new rayons are a good brand—and treasure every pair by washing with gentle Ivory Flakes after every wearing! New Ivory Flakes are quick-sudsing even in color-safe, rayon-safe lukewarm water. And gentle as baby's own pure Ivory Soap.

Things you should know!

SHEER! 75-denier means sheer rayons. 100-denier means service sheer rayons.

STRONG: Barring accidents and with proper care, they can give wonderful wear!

BUT BEWARE! Rayons are apt to be weaker when wet. Treat them gently: wash carefully with pure Ivory Flakes. Dry completely. They'll reward you with excellent wear.

3 STEPS TO RAYON STOCKING WEAR!

WASH AFTER EVERY WEARING to remove perspiration and soil. Avoid strong soaps, hot water. Use lukewarm suds of gentle Ivory Flakes. Do not rub, wring or twist.

ROLL IN TOWEL after rinsing—to blot up excess moisture. This helps rayon stockings dry more quickly. Hang over smooth rod, away from heat or sun.

BE SURE THEY'RE DRY! Dampness means danger for rayons. They tend to be weaker when wet. So be sure they're dry, especially at hems, before wearing.

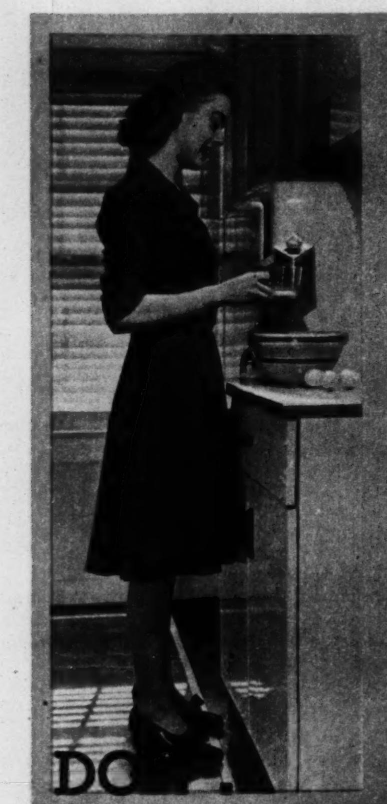
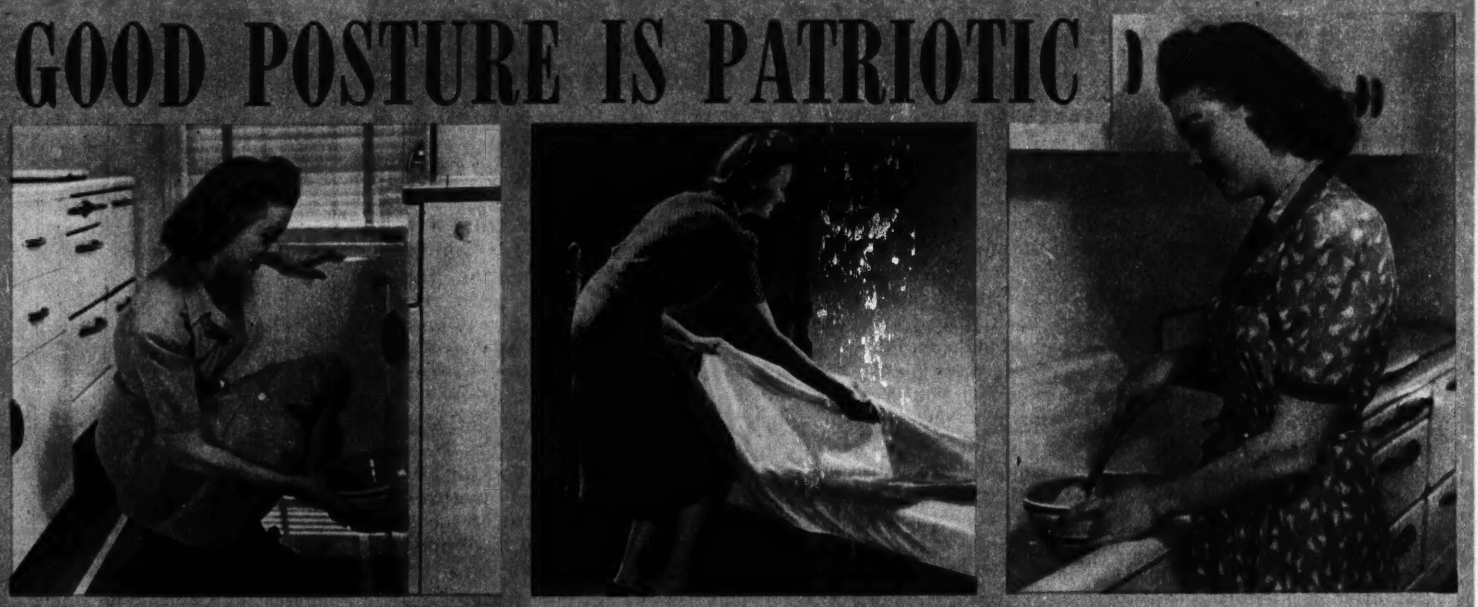
GOOD POSTURE IS PATRIOTIC





By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

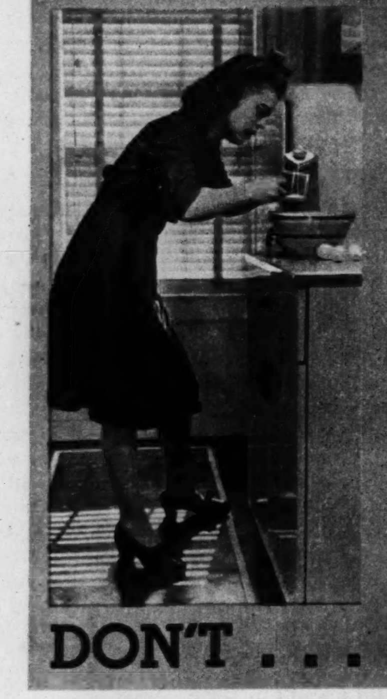
(Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

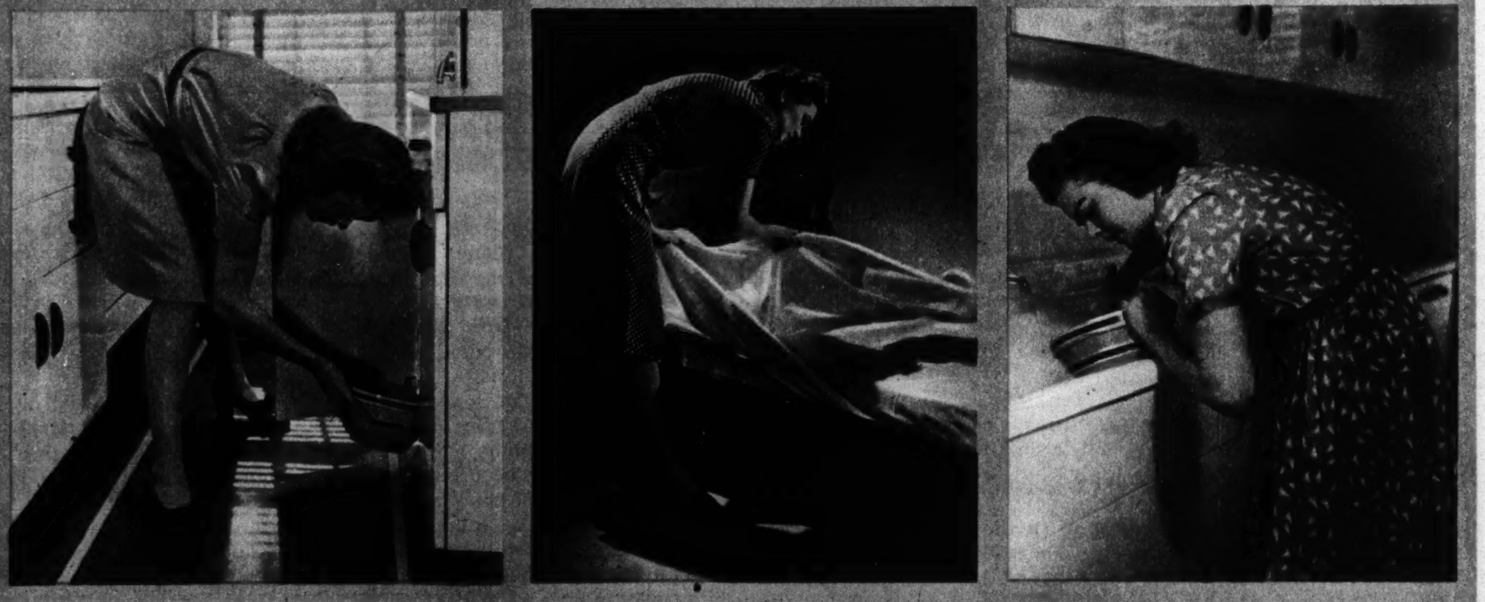
IT WOULDN'T SEEM necessary to stress good posture this year, with every soldier on parade a living example of its effectiveness. However, we gather that some of our sex must be so busy looking into the eyes of the man in uniform they overlook the posture lesson.

Science tells us that steady nerves, good morale, and stamina are possible only with good posture. The proper function of the vital organs is as dependent upon posture as upon complete, well balanced meals and exercise in the open.

Be prepared so that the muscles of your back or abdomen will suffer no strain in doing any of many things in the line of duty. To you brides and young matrons especially we would urge the good posture habits illustrated in the photographs. You may as well learn the right way and make housework work magic for you, at the same time conserving your energy and your figures.

The top row of pictures demonstrates the correct way to do many household duties, the bottom row shows the same tasks done the wrong way.





PERFECT POEMS

TO A WATERFOWL

By WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

Whither, 'midst falling dew,
While glow the heavens with the last steps of day,
Far, thru their rosy depths, dost thou pursue
Thy solitary way?

Vainly the fowler's eye
Might mark thy distant flight to do thee wrong,
As, darkly painted on the crimson sky,
Thy figure floats along.

Seek'st thou the plashy brink
Of weedy lake, or marge of river wide,
Or where the rocking billows rise and sink
On the chafed ocean-side?

There is a Power whose care
Teaches thy way along that pathless coast,—
The desert and illimitable air,—
Lone wandering, but not lost.

All day thy wings have fanned,
At that far height, the cold, thin atmosphere,
Yet stoop not, weary, to the welcome land,
Tho the dark night is near.

And soon that toil shall end;
Soon shalt thou find a summer home, and rest,
And scream among thy fellows; reeds shall bend,
Soon, o'er thy sheltered nest.

Thou'rt gone, the abyss of heaven
Hath swallowed up thy form; yet, on my heart,
Deeply hath sunk the lesson thou hast given,
And shall not soon depart.

He who, from zone to zone,
Guides thru the boundless sky thy certain flight,
In the long way that I must tread alone
Will lead my steps aright.

Turning torpedo "flask" at Alexandria plant.

tendency to sink to a considerable depth on impact with the water and thus could not be depended upon in shallow places such as harbors and anchorages. This condition is said to have been remedied to a great extent by the addition of certain devices the nature of which is a naval secret. Torpedo planes were one of the weapons used by the Japanese in the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Torpedo-bearing planes which take off from and alight on the water thru the aid of pontoons carry their torpedoes in recessed housings on the under side of the fuselage. The housings protect the torpedoes from the buffeting of the sea and prevent premature explosions. Land and carrier planes equipped with wheel landing gears carry their torpedoes slung between the wheels.

When America went to war in 1917 its navy possessed only 2,096 torpedoes. Fewer than 3,000 more had been ordered. Fortunately, in this situation little necessity arose for the use of torpedoes, since the enemy's surface craft were completely bottled up. Against submarines, Germany's most potent sea weapons, few opportunities came for the use of submarines.

Before the war ended, however, an industrial plant at South Brooklyn, N. Y., which had been the navy's chief source of torpedoes, had stepped up its production to more than 150 a month. This would be an insignificant production for a war such as the one now in progress.

In August, 1918, it was decided that the navy should go into torpedo production, and immediately a site at Alexandria, Va., on the Potomac river, was chosen for a new torpedo plant. Its first torpedo was completed and tested after the war, in November, 1920. In June, 1923, the plant was shut down, and it remained closed for 17 years.

• • •

Soon after the present war began in Europe the Alexandria plant was reopened and placed in production. During the first World war and directly afterward the plant at Alexandria was in the main an assembly plant, but today, with the exception of a few simple standardized parts such as rivets and screws, the plant manufactures every piece of complex mechanism of the torpedo, including the gyro steering mechanism and the delicately balanced depth adjuster. The loading of the explosive into the war heads is done elsewhere, since Alexandria is too crowded a community to permit the handling there of large quantities of TNT.

When a torpedo is completed at the Alexandria plant it is put aboard a navy service boat and carried down the river 90 miles to the torpedo proving ground. Here it is tested thoroly. Discharged from a tube mounted on a testing barge, it makes run after run under close observation until the officers in charge of the tests are satisfied that the missile is accurate both as to directional and depth running. For these test runs, naturally, a dummy or practice head is used instead of the war head. This is filled with water, and at the end of the run an automatic mechanism blows the water out to make certain that the torpedo does not sink.

THERE'S HAUNT'S HEREABOUTS, MR. DALTON, AND I'M MOVIN' TH' CLOCK UP SO WE CAN CLOSE EARLY.
YES, SIR! I HEARD A YELL COME OUTTA THAT BARREL PLAIN AS PIE, AND WHEN I POKED MY HEAD INSIDE IT TO INVESTIGATE, I FOUND IT EMPTY.
"EAT-A-BARRELFUL," YOUR HEAD MAY BE EMPTY, BUT I'LL BET YOUR TUMMY AIN'T WITH ALL THIS HAMBURGER GONE.
THAT AIN'T ALL THAT'S GONE, MR. DALTON, I AM TOO.

Streamer Kelly by JACK RYAN
BACK AT THE FIRE HOUSE.
THE BOYS DIDN'T PULL THE FIRE BOX, CHIEF. THEY WERE OUT LOOKING FOR THE GUY WHO DID.
HMPF!
BILLY GOT SLUGGED WHEN HE TRIED TO CATCH THE FELLOW SINGLE-HANDED.
THAT'S WHAT THE KIDS TOLD YOU– AND YOU BELIEVE THEM.
NOW LET'S FORGET THE WHOLE AFFAIR, KELLY. I DON'T WANT TO HEAR ANY MORE ABOUT IT.
WELL, GAEL, IT LOOKS LIKE OUR JUNIOR FIREMEN CLUB IS A WASHOUT!
WE CAN'T LET THE BOYS DOWN, STREAMER, NO MATTER WHAT THE CHIEF THINKS. I'M GOING TO TELL THEM SO.
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. Copyright, 1942, by The Chicago Tribune.
A HALF HOUR LATER–
CHEER UP, BOYS–YOU'RE TAKING THIS THING TOO HARD.
LOOK WHO'S HERE! STREAMER'S GIRL FRIEND.
STREAMER WILL FIND A WAY TO MAKE THE CHIEF CHANGE HIS MIND.
I KNOW STREAMER IS TRYING T' HELP US. BUT THE REST OF TH' GUYS ARE DISGUSTED. THEY BLAME HIM FOR ALL OUR TROUBLES.
SUDDENLY, BILLY HALTS IN HIS TRACKS——
GET BACK! THERE'S THE GUY WE'RE LOOKING FOR– THE GUY WHO CONKED ME ON THE HEAD!
SURE ENOUGH—STANDING NEXT TO THE FIRE BOX READY TO TURN IN ANOTHER FALSE ALARM, IS THE MAN WITH THE FROG-LIKE FACE.

GRAVY GRIPES'S TRICK OF ROUGHING THE BALL SO HE COULD THROW A PERFECT CURVE, CAPTAIN DONNELLY, IS QUITE SIMPLE-- GRIPES WORE A RING TURNED WITH THE MOUNTING FACING HIS PALM—IN PLACE OF A SETTING, HE HAD A SMALL PIECE OF ROSIN--
WITH HIS HAND SLIPPED PARTLY INTO HIS GLOVE, THE MOUNTED ROSIN IN HIS RING COMES THROUGH THE HOLE HE HAD CUT, AND GRIPES COULD ROUGH THE BALL WITHOUT AROUSING SUSPICION--
WHEN I SAW HOW CLOSELY HE GUARDED HIS GLOVE, I GOT SUSPICIOUS—AND FROM THE AWKWARD WAY HE CAUGHT THE BALL, I KNEW HE WAS TRYING TO PROTECT SOME DEVICE INSIDE HIS GLOVE--THEN WHEN GRIPES TRIED TO CHOKE ME, I COULD FEEL THE RING PRESSING MY NECK!
GRIPES WAS A GOOD HURLER TILL HE LOST THE ROSIN—
WELL, GRAVY GRIPES STARTED OUT TO CHEAT JUST A LITTLE, AND GOT IN DEEPER AND DEEPER, 'TILL IT FINALLY ENDED WITH LES MALARKY GETTING BEANED---

Honey Hunters

EVEN THOUGH the Teenie Weenies are no taller than matches they like sweets just as much as big folk. They love the Teenie Weenie Cook's cookies, which are about the size of the head of a carpet tack, and a thimbleful of doughnuts hardly lasts a day.

The little people sometimes find a bit of sugar here and there, but their main supply of sugar comes from maple sap, and even that is hard to get. It is a lot of work to bore a hole into a hard maple tree, catch the sap and then boil it down into sugar.

The Teenie Weenies had been unable to get their usual supply of maple sap during the early Spring, and the Cook announced that cookies, doughnuts and cakes would be scarce unless they could find some additional sweet.

The Dunce was greatly worried over this news, for he was very fond of sweets. He began to try to think of ways to enlarge the Teenie Weenie supply. One day he saw a bumblebee enter a hole in the ground under a tangle of violets, and that gave him an idea.

"If we could get some of the honey those bees are storing up in that hole, we'd have more than enough sweet," he told the Teenie Weenie Cook.

"Sure!" said the Cook! "That's a fine idea, but how are you going to get around the bee's stinger?"

"That is the only difficulty," replied the Dunce, who had a wholesome fear of a bee's stinger.

For some days the Dunce turned the problem of honey hunting over in his mind. Then he had a brilliant idea which he explained to several of the Teenie Weenies.

"I've got a way to take the sting out of a bee," he reported. "I've found an old bottle over on the dump that has some chloroform in it."

"Allie same, what cloform?" asked the Chinaman.

"Chloroform," answered the Dunce in a very superior manner, "is a colorless liquid that puts you to sleep when you smell it."

"How are yo' all gwine fo' to make de bee smell dat cloform?" asked Gogo, the colored Teenie Weenie.

"That is a very simple matter," answered the Dunce. "We will get a bucket of the chloroform, tie a rag to the end of a long stick, soak the rag in chloroform and then poke the stick into the bee's hole. The bee will smell the chloroform, pop over asleep, and then we can crawl into the hole and get the honey without danger."

"Who is done gonna crawl into de hole?" asked Gogo with some concern.

THE DUNCE BROKE ALL TEENIE WEENIE SPEED RECORDS.

"I'll tend to that," said the Dunce. "All I want is a little help to carry the honey home."

The Chinaman, the Cook and Gogo agreed to help and the Turk hobbled along on his crutches, "to see the fun."

First, the little chaps went to the dump for the chloroform. They drained off nearly a cherry seed bucketful of the liquid and then hurried to the bee's nest. The Dunce found a long stick, tied a rag to it and soaked that in the chloroform.

"I'll have these bees asleep in a jiffy," he said as he cautiously sneaked up and pushed the soaked rag into the hole.

In an instant there was a loud buzzing and two angry bumblebees flew out of the hole. Now, a Teenie Weenie can move remarkably fast when it is necessary, and on this occasion the Dunce broke all Teenie Weenie speed records in reaching a place of safety. Gogo dived beneath a violet leaf, and the others found safety in flight. The bees flew around for several minutes and then returned to their hole.

One by one the Teenie Weenies came out of their hiding places, and they all silently set off for home.

"Say!" exclaimed the Dunce, glancing at the limping Turk. "Where are your crutches?"

"Listen, honey hunter," answered the Turk, "when a bumblebee takes after me, I don't want to be bothered with crutches!"

Wash WHITE WITHOUT BLEACHING! —it's the modern way with the NEW OXYDOL

—Now With Its New Kind Of

"HUSTLE-BUBBLE" SUDS!

SO SNOWY! AND YET I DIDN'T USE A BLEACH

HARDER WORKING—YET MILDER ON HANDS! SAFE FOR COLORS AND RAYONS!

Can you get your wash still whiter than you do now? Why not try New OXYDOL and see your clothes come white without bleaching! Here's whiteness that seems radiant—fairly sparkling on the line.

It's the modern wash with the New Oxydol. You see, Oxydol's new kind of "Hustle-Bubble" suds are much harder working. Much longer lasting. Much richer in washing power. Every ounce of New Oxydol is packed with more power to get clothes white without bleaching, even in hard water.

Yet it is milder on hands than before! Yes, and so safe for washable colors! Safe even for lovely washable rayons!

Goes much farther! Just notice how much farther New OXYDOL goes. Every cupful washes more clothes or dishes. That means it saves real money, too—besides giving you a glorious wash—white without bleaching!

New Oxydol is the only soap officially recommended by a group of leading washer makers including EASY—makers of the famous 1942 EASY Spindrier Washers.

GUS EDSON
THE ANCIENT STRANGER
YOU SAY THE TREASURE CHEST IS YOURS?
IT'S MINE! MINE! GO AWAY!
IF THAT TREASURE IS YOURS, AS YOU CLAIM, WHY HAVEN'T YOU SALVAGED IT FROM THE RIVER BOTTOM? WHO ARE YOU?
EVERYONE CALLS ME OLD MAN RIVERS— COME ASHORE WITH ME TO MY CABIN, AND I'LL PROVE THAT TREASURE IS MINE!
WE MIGHT AS WELL HUMOR THE OLD MAN, CHESTER—
OLD MAN RIVERS— GEE, THAT'S A FUNNY NAME—
—I'M ONLY AN OLD MAN, BUT I ADVISE YOU AND THE LAD NOT TO TRY ANY QUEER BUSINESS, MATE— I HAVE THE LAW ON MY SIDE!
SIT DOWN— I'LL TELL YOU MY YARN—
WHEN I WAS A YOUNG LAD, I LIVED IN THESE PARTS WITH MY PARENTS—MANY'S THE TIME I SWAM IN THE RIVER— IN FACT, I WAS A REGULAR FISH—ONE DAY, SWIMMIN' UNDER WATER, I CAME UPON THAT OLD, BRASS-BOUND TREASURE CHEST—
BEING A LAD OF UNCOMMON SENSE, I KEPT THE SECRET LOCKED IN MY BOSOM, AND A FEW YEARS AFTER MY FATHER'S DEATH, I BOUGHT THIS LAND WITH THE MONEY HE LEFT ME—
WHY DIDN'T YOU RAISE THE CHEST FROM THE RIVER BED THEN?
I'M GETTIN' TO THAT— REALIZIN' IT WOULD TAKE MORE MONEY TO SALVAGE MY TREASURE THAN I HAD, I DECIDED TO BIDE MY TIME, KEEP MY OWN COUNSEL, AND EARN ENOUGH MONEY TO COVER MY NEEDS—
—I WENT TO SEA— THEN FOLLOWED YEARS OF ADVENTURE— EACH TIME I HAD SAVED ENOUGH MONEY TO COME HOME TO COMPLETE MY WORK, SOMETHIN' INTERFERED— SEEMED LIKE FATE—
HERE'S MY DEED— YOU'LL NOTE THAT MY PROPERTY LINE EXTENDS FIFTEEN FEET OUT INTO THE RIVER—AND THE TREASURE IS ONLY TWELVE FEET FROM SHORE—
SO YOU NEVER GOT AROUND TO SALVAGING THE CHEST TILL YOU GOT TOO OLD?
'TIS TRUE— AND I WAS ALWAYS AFRAID TO TAKE ANYONE INTO MY CONFIDENCE—LIKE THE DOG IN THE MANGER, I STOOD GUARD OVER THE GOLD I COULDN'T RAISE— LOOK—
YOU SAY YOUR NAME IS JUNIPER GUMP? I LIKE THE CUT OF YOUR JIB, YOUNG FELLER— LET'S MAKE A DEAL—HELP ME RAISE THE GOLD, AND WE WILL SHARE IT!
A BLOCK AND TACKLE! WHAT ARE WE WAITING FOR?!
TREASURE, AHOY!

TERRY AND THE PIRATES
by MILTON CANIFF
I TOLD YOU NORMANDIE HAD COURAGE! WHO ELSE EVER SOCKED THE DRAGON LADY AND LIVED?
AFTER ALL THESE YEARS OF WAR WITH JAPAN, WE IN CHINA UNDERSTAND STRIKING AGAINST ANY ODDS TO PROTECT WHAT WE LOVE!... WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO CREATE THIS GREAT BOND BETWEEN THE LITTLE NORMANDIE AND THE DASHING RYAN?
WHEN TERRY AND I LANDED IN CHINA YEARS AGO...
"...I GOT A JOB AS SECRETARY TO CHAUNCEY DRAKE, THE BIG SHIPPING MAN. HIS NIECE, NORMANDIE DRAKE, WAS A SNIPPITY KID — WITH MORE MONEY THAN MANNERS...
"HOWEVER, WHEN THE CHIPS WERE DOWN, THIS KID PROVED HERSELF BIG LEAGUE ALL THE WAY. I REALIZED THAT NORMANDIE WAS GOOD FOR ME - EVEN IF I WASN'T GOOD FOR HER...
"JUST BEFORE THE MAIN EVENT, HER AUNT POPPED UP AND WHISKED HER OFF TO THE UNITED STATES TO SAVE HER DARLING FROM 'THAT AWFUL ADVENTURER'...
"NORMANDIE, BEING AN ORPHAN, WAS INDEBTED TO HER AUNT AND UNCLE — SO SHE MARRIED THE MAN HER AUNT HAD HOOKED... HE WAS TONY SANDHURST... VERY PROPER BACKGROUND BUT MISSING A BEAT IN THE BACKBONE....
"...THE NEXT TIME I SAW NORMANDIE SHE WAS STICKING LOYALLY TO THIS DOPE — WHO DID EVERYTHING IN THE BAD BOOK BUT BEAT HER IN PUBLIC! HE GOT IN A BUSINESS JAM — AND TRIED TO PIN THE THING ON ME...
"...THE POOR KID WAS ABOUT TO HAVE A BABY — BUT SHE BROKE OUT OF THE HOUSE WHERE SANDHURST HAD LOCKED HER, IN ORDER TO TESTIFY IN COURT ON MY BEHALF... I WAS FREED — THE HUSBAND DISAPPEARED
"WHILE SHE WAS IN THE HOSPITAL, AN OLD GOAT NAMED CAPTAIN JUDAS SNATCHED TERRY AND ME — AND I DIDN'T SEE HER AND THE BABY UNTIL THE WAR STARTED... BY THAT TIME HER HUSBAND HAD TURNED UP AGAIN... THIS TIME WORKING FOR THE JAPS....
"...NORMANDIE REMAINED LOYAL TO THIS CLUNK, IN SPITE OF EVERYTHING — I HAD TO HANG ONE ON HIM TO KEEP HIM FROM SACRIFICING HIS WIFE AND CHILD TO SAVE HIS OWN HIDE... YOU KNOW THE REST...."
THE DRAGON LADY IS MORE AMUSED THAN IMPRESSED BY THAT PROSAIC RECITAL!... IT IS MOST CONVENIENT FOR THE HANDSOME BACHELOR TO CARRY THE SO-CALLED 'TORCH' FOR THE SAFELY MARRIED WOMAN.... THE FOOTLOOSE RYAN IS STILL HAPPILY DISTANT FROM THE FIRESIDE AND CARPET SLIPPERS!

NOW WHAT?
WE PUT HIM UP THERE SO HE WOULD JUMP OFF - LIKE A MOUNTAIN GOAT
BUT HE'S ONLY SCARED! HE WON'T DO ANYTHING LIKE A GOAT!
HE DOESN'T EVEN BUTT ANYBODY!
HE'S PRETTY YOUNG! MAYBE WE'LL HAVE TO TEACH HIM TO DO THINGS LIKE THAT.
UGH!
WATCH THIS, GOATIE! HERE'S WHAT YOU'RE SUPPOSED TO DO!
I'LL TRY IT ON HIM! THAT WILL GIVE HIM TH' IDEA!
BUMP!
BAA-A.
OH, HARVEY! WHERE CAN WE PUT THIS GOAT? IT ISN'T SAFE TO HAVE HIM IN THE HOUSE WITH THE CHILDREN!

MERGER TO BRING BUS EXTENSIONS

CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOLS NAME SENIOR LEADERS

Classes to Ballot on Their Spokesmen.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

The voters of 1943 and 1946 will have an early opportunity this week to exercise the American right of elected representation as they ballot for the students who will speak for this year's high school graduating classes in interviews in THE TRIBUNE. Seniors of the Catholic High schools will vote first, since their commencements come earlier than those of the public schools. Eleven north side and north suburban Catholic schools will be represented.

In coöperation with THE TRIBUNE, the schools have furnished lists of candidates. In general, schools with classes of 50 or more students select 10 nominees. Classes of fewer than 50 select five. The Catholic seniors will hold their elections on Wednesday, and the interviews with winning students will appear in THE TRIBUNE Metropolitan section on Sunday, May 31.

DE PAUL ACADEMY

Raymond Bartnick—5246 Windsor avenue. Raymond, an outstanding student at De Paul for four years, will receive his diploma in the engineering course. He has been in the school band for four years; he is a member of the engineering and chemistry clubs, and is on the tennis and bowling teams.

Albert A. Comyn—3325 North Seeley avenue. Albert has also followed the engineering curriculum. He is senior vice president and has been in the band for four years. He is active in the engineering and bowling clubs. Favorite sports are intramural basketball and softball.

Robert Evans—2431 North Avers avenue. He has completed the engineering course with high honors. Vice president of his class in 1940 and 1941, he is president this year. He is also president of the Sphinx club, honor organization, and graduating football captain. He is in the engineering, chemistry, and commerce clubs; sports editor of the school paper and yearbook.

John J. Fischer—4129 North Laramie avenue. He will be a general course graduate. He is considered a class leader; has been in the band four years; member of engineering, chemistry, and Sphinx clubs. He has been on the tennis team three years. He was editor-in-chief of the De Paul Prep, the school paper, this year.

Thomas E. Gallagher—1042 Waveland avenue. He will be graduated with honors on June 9. Besides being one of the top ranking seniors, Thomas has been in intramural basketball and softball and a member of the heavyweight football squad for two years. He has been active in the commerce and chemistry clubs, and is active on the school publications staff.

Francis J. Hoban—1452 Irving Park road. Joe's diploma in the engineering course will be awarded with honors June 9. He is a member secretary-treasurer of the Sphinx club. He is in the engineering and chemistry clubs, and on the school publications staff. He has been a regular on the heavyweight football team for three years, and on the basketball squad for two years.

Robert N. Kruppe—1825 Patterson avenue. Bob will be graduated from the general course. He has been active on the prep staff, in chemistry and engineering club and in the Propagation of the Faith society. He is a member of the swimming club and of the bowling and track teams.

George N. Martin—5034 North Sawyer avenue. George is a senior in the general course. He has been in commerce club for two years. He was a regular on the basketball junior team for three years, and he was captain this season.

Richard J. Purcell—635 Belmont avenue. He will receive highest honors with his diploma from the science course. He has served as president of the chemistry club this year. Richard has been active in all intramural sports, participating in football, basketball, and softball.

Louis Uszler—2448 Surrey court. Louis will receive a commercial diploma. He has been in the academy choir four years, and is student conductor this year. He is in the bowling, commerce, and chemistry clubs.

ST. GREGORY

James Kleeman—5400 Lieb avenue. James is president of the school. He is outstanding in sodality activities.

Catherine Houle—5942 North Paulina street. Catherine is school vice president.

Joseph Perry—1460 Bryn Mawr avenue. Winner of a four year scholarship to Marquette university; co-editor of the school paper; high point man on the basketball team.

Andrew Klawitter—4327 McVicker avenue. Andrew is president of the boys' senior class.

Bernice Strauel—4392 North Bell avenue. Bernice is president of the senior girls.

Carl Christien—1847 Greenleaf avenue.

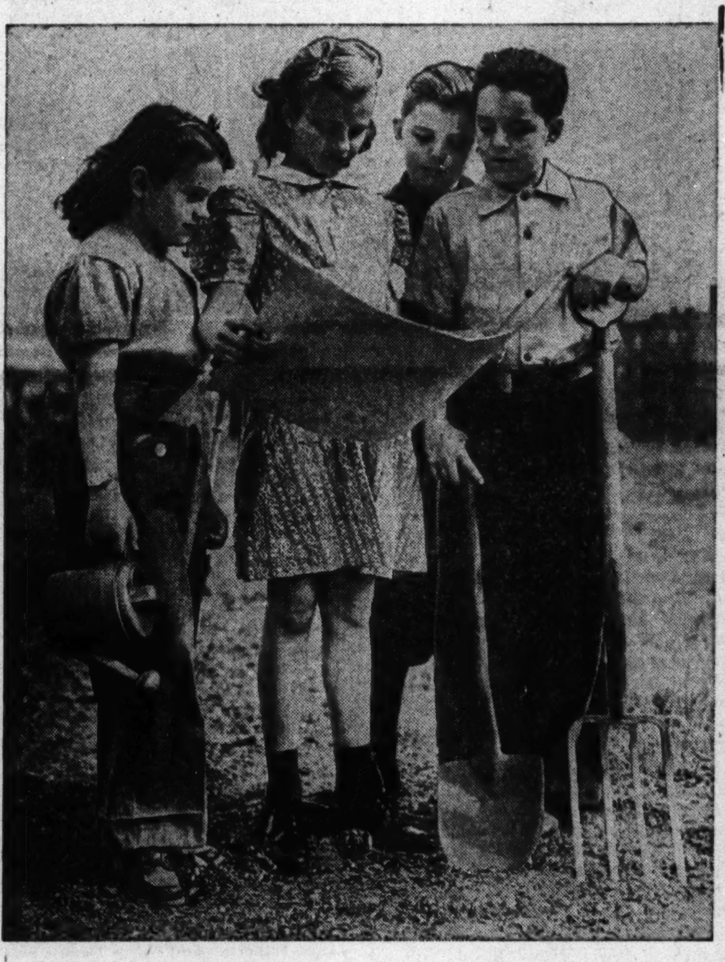
Springtime Arrives in the Schools and in City's Parks

This year's early spring brought out dozens of those hardy fellows, the fishermen. Once out for the season, they're on hand thru seemingly every daylight hour until the spray begins to freeze in the late fall. A popular spot is the seawall off the Montrose avenue extension of the park district. Arvid Pedersen, 86 years old, 4053 North Richmond, comes regularly to fish and smoke his pipe. He thinks it's good to look out over the water all day—reminds him of his days on sailing ships, for he went to sea at the age of 12. It reminds him, too, of his dozen years on Great Lakes boats, his job before retirement.

When springtime arrived early and warm boys and girls in the primary department of Chappell school, 5145 North Leavitt street, started drawing birds and trees. With the floor for an easel and the most comfortable position as the accepted artists' attitude, this quartet produced a set of murals. The little girls are Charlene Mark (left), 5061 North Claremont avenue, and Sylvia Carlson, 5055 North Claremont avenue. The boys are Larry Borg (left), 2250 Farragut street, and Rolph Hed, 2007 Berwyn avenue.

Even before the middle of May there were very young men playing in sunsuits on the sandy shores of Montrose beach. The little fellow with the shovel is Billy Koivisto, 19 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Koivisto, 4347 Kenmore avenue. His companion is Dennis Belmas, 2 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Belmas of 4119 Kenmore avenue.

[Chicago Park District Photos.]



Springtime and gardening were ever boon companions, but this year more plots have been cultivated than even in the period of the first World war. City children as well as their parents are learning the lore of planting an onion set and making a neat row of carrots. Dorothy Ferguson, 2219 Berwyn avenue, is the fármerette with the watering can. Elsa Vaintzettl, 2327 Berwyn avenue, studies the garden plan as Kenneth Nyquist, 2323 Berwyn avenue, peaks over shoulders. John Mueller, 2050 Farragut avenue, is the young fellow ready for work with the spade and spading fork. All are pupils at Chappell school where grades 4B, 5B, and 5A have a real garden at nearby Hoyne and Foster avenues. Forty-six youngsters have plots.

Coroner Holds Inquest on His Long Career

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

Dr. John L. Taylor.

Dr. John L. Taylor of Libertyville, middling tall, squarish and ruddy faced, believes he holds a world's record. He has been the Republican coroner of Republican Lake county [only one Democrat has had a county office for one term since the Civil war] ever since November, 1900. He is 75 years old, looks 55, and has just paid income tax for the second time in his life. His county office always exempted him before.

He was one of Lake county's pioneer motorists. He bought his first car in 1907, a Ford with no top, no windshield, and kerosene lamps. A trip to West Madison street to get a windshield installed meant an overnight stay in the city, and Taylor got arrested on the return trip for driving 15 miles an hour thru Glencoe.

Sudden Death and Autos.

He's still an automobile fan, and he drives anywhere at any time on his official business. He does admit that Lake county roads get pretty slippery in winter, however.

Taylor's predecessor as county coroner was Dr. Fremont C. Knight. Dr. Knight had 33 inquests in 1899. Dr. Taylor had 244 last year, and he averages about 230 annually. He says his inquest rate began going up as good roads and automobiles increased. There were more auto accident deaths, of course, but cars also made

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Corp. Roosvall.

After the attack on Pearl Harbor, Corp. Theodore B. Roosvall Jr., who has been on duty in Hawaii for 14 months with the marine corps, wrote to his father in Evanston: "We had a little scare a while ago, but we're ready for them now."

Corp. Roosvall, who enlisted a year after he was graduated from Von Steuben High school in 1938, is attached to the quartermaster's corps.

Frank Peters Jr., 7007 Sheridan road, and James Massie, 6719 North Ashland avenue, are being trained at the navy's radio material school here, in operation of the navy's aircraft detector.

Donald A. Siljestrom, 23, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Siljestrom of Highland Park, now is in training with the army air corps at Santa Ana, Cal.

Pvt. Levinson.

Edward G. Levinson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris K. Levinson of Winnetka, who practiced law with his father until he entered the army, returned from Fort Jackson, S. C., recently to attend a family reunion. His sister, Beatrice, a student at the Julliard School of Music, New York, also was here. Pvt. Levinson is a Northwestern University Law school graduate.

Lieut. Born.

Second Lieut. Raymond N. Born of the 108th quartermasters' corps, recently married Miss Helen Nevis Christopher, the daughter of Mrs. Jennie Christopher of 4338 North Ashland avenue, at the Lake View Presbyterian church.

A few days later they went to Fort Crook, Omaha, Neb., where Lieut. Born is attending the motor transport school. Lieut. Born, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Born of 3551 Reta street, is a graduate of Lake View High school. In his senior years he was an ROTC major on the city brigade staff.

Five Illinois Institute of Technology juniors, Nathaniel Ratner, 6327 Glenwood avenue; John M. Byrne, 6710 Lakewood avenue; Robert Hull, 6410 Lakewood avenue; Herbert E. Bay, 6459 Glenwood avenue, and Norman Lettvin, 1140 Columbia avenue, have passed physical examinations of the navy's engineering volunteer probationary program.

Lieut. Holleb.
[Liebling Photo.]

Second Lieut. Charles Holleb, the son of Nat Holleb of 433 Briar place, recently left the University of Illinois to go on active duty with an infantry unit at Camp Wheeler, Macon, Ga. A 1941 graduate of St. John's Military academy, Lieut. Holleb later received his commission in the army reserve corps at the age of 18.

Checkers Duel Across Sea On Despite War

William J. Wood.

For three years William J. Wood, Waukegan, has been world checkers problem composer champion. Reason — nobody would ever accept Wood's invitation to try to beat him at making bigger and better checkers problems.

But now the three year's silence is broken and a contender has arisen — one Saul Cass of Wales. Evidently Cass would like to take the championship back to the British Isles. It had always been in England or Scotland prior to Wood's proclamation as champion by the National Checker association.

Contest Takes Several Months.

The problem composer's work is judged on the 40 positions on the five fundamentals of the game—end game, problems, theory of the move, strokes, and blocks. Wood says it will require two to three months to finish this championship match and have the work of Cass and himself judged and a decision made.

A widower, Wood is 57 years old. He has been playing checkers more than 40 years, but he was just an occasional player until a knee injury —incurred while following his trade as carpenter—forced him away from the more strenuous pastimes he had enjoyed.

Started Hobby in 1908.

Wood began composing problems in 1908 after he'd beaten all of the cracker box and top-of-the-barrel champs in Waukegan and North Chicago.

If problem composing is Wood's night job it might seem that he should choose a day job that wouldn't take too much effort. However, he likes to keep his wits working. His day work is supervising the 44 man crew in charge of keeping the lawns and buildings of Abbott Laboratories in scrupulous order.

WEST POINT CADET, STUDENT OF CAVALRY, TO ENTER AIR CORPS

Cyrus E. Manierre.
[White Photo.]

Cyrus Edson Manierre, son of Mrs. Edith Manierre of Lake Forest, will be graduated May 29 from the United States Military academy. He is to be commissioned in the cavalry branch and detailed to the air corps. A graduate of Hill school, Pottstown, Pa., Manierre was a cadet sergeant during his first year and later was a cadet instructor. He turned out for lacrosse, boxing, track and soccer and was a member of the Dialectic society, the Camera and Squash clubs.

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

MISS JANET R. KERN of Wilmette recently was initiated into Chi Delta Phi, national honorary creative writing sorority, at Stephens college, Columbia, Mo. Miss Kern, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Maximilian Kern, is a 1941 graduate of New Trier High school. She is studying journalism and creative writing at Stephens.

Janet R. Kern.
[Eugene L. Ray Photo.]

Charles Hall of 1253 Elmdale avenue and Jay Burns III. of 1527 Touhy avenue, Northwestern university students, recently were elected to Phi Eta Sigma, national scholastic honorary society for freshmen. They earned the honor by compiling "A" averages.

ALLAN KNIGHTS of 7519 North Winchester avenue and Vernon Wagner of 3318 Lake Shore drive, Northwestern university students, recently were initiated into Deru, honorary society to which juniors are elected by their classmates.

Knights is in the school of commerce and member of the student governing board and independent council. Wagner, business manager of the 1943 Syllabus, campus annual, is enrolled in the school of commerce and is a member of Phi Epsilon Pi.

Five north side students at De Paul university are listed as undergraduate leaders in the De Paulian, the university yearbook. They are Virginia Kraft, 6155 North Maplewood avenue, chairman of the charity ball; Sam Aronson, 7070 North Ashland avenue, vice president of Phi Beta Epsilon; Betty Rooney, 1500 Rosemont avenue, president of women's league; John Muldoon, Evanston, former president of student activity council, and Joseph Moran, 6308 North Richmond street, editor of the De Paulia, university newspaper.

MISS MARY ALICE O'LAUGHLIN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Laughlin of 6540 North Talman avenue, recently was chosen sacristan of the Sodality of Our Lady at St. Mary's college, Notre Dame, South Bend, Ind. Elected by students, she will assume the office next fall when she begins her junior year.

John Whitehead Hunt of Evanston, civil engineering student at Cornell university, recently won the Frederick Post company award, a slide rule, offered to the freshman with the second highest average.

After two years on the Principia academy track team, Van Velzer opened his college track career by winning two firsts in the meet with Washington university, St. Louis.

TRANSIT SETUP WOULD BENEFIT NORTH SECTIONS

New Franchise Up to Voters June 1.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

A large number of prospective bus extensions, totaling 249 miles thruout the city, would be installed in the north and northwest sections under the city's traction unification ordinance to be voted on June 1 at a public referendum. The expanding northwest side particularly would benefit from a number of new routes.

The ordinance requires a proposed unified transit company to effect 715 miles of improvements within eight years, including the 249 miles of extensions, 165 miles of new express bus routes, and 301 miles of conversion from street car to bus operation.

The expenditure of 102 million dollars for modernization is required of the new company in the eight year period for the purchase of 850 gasoline or trolley buses, 950 streamlined street cars, 1850 additional units, either street cars, 1,850 additional units, either street cars or buses, and 1,000 subway-elevated cars. These purchases will permit the retirement of most of the outmoded equipment now operated by the surface and elevated lines.

New Franchise Involved.

The unification ordinance, passed June 19, 1941, by the city council, grants a franchise to the prospective unified company which would operate the properties of the Chicago Surface Lines, the elevated lines, and the 65 million dollar city owned subways. The new company also will have the right to acquire the Chicago Motor Coach company.

A map in this section shows the bus extensions to be made by the new system in the north and northwest sections of the city. Express bus services, with limited stops, are planned as follows: From Narragansett avenue and Addison street to Western avenue, Clybourn avenue, Division street and Orleans street into the loop; Milwaukee avenue from Foster avenue to the Logan Square "L" station; Central avenue from Milwaukee avenue to Roosevelt road, and Western avenue from Howard street to 111th street.

Proposed substitutions of buses, either trolley or gasoline, for present street car service include Devon avenue, Montrose avenue, Irving Park road, Belmont avenue, Fullerton avenue, Cicero avenue, Damen avenue, Clybourn avenue, and Broadway.

Commission to Run Setup.

The order in which the transit extensions and substitutions are to be made would be determined by a three man local transit commission appointed by the mayor with the approval of the city council. This commission would have all authority over the new company that is now held by the Illinois Commerce commission, including rates, of fare, service standards and changes of routes.

The new company is required by the unified ordinance to make the transit improvements to the extent of its ability to raise the money. The surface lines have 30 million dollars in cash which will be available as a starter for the modernization. City officials predict that the remainder of the 102 millions could be obtained by borrowing and from renewal funds to be set up out of future revenues.

Need Securities Holders Approval.

Establishment of the proposed unified company is contingent on the outcome of the June 1 referendum and also on a vote by the securities holders of the surface and elevated lines now being taken. The 75,000 securities owners are balloting on a proposed financial merger and reorganization plan whereby a new corporation will be set up to accept the franchise ordinance, if it is approved by the people.

INDIANS WILL AID EVANSTON RALLY FOR WAR BONDS

The Indians are taking over Dyche stadium of Northwestern university Saturday afternoon. The Jemez Indian dancers, winners of the intertribal dance competition at the Gallup, N. M., ceremonial last summer who visited some of the Evanston schools recently [but missed several others where they were expected], will entertain youngsters of Evanston and other north shore suburbs at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The occasion is a war bond and stamp rally. Strictly speaking, there will be no admission, but bond and stamp booths will be set up outside the stadium and all who attend will be urged to buy.

Besides the Indian dances, which will run about 40 minutes, a program of entertainment will be provided, Merritt R. Laubenheimer, chief of the war savings staff of Evanston, has announced. Uncle Harry and Aunt Agnes Hosford, who conduct the Always Be Careful club on W-G-N and present safety broadcasts for school children, will entertain the youngsters.

Ina Mae Jones, national champion baton twirler, winner of the American Legion competition last year, and 20 other twirlers will give a demonstration of their art. Music will be provided by the Haven school band.

REV. F. J. FAGEN WILL LEAVE CITY FOR HIGHER POST

To Become Provincial of Redemptorist Fathers.

The Rev. Francis J. Fagen.

The Rev. Francis J. Fagen, for the last three years rector of St. Alphonsus church, 1429 Wellington avenue, soon is to assume the duties of provincial of the St. Louis province of Redemptorist Fathers.

Father Fagen, who was born in Chicago June 25, 1895, and attended St. Alphonsus' parish school, received the appointment from the Most Rev. Patrick Murray, superior general of the Congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer in Rome.

Supervises Large Area.

As head of the St. Louis province, Father Fagen will supervise the missionary work performed by Redemptorist Fathers in 26 provincial houses located in an area from Detroit to Los Angeles and Seattle and from Chicago to New Orleans.

St. Alphonsus is one of two provincial houses in Chicago. The other is at St. Michael's church, 1633 Cleveland avenue.

The only other province of the order in the United States has its headquarters at Brooklyn, N. Y.

Priest Since 1923.

Father Fagen, who returned to Chicago in 1939 from Wichita, Kas., has been a priest since 1923. He was ordained after he completed his studies at the Redemptorist Fathers' seminary, Oconomowoc, Wis.

The order was founded in 1732 by St. Alphonsus Liquori, who previously was an attorney of Naples. St. Alphonsus later became the Bishop of St. Agatha of the Goths and died at the age of 91.

The Rev. Peter E. Foerster of Livermore, Cal., will succeed Father Fagen as rector of St. Alphonsus parish.

2 JUNIOR CLUBS END SEASON WITH FETES THIS WEEK

North Town Auxiliary Has Breakfast Today.

Mrs. Alvin Schulz.

While the majority of federated clubs on the north side have closed their season, there are two junior groups planning meetings this week. Both will be special events—the North Town Junior auxiliary will have its annual spring breakfast at Shawnee Country club, Wilmette, at noon today, and the Junior auxiliary of Ravenswood Woman's club will have the annual banquet Tuesday evening at the Webster hotel.

The North Town breakfast will be the occasion for the recently elected officers to be introduced to members. Heading the roster is Mrs. Alvin F. Schulz, Skokie, who has been selected to serve again as North Town president.

Other North Town officers and chairmen are: Mrs. R. C. Patterson, 1622 Columbia avenue, vice president; Miss Dorothy Teuber, 4420 North Christiana avenue, secretary; Miss Ruth Wolf, 2624 Lunt avenue, treasurer; Mrs. William Boyd, 1903 Lunt avenue, fine arts chairman; Mrs. James R. Russell, 6322 North Albany avenue, philanthropy; Miss Dorothy Mahoney, 7328 North Oakley avenue, program; Miss Jean Goth, 1244 Granville avenue, publicity, and Miss Shirley Wells, 6614 North Tallman avenue, membership.

Mrs. Ralph Lockwood, 6630 North Maplewood avenue, this season's program chairman, has arranged to have Mrs. Waurine Eiland Kimbell read a one act comedy.

Ravenswood juniors will hold their banquet Tuesday in the Webster hotel candlelight room. Special guests will include: Mrs. J. F. Bernhard, 2742 Farragut avenue, new president of the Ravenswood senior club; Mrs. B. A. Weeks, 4731 North Paulina street, retiring president of the Ravenswood seniors; Mrs. Harry Raymond, 6544 North Rockwell street, 10th district chairman of junior women's clubs; Mrs. Garfield MacKenzie, 4516 North Wolcott street, and Mrs. M. F. Brenner, 4340 North Winchester avenue, sponsors of the Ravenswood juniors, and Georgia Weaver, 5727 North Winthrop avenue, the juniors' president. Mrs. Howard Appleton, 1353 Winona street, will be toastmistress.

In Fashion Revue

Clothes always catch a young girl's fancy—and in springtime the attraction is greater than ever. Students of the clothing and textile department of Immaculata High school are putting the fancy into a show—the annual fashion revue in the school auditorium, 640 Irving Park road, at 8:15 o'clock Friday evening. Lorraine Potter, 2857 North Hamilin avenue, models an afternoon frock.

LILACS SHARING WITH CITY'S SICK AGAIN SUCCESS

Volunteer Workers Aid in Sending Blooms.

The annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign again was successful this year in bringing cheer and beauty to the bedsides of the sick and shut-ins of the city's hospitals and institutions.

Sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, this year's lilac campaign marked the 14th year that blooms have been gathered thruout Chicagoland for distribution to the less fortunate people in the city.

Cheer 20,000 Patients.

This year more than 60,000 blooms flooded Chicago with a river of color and fragrance. The bouquets were delivered to more than 20,000 patients in 148 hospitals, orphanages, and old people's homes.

The work of gathering the flowers was supervised by chairmen of more than 81 garden clubs affiliated with the guild. Helping to pick and wrap the blooms were thousands of flower lovers, Boy and Girl Scouts, and school children.

Railroads Lend Aid.

The lilac bouquets were delivered freight free from local stations to city terminals by eight railroads. Railroads generously offering use of their baggage cars were the North Shore electric, Chicago and Milwaukee, Rock Island, Pennsylvania, Chicago and Northwestern, Illinois Central, Aurora and Elgin, and the Burlington.

Among voluntary workers thru whose efforts the bouquets were picked, wrapped, and delivered to railroad stations were:

Evanston—Edwin M. Ashcraft, Mrs. Ada Matthews, Mrs. Arthur V. Hunt, Mrs. George White, John Palmer, Mrs. Henry A. Thinde, Mrs. Harry W. Hadley, A. Keil Rieger, Robert L. Moore, George W. Elrick, John E. Johnson, Mrs. Herman Cohen, Harry H. Campbell, Robert S. Smith, Nathaniel Norton, Bernard C. Harris, John R. Barry, Jerry Bodholdt, and Mrs. Wallace Baldwin.

CCC camp, Glenview.

Wilmette—M. W. Barnes, Mrs. C. E. Hotze, W. D. Sweetman, Archie P. Brown, D. M. Woodlock, Fred S. Rye, Areste Amici, Peter Roemer, D. W. Rapp, Mrs. John J. Mills, Everett C. Groves.

Winnetka—Mrs. John F. Manierre, Mrs. Edward M. Harkness, and Mrs. Dennison B. Hull.

MacLeish Family Pledges to Buy Bonds

EXPECT RECORD THRONG AT YMCA CAMP THIS YEAR

Vacations in Family Car to Be Supplanted.

As the prospects fade for the traditional city family vacation—a jaunt in the family car—the outlook brightens for the family's younger members. Early reports of registrations for YMCA camps show more than half the boys who signed at Wilson Avenue and Rogers Park Y's have made reservations for three periods [a total of six weeks], as opposed to the usual one period, or two weeks.

As war production schedules keep family heads at work longer hours and the necessity of saving tires reduces the outlook of family outings, the trend has been the typically American gesture of doing the next best thing. In this case it has been to pack the youngsters off to camp for a longer time.

Altho YMCA camps are devoted mostly to boys there are periods for girls, as well. Thus Camp Rogers Park on Hastings lake near Millburn in Lake county opens June 28 with one week devoted to Tri-Hi-Y girls. The period from July 5 to July 19 is for girls also. Boys' periods begin July 19 and continue thru Aug. 30.

War Canoe Is Camp's Pride.

Camp Rogers Park can accommodate 85 at one time. Pride of the camp is the war canoe in which 20 paddlers can ride at one time. The camp has a sailboat, too. Harry Hansen, executive secretary of the Rogers Park YMCA, at 6968 North Clark street, is in charge of this camp.

The Wilson Avenue YMCA, 1725 Wilson avenue, sends its campers to Pinewood, a wooded spot at Twin Lakes, Mich., 200 miles from Chicago. This will be the 20th season for Camp Pinewood, the sixth under the Wilson Y supervision. There are no girls' periods at this camp.

The accommodations are for 96 boys at a time, and registrations as of May 1 showed that 18 boys had already signed for an average of four weeks apiece. One day canoe trips on the Muskegon river are the delight of little boys at Pinewood, while the older fellows go on three day jaunts.

Waldo Toevs, boys' work secretary of the Wilson Y, is in charge of the camp.

Camp Scholarships Given.

Boys from the North Avenue-Larrabee YMCA will go to Camp MacLean at Burlington, Wis., 75 miles from Chicago. Alvan Cox will be the leader of this group and the outing will be for one 12-day period, Aug. 24 to Sept. 4. Many of the boys from this YMCA go on "scholarships"—their fees are paid by men who reside in the North avenue dormitory and at the Lawson Y. The rate of $10 includes transportation. Camp MacLean, 200 acres on Rockland lake, is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Maddon M. MacLean as a memorial to their son, John Bartlett MacLean.

Boys from the Lincoln-Belmont Y share a four week period, July 27 to Aug. 24, at Camp MacLean with the Austin and 111th street groups. A. E. Brubaker is the leader and the Lincoln-Belmont quota is 66 fellows.

Work of putting the camps in readiness is supervised by the camp leaders who usually make an early trip to the grounds for that purpose. Accessibility of Camp Rogers Park, however, makes the task a series of weekends for Hansen and a staff of high school boys who get their transportation and their keep in return for painting and repairing screens, painting boats, and doing the general house cleaning necessary to putting the camp in shape.

To Wed Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Jacobson, 1127 Farwell avenue, have announced the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Lorraine Ruth, to Maurice A. Friedlen, son of Mrs. Meyer L. Friedlen of the Shoreland hotel. The wedding is planned for Saturday. Miss Jacobson was graduated from Northwestern university. Mr. Friendlen also attended N. U.

Dedicate Flag Staff Today at North Shore Church

Boy and Girl Scouts and church school members will participate in dedication of a new flag staff at North Shore Baptist church, 1311 Berwyn avenue, at 10:30 o'clock today. Air raid and fire drills will be conducted before the services.

Malkov, Arnold Natenberg, Herman A. Neiburger, Dr. Sol Ravitz, Myer N. Rosengard, G. W. Schoenwald, Joseph J. Tumpeer, Milton H. Yaffe and Harry Yavitch.

Rabbi Solomn Goldman will address the alumni of Anshe Emet at a parents' night service this evening. The synagogue's Girl Scout troop will present a program at 8 o'clock next Tuesday in the community hall.

West Rogers Park B'nai B'rith lodge will celebrate its first anniversary at an informal dinner dance in the Belden Stratford hotel at 6:30 o'clock this evening. S. L. Reinschreiber is chairman and Morris Rubin is co-chairman of the dinner dance committee.

A confirmation service for 18 young people will be held at 10 o'clock next Sunday by Emanuel congregation, 701 Buckingham place. The confirmants are Betty Bell, Donna Chrablow, Edward Cohen, Edward Degginger, Robert Hirsch, Lois Kahn, Carolyn Karp, Carol Jane Lasser, Sally Ann Levy, Elaine Manheim, Stanley Nathanson, Arlene Schaeffer, Merle Schwartz, Jerry Smolka, Marcele Ann Solomon, Albert Steinhardt, Herbert Weiner, and Ernest L. Worsek.

A quiz program will be held by the PTA of Temple Sholom at its closing meeting of the year at 3 o'clock today in the Frankenstein Memorial center.

Jewish history and literature will be discussed by Dr. Abraham Lassen of Congregation B'nai Zion, 1447 Pratt boulevard, at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow in the temple library. The Young Peoples' league will hold its annual membership dance in Mendelson hall this evening. The league's cultural classes will meet tomorrow evening.

Aids Formal Dance

Ann O'Hara Yeomans, editor of the 1942 yearbook of St. Scholastica High school, is in charge of the sale of bids to the formal the seniors will hold Friday evening in the school hall. Her mother, Mrs. L. I. Yeomans, is general chairman in charge of the committee of adults assisting with plans.

"Every day nearby office men and women call up for some of Mr. Cooley's delicious food . . . maybe a lunch or just a soda and sandwich. I sure 'nuff give myself the hotfoot to get it there in a hurry 'cause service is what hungry people really crave."

* * * * *

The popularity of Cooley's Cupboards is due not alone to the appetizing foods, but to the unusual service you get from every employee, many of whom, like Willis Hunter, have been in the Cooley family for 10 to 15 years.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA ALUMNAE PLAN ELECTION

Lambda Chapter Meets in Evanston Tomorrow.

The Lambda alumnae chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta will meet for the last session of the season at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the chapter house in Evanston. Mrs. Jack Griffith, chairman of the nominating committee, will present next year's slate of officers. Following the election, Mrs. James C. Butler, publicity chairman, will present this year's scrapbook.

Mrs. Kissak Herbekian and Mrs. Harry Lansman will be hostesses for the evening. They have arranged to have tables for bridge or opportunities for Red Cross work as the program after the business session.

Kappa Alpha Theta.

Kappa Alpha Theta alumnae of Evanston and the north shore will meet for 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday at the home of Mrs. W. T. Grimm, 42 Kenilworth avenue, Kenilworth. Miss Barbara Abel, publicity director for the Chicago YWCA and a Theta from N. U., will be the speaker. Her subject will be on the employed girl in Chicago.

The retiring president, Mrs. Ericsson F. McLaughlin of Evanston, will conduct a short business session after which officers will be installed. They are: Mrs. Clark F. Smaha, Wilmette, president; Mrs. Albert R. Cobb and Mrs. A. L. Reincke, both of Evanston, vice presidents; Mrs. J. Gordon Ehlen, Evanston, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles C. Stanton, Evanston, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. H. Nason, Wilmette, treasurer; Mrs. Herbert K. Woodland, Winnetka, deputy treasurer; Mrs. Robert R. Glenn, Wilmette, editor, and Mrs. R. C. Harrer, Evanston, archivist.

Mrs. John Kuiper, Highland Park, is chairman of the luncheon committee. Her assistants will be: Mrs. James G. Culbertson, Mrs. W. H. Hollweg, Mrs. R. L. Hudson, Mrs. R. C. Johnstone Jr., Mrs. Clyde T. Marshall, Mrs. Gordon Leitzow, and Mrs. Robert H. Olmstead Jr.

Thetas will sew for the Red Cross for their regular monthly meetings as a new project.

Alpha Delta Pi.

The north shore alumnae luncheon meeting at the home of Mrs. Ray T. Johnson, 2332 Central Park avenue, Evanston, tomorrow will be a Founders' day celebration.

The officers elected last month will be in charge of this meeting. They are: Mrs. William S. McDowell, 4875 North Paulina street, president; Mrs. Donald E. Bean, 6151 North Hamilton avenue, vice president; Mrs. Carl W. Dowling, 1433 Farragut avenue, secretary, and Mrs. Gus N. Mastrogany, 7346 North Hoyne avenue, treasurer.

Delta Delta Delta.

The North Side alliance will meet at the home of Mrs. C. R. Corcoran, 1212 Oakton street, Evanston, Wednesday. Mrs. J. G. Chambers will be cohostess. Officers will be elected.

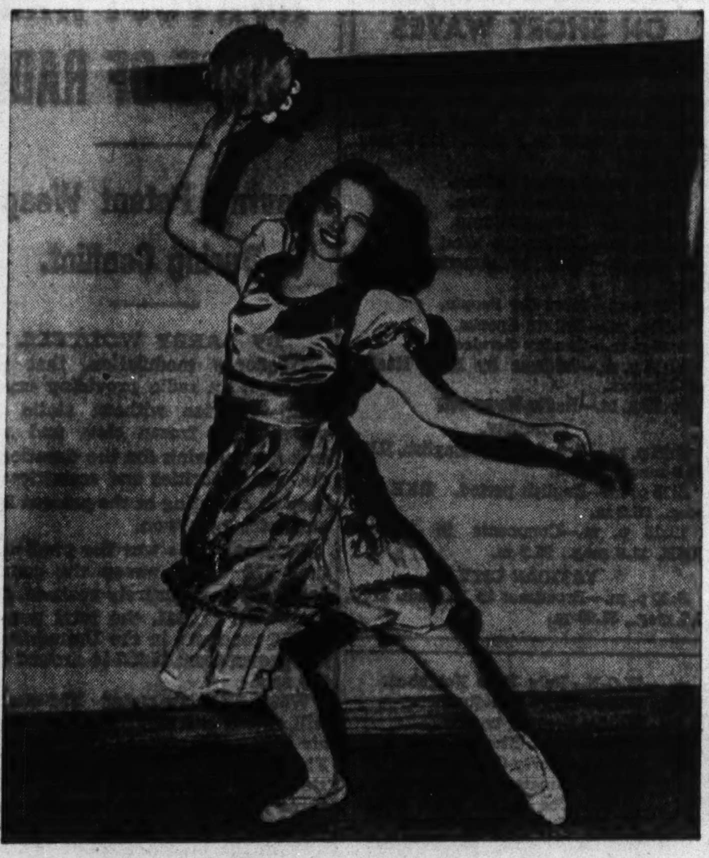
Theta Sigma Phi.

North shore alumnae will meet for a second monthly victory workshop Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Levering Cartwright, 726 Michigan avenue, Evanston. The session will open at 2 o'clock with a discussion of the morale building project directed by Mrs. Kenneth Weir, Deerfield. Mrs. Cartwright, the hostess, is a well known Evanston pianist, and after the business meeting, she will play a short program as part of the tea hour.

Friends of Junior School to Hold Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Evanston Friends of the Chicago Junior school will be at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Earl J. Gossett, 314 Woodland avenue, Winnetka. Mrs. George H. Simpson, retiring president, will open the session. Mrs. William A. Osgood, chairman of the nomination committee, and the committee members will present the slate of officers. Mrs. Charles H. Warner Jr., Mrs. George W. Speyer, Mrs. George T. Coonley, Mrs. A. V. Gustavson, and Mrs. Schuyler S. Wilson will be assisting hostesses.

Appears in Waller Operetta



Verna Romberg's tambourine and her dancing shoes and gay frock are her costume for "The Marriage of Nannette," the operetta the Waller High school choir will present from the stage of the Lake View auditorium, Irving Park road and Ashland avenue, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. Verna resides at 1018 Wrightwood avenue. Miss Margaret Gallagher and Miss Theresa Reid are directing the production. The Waller orchestra, under the baton of Ivan Feldman, will provide the accompaniment. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

TRINITY CHURCH TO UNFURL FLAG IN RITES TODAY

Roster of Service Men to Be Dedicated.

World war veterans, Boy and Girl Scout troops, and families of 50 soldiers and sailors now serving with the armed forces will participate in a flag presentation ceremony and observance of "I Am an American" Sunday at Trinity Lutheran church, Seminary and Barry avenues, at 10:30 o'clock today.

The congregation whose World war I. roll listed 112 members also will dedicate a new roster containing the photographs as well as the names of members now in military service. Axel Kellstrom, a World war veteran, designed the roster.

Dr. Julius Lincoln, the pastor, who was a member of a civilian overseas commission in 1917-'18, will preach. A choir of 50 voices will sing.

An appeal for support of the United China Relief fund will be made to the congregation of the North Shore Baptist church, 1311 Berwyn avenue, at 7:45 o'clock this evening. Dr. Weldon M. Wilson, pastor, will interview Andrew Yank, a native of China and now a student at Wheaton college. Students of the Chinese Mission school of the church will usher. The Wheaton College Glee club will sing.

"Reactions to Affliction" is the topic of a sermon to be delivered at 11 o'clock tomorrow by the Rev. Arthur T. Clark, assistant minister, at the First Methodist church of Evanston. The Rev. Clark, who also will preach next Sunday, and Bishop Edwin F. Lee, who will preach May 31, will occupy the pulpit during the absence on vacation of Dr. Ernest F. Tittle, minister.

Chiropodist Association Takes Course in First Aid

Many members of the Northwestern Alumni Chiropodist association have completed the Red Cross first aid instructors' course taught by Isaac W. Hawes. The association is encouraging members to take this method of coöperating in the defense effort. Chiropodists also are asking congress to pass House Bill 3738, which provides for establishment of a chiropody corps in the medical corps of the United States army.

GLENOLA CLUB PLANS SPRING LUNCHEON AT BEACH HOTEL TUESDAY

Miss Lulu Keegan.

Miss Lulu Keegan, 6522 Bosworth avenue, social chairman of the Glenola club, will be in charge of the club's annual spring luncheon Tuesday in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. The Rev. F. J. Dinneen, spiritual director of the club, will be the speaker. The Aeolian trio will give a musical program. The occasion will be the termination of office for Mrs. Edward P. Nesbitt, president. Mrs. James W. O'Hara is the incoming president. Other new officers are: Mrs. Clare S. Acton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Leo Early, financial secretary; Mrs. William J. Bowans, treasurer; Mrs. W. J. Larkin, chairman of juniors; Mrs. A. F. Adams, chairman of visiting.

Friml and Herbert Songs on Northerners' Program

Melodies by Rudolf Friml and Victor Herbert will highlight the Northerners concert on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday. This program features the music of the male octet and string ensemble and the songs of Lois Wallner.

Miss Wallner will sing "Some Day" from Friml's "Vagabond King." The male octet will be heard in "On Parade," by Herbert. They will also sing a medley consisting of "Put, Put, Put," "Me and Melinda," the currently popular "Sleepy Lagoon," and "Last Call for Love."

FM IS VIEWED AS A POST-WAR HOPE OF RADIO

Proving Potent Weapon During Conflict.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Frequency modulation, that new technique in radio providing crystal clear reception without static, appears to be frozen clear and solid as a skating rink for the duration of the war. Priorities and scarcities will keep it operating at the present level until victory is won.

Because of the war the predictions that FM would sweep the country have not been entirely realized. Still since Jan. 1, 1941, the total number of FM receivers in the United States has grown from 15,000 to around 400,000 sets.

W59C, W-G-N's sister FM station, will round out eight months on the air this week. There are two other FM stations, W51C, the pioneer FM station in Chicago, and W67C. These three stations have brought thousands of listeners in the Chicago area new thrills in broadcasting—particularly in music. Some thirty other stations thruout the country are bringing similar radio thrills to other audiences.

Potent Weapon of War.

While no details can be given, FM is proving to be a potent weapon of war. Maj. Edwin Armstrong, who developed the technique, has turned over all his patents to the war department, and they are being put to wide use. There are reports that FM technique is proving vastly superior to the old style amplitude modulation [AM]technique in many types of war communications.

FM pioneers are predicting that the circumstance of war will make it infinitely easier for frequency modulation to become the dominant type of broadcast service in urban areas after the conflict.

Since the manufacture of all radio sets for civilian use has been ended for the duration, manufacturers will be able to start with a clean slate after the war. The buying public, finding their pre-war sets obsolete after years of hard usage, may be ready to purchase new receivers in great quantities. Many experts believe that post-war radio sets will be uniformly equipped with FM.

Cheaper Sets Expected.

In their mass construction of war equipment manufacturers are discovering many improvements that they can put to apt use in peace time which will make possible the building of cheaper FM sets.

John R. Latham, executive of the American network, FM chain, forecasts that FM will become a major industry in the days following the war, offering employment for many technicians and artists who will be thrown back into civilian life. Latham expects FM to be the force that will revitalize the post-war radio industry.

CHICAGOLAND MUSIC FESTIVAL TO BE BROADCAST

Broadcasting arrangements are being made by W-G-N for the 13th annual Chicagoland Music Festival, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., which will be held Saturday night, Aug. 15, at Soldiers' field.

Nearly 100,000 persons are expected to attend this show and a cast of 10,000 singers and musicians from 30 states and Canada is being assembled. This year's program will be dedicated to the armed forces of the United States.

Last year the festival reached a radio audience of millions on W-G-N and the Mutual network when producer Lou Jackobson presented the highlights of the midwest's largest musical spectacle.

OFFER MELTING POT PAGEANT ON WBBM TODAY

A pageant of Chicago's foreign language and minority groups and their contributions to the nation's war effort will be featured by WBBM on a special "I Am an American" broadcast today. A narrator will discuss with representatives of seven American communities how they are mobilizing their manpower, money, and morale behind the united nations' drive over WBBM at 10:05 a. m. today.

Rev. Clark J. Wood on Chicagoland Church Hour

The Rev. Clark J. Wood, assistant pastor of Chicago Temple, will be preacher on the Chicagoland Church hour on W-G-N at 9 a. m. today. The church hour is broadcast from the Chicago Temple thruout May. Next Sunday the Rev. Dr. C. A. Bloomquist, district superintendent of the southern district of the Methodist churc, will be preacher. He will be followed on May 31 by the Rev. Dr. Iver M. Johnson, pastor of Chicago Temple.

PRESENT 2 MORE SONG DRAMAS ON 'MELODY' HOUR

Story of Sailor's Last Tune to Be Told.

The story of an American sailor who was lost at sea in the early weeks of the war will be told on "America Loves a Melody" over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Saturday evening.

The story will be dramatized from one of the two price winning letters picked for dramatic song spots on the program. Marion Claire, soprano star of the melody hour, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, will climax the dramatization singing Schubert's "Serenade," the song the sailor sang for his parents just before leaving for sea.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Bruce Foote, baritone, will be featured with Miss Claire and Mr. Baggiore in other selections during the program.

Miss Claire also will sing selections from "H. M. S. Pinafore" with Baggiore, Foote, and the chorus, selections from Bizet's "Carmen" with Foote, and Romero's "Cielito Linda."

The other musical-drama story will feature Bruce Foote in Carrie Jacobs Bond's "I Love You Truly." Two dramatic song spots are selected each week from the hundreds of letters submitted telling stories behind listeners' favorite songs.

Other features of the program will be Braga's "Angels Serenade," sung by Baggiore; "March of the Grenadiers" by Foote and the chorus, "Chimes of Spring" by Lincke presented by the orchestra and chorus, and Herbert's "Indian Summer" by the orchestra.

The orchestra will be under the direction of Henry Weber, W-G-N's musical director, and the chorus will be led by Robert Trendler.

SALUTE CALUMET HIGH SCHOOL ON 'CITIZENS' SHOW

Glenn C. Worst, principal at Calumet High school, will be heard during the broadcast of Citizens of Tomorrow, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's half hour radio program for the youth of America, to be aired at 10:30 a. m. today on W-G-N. Calumet will be the honored school.

The Calumet High mixed chorus, directed by Mrs. Clara Harms, will sing two numbers, "Deep River" and "A Violin Is Singing." Another student's name will be added to the program's honor roll by Philip Maxwell, member of The Tribune editorial staff and master of ceremonies of the broadcast. Maxwell will interview Cadet Col. Wendell Zimmers, who is the top ranking cadet among Chicago's 10,000 ROTC lads.

Harold Turner will accompany the chorus and student body in their school song. Morrison Wood produces the program. Vern Hansen is the announcer.

Service Tuesday Evening Honors Episcopal Acolytes

The annual service for acolytes of Chicago and vicinity will be held at St. Luke's Episcopal church, Lee and Hinman avenues, Evanston, Tuesday evening. The Rev. J. Rodger McColl, rector of Wilmette, a former acolyte of St. Martin's parish in Austin, will be the preacher. Bishop Wallace E. Conkling will pontificate.

MIZPAH WOMEN TO INSTALL NEW STAFF THIS WEEK

Mrs. A. C. Green Will Be President.

Mrs. A. Chester Green, 1205 Farwell avenue, will be inducted as president of the Women of Mizpah at the annual luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday at Temple Mizpah, 1615 Morse avenue. Mrs. Green's election to the presidency follows her service in every other office of the organization as well as several chairmanships. One of the latter, publicity, she will continue to fill along with the presidency.

Mrs. Harry J. Iverson is the retiring president. Mrs. Iverson has served for four years. She will turn over the executive duties of the office, but she will continue her leadership in an advisory capacity and as a member of the executive board.

Dr. Jacob Singer, rabbi of the temple, will install the officers. Besides Mrs. Green, the other officers are: Mrs. Jesse Brown and Mrs. Zolly Taub, vice presidents, Mrs. L. B. Greenberg, corresponding secretary, and eleven directorate members.

Mrs. Philip Reinisch, program chairman, has arranged for an afternoon of music. Harriet Furmaniak, soprano, and Mary Gruszynska, mezzo soprano, will appear in a concert of duets. Mrs. Ben Seeder is in charge of luncheon arrangements.

One of Mrs. Green's first official acts will be coöperation in the temple confirmation service at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning, date of the holiday, Shovuos. Mrs. Green and Herman H. Ostrowski, president of the temple, will lead the confirmands' procession. Rabbi Singer's sermon will be "Guiding Our Children." Each confirmand will give a three minute talk on a subject assigned by the rabbi. There will be the declaration of faith and presentation of certificates.

West Rogers Park B'nai Brith auxiliary will meet tomorrow at Ciné hall, 6403 North Maplewood avenue. There will be a dessert luncheon at 1 o'clock. This meeting will be an election. Mrs. Lawrence Jacobson is president of the auxiliary.

Mothers of Spalding High Students to Elect Staff

Spalding High school Mothers' club will meet in monthly session at 1 o'clock Tuesday in the school auditorium, 2216 Hirsch street. Mrs. R. C. Schmoldt, president, will open the session, at which officers will be elected.

SENN ACTORS TO GIVE THREE ONE-ACT PLAYS WEDNESDAY, FRIDAY

The Players of Senn High school will present three one act plays as their spring production Wednesday and Friday at the school. The plays are a tragedy, a comedy, and a third described as a thriller. By name, the plays are: "The Valiant," by Halworthy Hall and Robert Middleman; "Juliet and Romeo," by Harry Wagstaff Gribble, and "The Drums of Oude," by Austin Strong. June Austin will have one of the leading rôles. Other important players will be Clarice Jacobson, Wilbert Buchman, Charlotte Koenig, Len Roth, Bob Dunn, Bob Bannister, Gerry Greene, Sheldon Charone, Don Cohen, Lois Barker, and Claire Ferguson.

LIBRARY LENDS BOOKS ON PLAY YARD CONTEST

The Chicago public library and its branches are coöperating with the Chicago Motor club in its annual play yard contest for Cook county by making entry blanks available and providing rules and the list of prizes.

Books giving detailed information on construction may be taken out on regular library cards. Charles M. Hayes, president of the Motor club, said special consideration would be given those who build their own playground equipment.

Any resident of Cook county who constructs a play yard before Sept. 15 on his property or on property obtained for that purpose, may qualify for the contest aimed to reduce the traffic toll during the vacation months. First prize includes a complete 10 stunt outdoor gymnasium.

Evanston Business Women.

Miss Esther Vincent will review "Inside Asia" by John Gunther at tomorrow evening's meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club of Evanston at Glenna hall of the First Methodist church, Evanston.

WE PUT A SNOOZE IN EVERY BLANKET

Just imagine that! "A Snooze in every Blanket." Shush, shush, you say! Well, take a look at little Sleepy Head. He took one peek at a SKOKIE SLUMBERIZED BLANKET and he couldn't keep his eyes open!

Honest to goodness, folks, we have a deuce of a time here at our beautiful plant. When the girls get through finishing your blankets we have all we can do to keep them from curling up under their soft fluffiness and sneaking a snooze.

Yes, ladies, believe it or not, every little woolen fiber of a Skokie Finished Blanket fairly HUMS A LULLABY!

Its BABY CHEEK SOFTNESS is achieved through the use of water SOFTER THAN THAT FOUND ON DEW-DRENCHED FLOWERS and Olive Oil Soap Flakes that BURST INTO GIANT, CARESSING, RICH CREAMY BUBBLES. These olive oil bubbles help to preserve the natural oils in the fibers and so prevent them from becoming harsh and brittle.

CORONER LOOKS AT SUDDEN DEATH THRU 42 YEARS

Hopes Drop in Motoring Will Save Lives.

it possible for people to get to Lake county's many lake resorts and vacation spots, and drownings and other vacation mishaps increased. Automobile fatalities have continued as a major group, but the last few years have added another classification—sudden deaths in which the patient has had no physician.

"Men, particularly, just keep on working and worrying until they drop over," Dr. Taylor says. "Then the law requires that there must be an inquest. Often, in the case of men, their families will say, 'O, dad always seemed all right. He never had a doctor.'"

Horse and Buggy Campaign.

Dr. Taylor was first elected under the old primary law providing that every township elect delegates to a county convention. The convention was held in Libertyville in 1900, and young Dr. Taylor, six years out of Rush Medical school and four years married, won the election over three other physicians and an undertaker. His success was probably a tribute to his energy in electioneering over the county which he covered in a horse and buggy.

Dr. John Taylor is typical of the old middle west tradition—a farmer boy who left the family homestead to go to school and to study a profession. His story is as American as Iowa corn. John Taylor was born on a farm near Stacyville, Ia. His father, Stephen Taylor, had been so busy clearing his acres that he hadn't built his house yet. Son John was born in the granary.

Stephen Taylor had been born in England, one of the 14 children of the Rev. Joseph Taylor, an English Wesleyan minister who for 50 years rode a circuit. Stephen was bound out to work for his keep at 11, and at 21, his services ended, came to this country on a sailboat that "went ahead some days."

Returns for Bride.

Stephen Taylor stopped in Diamond lake, Lake county, long enough to get acquainted and then went on to Iowa, with a threshing machine outfit, to stake out a farm. But he came back to Lake county later for his bride who was Ann Blackler, member of a pioneer Lake county family.

John Taylor, one of four children, went to the Stacyville school where the chidren had only benches—no desks. Then he went on to Cedar Valley seminary in Osage, Ia., where Hamlin Garland was also a student. He was graduated from there in 1886, and he wanted to be a doctor, so he set out for Lake Forest college. His means gave out, and he went to work in Lovell's pharmacy in Libertyville.

He worked and commuted to Chicago to study at the Illinois College of Pharmacy so that when a chance came to manage a drug store near the World's fair grounds in 1893, Taylor was hired at $20 a week. He also made 50 cents a letter for Libertyville dispatches to a Waukegan paper. Thus, he had the means to go on with his medical studies, and he was graduated from Rush Medical school in 1894.

Real Fight in Primary.

He went to practice in Libertyville and married Miss Larua Schanck, daughter of George Schanck, one of the first white children born in Lake county. They had three daughters, Marjory Krieger, Marian Pettengill, and Miss Jeannette Taylor. Mrs. Taylor died in 1922, and two years later Dr. Taylor married the former Miss Crystal Eaton.

Dr. Taylor says his real campaigns have always been in the primaries. The direct primary law went into effect in 1910, and there were no more county conventions.

When Dr. Taylor became coroner he received $12 per inquest. Now he receives $16. In 1910 he had 75 inquests of which just one involved automobile accident. Six of the 100 in 1915 were auto accidents. In 1920 the number was 105 with seven auto deaths.

The records from there include: 1925—144 inquests with 13 auto deaths; 1930—235 inquests with 62 auto deaths; 1933—210 inquests with 47 auto deaths; 1938—230 inquests and 49 auto deaths, and 1941—244 inquests and 57 auto deaths.

Dr. Taylor says, "Good roads tempt the drivers to speed, and then they just can't stop, even to save their necks." He's had his own experience with motoring hazards, too. He was driving down a railroad track at Rondout to make a night call on a Mexican family living in a freight car when his car was hit by an engine. Says he, "Well, I thought there was going to be one inquest when I wouldn't officiate, but I guess I was lucky. Only the car was smashed."

In nearly 42 years as coroner, Dr. Taylor has handled some front page news. He was the coroner in the gangland slaying of Joe Berkche, Sam Peller and Mike Quirk at Fox Lake on May 31, 1930. In 1916, the Willie Orpet case was big crime news.

Recalls Poison Death.

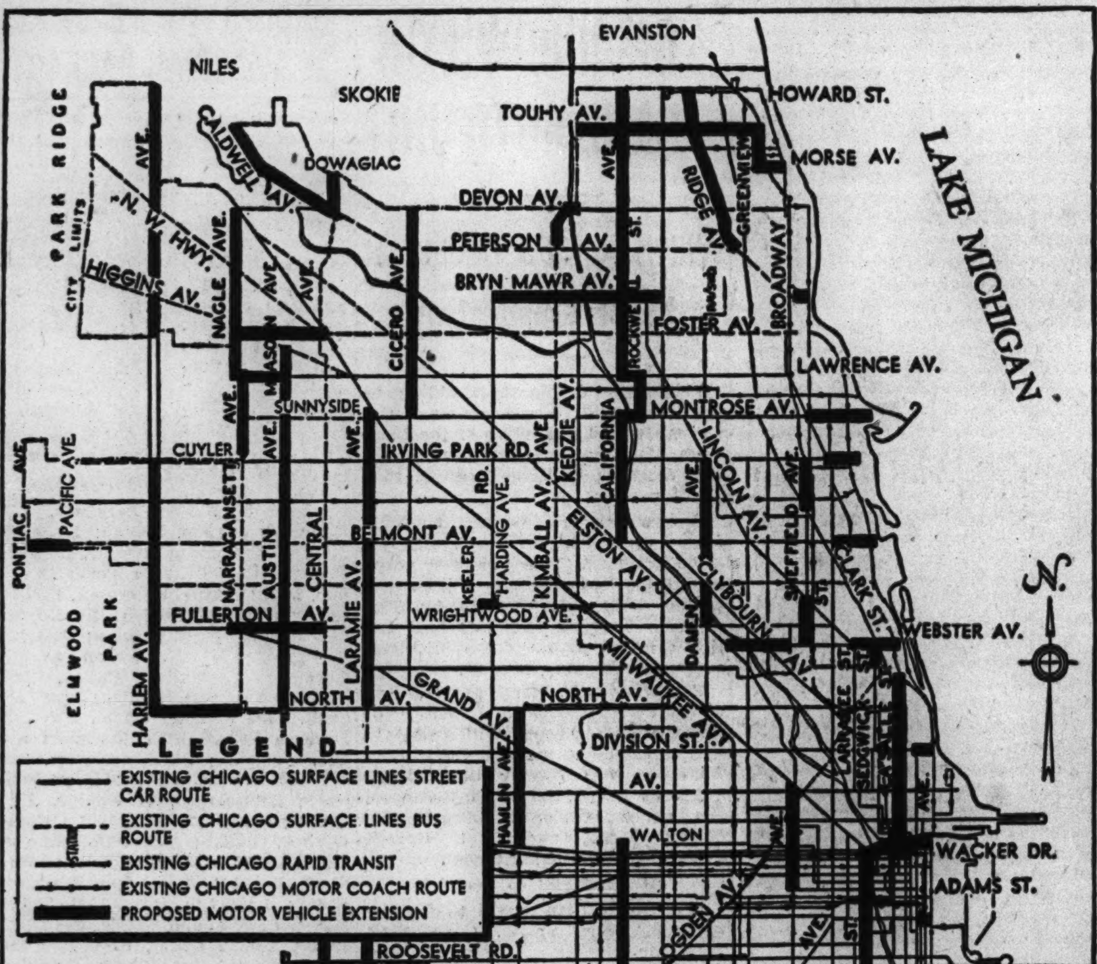
Dr. Taylor worked thru the trial of the University of Wisconsin student who was charged with the poison death of his sweetheart, Marion Lambert, whose body was found in the woods near Lake Forest.

Mention of California reminds him of his old seven passenger Chalmers and the motor trip he and family took in it to California in 1914. It took them a month to go, a month there, "to rest up," and a month to get back. "We just scooted in in time to get the girls in school," he says.

Dr. Taylor's life isn't just one inquest after another. He has found time to be president of the Lake County Medical association, serve on the district appeal board for 11 counties in the last war, an raise dahlias 9 feet tall.

It's been an interesting life, Dr. Taylor thinks. He hopes that tire rationing will make saner drivers. And he hopes, too, to get around to writing a book. It'll be all about his [illegible] and grandfather, the English circuit rider and the American farmer.

Transit Plans for North and Northwest Side



This map of transportation facilities of the north and northwest side has proposed bus extensions in heavy lines. The extensions are part of the unified transit ordinance which is to be voted on by Chicagoans on June 1.

REMODELING IS STILL POSSIBLE IN MANY CASES

An Extra Room Helps Housing Problem.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Remodeling jobs which do not require critical materials can aid housing shortages by creation of extra rooms and stimulate home morale by the preservation of what we have. House maintainance, when necessary, is a defense against the arch thieves of depreciation and obsolescence, and every sturdy little home is a worthwhile unit in the nation's great housing investment.

There are many things we can do for our homes and at the same time gear our efforts to economic pressure and keep in mind the necessary repairs and renewals to keep our houses sound as a dollar.

Floors are an important item in home maintainance, and if a floor is badly worn it can be replaced, or a new factory finished floor can be laid over it. Or a material such as linoleum can appear on the home front, in a hallway or child's room, or in many different rooms.

Plenty of Flooring Available.

In most instances floors can be repaired or renewed without use of materials on the critical list.

Right now hundreds of thousands of feet of factory stained and finished hardwood flooring is meeting the needs of the present market. It is fitting itself into the great housing program as well as into individual, already built homes which need floor replacement.

This type of flooring is available in oak, beech, and maple. Flooring also can be had in wood mosaic. Much of this flooring comes from the factory waxed and polished. Some of it has slight bevels to give it a distinctive effect and make not only for easier installation but for a more perfect appearance in the room.

One type of this prefinished flooring has its oak flooring finished in medium shade, and its maple and beech finished natural. The finish used penetrates and seals the pores of the wood and is a big help in keeping out dust and grime. In addition to this seal finish, it is filled, waxed, and buffed.

Flooring also can be laid over an existing floor in a home and finished in excellent fashion by standard on the job methods. Hard maple is a flooring available in various sizes and grades, and can be had in strips or blocks to form different patterns.

Another point of interest in modern maple flooring is the fact that it is available in "natural" shades as well as in a wide range of possible color finishes to match practically any decorative scheme.

Several Shades of Color.

One can finish a hard maple floor in shades of blue or green, ebony, and early American, or brown. Long wearing, hard maple has been called one of the toughest of floorings as well as one of the softest in its beauty, and it invariably provides a lovely base for color harmony. More over, it is easy to clean and is a floor of definite sanitation, since its surface is very smooth and affords no lodging place for germs and dust.

In the capture of an extra room in the basement, paint with proper materials and preparation is an extremely satisfactory and inexpensive way of finishing a floor. There also are dyes for concrete floors available now which can be depended on for durability and are attractive.

There also are linoleums especially manufactured for use in basement game rooms. Asphalt tile also is definitely in the picture as a flooring in an "extra" basement living room, game, or recreation room.

Asphalt tile is a waterproof and handsome flooring that can be depended on to withstand hard traffic, and effective patterns can be obtained by alternating dark and light tiles.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 18

Watch the lawn, especially one made recently, that it does not dry out. When watering new, short grass use a fine spray or avoid watering with a heavy stream. Young grass is weak and unable to stand very rough treatment. If the lawn is still to be made, sow about 10 per cent English rye with the regular lawn seed. This grows rapidly, furnishes a good green cover, and offers shade for the grass.

Frequently timothy or oats are used for the purpose. These are annual grasses and die out later on. It takes about three years to establish a good blue grass lawn and during that period all attention must be made that it is kept in luxuriant growth, well supplied with plant food and water.

Tuesday, May 19

The habit of hilling up hedges and shrubs should be avoided; it looks bad and usually the borders are edged with a deep ditch or depression when it should be only slightly raised above the lawn, if raised at all. It also is noted that many shrubs are badly in need of pruning and they have grown so high they need cutting back to obtain young, fast growing, vigorous, and healthy wood from which good foliage and abundant flowers can be expected.

Prune early flowering shrubs, like the forsythia and bridal wreath, after flowering. The flowers are borne on wood made the previous year and if pruned when dormant or in winter the buds are removed. Some shrubs produce their flowers on young wood made the same season, such as the hydrangea and shoestring plant or Hibiscus syriacus. Dead wood can be removed at any time.

Wednesday, May 20

The activities of gardeners is at high stage at this time. The following list of plants to be grown in various city areas is recommended by the advisory staff of the Chicago metropolitan area:

Grow these in smoky area: Carrots, kale, turnips, beets, collards, Swiss chard, mustard greens, leaf or cos lettuce, radishes, onions from sets, endive, and parsley.

Grow these and the above in outlying areas: Tomatoes, lima beans, cabbage [especially Savoy cabbage], parsnips, bush beans or pole beans, peas, peppers, spinach, kohlrabi and salsify, or oyster plant.

Thursday, May 21

Many excellent varieties of garden plants are available. Most of those listed in catalogs are dependable, they have been thoroly tested before listings, and usually the gardener will grow the kind he likes best for his own use.

The chief thing is to get the work done at the right time. See that the ground is well prepared and do not wait until it dries out before planting. Make straight rows which are best running north and south. Sow small seeds in shallow rows and do not sow too thickly. The average width between rows is about 12 inches.

When the seedlings appear above ground careful hoeing or cultivating between rows should begin. A complete plant food can be applied by scattering it along both sides of the rows and carefully hoeing it into the soil.

Friday, May 22

When planting corn for home use sow several short rows rather than in a long, single row. This is to insure adequate pollination. Plant tall crops in a manner that they will not shade low-growing crops. Stake tomatoes when grown on small areas because every foot of space must be used.

Do not brush against bean plants when they are wet or covered with dew or disease may develop. Get a good sprayer and recommended spraying materials and begin using them at the very first sign of insects, and adopt a regular spraying program.

Hoe regularly and especially following a rain or the ground may pack and rapid evaporation occur. Gather all crops when in their prime. Plant flowers in the small garden rather than fuss with vegetables.

Saturday, May 23

Good vegetable land will produce fine flowers, so you should give careful consideration to soil preparation. What to grow will depend on what you want to grow, altho it is wise to limit the number of varieties. Practically all varities can be grown in the good soil and atmospheric conditions that prevail in most suburban districts, but in the city a wide variety of conditions exist which makes the selection of plant materials of first importance.

STATE OFFICIAL OR LION—IT'S ALL IN A DAY'S WORK

Retiring Park Chauffeur Treats Them Alike.

John August [Johnny] Roberts of Melrose Park, park district chauffeur who got his early training driving governors and other dignitaries on their park tours and later was intrusted with hauling wild animals to and from the Lincoln park zoo, is to be retired Tuesday, when he reaches the age of 65.

Whether he was chauffeuring a political personage or a ponderous pachyderm, Roberts used the same degree of care. Consequently, after his 35 years of service, he is able to end his career as a public servant with the record of but one mishap.

Elephant Is Unruly.

Fortunately for the state, it was an elephant that was involved.

Johnny, park district records reveal, was transporting the elephant from a circus lot to the zoo. The erstwhile big top performer hooked a tusk in the top of the truck.

In a performance unmatched by any of his previous passengers, Roberts said the elephant tugged so fiercely to get loose that he broke off the tusk and overturned the truck.

Peaceful Trip with Lions.

Roberts said other jungle cargoes caused him no trouble whatsoever. There were the baby orang-utans, Banbi and Pongo, that he picked up at the airport; the load of leopards he delivered to Madison, Wis.; the pack of lions he brought back [alive] on the return trip, and the swarm of alligators from A Century of Progress exposition to the zoo.

He went to work for the former Lincoln park district Feb. 2, 1907, and for a year was a foreman assigned in the vicinity of the old Fullerton avenue bridge.

Spring Frolic at Lawson YMCA to Be Held Friday

Members of the Lawson Y. M. C. A. and their guests and friends of George Williams college will unite to hold the fifth annual spring frolic of the "19UP" club at the Lawson Y Friday evening. The club name is derived from roof garden dances the club sponsors on the 19th floor of the Lawson Y in the summer months. This dance will be the official opening of the summer season.

MERGER TO BRING BUS EXTENSIONS

STAR SENIORS NOMINATED BY CATHOLIC HIGHS

Tribune Interviews Appear May 31.

Eleven Catholic high schools on the northwest side have selected 78 outstanding seniors from among whom one will be chosen to represent each school and to be interviewed by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. These interviews and pictures of the winning candidates will appear in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE on May 31.

Faculty members familiar with the records of the students named those to be listed on the basis of their scholastic achievements. A vote by members of the senior classes will determine which students represent the schools. Between 5 and 10 candidates have been selected at each school depending upon the size of the senior class. A complete list of Catholic high school graduates will appear in THE TRIBUNE June 14.

Sweet Manners Prevail as Clubs Hold Teas Without Sugar

IT'S IN THE BAG

Mrs. C. E. Schmitz attended the recent board meeting of the 20th Century club of Park Ridge in the Mary Wilson house. She solved the problem of a reduced slice of cake and a sugarless cup of tea by tucking a lump from her own half pound sugar quota in her handbag before leaving for the meeting.

CAKE THEN CAKE NOW BEFORE RATIONING
AFTER RATIONING

At the left Mrs. Lewis Cobb holds a piece of cake, the size of which will soon be but a memory. Mrs. M. C. Van Alyea holds a small modern piece of cake, a result of the little white rationing book. Noted on Mrs. Van Alyea's plate is no sugar, the condition which will be reached in the 20th Century club of Park Ridge when its 6 pound supply of sugar runs out.

"JUST TEA—
NO SUGAR, PLEASE"

The sweet ending to a club program of speeches and songs is the hospitality of the tea table. Here is graciousness and the art of informal conversation. Here is the beauty of floral centerpieces, gleaming china and engraved silver. As of yore, Mrs. F. J. Holman pours. Left to right in the waiting line are Mrs. H. W. Bangert, Mrs. A. G. Brodie, Mrs. I. M. Slepicka, Mrs. R. A. Fulde. "A cup of tea," says Mrs. Holman with the same gracious smile she had B. S. R. (before sugar rationing), "but," she adds with firmness born of necessity, "no sugar, ladies, please." [TRIBUNE Photos.]

BRINGING THEIR OWN

In the good old days a pencil and notebook were the only things a woman needed to take along to club meeting. She might want to take some notes on the speech. Nowadays she takes along some sugar. She might want a cup of tea. Hit by the rationing program because so far there is no allowance for club meeting refreshment hours the women who use sugar in their tea and coffee have to bring their own. From left to right are Mrs. E. S. Howland, Mrs. C. J. Challenger, Mrs. A. A. Leibold, and Mrs. Hugh Kent Jr.

Commons Has 500 on Honor Roll of War

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Since 1894 men and women thruout Chicago and Illinois have been contributing dimes and dollars to the Chicago Commons, 955 Grand avenue, a settlement that teaches good citizenship. Today they are realizing interest on the money spent.

In preparing an honor roll at Chicago Commons, Miss Lea D. Taylor has found that more than 500 young men in the half mile area from Ogden avenue to the Chicago river and from Kinzie street to Chicago avenue are serving in the armed forces of the United States. These are the boys who went to the Chicago Commons Nursery school, who painted pictures or play acted. These are the boys who hammered together magazine racks in the handicraft room, sang in the operettas, or played ball in a vacant lot.

They played boyhood pranks and skinned their knees in the neighborhood where industry, traffic, homes, and play spaces meet and where 7,940 people of different nationality backgrounds live and work together.

42 Spent Boyhood There.

Of the 500 who have gone, there were 42 who spent practically all of their boyhood in the house activities. Their letters come back to the settlement and the instructors and counselors pass them around and say "That's just like Jimmy or George. He was a grand kid."

One of the boys on the honor roll and one of the hundreds who slid in for a home run on the baseball field is Lieut. James Cortez. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Cortez reside at 441 North Halsted street. All the kids liked Jimmy at the settlement. He always earned his money to go to camp. He earned his money thru four years of high school and four years at the University of Illinois. They picked him for the ROTC at Illinois and he graduated with honors. His mother doesn't know where Jimmy is now. He is out of the country, sent somewhere under sealed orders.

There was another brown-eyed boy with a tousled head of black hair who was usually in the handicraft shop. He worked in the summers except for the time he went to Chicago Commons camp. Today he is Sergt. George Cassetari, training as a radio operator in Camp Forrest, Tennesssee. His father, Ralph Cassetari, is engineer at the Chicago Commons. His mother is working for the Red Cross.

Began in Nursery School.

Sam Tassio started at the settlement in the nursery school. He was counselor at the settlement camp. Now he's a flying cadet in the air corps in Texas.

All of the nine children in the Matesi family have been going to the settlement for years. Lawrence is older now and is in the 17th infantry company, Santa Rosa, Cal. His mother is studying first aid in the settlement defense classes.

GIRLS TO MODEL GARDEN OUTFITS FOR SOCIAL CLUB

Gardening outfits will be featured in the summer fashion show which will be presented by the Kelvettes Social club at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the Hotel Graemere, 113 North Homan avenue. The mistress of ceremonies will be Miss Betty Kurz.

The girls who will serve as models are Virginia Dixon, Claire Fecura, June Felton, Shirley Jensen, Rita Kusior, Doris Schenk, Earleen Troike, and Elisabeth Wehling.

Officers of the club are Elaine Drews, president; Miss Kurz, vice president; Shirley Jensen, treasurer; Jean Kay, recording secretary; Doris Schenk, corresponding secretary, and Earleen Troike, historian. Mrs. Lillian Sorensen is the club's sponsor.

Mothers of Spalding High Students to Elect Staff

Spalding High school Mothers' club will meet in monthly session at 1 o'clock Tuesday in the school auditorium, 2216 Hirsch street. Mrs. R. C. Schmoldt, president, will open the session, at which officers will be elected.

CHI SIGMA BETA GIVING MOTHERS' PARTY TUESDAY

Alpha chapter of Chi Sigma Beta sorority will hold a dinner for mothers of members at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening in the Vera McGowen tearoom in Evanston. Mrs. Katherine McKendry, 5045 North Tripp avenue, is in charge of arrangements. After dinner the mothers will be entertained at a bridge party in the home of Mrs. Margaret Gursch, 6017 Oconto avenue. A contribution will be made each month by some member of Alpha chapter to the United Service Organization center. The first contribution has been made by Mrs. Evelyn Peterson, 8234 North Karlov avenue.

Norwood Park Camera Club to Elect First Officers

The recently organized Norwood Park Camera club will elect officers Thursday evening in Norwood park fieldhouse, 5801 North Natoma avenue. An explanation of the characteristics and special adaptions of film emulsions will be given by Edward A. Meyer. The club is planning an exhibition of photographs this summer at Norwood park.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Lieut. Kamykowski.

After having served as an enlisted man in the army for 18 years, Master Sergeant Frank Stanley Kamykowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kamykowski, 2230 North Parkside avenue, has been promoted to first lieutenant and ordered to active duty as a commissioned officer. Formerly chief clerk in the planning section of the air subdepot at the Orlando air base, Orlando, Fla., Lieut. Kamykowski now is on duty at Harding field, Baton Rouge, La.

Recently reporting for a special course of instruction in the gunnery department of the armored force school at Fort Knox, Ky., were Sergt. Clement C. Maliszewski, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Maliszewski, 1234 Noble street, and Staff Sergt. George Griesinger, son of Mrs. Katherine Griesinger, 2501 North Rockwell street. Both men have been in the army since last June.

Two northwest side residents were among those to graduate recently from the Chanute field branch of the army air corps technical schools, Chanute field, Illinois. They are Grant E. Wallhoff, son of Mrs. J. J. Barber, 3517 North Natoma avenue, and Walter J. Pigdanowicz, son of Mrs. Eva Pigdanowicz, 2626 Iowa street.

Sergt. James Manheim.

Promotion to the rank of sergeant has been won by James Manheim, son of Mr. and Mrs. Casper Manheim, 6213 School street. Sergt. Manheim, who is in the coast artillery, is stationed in Washington, D. C.

Stanley E. Zywanski, son of William Zywanski, 21[illegible] North Lawler avenue, has been promoted to the rank of corporal. Corp. Zywanski is on duty at Gowen field, Boise, Idaho.

Lieut. Steege.

Lieut. David L. Steege, 5304 Ludlam avenue, was among 56 Illinois men recently graduated as pilots in the United States army air corps. He was graduated from Kelly field, Tex.

Promoted to the rank of sergeant in the air force band at Dale Mabry field, Tallahassee, Fla., was Simon J. Klapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Klapman, 1920 North Kedzie avenue. Sergt. Klapman is a graduate of Schurz High school and John Marshall Law school.

Having just received his commission as lieutenant in the United States naval reserve, George Olson, former football coach and head of the athletic department at North Park college, will be stationed at the University of Iowa where he will instruct the naval V-5 preflight school.

Recently appointed to corporal was Frank Aguzino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Aguzino, 636 North Trumbull avenue. Corp. Aguzino, who entered the army last December, now is at the quartermaster replacement training center, Fort F. E. Warren, Wyo.

Recently promoted to the rank of corporal in the chemical warfare school detachment, Edgewood arsenal, Maryland, was Alexander Mashko, 2475 Clybourn avenue.

Six of the 14 members of the fourth "Chicago's own" naval air squadron, who reported recently for primary flight training at the naval reserve aviation base at Glenview, Ill., are residents of the northwest side. They are Stanley Grydyk, 2122 Haddon avenue, Robert Kuntz, 6028 Grace street, Edward Mase, 1019 North Rockwell street, Boyce McCoy, 529 Aldine avenue, William Pedersen, 4816 Hutchinson street, Wilbur Robitschek, 4529 Altgeld street.

Raymond B. Rajski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rajski, 5718 Warwick avenue, has been transferred to the air corps advanced flying school; Lake Charles, La., where he will take up advanced flight training.

Club Parties Feel Pinch of Sugar Ration

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Something sweet has been taken away from the woman's clubs. Thru the peaceful years afternoon club meetings up and down the northwest side have included a speaker, a song and a sip of tea. Most of the time there was cake.

First of the club social graces to fall a casualty to the war is the custom of passing the sugar bowl. Hospitality chairmen thruout the 7th district of the Illinois Federation, which embraces 56 clubs, are frankly concerned. Church groups, ladies' aids and missionary societies that serve refreshments at their meetings are pondering the sugar question since the advent two weeks ago of the little white ration book.

The biggest problem to solve comes to social chairman Mrs. Edward H. Johnson of the Irving Park Woman's club, the largest in the 7th district with 440 members and a weekly luncheon from October thru April.

50 Per Cent Compromise.

Mrs. Johnson took her problem to the ration board. She was there three hours. "The man at the local board hadn't thought about what the clubs would do," said Mrs. Johnson, "he said he would call downtown.

"They hadn't thought about it downtown either" she explained, "then they decided maybe we could be classified as an institution.

"He said I would have to estimate the amount of sugar the women used at the luncheons each week," said Mrs. Johnson.

This had been computed by Mrs. Johnson before she appeared to register the club. She serves an average of 125 women at each luncheon. They are seated at eight tables and two sugar bowls are placed at each one. She figured one half cup of sugar in each bowl. Then she uses sugar when they have pickled beet salad or sweet-sour cabbage. Puddings are a favorite for dessert and tea and coffee are served regularly. It all added up to 30 pounds a month, including the brown sugar used when they bake eight hams to serve on gentleman's night."

"All right," said the man at the ration board, "You can have 15 pounds but you'll have to buy it now for your next fall meetings or your book won't be any good."

Outwits the Mice.

Mrs. Johnson said she guessed she would buy it this week and store it at home because mice might get in it at the Masonic temple where the women meet.

The sugar problem isn't the only one affecting the club luncheon. Four to five pounds of coffee are consumed at every luncheon in addition to a pitcher of tea. The cakes and pies are bought at a bakery but the cost has gone up this year on a pan cake from $1.50 to $2.

Mrs. Johnson put her serving problem up to the club and they voted on whether or not to continue serving lunch. The vote was a unanimous "yes."

"The sweeter things on the menu will just have to go," said Mrs. Johnson.

Six Pounds in Reserve.

Another club sorely affected because of its huge membership is the 20th Century club of Park Ridge with 350 members. Mrs. Bruce Guild, the social chairman, spoke to the local tire rationing head to find out if he knew what the sugar rules would be. He said the club just couldn't get any sugar. He told her they would have to serve a regular meal in order to be classed as an institution.

There are now six pounds in the 20th Century club cupboard, according to Mrs. Walter S. Haynes, outgoing club president, "I just don't know what will happen to the cake and coffee part of the meeting then."

Mrs. Ole N. Jensen, 7th district hostess, says, "No one has worked out a solution yet. The women don't want to dip into their own supply."

"However," she adds, "They all say if sugar is the worst thing they have to worry about in this war, it will be all right."

DE PAUW DEGREES WILL GO TO SIX IN NORTHWEST AREA

Six northwest side residents are among the 304 students to be graduated during the 1942 commencement exercises at De Pauw university, Greencastle, Ind. The class, to be graduated Sunday, May 31, is the largest in the history of the university. The commencement program will be held one week earlier than originally scheduled due to an accelerated program adopted by the university with the outbreak of war.

President Clyde E. Wildman will deliver the baccalaureate address the morning of May 31. Speaker at the commencement will be Niles Trammel, president of the National Broadcasting company. Graduation exercises will be held as a 6:30 o'clock vespers service in Blackstone stadium.

Students from the northwest side who are candidates for degrees are Donald Brandt, 4044 North Kedvale avenue, Henry Chidley, 830 North Belmont avenue, Arlington Heights, Robert Frey, 1025 North Austin boulevard; Hubert Rydstrom, 2515 Park Lane, Glenview; Richard Shepard, 616 South Prospect street, Park Ridge, and Claude Winklehake, 302 Wisner street, Park Ridge.

Book Review.

First Evangelical and Reformed church, 3062 Palmer square, will present a book review by Florence Bourke Ellis at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening.

TRANSIT SETUP WOULD BENEFIT NORTH SECTIONS

Vote on Unification Proposal June 1.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

A large number of prospective bus extensions, totaling 249 miles thruout the city, would be installed in the north and northwest sections under the city's traction unification ordinance to be voted on June 1 at a public referendum. The expanding northwest side particularly would benefit from a number of new routes.

The ordinance requires a proposed unified transit company to effect 715 miles of improvements within eight years, including the 249 miles of extensions, 165 miles of new express bus routes, and 301 miles of conversion from street car to bus operation.

The expenditure of 102 million dollars for modernization is required of the new company in the eight year period for the purchase of 850 gasoline or trolley buses, 950 streamlined street cars, 1850 additional units, either street cars, 1,850 additional units, either street cars or buses, and 1,000 subway-elevated cars. These purchases will permit the retirement of most of the outmoded equipment now operated by the surface and elevated lines.

New Franchise Involved.

The unification ordinance, passed June 19, 1941, by the city council, grants a franchise to the prospective unified company which would operate the properties of the Chicago Surface Lines, the elevated lines, and the 65 million dollar city owned subways. The new company also will have the right to acquire the Chicago Motor Coach company.

A map in this section shows the bus extensions to be made by the new system in the north and northwest sections of the city. Express bus services, with limited stops, are planned as follows: From Narragansett avenue and Addison street to Western avenue, Clybourn avenue, Division street and Orleans street into the loop; Milwaukee avenue from Foster avenue to the Logan Square "L" station; Central avenue from Milwaukee avenue to Roosevelt road, and Western avenue from Howard street to 111th street.

Proposed substitutions of buses, either trolley or gasoline, for present street car service include Devon avenue, Montrose avenue, Irving Park road, Belmont avenue, Fullerton avenue, Cicero avenue, Damen avenue, Clybourn avenue, and Broadway.

Commission to Run Setup.

The order in which the transit extensions and substitutions are to be made would be determined by a three man local transit commission appointed by the mayor with the approval of the city council. This commission would have all authority over the new company that is now held by the Illinois Commerce commission, including rates, of fare, service standards and changes of routes.

The new company is required by the unified ordinance to make the transit improvements to the extent of its ability to raise the money. The surface lines have 30 million dollars in cash which will be available as a starter for the modernization. City officials predict that the remainder of the 102 millions could be obtained by borrowing and from renewal funds to be set up out of future revenues.

Need Securities Holders Approval.

Establishment of the proposed unified company is contingent on the outcome of the June 1 referendum and also on a vote by the securities holders of the surface and elevated lines now being taken. The 75,000 securities owners are balloting on a proposed financial merger and reorganization plan whereby a new corporation will be set up to accept the franchise ordinance, if it is approved by the people.

Altho the proposed modernization program is expected to be delayed by the war, adoption by the people of the unification ordinance and its acceptance by the new company will clear the way for starting the improvements as soon as circumstances permit.

ANNUAL CONTEST TO STRESS HOME MADE PLAY YARD

Those who build their own equipment will be given special consideration in this year's play yard contest of the Chicago Motor club which has for its purposes the elimination of one of the main causes of traffic accidents by keeping children from playing in the streets during the summer vacation months.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, said homemade equipment would receive the special consideration because in wartime available material had been curtailed. The contest, open to all residents of Cook county, will close Sept. 15. A grand prize of a complete outdoor gymnasium and sectional prizes are offered.

Entries may be made by calling at the motor club headquarters, by telephoning Franklin 1818, or by letter or postcard giving the entrant's name and address and the location of the playyard.

The Chicago public library and its branches is coöperating by providing entry blanks and making available books on playground construction.

201 NEW TIRES GRANTED 95 ON NORTHWEST SIDE

36 Users Qualify for 129 Truck Casings.

Ninety-five vehicle users on the northwest side were granted certificates of purchase by the Chicago area rationing boards from May 4 to 8, covering 201 rubber tires and 198 inner tubes.

Of these, 59 were authorized to buy 72 tires and 98 tubes to be used on passenger automobiles. The other 36 users qualified to purchase 129 tires and 100 tubes for use on trucks and buses.

At the annual meeting of the Republican Women's club of Park Ridge last week the following officers were elected: Mrs. Henry W. Fritz, president; Mrs. Boyd Weaver, vice president; Mrs. Clifford Shafer, recording secretary; Mrs. Leslie E. Cole, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. R. E. McLain, treasurer. Mrs. Dwight H. Green, wife of the governor, was a guest, and Mrs. Irene B. Reidy of the Illinois Federation of Republican Women's Clubs was the principal speaker.

Young Pigeon Trainers Do Bit in War

Interested in helping Uncle Sam and anticipating an army call for carrier pigeons to serve in the communication corps, nine members of the Des Plaines Pigeon club have stepped up training of homing birds. Bob Karopp, a freshman at Maine Township Junior college and president of the club, is shown releasing a "homer," one of 200 being raised and trained by the group.

Boys' Club Hopes to Aid War Communications.

On the battlefield, when impassable roads or difficult terrain halt the dispatch carrier, or when enemy controled static disrupts radio communications, a message attached to the leg of a carrier pigeon many times will get thru to its destination. And therein lies the story of how a group of Des Plaines boys think they can help Uncle Sam.

Realizing the army is going to need hundreds of these message carriers, the nine members of the Des Plaines Pigeon club are specializing in raising and training homing pigeons. If the army should suddenly need new birds, it will find a ready response from the club.

Will Offer Birds to U. S.

"Right now we're working on raising some really good birds," says Hale Olson Jr., age 11, vice president of the club and its youngest member, "and when we get good ones we're going to offer them to the government."

Robert Koropp, 711 Arlington street, a freshman at Maine Township Junior college and president of the club, explained that the birds the club raises probably would not be used by the army as message carriers—since birds raised in one loft cannot be trained to return to another—but would be valuable in adding new strains to the army's stock.

Club Has 200 Birds.

About a year ago some of the boys in the neighborhood who raised pigeons conceived the idea of organizing a club. Hale Olson Sr., who works for the public service company in Northbrook and whose hobby is raising fancy chickens, agreed to "sponsor" the club and act as judge whenever the boys gave a show. Now the boys meet at the Olson home each Saturday to exchange ideas and discuss club plans.

The club now boasts a total of over 200 birds. By far the greater number are homing pigeons, altho Hale Olson Jr. and Richard Stranahan raise a few fancy birds, too—modenas, owls, tumblers, fantails—"just for variety." The other members who stick exclusively to "homers" are Warren Wille, club secretary-treasurer; Leroy Hasselman, James Rittmueller, Barry Bishop, William Thon, and John Koropp.

COMMONS ROLL OF HONOR LISTS 500 IN SERVICE

Settlement Is Proud of Its Boys Now Fighters.

Miss Taylor hasn't heard for awhile from Lieut. Victor Gralak. He is with the 132d field artillery somewhere in the far east. Just recently an enthusiastic letter came from John Grandolfo, who is with the 327th infantry in Camp Claiborne, Louisiana.

Operettas at Chicago Commons used to boast the voice of Anthony Seminara. When he grew up he sang in the Chicago Civic Opera chorus. Now he sings for the soldiers now and then at the 108th medical corps, Camp Forrest.

Air Cadet at Glenview.

Then they were all proud of Anthony Fedanza when he worked his way thru the state teachers' college at Normal, Ill. Tony is now a cadet in the navy air corps at Curtiss field, Glenview, Ill.

The six children in the Camasto family have always been regular comers to all the citizenship classes and the civic meetings. Joe Camasto is a fifth class technician with the 23d engineers at Camp Polk, Louisiana. "Joe always was good at technical things," commented Miss Taylor. "I remember his good record at Lane High school."

Michael Imundo is in military police at Camp Forrest and another boy who made good in music at the settlement is Michael J. Pesce, in training now at Jefferson barracks, Missouri.

The list goes on, but these were the boys who were Chicago Commons camp counselors who went to gym classes and then came back to help the younger boys. Miss Taylor says, "They are helping plenty now, too."

The settlement can't spend much money on its roll of honor. But the boys' names all will be printed there with service stars.

GLENWOOD WILL DEDICATE GYM AT FLAG DAY RITES

The 46th annual competitive military drill and flag day exercises will be held at the Glenwood Manual Training school Sunday, June 14. A highlight of this year's program will be the homecoming of alumni and the dedication of the new gymnasium. This will be the school's first gymnasium in the 55 years of its existence. Open house will be observed thruout the day, and guests will be escorted thru the cottages, laundry, engine room, and other facilities.

The school was incorporated in 1887, and for the first three years occupied a frame building in Norwood Park. In 1890, the school moved to a farm at Glenwood, where it is now located. The present plant and equipment were provided over a period of years by contributions and endowments. The farm and campus of 430 acres, including 25 buildings, are valued at $500,000.

The school, nonsectarian, provides a home for dependent boys. Bruce Borland is president; Philip F. W. Peck, vice president; Don M. Compton, secretary, and Walter B. Smith, treasurer. Directors are Dr. Charles B. Alexander, Ernest S. Ballard, John A. Carroll, Joseph S. Duncan, Floyd B. Evans, Howard Linn, N. C. Mather, Charles S. Pearce, Charles Z. Meyer, Marvin B. Pool, R. Douglas Stuart, and Wilfred Sykes. Mrs. Paul Walker is president of the women's auxiliary.

LILACS SHARING WITH CITY'S SICK AGAIN SUCCESS

Volunteer Workers Aid in Sending Blooms.

The annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign again was successful this year in bringing cheer and beauty to the bedsides of the sick and shutins of the city's hospitals and institutions.

Sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, this year's lilac campaign marked the 14th year that blooms have been gathered thruout Chicagoland for distribution to the less fortunate people in the city.

Cheer 20,000 Patients.

This year more than 60,000 blooms flooded Chicago with a river of color and fragrance. The bouquets were delivered to more than 20,000 patients in 148 hospitals, orphanages, and old people's homes.

The work of gathering the flowers was supervised by chairmen of more than 81 garden clubs affiliated with the guild. Helping to pick and wrap the blooms were thousands of flower lovers, Boy and Girl Scouts, and school children.

Railroads Lend Aid.

The lilac bouquets were delivered freight free from local stations to city terminals by eight railroads. Railroads generously offering use of their baggage cars were the North Shore electric, Chicago and Milwaukee, Rock Island, Pennsylvania, Chicago and Northwestern, Illinois Central, Aurora and Elgin, and the Burlington.

Among voluntary workers thru whose efforts the bouquets were picked, wrapped, and delivered to railroad stations were:

INDIANS WILL AID EVANSTON RALLY FOR WAR BONDS

The Indians are taking over Dyche stadium of Northwestern university Saturday afternoon. The Jemez Indian dancers, winners of the intertribal dance competition at the Gallup, N. M., ceremonial last summer who visited some of the Evanston schools recently [but missed several others where they were expected], will entertain youngsters of Evanston and other north shore suburbs at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The occasion is a war bond and stamp rally. Strictly speaking, there will be no admission, but bond and stamp booths will be set up outside the stadium and all who attend will be urged to buy.

Besides the Indian dances, which will run about 40 minutes, a program of entertainment will be provided, Merritt R. Laubenheimer, chief of the war savings staff of Evanston, has announced. Uncle Harry and Aunt Agnes Hosford, who conduct the Always Be Careful club on W-G-N and present safety broadcasts for school children, will entertain the youngsters.

Ina Mae Jones, national champion baton twirler, winner of the American Legion competition last year, and 20 other twirlers will give a demonstration of their art. Music will be provided by the Haven school band. The Indians are appearing thru the cooperation of the Santa Fe railroad with the United States treasury department.

Early Auto Helps Promote Parish Party

MAUVE DECADE TO BE RECALLED AT CHURCH FETE

Plan Gay '90s Party in Norwood Park.

If Norwood Park residents hear strange coughing and sputtering noises emanating from the street in front of their homes this afternoon they need not be alarmed. It will probably be the automobile of early vintage in which women of the Gay '90s committee and their husbands, attired in costumes of the period, are out for an afternoon of motoring.

The committee is preparing for the Gay '90s party to be staged at 8 o'clock Saturday evening in the recreation hall of the Immaculate Conception church, 7263 Talcott road. The party is being given by church members in the interest of the church.

Costumes of 50 Years Ago.

Guests at the affair will be entertained—and served—during the evening by men wearing gay vests and bartenders' aprons, their hair slicked down in the style of 50 years ago, and with appropriate "handlebar" mustaches. Feature of the evening's entertainment, which includes a floor show, will be the men's and women's choruses directed by Harry Heavey. A quartet headed by Milo G. Beman, with Joseph Rye, Curt Volkamer, and Warren Norton also will be an attraction.

Master of ceremonies will be Arthur C. Lenzini, 5439 North Oriole avenue. Mrs. James P. MacDonald is president of the Gay '90s group; Mrs. Arnold Knipp, secretary, and Mrs. Edward Toman, treasurer.

Arrangements Group Listed.

Members of the committee in charge of arrangements include Mrs. J. J. O'Connell, Mrs. Milo G. Beman, Mrs. Clarence Wittenmeier, Mrs. Peter Carpino, Mrs. Fred Sperling, Mrs. Walter Walinski, Mrs. Edward Bauer, Mrs. James Gariti, Mrs. Eugene Cowhey, Mrs. Wesley Suman, Mrs. Joseph Rye, Mrs. Frank Martin, Mrs. Andrew J. Neilsen, and Mrs. Frank L. Freeman.

2 ON NORTHWEST SIDE WIN YMCA COLLEGE AWARDS

Friml and Herbert Songs on Northerners' Program

Melodies by Rudolf Friml and Victor Herbert will highlight the Northerners concert on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday. This program features the music of the male octet and string ensemble and the songs of Lois Wallner.

Miss Wallner will sing "Some Day" from Friml's "Vagabond King." The male octet will be heard in "On Parade," by Herbert. They will also sing a medley consisting of "Put, Put, Put," "Me and Melinda," the currently popular "Sleepy Lagoon," and "Last Call for Love."

FM IS VIEWED AS A POST-WAR HOPE OF RADIO

Proving Potent Weapon During Conflict.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Frequency modulation, that new technique in radio providing crystal clear reception without static, appears to be frozen clear and solid as a skating rink for the duration of the war. Priorities and scarcities will keep it operating at the present level until victory is won.

Because of the war the predictions that FM would sweep the country have not been entirely realized. Still since Jan. 1, 1941, the total number of FM receivers in the United States has grown from 15,000 to around 400,000 sets.

W59C, W-G-N's sister FM station, will round out eight months on the air this week. There are two other FM stations, W51C, the pioneer FM station in Chicago, and W67C. These three stations have brought thousands of listeners in the Chicago area new thrills in broadcasting—particularly in music. Some thirty other stations thruout the country are bringing similar radio thrills to other audiences.

Potent Weapon of War.

While no details can be given, FM is proving to be a potent weapon of war. Maj. Edwin Armstrong, who developed the technique, has turned over all his patents to the war department, and they are being put to wide use. There are reports that FM technique is proving vastly superior to the old style amplitude modulation [AM]technique in many types of war communications.

FM pioneers are predicting that the circumstance of war will make it infinitely easier for frequency modulation to become the dominant type of broadcast service in urban areas after the conflict.

Since the manufacture of all radio sets for civilian use has been ended for the duration, manufacturers will be able to start with a clean slate after the war. The buying public, finding their pre-war sets obsolete after years of hard usage, may be ready to purchase new receivers in great quantities. Many experts believe that post-war radio sets will be uniformly equipped with FM.

Cheaper Sets Expected.

In their mass construction of war equipment manufacturers are discovering many improvements that they can put to apt use in peace time which will make possible the building of cheaper FM sets.

John R. Latham, executive of the American network, FM chain, forecasts that FM will become a major industry in the days following the war, offering employment for many technicians and artists who will be thrown back into civilian life. Latham expects FM to be the force that will revitalize the post-war radio industry.

Spirit of '42

Kate Smith sings favorite songs of the armed forces on the Spirit of '42 aired over WBBM at 1:30 p. m. Sundays. The United States Marine band will be featured on the program today.

OFFER MELTING POT PAGEANT ON WBBM TODAY

A pageant of Chicago's foreign language and minority groups and their contributions to the nation's war effort will be featured by WBBM on a special "I Am an American" broadcast today. A narrator will discuss with representatives of seven American communities how they are mobilizing their manpower, money, and morale behind the united nations' drive over WBBM at 10:05 a. m. today.

Federal Sales Tax to Be Reviewing Stand Topic

A discussion of the question: "Is the Sales Tax a Necessity Now" will be presented on the Northwestern Reviewing stand over W-G-N at 10 a. m. today. Speakers will be Stewart Y. McMullen, specialist in taxes, and Howard Berolzheimer, insurance specialist, both of the Northwestern faculty, and Royal Munger, newspaperman. Parker Wheatley will be the moderator.

Howard Barlow to Offer Orchestral Serenades

A program of orchestral serenades will be presented by the Columbia Symphony, directed by Howard Barlow, over WBBM-CBS from 2 to 3:00 p. m. today. Barlow will present Mozart's D Major Serenade; Elgar's Serenade for string orchestra in E minor, and Tschaikowsky's Serenade for strings.

Vallee Making Picture.

PRESENT 2 MORE SONG DRAMAS ON 'MELODY' HOUR

Story of Sailor's Last Tune to Be Told.

The story of an American sailor who was lost at sea in the early weeks of the war will be told on "America Loves a Melody" over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Saturday evening.

The story will be dramatized from one of the two price winning letters picked for dramatic song spots on the program. Marion Claire, soprano star of the melody hour, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, will climax the dramatization singing Schubert's "Serenade," the song the sailor sang for his parents just before leaving for sea.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Bruce Foote, baritone, will be featured with Miss Claire and Mr. Baggiore in other selections during the program.

Miss Claire also will sing selections from "H. M. S. Pinafore" with Baggiore, Foote, and the chorus, selections from Bizet's "Carmen" with Foote, and Romero's "Cielito Linda."

The other musical-drama story will feature Bruce Foote in Carrie Jacobs Bond's "I Love You Truly." Two dramatic song spots are selected each week from the hundreds of letters submitted telling stories behind listeners' favorite songs.

Other features of the program will be Braga's "Angels Serenade," sung by Baggiore; "March of the Grenadiers" by Foote and the chorus, "Chimes of Spring" by Lincke presented by the orchestra and chorus, and Herbert's "Indian Summer" by the orchestra.

The orchestra will be under the direction of Henry Weber, W-G-N's musical director, and the chorus will be led by Robert Trendler.

Ruth Perrott an Author.

Ruth Perrott, currently heard as Emmy Burns in "Doctors at Work," is a playwright and author as well as a former musical comedy and screen performer. Her latest story appears in the May issue of The Fountain, a Chicago publication.

MILITARY UNITS MARCH TODAY IN PATRIOTIC RALLY

Mayor Is on Program in Caldwell Woods.

One of the largest of the "I Am an American day" celebration to be held today will be the northwest side rally at Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avenues. Mayor Kelly will be the principal speaker.

The program, starting at 2:30 o'clock, will include numbers by the Chicago Operetta company chorus, the University of Illinois concert band, and nationality groups. Soldiers, sailors, and marines will participate with the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Boy Scout units in demonstrations on the parade ground.

To Hear Radio Program.

During the afternoon, radio, screen, and stage celebrities will take part in a Treasury Hour program which will be broadcast.

The northwest side celebration has been planned as one for a family outing, said Roy I. Levinson, director of the northwest defense division, and families are urged to arrive early and take picnic baskets. Accommodations for picnics will be found on the grounds, he announced.

Boots to Show Activities.

Each of the 21 defense communities on the northwest side will sponsor booths featuring the phases of civilian defense activities such as Red Cross work, war gardens, salvage, and conservation.

James J. Kelley, district commander, is chairman of the arrangements committee. He is assisted by Paul Hagen, assistant director of the northwest division; James Curtis, commander of Logan Square community; Louis Rosen, commander of the Milwaukee-Armitage-Western community; Byron J. Schwinn, commander of Edgebrook community; Joseph Meersman, commander of Norwood Park community; Arnold H. Cordes, commander of Forest Glenn community; Winfield S. Scott, commander of Edison Park community; Gladys Cooke, commander of Jefferson Park community.

Athena Society to Hear War Bond Sales Talks

Five-minute talks by each member on war bond sales will be the feature of the meeting this afternoon of the Athena Public Speaking society. The meeting will take place at 3:30 o'clock in the clubroom in the Northwest Lions building, 4308 North avenue. Harold A. Tepper is chairman of the program committee.

Leisure Reading Goes for Salvage

After saving magazines and law brochures for 10 years waiting for time to read them, Marion G. Kudlick, 1200 North Ashland avenue, decided to make the first waste paper contribution at the beginning of his services as salvage chairman for the Near Northwest Side Community council drive which opens tomorrow. Helping him sort out his 250 pounds of paper are Scouts William Stanaszek and Edwin Galewski.

NORWEGIANS JOIN IN FETE TODAY AT HUMBOLDT PARK

Gov. Dwight H. Green will address Norwegians from Chicago and suburbs who will gather this afternoon in Humboldt park for the annual Norwegian Independence day celebration. Thirty thousand persons are expected to attend the celebration, which is the 48th of its kind under sponsorship of the Norwegian National league. This year's celebration is also designed as an observance of "I Am an American Day."

A parade forming at North and Artesian avenues at 1:30 o'clock and proceeding to Humboldt park will begin the celebration. At the park Dr. Martin Anderson, president of the Eastern district of the Norwegian Lutheran church, will open the ceremonies with an invocation and address. Music will be furnished by the Sons of Norway Children's chorus.

From Humboldt park the celebration will move to the Logan Square Masonic temple, 2451 North Kedzie boulevard, where at 6:30 o'clock Dr. Preston Bradley will address the group. After the program there will be music and dancing.

SALVAGE DRIVE SPURS CHAIRMAN TO CLEAN OFFICE

Decade's Savings Net Him 250 Pounds of Paper.

When Attorney Marion G. Kudlick found himself appointed salvage chairman of the Near Northwest Side Community council, he decided that the best precept is by example.

Mr. Kudlick has been located in his law offices at 1200 North Ashland avenue for 10 years. For that decade he has been saving magazines and brochures to read when he had some spare time. Some of his first law books are 15 years old and out of date. When Mr. Kudlick was finished cleaning out his back desk and the corners of his office he had 250 pounds of paper.

Children to Help.

The same kind of cleanup will take place in every office, store, and home from Kinzie avenue north to Armitage and from the Chicago river west to Oakley boulevard. Tomorrow Mr. Kudlick's committee will contact all the school children in the neighborhood asking them to collect not only waste paper but boxes, old clothes, rags, iron, fixtures, junk, bottles, and jars.

Residents are asked either to sell their waste paper and junk or to contribute the salvage to be sold for the benefit of the Boy Scout movement. Contributions will be accepted at Association house, 2150 West North avenue; Eckhart park, 1340 West Chicago avenue, Erie Neighborhood house, 1347 West Erie street; Holy Trinity Catholic church, 1118 Noble street; the Holy Trinity Russian church, 1121 North Leavitt street; the Hoyne Avenue Evangelical church, 900 North Hoyne avenue; Laird Community house, 1838 West Division street; the Near Northwest Civic committee, 539 North Ogden avenue; Northwestern University settlement, 1400 West Augusta boulevard; Polish Roman Catholic Union Scout troops, 1012 North Noble street, and the Wicker Park Evangelical Lutheran church, 2112 West Le Moyne avenue.

Members of Committee.

Sixty scout troops with some 750 boys will assist in the drive.

Wed Recently

Mrs. Frank J. La Sorella was Miss Carole J. Fischer before her recent wedding at St. Sylvester's church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Fischer, 2025 North Spaulding avenue. Mr. La Sorella resided at 3609 Palmer street.

B'nai B'rith Auxiliary.

Logan Square B'nai B'rith auxiliary will meet at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Logan Square Masonic temple, 2451 North Kedzie boulevard. President of the auxiliary is Mrs. Hy Brody.

Medical Society, Auxiliary Giving Luncheon Friday

A spring luncheon and bridge party will be held at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon under auspices of the Physicians' Fellowship club auxiliary and the Chicago Medical society. The luncheon will be held at the Ridgemoor Country club, 6601 Guunison street. Mrs. C. F. Stotz is in charge of arrangements.

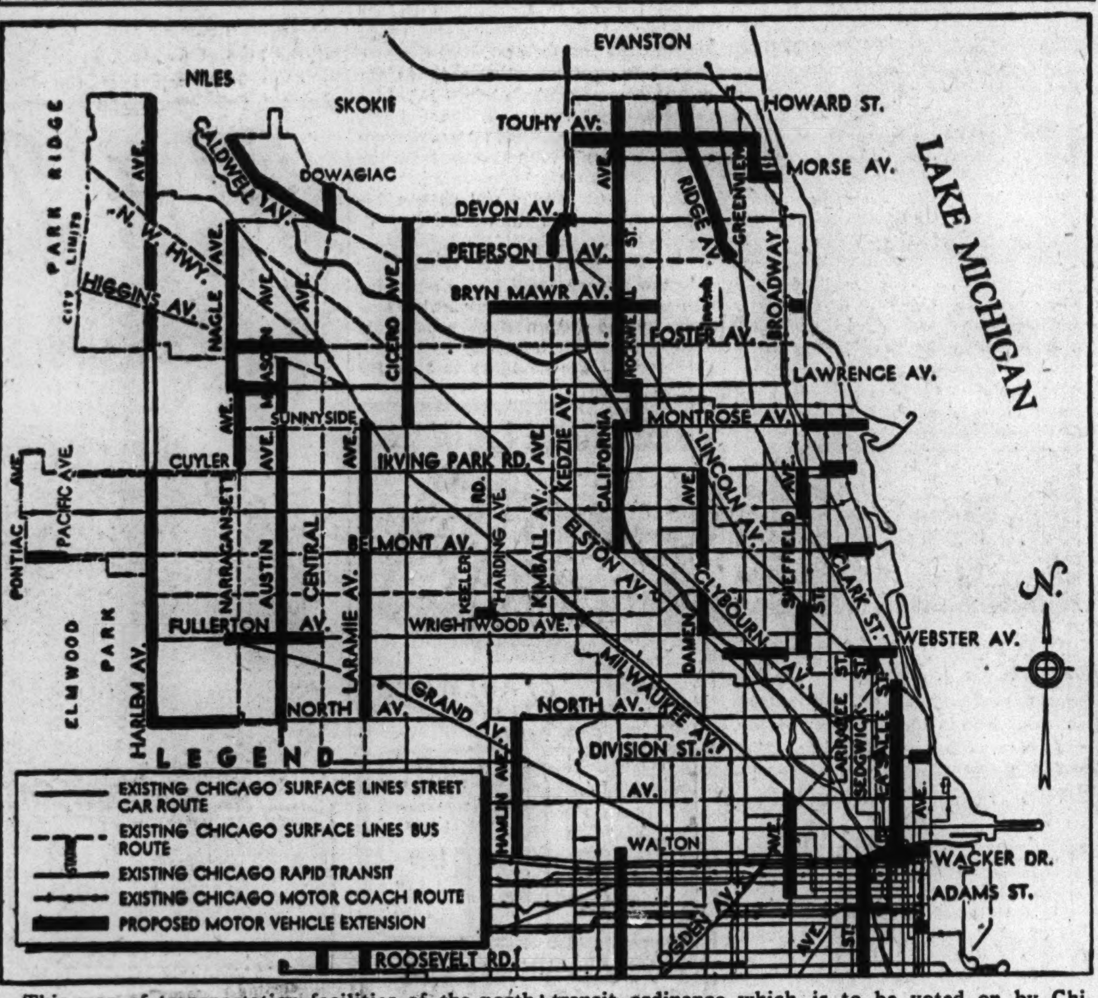
Transit Plans for North and Northwest Side



This map of transportation facilities of the north and northwest side has proposed bus extensions in heavy lines. The extensions are part of the unified transit ordinance which is to be voted on by Chicagoans on June 1.

(Story on page 1.)

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 18

Watch the lawn, especially one made recently, that it does not dry out. When watering new, short grass use a fine spray or avoid watering with a heavy stream. Young grass is weak and unable to stand very rough treatment. If the lawn is still to be made, sow about 10 per cent English rye with the regular lawn seed. This grows rapidly, furnishes a good green cover, and offers shade for the grass.

Frequently timothy or oats are used for the purpose. These are annual grasses and die out later on. It takes about three years to establish a good blue grass lawn and during that period all attention must be made that it is kept in luxuriant growth, well supplied with plant food and water.

In many parts of the city the home gardener is prone to keep the soil too high with the result that water runs off too rapidly. Grade from the walk to the curb in a gently even manner and the soil will not flow away or dry out.

Tuesday, May 19

The habit of hilling up hedges and shrubs should be avoided; it looks bad and usually the borders are edged with a deep ditch or depression when it should be only slightly raised above the lawn, if raised at all. It also is noted that many shrubs are badly in need of pruning and they have grown so high they need cutting back to obtain young, fast growing, vigorous, and healthy wood from which good foliage and abundant flowers can be expected.

Prune early flowering shrubs, like the forsythia and bridal wreath, after flowering. The flowers are borne on wood made the previous year and if pruned when dormant or in winter the buds are removed. Some shrubs produce their flowers on young wood made the same season, such as the hydrangea and shoestring plant or Hibiscus syriacus. Dead wood can be removed at any time.

Do not plant a low growing or dwarf shrub where a tall one should go and do not plant tall plants where dwarf ones should be used. The use of shrubs on narrow streets should be discontinued. However, no plants will develop properly unless the soil is reasonably good. Hence the first consideration should be to obtain a good, fertile loam.

Wednesday, May 20

The activities of gardeners is at high stage at this time. The following list of plants to be grown in various city areas is recommended by the advisory staff of the Chicago metropolitan area:

Grow these in smoky area: Carrots, kale, turnips, beets, collards, Swiss chard, mustard greens, leaf or cos lettuce, radishes, onions from sets, endive, and parsley.

Grow these and the above in outlying areas: Tomatoes, lima beans, cabbage [especially Savoy cabbage], parsnips, bush beans or pole beans, peas, peppers, spinach, kohlrabi and salsify, or oyster plant.

In addition to the above grow these in large gardens where the conditions are favorable: Winter squash, sweet corn, bush squash, okra, cucumbers, mature onions from sets or seeds, celery, the green varieties and blight resistant, and eggplant.

Thursday, May 21

Many excellent varieties of garden plants are available. Most of those listed in catalogs are dependable, they have been thoroly tested before listings, and usually the gardener will grow the kind he likes best for his own use.

The chief thing is to get the work done at the right time. See that the ground is well prepared and do not wait until it dries out before planting. Make straight rows which are best running north and south. Sow small seeds in shallow rows and do not sow too thickly. The average width between rows is about 12 inches.

When the seedlings appear above ground careful hoeing or cultivating between rows should begin. A complete plant food can be applied by scattering it along both sides of the rows and carefully hoeing it into the soil.

Friday, May 22

When planting corn for home use sow several short rows rather than in a long, single row. This is to insure adequate pollination. Plant tall crops in a manner that they will not shade low-growing crops. Stake tomatoes when grown on small areas because every foot of space must be used.

Do not brush against bean plants when they are wet or covered with dew or disease may develop. Get a good sprayer and recommended spraying materials and begin using them at the very first sign of insects, and adopt a regular spraying program.

Hoe regularly and especially following a rain or the ground may pack and rapid evaporation occur. Gather all crops when in their prime. Plant flowers in the small garden rather than fuss with vegetables.

Saturday, May 23

Good vegetable land will produce fine flowers, so you should give careful consideration to soil preparation. What to grow will depend on what you want to grow, altho it is wise to limit the number of varieties. Practically all varities can be grown in the good soil and atmospheric conditions that prevail in most suburban districts, but in the city a wide variety of conditions exist which makes the selection of plant materials of first importance.

The renter can have a colorful flower garden by using only annuals. He doesn't need a coldframe. No matter what is sown the gardener should never neglect to thin the seedlings; this applies to vegetables as well. Space most annuals about nine inches apart. Begin thinning when the plants are small.

Use morning glories, hyacinth beans, scarlet runner, moonvine, cobaea or cathedral bells, or any others that appeal.

REMODELING IS STILL POSSIBLE IN MANY CASES

Creating Extra Room Aid to Housing Problem.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Remodeling jobs which do not require critical materials can aid housing shortages by creation of extra rooms and stimulate home morale by the preservation of what we have. House maintainance, when necessary, is a defense against the arch thieves of depreciation and obsolescence, and every sturdy little home is a worthwhile unit in the nation's great housing investment.

There are many things we can do for our homes and at the same time gear our efforts to economic pressure and keep in mind the necessary repairs and renewals to keep our houses sound as a dollar.

Floors are an important item in home maintainance, and if a floor is badly worn it can be replaced, or a new factory finished floor can be laid over it. Or a material such as linoleum can appear on the home front, in a hallway or child's room, or in many different rooms.

Plenty of Flooring Available.

In most instances floors can be repaired or renewed without use of materials on the critical list.

Right now hundreds of thousands of feet of factory stained and finished hardwood flooring is meeting the needs of the present market. It is fitting itself into the great housing program as well as into individual, already built homes which need floor replacement.

This type of flooring is available in oak, beech, and maple. Flooring also can be had in wood mosaic. Much of this flooring comes from the factory waxed and polished. Some of it has slight bevels to give it a distinctive effect and make not only for easier installation but for a more perfect appearance in the room.

One type of this prefinished flooring has its oak flooring finished in medium shade, and its maple and beech finished natural. The finish used penetrates and seals the pores of the wood and is a big help in keeping out dust and grime. In addition to this seal finish, it is filled, waxed, and buffed.

Flooring also can be laid over an existing floor in a home and finished in excellent fashion by standard on the job methods. Hard maple is a flooring available in various sizes and grades, and can be had in strips or blocks to form different patterns.

Another point of interest in modern maple flooring is the fact that it is available in "natural" shades as well as in a wide range of possible color finishes to match practically any decorative scheme.

Several Shades of Color.

One can finish a hard maple floor in shades of blue or green, ebony, and early American, or brown. Long wearing, hard maple has been called one of the toughest of floorings as well as one of the softest in its beauty, and it invariably provides a lovely base for color harmony. Moreover, it is easy to clean and is a floor of definite sanitation, since its surface is very smooth and affords no lodging place for germs and dust.

In the capture of an extra room in the basement, paint with proper materials and preparation is an extremely satisfactory and inexpensive way of finishing a floor. There also are dyes for concrete floors available now which can be depended on for durability and are attractive.

There also are linoleums especially manufactured for use in basement game rooms. Asphalt tile also is definitely in the picture as a flooring in an "extra" basement living room, game, or recreation room.

Asphalt tile is a waterproof and handsome flooring that can be depended on to withstand hard traffic, and effective patterns can be obtained by alternating dark and light tiles.

Recalls When Cows Pastured in Hyde Park

Robert D. Flood.

Forty-nine years ago this spring a 22 year old Chicago boy was hurrying home from Europe, where he had been sightseeing, eager to catch a glimpse of the village of Hyde Park. Word had reached him that great things were happening back in his home town; that dazzling buildings were being erected in Ganzel's prairie as the big open pasture where the townspeople kept their cows was called.

"When I got home, I found all the boys were getting jobs at the Columbian exposition, and I landed one running one of the electric launches on the lagoon," reminisces Robert D. Flood, patriarch of Hyde Park. He has seen that south side community emerge from a few straggling blocks of wooden sidewalks surrounded by prairie to a crowded area of almost a million people—some living in skyscrapers, all riding electric trains to the downtown loop.

Old Swamp Disappears.

"You should have seen what they had done with that cow pasture," Flood tells listeners. "They had taken swamp land and filled it in for the unbelievable buildings they were throwing up. A dingy canal was being made into the lagoon which now comprises the Midway plaisance at the University of Chicago. It was magnificent."

Best of all, Flood says, were the number of electric lights which were being used not only for illumination, but strewn recklessly about merely for decorative effect. All that summer he pridefully passed in the gate marked "employés only" and shuttled visitors from Keokuk or Calcutta up and down the lagoon in the boats that had neither sails, steam nor cars.

"There was such a crowd we had little time to see the fair ourselves, but we did squeeze in a peep at Little Egypt. We were so pleased with the outside appearance of the fair that we didn't mind missing the inside."

Sees Father's Trees.

"Bob" Flood, well dressed, his bright eyes and pink complexion denying his 71 years, can point from his office on the fifth floor of the Hyde Park National bank building down to the group of trees his father planted in 1866 around their home at 5421 Lake Park avenue. [It was Hyde Park avenue then, he recalls.] His father was the village doctor, and Flood remembers the old gentleman with side whiskers hurrying out in the middle of the night to pull the aching tooth [doctors did that in those days] of some pain stricken Victorian townsman.

"The old 54th street grammar school was so rickety when I attended it in the late seventies that they kept the classes on the main floor and condemned the upper stories," he recollects. "That was after the fire had driven many people to Hyde Park and things were booming. The land my father purchased for $3 a front foot rose to $20,000 for an ordinary sized lot. Soon we had a new school, the Raye school now known as Hyde Park High school, and the little boys in five button jackets and the girls in pinafores and long leg-o-mutton sleeves were allowed to mind their lessons on every floor of the building.

Remembers Stagg as Student.

Visitors at the Flood dinner table in post-exposition days were young University of Chicago football players who were interested both in the food and a 'teen age sister. Among them was a certain Alonzo Stagg, who attempted to explain the game, tho unsuccessfully, to Flood's father.

"When they built the stadium on 63d street where the Tower theater is now, that was a chance to take father to see the football Alonzo had tried patiently to explain," Flood smilingly recalls, "but father never quite got the hang of it.

"We had good seats. Father sat in front. The Carlisle Indians were playing. Father was immensely interested when they came on the field with a war whoop. But when it was all over he was still muttering that he couldn't understand how they expected to get anywhere when they got in each other's way so much."

Recalls Own Lessons.

He paused to consider what were the lessons he had learned in his many years spent around Hyde Park, sometimes venturing to Europe, a few years selling wool yarn, many years on the Chicago Board of Trade. No mention came from him of the beliefs in kindliness that led him to take under his wing a bewildered youngster he encountered in juvenile court many years ago, nor the times he has interrupted his Thanksgiving meal to send a contribution to a welfare society, nor of the heartbreak he and his wife suffered when they lost their daughter. Rather he singled out an incident that may not have been a world shaking event, but one that spoke volumes about the appreciative, good humored character of "Bob" Flood.

"It doesn't ever pay to be too sure about anything," he replied, a twinkle in his eyes. "I met a young lady in Dresden, Germany, and she told me that she had lived at the southeast corner of 67th street and Cottage Grove avenue in Chicago. 'Oh, no,' I said, 'the people who are located there never get away; that's a cemetery.' But it seems her father was

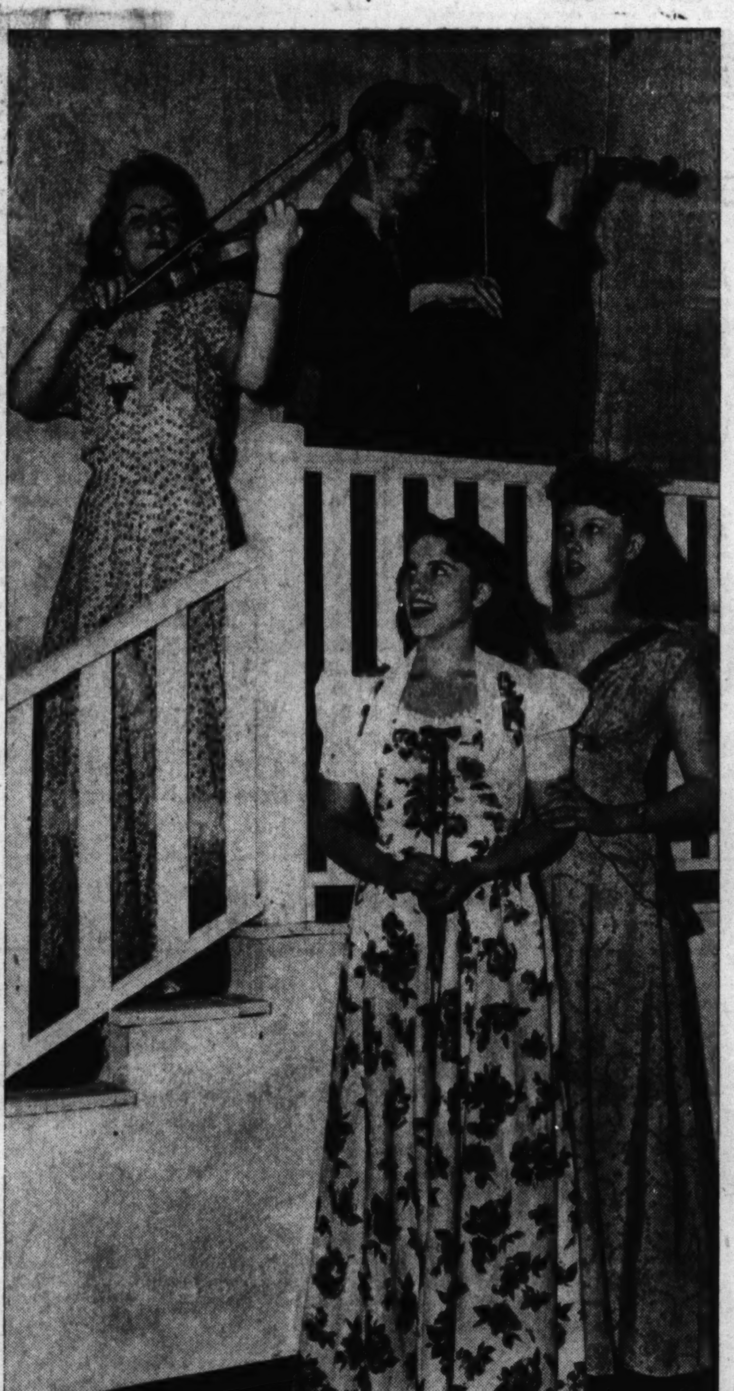
Hirsch High Pupils to Give Annual Concert This Week

A feature of the 7th annual concert to be given by Hirsch High school Thursday and Friday will be an operetta entitled "False Fernando," presented by the Girls' Glee club. Leading singing roles will be taken by Helen Young as Inez, Ruth Frances as Nina, June Parker as Isabell, and Virginia Johnstone as Carmen, shown above in the front row. Patricia Boarden, at the top of the stairs, will portray Delores Mrs. Constance Nicklaus will direct.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]



The concert and operetta will be presented for the public at 8 o'clock Thursday evening and for students at 1:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon and 10 o'clock Friday morning in the school auditorium, 7740 Ingleside avenue. Margaret Twichell and Marion Pille, vocalists, and Rita Wolfson and Fred Guendel, violinist, will be soloists in the concert directed by Mrs. Helen Kane, head of the music department. Also participating will be the band, the junior choir and the Choral club. John Steinbach will conduct the band.

Church Fund of $3,500 Put in War Bonds

The missionary budget at Progressive Baptist church, 3705 La Salle street, is being slashed to the bone. So is the Sunday school budget and the decorating fund and the special gifts fund. The church money is being used to purchase bombs and rifles, shells, and tanks. Recently the members voted to draw the church money out of the bank and buy United States war bonds.

It takes a long time to put money in the bank at Progressive Baptist church. While the organ plays the offertory Sunday after Sunday, year in and year out, dimes, nickels, pennies, and quarters drop silently and ceremoniously into the velvet bottomed collection plate. In time the congregation spends its money—to a total of $10,000 a year—for home and foreign missionary work. Some of the work is carried out by the National Baptist Missionary board.

Pastor for 23 Years.

The Rev. T. Emerson Brown is the beloved pastor who has served his flock for 23 years. The majority of the 7,000 members are Negroes but the Rev. Mr. Brown numbers among his congregation all races and nationalities. There were men and women of German descent who voted yes on the bond purchase.

It was from the same collection plate passed Sunday after Sunday that the new church with an audience seating capacity of 2,000 was built. All this is done with from 35 to 50 per cent of the membership on relief.

There are 62 classes in the Sunday school and in addition to the ancient Bible stories the children learn to put brotherly love into their daily lives, to take the Golden Rule to school with them on week days. They learn, too, of good books and nature.

Money for War This Year.

"This will have to be curtailed this year," said the Rev. Mr. Brown, "we want to use our money to help win the war."

Last week the deacons, trustees, and the pastor went to the Livestock National bank at 41st and Halsted streets. There they signed a withdrawal slip for $3,500 from the year's church collection. Proudly they put the money over the counter in exchange for war bonds and rented a vault box to keep them in.

Matthew Burgess is president of the board and Thomas McCaltin is chairman of the deacons. Mrs. Lottie Harness is head of the Woman's Missionary society. The leader of the religious education department is Mrs. Jeanette Broyant.

"We wanted people to know about this," said the pastor, "then maybe other churches will decide to buy war bonds too."

Piano Recital Today.

A piano recital by pupils of Clara E. Thiede will be given at 3:15 o'clock today at the Sherman park fieldhouse, 52d street and Racine avenue.

Wesley Jones to Bring Famed Choir to Loop

The trend of the times will be told in patriotic music when the Metropolitan church choir directed by J. Wesley Jones appears in concert at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening in Orchestra hall. Mr. Jones has included in the program plantation melodies to be sung in the plaintive manner of yesterday and Negro spirituals ranging from modern boogie-woogie to the traditional manner.

Cooper Tenor Soloist.

Starring soloists will be Maurice Cooper, tenor, known for his rôles in the "Chimes of Normandy" and the "Mikado" productions on Broadway, and Clara Bolton, soprano, who has sung to Metropolitan audiences and who is a member of the choir. Walter Gossette will be guest organist.

Lowell Derrick and Harriette Hammond will serve as organist and accompanist. "The Hymn Triumphant," a selection composed and dedicated to Mr. Jones and his choir by Dr. Charles Wakefield Cadman will be the feature of the program. Another Chicago composer, Don Malin, will be represented by his "Let All Together Praise Our God."

List Two Spirituals.

"Weeping Mary" and "Go Not Far from Me," arranged from two Negro spirituals by Dr. R. Nathaniel Dett, Negro composer, will be presented.

Other selections include a composition by John W. Work, teacher of music at Fisk university; "Go to Sleep," a Negro lullaby arranged by William L. Dawson, director of music at Tuskegee institute; "Walk Together, Children," and "The Old Flag Never Touched the Ground," by Rosamond Johnson, and the Hallelujah chorus from Handel's "Messiah," an interpretation for which the choir is famous.

CITIZENS LEAGUE WILL HEAR TALK ON DELINQUENCY

The Citizens Betterment league, an agency of the Juvenile Delinquency Prevention division of Illinois, will meet tomorrow evening in Mount Olive Methodist church, 3416 Michigan avenue, of which the Rev. Spencer P. Johnson is pastor.

The speaker will be Irving Saunders, sociologist, on the topic, "Rehabilitation of Boys." Mr. Saunders will explain that Illinois is the only state that has set up a separate department for the study and reduction of juvenile delinquency.

The Rev. Mr. Johnson will offer the invocation and Henry W. Hammond will lead the discussion. The speaker will be introduced by Golden B. Darby. The recently organized Neighborhood club of the league with Mrs. Blossie McGruder as president is inviting to the meeting all residents in the area from 22d to 43d streets and from Wentworth street to South Park way. The Mount Olive Choral club will sing.

U. of C. Student Council Plans Carnival Saturday

A carnival will be held Saturday evening by the student council of the four year college of the University of Chicago for the benefit of the Hyde Park Neighborhood club and the University of Chicago settlement. Each student organization will operate a concession and the council will stage skits and conduct dances.

Dramatic Art Pupils Giving Program at Y Wednesday

Pupils of the Emma Rund studio of dramatic art will present a South American review after the luncheon of the Women's auxiliary of the South Shore YMCA, 2320 East 75th street, at 1 o'clock Wednesday. Ben Skolnik, tenor, and Miss Lorraine Johnson, pianist, will entertain.

10,000 CHILDREN IN SHORE TOWNS TO SEE MOVIES

Ten thousand school children will march from their classrooms to theaters in Indiana Harbor, East Chicago, and Whiting and attend Americanism shows tomorrow and Tuesday in observance of "I Am an American" day.

Two-hour programs of patriotic short subjects have been arranged by school authorities with the Indiana theater, Indiana Harbor; the Vogue, East Chicago, and the Hoosier, Whiting, in coöperation with the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, Kiwanis and Lions clubs, Elks lodges, and chambers of commerce.

The children will assemble at their various schools and march behind color guards and high school bands to the theaters. The Washington High school band will march at Indiana Harbor, the Roosevelt High school band at East Chicago, and the George Rogers Clarke and Whiting High school bands at Whiting.

East Chicago Art League Annual Exhibit Is Today

The East Chicago Art league will hold its third annual exhibit from 2 to 8 o'clock today in the Elks ballroom, East Chicago. Pottery, weaving, crafts, painting, and sculpture will be on display. Music will be provided by a committee headed by Miss Frances Roomer. Miss Mary P. Lean is president of the art league and Dewey T. Brush publicity chairman.

NEW FRANCHISE WILL GO BEFORE VOTERS JUNE 1

Express Bus Routes Are Promised.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

The south and southwest sides will receive a substantial part of the 715 miles of transit improvements contemplated under the city's traction unification ordinance to be voted on June 1 at a public referendum.

The ordinance, passed by the city council, June 19, 1941, grants a franchise to a prospective unified company which will operate the properties of the Chicago Surface lines, the elevated lines and the 65 million dollar city owned subway. The new company also will have the right to acquire the Chicago Motor Coach company.

A transit modernization program costing 102 million dollaras is contemplated over the next eight years under the terms of the ordinance. The unified company is required to make the improvements to the extent of its financiail abilitiy to raise the money.

Buses to Replace Some Cars.

The program includes 249 miles of local bus extensions, 165 miles of express bus routes, and 301 miles where bus operation will be substituted for present street cars. In the case of substitutions, gasoline buses will be used in some instances and trolley buses in others.

The map in this section shows the locations of local bus extensions on the south and southwest sides. In addition, substitution of buses is planned for street cars now in use on 119th street, 115th, 111th, 93d-95th, 87th, 75th, 67th-69th, 59th-51st, 51st-55th, 43d, Pershing road, 31st, 26th, and the 18th-16th street car line. Bus conversions also are planned on several north-south routes including Damen avenue, South Chicago avenue, and the Commercial avenue-Torrence avenue line.

Eight express bus routes, with limited stop service, are contemplated thruout the city. Three are to benefit the south side. One would run from the airport north on Cicero avenue to Archer avenue, to State street and into the loop. Another would run from 95th street and Ewing avenue to the Jackson Park "L" station at 63d and Stony Island avenue, via South Chicago avenue and Jeffery avenue. A third would be in Western avenue from 111th street to Howard street.

Much Equipment to be Bought.

The ordinance requires the company, in order to equip the proposed routes and replace equipment on present routes, to buy within 8 years 850 trolley or gasoline buses, 950 streamlined street cars, and 1,850 additional units, either street cars or buses. To improve rapid transit service, the company is required to buy 1,000 subway-elevated cars.

Establishment of the proposed united company to put thru the program is contingent on the outcome of the June 1 referendum and also on a vote by the securities holders of the surface and elevated lines which is now being taken. The 75,000 securities owners are balloting on a proposed financial merger and reorganization plan providing a new corporation to accept the franchise ordinance.

To Use 30 Million Dollar Fund.

Altho the new company will be required to make improvements only to the extent of its financiail ability, a fund of 30 million dollars now held by the surface lines will make possible a good start on the program. City officials estimate that the remainder of the 102 millions can be borrowed or taken from future renewal funds.

The order in which the transit extensions and substitutions are to be made will be determined by a three man local transit commission appointed by the mayor with the approval of the city council. This commission will have all the authority over the new company that is now held by the Illinois Commerce commission, including rates of fare, service standards, and changes of routes.

Altho the proposed modernization program is expected to be delayed by the war, setting up of the new company and granting the unified franchise will clear the way for starting the improvements as soon as circumstances permit.

Chiropodist Association Takes Course in First Aid

Many members of the Northwestern Alumni Chiropodist association have completed the Red Cross first aid instructors' course taught by Isaac W. Hawes. The association is encouraging members to take this method of coöperating in the defense effort. Chiropodists also are asking congress to pass House Bill 3738, which provides for establishment of a chiropody corps in the medical corps of the United States army.

Mothers of Spalding High Students to Elect Staff

Spalding High School Mothers' club will meet in monthly session at 1 o'clock Tuesday in the school auditorium, 2216 Hirsch street. Mrs. R. C. Schmoldt, president, will open the session, at which officers will be elected.

DEDICATE $36,000 PARISH HALL IN SERVICES TODAY

Church Leader to Talk at Gustavus Adolphus.

Dedication of the new $36,000 parish hall of the Gustavus Adolphus Lutheran church, 7426 Drexel avenue, will take place at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. O. A. Benson, president of the Illinois conference and vice president of the Augustana Synod of North America, will deliver the dedicatory address.

Assisting in the dedicatory rites will be pastors of the southern Chicago district of the Augustana synod. Members of the Grand Crossing Ministerial association also will attend. The choir of Gustavus Adolphus church will take part as will the men's chorus, Sunday school children, and the 1942 confirmation class.

The church celebrated its 50th anniversary last year. Membership numbers 1,100. The Rev. J. A. Parkander has been pastor of the church since 1926.

A special musical service will be presented Tuesday evening by men's and boys' choirs from six Episcopal churches of the city in conjunction with the regional convention of the American Guild of Organists being held on the Midway. The service will be held in the University of Chicago chapel.

One hundred fifty voices make up the choruses, which include those from the Church of the Redeemer, Trinity church, and the Church of the Mediator on the south side; St. Peter's church, St. Paul by the Lake, and All Saints' church on the north side. Frederick Schneider, choirmaster of the Church of the Mediator, will direct the program, assisted by Robert Birch, organist and choirmaster at the Church of the Redeemer, who will be the accompanist.

A program of anthems and chants will be presented by the choral groups, designed to typify the schools of English church music from the early days to the present. The choruses were assembled for the occasion by the Chicago Choirmaster's association.

Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "H. M. S. Pinafore," will be presented this week by the young people of the First Presbyterian church, 64th street and Kimbark avenue. Two performances are to be given in John Knox hall, the first Thursday evening and the second on the following evening.

The Young People's council of the church is sponsoring the operetta to raise funds to enable young people of the church to participate in the summer camp program. Avery Wood, recreation director, will direct the cast.

Members of the St. Philip Neri Woman's club will hold their annual luncheon Thursday afternoon at the South Shore Country club. Mrs. Leonard L. Ryan and Mrs. Thomas L. Mulroy are the chairmen in charge of the affair. After the luncheon Mrs. J. P. Kerwin will be installed as president. Earlier in the day a special high mass for boys in the service will be sung by the Rev. George A. Parker.

The second annual interracial program of the Teresa Higginson guild and the Federated Colored Catholics will be presented at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Corpus Christi school hall, 4910 South Park way.

Aquinas Dominican High Mothers' club will meet at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the school auditorium, 72d street and Clyde avenue, to be entertained by a Mother's day program presented by students of the school. Following the program officers will be elected. Hostess for the afternoon is Mrs. John E. McCarthy, chairman of the house committee. She will be assisted by Mrs. Elmer C. Barker, Mrs. C. H. Klene, Mrs. John A. Michala, Mrs. Clara M. Noonan, Mrs. Michael R. Roche, and Mrs. John T. Smith.

A program by students of the school will be presented before members of St. Thomas the Apostle Mothers' club at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in Tighe hall, 5467 Woodlawn avenue.

GLENWOOD WILL DEDICATE GYM AT FLAG DAY RITES

The 46th annual competitive military drill and flag day exercises will be held at the Glenwood Manual Training school Sunday, June 14. A highlight of this year's program will be the homecoming of alumni and the dedication of the new gymnasium. This will be the school's first gymnasium in the 55 years of its existence. Open house will be observed thruout the day, and guests will be escorted thru the cottages, laundry, engine room, and other facilities.

The school was incorporated in 1887, and for the first three years occupied a frame building in Norwood Park. In 1890, the school moved to a farm at Glenwood, where it is now located. The present plant and equipment were provided over a period of years by contributions and endowments. The farm and campus of 430 acres, including 25 buildings, are valued at $500,000.

The school, nonsectarian, provides a home for dependent boys. Bruce Borland is president; Philip F. W. Peck, vice president; Don M. Compton, secretary, and Walter B. Smith, treasurer. Directors are Dr. Charles B. Alexander, Ernest S. Ballard, John A. Carroll, Joseph S. Duncan, Floyd B. Evans, Howard Linn, N. C. Mather, Charles S. Pearce, Charles Z. Meyer, Marvin B. Pool, R. Douglas Stuart, and Wilfred Sykes. Mrs. Paul Walker is president of the women's auxiliary.

LILACS SHARING WITH CITY'S SICK AGAIN SUCCESS

Volunteer Workers Aid in Sending Blooms.

The annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign again was successful this year in bringing cheer and beauty to the bedsides of the sick and shut-ins of the city's hospitals and institutions.

Sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, this year's lilac campaign marked the 14th year that blooms have been gathered thruout Chicagoland for distribution to the less fortunate people in the city.

Cheer 20,000 Patients.

This year more than 60,000 blooms flooded Chicago with a river of color and fragrance. The bouquets were delivered to more than 20,000 patients in 148 hospitals, orphanages, and old people's homes.

The work of gathering the flowers was supervised by chairmen of more than 81 garden clubs affiliated with the guild. Helping to pick and wrap the blooms were thousands of flower lovers, Boy and Girl Scouts, and school children.

Railroads Lend Aid.

The lilac bouquets were delivered freight free from local stations to city terminals by eight railroads. Railroads generously offering use of their baggage cars were the North Shore electric, Chicago and Milwaukee, Rock Island, Pennsylvania, Chicago and Northwestern, Illinois Central, Aurora and Elgin, and the Burlington.

MARK JUGOSLAV MONTH AT FETE TUESDAY NIGHT

Jugoslav month, sponsored by the South Chicago branch of the Chicago Public library, 9055 Houston avenue, will be celebrated at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening with a festival in the library auditorium. The South Chicago branch is now showing a Jugoslav exhibit, one of a series concerning many nationality groups of that area.

Exhibits and programs in connection with Jugoslav month are under auspices of the Jugoslav American Citizens club of South Chicago, which will celebrate its 10th anniversary next Sunday at St. George's church hall, 96th street and Ewing avenue. Robert Poznonovich is president of the group.

Feature of the program Tuesday evening will be "The Slovenian Wedding," a musical pageant of Slovenian dances and songs in costume, with accordion accompaniment under direction of Mrs. H. K. Kushar. Also participating in the program are Miss Ann Benniger, young Chicago soprano; Misses Joan Blasovich and Barbara Michulich, accordionists, the Boy Scout troop of St. George's parish, and the Slovenian Girl cadets.

Did you ever hear a Smile?

There is a smile in the voice that answers your call when you phone SUPerior 0100—Want Ad-Viser. That's why it is such a pleasant experience—as well as a productive one—when you phone to place your want ad in the Chicago Tribune.

Tribune Want Ad-Visers are selected because they have pleasant telephone personalities. They are then carefully trained so that they become expert in helping people get things done with Tribune want ads.

Each Want Ad-Viser has her own glass-enclosed, soundproof booth of special design. Thousands of dollars' worth of unique equipment expedites your call from the moment it comes in—helps to keep your conversation free from interruption—makes it as convenient as possible for you to transact your want ad business.

From their experience in helping others, Tribune Want Ad-Visers can suggest ideas which can help you get the best results from your want ad in the Tribune.

So—for friendly, efficient service, call SUPerior 0100 Want Ad-Viser. Don't hesitate to call just because you have never placed a want ad before. Just explain what you want your Tribune want ad to do for you. The voice with the smile will do the rest. If you wish, she will be glad to suggest how to word your ad for best results. She will tell you the exact cost—everything you want to know.

And remember, if you are a telephone subscriber you may charge your Tribune want ad.

Three other easy ways to place a Tribune want ad

Ask for a representative to call on you. Thousands of business men in Chicago and suburbs find this convenient, friendly service the ideal way to put low-cost Tribune want ads to work for them.

Convenient want ad stores are maintained at 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower, 435 North Michigan avenue. There your particular want ad problems will receive the prompt, courteous attention of experienced want ad counselors who will be glad to serve you.

If you live out of town, prompt, efficient service is available by mail. Just outline your want ad. An expert ad-writer will shape it up and return it for your approval, together with quotations of cost. Address Out-of-Town Want Ad Department, Room 1015, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

WHEN YOU CAN HAVE MORE, WHY TAKE LESS?

Tribune want ads get results quickly at low cost because they reach so many more prospects for everything which can be rented, sold, bought or traded. With hundreds of thousands more circulation daily and Sunday than other Chicago newspapers, the Tribune is the long established want ad marketplace, carrying more want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined and, as a result, attracting more readers. For quick action, call SUPerior 0100—Want Ad-Viser.

SEA SCOUTS GET AWARDS AT 16TH ANNUAL SESSION

South Shore Squadron in Rally at Armory.

Young sailors who have seen a little of the sea have brand new badges to wear. They won them in the 16th annual commodore's inspection and presentation of awards held by the South Shore squadron of the Chicago Sea Scouts' council last night in the West Side armory, Madison street and Western avenue.

The three Scouts who were presented with their quartermaster award for achieving the highest rank in the Sea Scout program in 1941 are David Petty, 5742 Maryland avenue; Bruce Adams, 5409 Dorchester avenue, and Sherwin Danielson, 10843 Edgebrook avenue.

Ship Gets Two Honors.

Sea Scout ship Cuttlefish sponsored by the United Church of Hyde Park, 1448 East 53d street, received two honors, the second place trophy for the Noyes cutter race and fourth place in the regatta cutter race. Claude Hickade is skipper.

Sea Scout ship Northern Light sponsored by Greater Pullman post received third place recognition for participation in the Commodore Clark lifeboat race. Joseph Jucius is skipper.

Other Winners Named.

Other trophy winners were the Sea Scout ship Flying Dutchman, sponsored by St. Augustine Roman Catholic church, 5045 South Laflin street, H. J. Foertsch, skipper; S. S. S. Legionnaire, sponsored by Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed church, 7009 Michigan avenue, Carl C. Stammerjohn, skipper; Sea Scout ship Emden, sponsored by the South Shore Presbyterian church.

DEFENSE ZONE 9 TO HAVE RALLY FRIDAY EVENING

A civilian defense massmeeting at 8 o'clock Friday evening will be entertained by an octet from the Great Lakes Naval Training station who will present a program in the old cafeteria of the Hyde Park hotel, 1511 East Hyde Park boulevard. The meeting is for residents of zone 9, which includes the 4940 East End building, 5000 East End, 5000 Cornell, the Powhatan, the Narragansett, and the Chicago Beach hotel.

Walter Roy of the Office of Civilian Defense will speak on his work of tying together all activities of the far-flung civilian defense.

The program is being arranged by Frank Rainey, community commander; Walter Hamlin, zone captain; David J. Shipman, morale director of Kenwood, and Elizabeth Bensberg, assistant morale director.

Betrothal Told

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Goodfriend, 5036 Woodlawn avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Iris Jean, to Sheldon A. Novak, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Novak, 5428 Woodlawn avenue. Miss Goodfriend attended the University of Illinois. Her fiance will depart soon for defense work on the Pacific coast.

the superintendent, and they lived inside the gate.

Recalls First Bathtub.

"Seriously, probably one of the things I'm a stickler for is the sanctity of marriage. I got married for keeps, and I stayed married, and I think other people would be better off if they did likewise. And, more, I believe in the progress Hyde Park has made and will make. Why, we had the first bathtub in Hyde Park—a big seven footer—and it was so unusual that we had parties and invited the neighbors in for a bath. Now everybody has a tub that would put ours to shame."

Fittingly, the son of the first village doctor ended on the note that he began the story—the Columbian exposition. "Sometimes I loll back when I am on the Wooded Isle in Jackson Park [a part of the original fair], and in my fancy I see the lights coming on and see the reflection of the gorgeous buildings with thousands of lights and pennants mirrored in the still water of the lagoon. I can hear the music of 'The Band Played On' and I feel sorry for the generations that will never see that sight."

UNFURL SERVICE FLAG TODAY FOR BLOCK'S HEROES

The service flag presented to 14 mothers in the Morgan street block bounded by 87th and 88th streets will be dedicated at 2:15 o'clock today in front of 8736 Morgan street. The flag was presented to the block by Ald. J. J. Duffy [19th] in tribute to the block's 14 youths now in the country's service. A parade, marshaled by John Scott, will precede the dedication. Participating will be members of William G. Murray post, Veterans of Foreign Wars; O'Connell Eddy American Legion post; Calumet and St. Kilian's school bands; the Symphonettes, a girls' band of 25 pieces, and Boy Scouts from neighborhood churches.

Betrothal

Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Ginsberg, 1640 East 50th street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Joyce Norma Storch, to Dr Armand Lewin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lewinsky of 3650 Pine Grove avenue.

Pupils' Orchestra to Play at Fort Dearborn School

Fort Dearborn school orchestra will present its spring concert at 8 o'clock Friday in the school auditorium, 90th and Throop streets. Forty boys and girls will participate. William J. Thurn, 5816 Rockwell street, is director of the orchestra.

Morris Country Club.

The first luncheon of the season will be held at 1 o'clock Thursday at the Morris Country club, Morris, for its members. Mrs. Carl McElvain and Mrs. Phillip Collins are co-chairmen.

Scouts to Get Awards at Bean Dinner Tuesday

Presentation of awards and investiture rites for new scouts are to be held at the annual bean dinner meeting of Boy Scout troop 595 at the South Shore Community church, 7401 Yates avenue, at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday. A series of skits depicting activities of the year will be staged by the scouts. Motion pictures of camp life will be shown.

Musical Winners

Miss Carol Kane.

James McEnery.

A senior in the South Shore High school and a soloist from Rockefeller chapel won honors in the Greater South Side Four Arts league contest held recently. Miss Carol Kane, 17 year old high school student, who lives at 7718 Marquette avenue, and James McEnery, 6636 Yale avenue, were selected as the outstanding participants in the student contest. More than 100 artists entered.

Miss Kane, a pianist, is a student of Miss Ivy Berry Perkins at the American Conservatory of Music. McEnery, a baritone, is employed by the United States customs service.

Joining with Fort Dearborn members will be members of the Fox Valley Hiking club of Aurora.

SOUTH SHORE IS PRAISED FOR AID IN SAVING FATS

Housewives Sell Grease to Use in Explosives.

Residents of the South Shore area were congratulated last week by Mrs. Walter Kelly, area chairman of the Women's committee on conservation, for their aid in conservation of fats and greases. At the same time Mrs. Kelly commended a committee headed by Mrs. Martin Hilby, 7324 Phillips avenue, South Shore district chairman, for activity in the conservation program.

Conducting a survey of meat markets in the area, the committee found that 99 per cent were coöperating in the conservation program. The committee members also have addressed numerous women's groups, zone and block groups and other organizations in efforts to stress the importance of collecting fats and greases from the kitchens.

Committee Members Active.

Members of the committee taking part in the program with Mrs. Hilby include Mrs. Robert Nathan, Mrs. D. W. Lehrer, Mrs. Ronald Campbell, Mrs. Warren Wehlau, Mrs. Buell Patterson, Mrs. Louis Egan, Mrs. Paul Baumgart, and Mrs. Melvin Haupt.

Eighty thousand pounds of kitchen fats and greases have been collected from home makers thruout Chicago since the program started, Mrs. Kelly announced. The program has a two fold purpose, she said, first, to make available heretofore unused sources of glycerin for manufacture of explosives, and second, to forestall the possible rationing of kitchen and cooking fats. Sixty-five pounds of explosive can be manufactured from the glycerin extracted from every 100 pounds of used cooking grease, Mrs. Kelly said.

Four Steps Are Listed.

In urging 100 per cent coöperation in the plan by South Shore area residents Mrs. Kelly listed four steps in securing the fats and having them ready for use: [1] The housewife heats and strains the grease and stores it in jars or cans; [2] When she has a pound or more she sells it to her neighborhood meat dealer who pays her the prevailing market rate; [3] The grease is picked up from the meat dealer by a rendering company which [4] renders it, removes the glycerin, and turns over the remainder to a soap company which uses it in the manufacture of various consumer products.

Friml and Herbert Songs on Northerners' Program

Melodies by Rudolf Friml and Victor Herbert will highlight the Northerners concert on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday. This program features the music of the male ootet and string ensemble and the songs of Lois Wallner.

Miss Wallner will sing "Some Day" from Friml's "Vagabond King." The male octet will be heard in "On Parade," by Herbert. They will also sing a medley consisting of "Put, Put, Put," "Me and Melinda," the currently popular "Sleepy Lagoon," and "Last Call for Love."

FM IS VIEWED AS A POST-WAR HOPE OF RADIO

Proving Potent Weapon During Conflict.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Frequency modulation, that new technique in radio providing crystal clear réception without static, appears to be frozen clear and solid as a skating rink for the duration of the war. Priorities and scarcities will keep iit operating at the present level until victory is won.

Because of the war the predictions that FM would sweep the country have not been entirely realized. Still since Jan. 1, 1941, the total number of FM receivers in the United States has grown from 15,000 to around 400,000 sets.

W59C, W-G-N's sister FM station, will round out eight months on the air this week. There are two other FM stations, W51C, the pioneer FM station in Chicago, and W67C. These three stations have brought thousands of listeners in the Chicago area new thrills in broadcasting—particularly in music. Some thirty other stations thruout the country are bringing similar radio thrills to other audiences.

Potent Weapon of War.

While no details can be given, FM is proving to be a potent weapon of war. Maj. Edwin Armstrong, who developed the technique, has turned over all his patents to the war department, and they are being put to wide use. There are reports that FM technique is proving vastly superior to the old style amplitude modulation [AM]technique in many types of war communications.

FM pioneers are predicting that the circumstance of war will make it infinitely easier for frequency modulation to become the dominant type of broadcast service in urban areas after the conflict.

Since the manufacture of all radio sets for civilian use has been ended for the duration, manufacturers will be able to start with a clean slate after the war. The buying public, finding their pre-war sets obsolete after years of hard usage, may be ready to purchase new receivers in great quantities. Many experts believe that post-war radio sets will be uniformly equipped with FM.

Cheaper Sets Expected.

In their mass construction of war equipment manufacturers are discovering many improvements that they can put to apt use in peace time which will make possible the building of cheaper FM sets.

John R. Latham, executive of the American network, FM chain, forecasts that FM will become a major industry in the days following the war, offering employment for many technicians and artists who will be thrown back into civilian life. Latham expects FM to be the force that will revitalize the post-war radio industry.

OFFER MELTING POT PAGEANT ON WBBM TODAY

A pageant of Chicago's foreign language and minority groups and their contributions to the nation's war effort will be featured by WBBM on a special "I Am an American" broadcast today. A narrator will discuss with representatives of seven American communities how they are mobilizing their manpower, money, and morale behind the united nations' drive over WBBM at 10:05 a. m. today.

ANDOR FOLDES, MISS BRANCATO ON MUSIC HALL

Two young concert artists, Andor Foldes, pianist, and Rosemarie Brancato, soprano, will be soloists with the all-string orchestra to be conducted by Erno Rapee during the Radio City Music Hall on the Air at 11:30 a. m. today over WCFL-Blue. Foldes, Hungarian artist who made his American debut on the Music Hall of the Air will be heard in the Second and Third Movements of Schumann's only piano quintet.

DONALD NELSON, GEN. SOMERVELL TALK TOMORROW

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, and Lieut.-Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of the army services supply, will be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual network in a broadcast from the engineers' dinner in Washington, D. C., at 7 p. m. tomorrow. They will discuss "The Engineer's Job in War Production."

Rev. Clark J. Wood on Chicagoland Church Hour

The Rev. Clark J. Wood, assistant pastor of Chicago Temple, will be preacher on the Chicagoland Church hour on W-G-N at 9 a. m. today. The church hour is broadcast from the Chicago Temple thruout May. Next Sunday the Rev. Dr. C. A. Bloomquist, district superintendent of the southern district of the Methodist churc, will be preacher. He will be followed on May 31 by the Rev. Dr. Iver M. Johnson, pastor of Chicago Temple.

Jan Peerce to Be Guest on Kostelanetz Program

Jan Peerce, Metropolitan Opera tenor, will make a guest appearance with Andre Kostelanetz's orchestra and Violinist Albert Spalding over WBBM-CBS at 3:30 o'clock today. Peerce will sing "Softly As in a Morning Sunrise," by Romberg, and Kremser's "Prayer of Thanksgiving."

Spirit of '42

Kate Smith sings favorite songs of the armed forces on the Spirit of '42 aired over WBBM at 1:30 p. m. Sundays. The United States Marine band will be featured on the program today.

DEDICATE CBS LATIN AMERICAN CHAIN TUESDAY

Notables in the realm of entertainment and diplomacy will be presented in a special radio program dedicating CBS' new network of the Americas next Tuesday evening. The gala show will be broadcast over the CBS network as well as to 76 stations in the Latin American chain.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, President Somoza of Nicaragua, and heads of other neighbor republics are to speak.

Operatic headliners will include Bidu Sayao, Brazilian soprano; Lauritz Melchoir, tenor who specializes in heroic rôles, and Robert Weede, baritone.

Rita Hayworth, Dick Powell, Jinx Falkenburg, and Melvyn Douglas of the movies also will be heard.

Staff talent of the CBS network is to contribute its share, with the Columbia Broadcasting Symphony, directed by Howard Barlow; the Orquesta Panamericana, under the baton of Alfredo Antonini; Juan Arvizu, Latin American singer; Olga Coelho, Brazil's officially decreed representative of its own music; Eva Garza, colorful Mexican singer, and the Charro Gil trio, guitar and song ensemble.

FLY WILL JOIN IN ROUND TABLE PROGRAM TODAY

Problems and responsibilities of American broadcasters in wartime will be the subject of the University of Chicago round table discussion at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ and NBC. James Lawrence Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications commission, will participate.

Appearing on the round table program with Commissioner Fly will be William Benton, vice president of the University of Chicago, and Harold D. Lasswell, director of war communications research for the Library of Congress and former professor of political science at the University of Chicago.

The round table will describe the difficulties of broadcasting under war conditions and appraise its contribution to morale.

BAGGIORE SINGS ON MUSIC THAT ENDURES HOUR

Attilio Baggiore will be guest soloist on Music That Endures, to be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow. The program features the music of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the W-G-N chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Baggiore will sing "O Paradiso" from "L'Africaine," by Meyerbeer. He will be heard with the chorus and orchestra in "The Rosary," by Nevin.

The orchestra will play Dvorak's "Slavonic Dance No. 8," the third movement from Brahms' "Symphony No. 4," and "Bacchanale" from "Samson and Delilah," by Saint-Saëns. They also will accompany the chorus in "Joy of the Hunters" from "Der Freischutz," by Von Weber.

★ CASE HISTORIES IN RETAILING ★

A South Side beverage retailer wanted more new accounts. Following one single-column advertisment in the South Side Metropolitan section of the Chicago Sunday Tribune, this neighborhood merchant was able to open 15 new accounts with customers as far away as Calumet City.

Other case histories, many based on the experiences of merchants right in your own line, are yours for the asking. It costs you nothing to find out why 726 neighborhood merchants last year used the Sunday Tribune's low-cost advertising plan for retailers. For greater sales and profits, call SUPerior 0100 tomorrow and ask for Metropolitan section advertising.

PRESENT 2 MORE SONG DRAMAS ON 'MELODY' HOUR

Story of Sailor's Last Tune to Be Told.

The story of an American sailor who was lost at sea in the early weeks of the war will be told on "America Loves a Melody" over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Saturday evening.

The story will be dramatized from one of the two price winning letters picked for dramatic song spots on the program. Marion Claire, soprano star of the melody hour, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, will climax the dramatization singing Schubert's "Serenade," the song the sailor sang for his parents just before leaving for sea.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Bruce Foote, baritone, will be featured with Miss Claire and Mr. Baggiore in other selections during the program.

Miss Claire also will sing selections from "H. M. S. Pinafore" with Baggiore, Foote, and the chorus, selections from Bizet's "Carmen" with Foote, and Romero's "Cielito Linda."

The other musical-drama story will feature Bruce Foote in Carrie Jacobs Bond's "I Love You Truly." Two dramatic song spots are selected each week from the hundreds of letters submitted telling stories behind listeners' favorite songs.

Other features of the program will be Braga's "Angels Serenade," sung by Baggiore; "March of the Grenadiers" by Foote and the chorus, "Chimes of Spring" by Lincke presented by the orchestra and chorus, and Herbert's "Indian Summer" by the orchestra.

The orchestra will be under the direction of Henry Weber, W-G-N's musical director, and the chorus will be led by Robert Trendler.

SALUTE CALUMET HIGH SCHOOL ON 'CITIZENS' SHOW

Glenn C. Worst, principal at Calumet High school, will be heard during the broadcast of Citizens of Tomorrow, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S half hour radio program for the youth of America, to be aired at 10:30 a. m. today on W-G-N. Calumet will be the honored school.

The Calumet High mixed chorus, directed by Mrs. Clara Harms, will sing two numbers, "Deep River" and "A Violin Is Singing." Another student's name will be added to the program's honor roll by Philip Maxwell, member of The Tribune editorial staff and master of ceremonies of the broadcast. Maxwell will interview Cadet Col. Wendell Zimmers, who is the top ranking cadet among Chicago's 10,000 ROTC lads.

Harold Turner will accompany the chorus and student body in their school song. Morrison Wood produces the program. Vern Hansen is the announcer.

HENRY HOOPLE'S STOOGE ELMER JOINS MILITIA

Elmer [the Swede] Swenson, garrulous stooge for Henry Hoople, conductor of W-G-N's Hoople hour, has entered military life and will report his progress every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evening at 7:15 o'clock.

Elmer will describe his progress as a private "no class" in the Illinois Reserve Militia. The Swede, Hoople's favorite fictional character, volunteered for the home guard and has attended his first military drill.

Hoople's portrayal of Elmer has been seen in the Universal picture, "Junior G-Men" with the Dead End Kids, as well as numerous comedy shorts. On the Hoople hour, Elmer is billed as the record turner and he spends his time breaking into conversations between Hoople and announcer Jack Brickhouse.

DELTON, MICH., CHILDREN BOOST KEEP FIT CORPS

Some of the most loyal listeners of Capt. Paul Fogarty's Keep Fit corps, heard on W-G-N at 9 o'clock each morning, Monday thru Friday, are school children in Delton, Mich.

A few weeks ago when Capt. Paul missed a broadcast the 16 pupils of the Burroughs district school, near Delton, became quite worried and hastily dispatched a letter to W-G-N. But their fears were allayed the following morning when Capt. Paul greeted them with his familiar "Attention!"

The students have been performing their calisthenics faithfully. Mrs. Clayton Staffen, 4-H leader in the Delton community, coaches the students as they work with Fogarty.

JEWS OBSERVE FEAST OF WEEKS ON SOUTH SIDE

Celebration Will Start Thursday Night.

The salient event in Jewish religious life this week is the celebration of Shabuot [the Feast of Weeks] commemorating the proclamation of the Ten Commandments on Mount Sinai. Services in all synagogues will begin Thursday evening and will continue until Saturday.

Shabuot services at the South Side Hebrew congregation, 74th street and Chappel avenue, will be held at 8:30 a. m. and 7:25 p. m. Friday.

South Side B'nai B'rith auxiliary will present "Leave It to Lucy," a three act comedy, this evening at the Emil Hirsch center, 4622 South Park way. Proceeds will be turned over to the Red Cross. Leading rôles will be taken by May Nusbaum, Harry Chapman, Thais Graff, Myron Herzog, and Louis Ascher. Viola Mandel is directing the production.

The school of Temple Isaiah Israel, 1100 Hyde Park boulevard, will conduct graduation exercises at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the temple. Certificates will be awarded to those who have completed a 12 year course of study. A flower service in recognition of "I Am an American" day also will be held.

A flag and flag pole will be dedicated at the Rodfei Zedek synagogue, 1022 East 54th place, by the Jewish War Veterans today. A military parade, beginning at Drexel square, will precede the dedication. At 6:30 o'clock this evening a dinner will be held at the Windermere hotel, 1642 East 56th street.

AIR JEWISH VET SERVICES OVER W-G-N-MUTUAL

Memorial services of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States will be broadcast exclusively by W-G-N and the Mutual network from Temple Emanu-El in New York City, from 11 to 11:30 a. m. today. United States Sen. Scott Lucas of Illinois, a World war veteran, will speak.

The program will include a brief talk by Sergt. Ezra Stone, radio actor, and an address by Benjamin Kaufman, national commander of the Jewish War Veterans and holder of the congressional medal. Music for the broadcast will be supplied by the Temple Emanu-El.

LEADERS IN ROTC AT BOWEN HIGH RECEIVE MEDALS

Regiment Lines Up for Federal Inspection.

Led by Cadet Lieut. Col. A. Sypnieski, Bowen High school's ROTC regiment last week held its annual federal inspection and awarding of medals to outstanding cadets. During the ceremonies Chicago Tribune medals were awarded to seven students who showed superior ability as leaders, scholars, and cadets.

Bowen also is eligible for one of two color stands presented annually by THE TRIBUNE to the two best among 28 units in the city. These will be awarded prior to the grand ROTC review down Michigan avenue May 27.

Morrison Makes Awards.

War department medals were distributed by Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for Chicago high schools.

Recipients were Capt. Joseph Kozlowski, officer's efficiency; Sergt. Richard Budnick, noncoms efficiency; Cadet James Tipfer, recruiting; Sergt. Richard Chochul and Cadet Donald Stack, neatness.

Tribune Medals to Seven.

Tribune medals were presented to Second Lieut. Edward Sadowski, Sergt. Irving Hyman, Second Lieut. Norbert Wysocki, Cadets Stanley Wiencek, Elmer Woefel, Collins Goins, and Walter Martin.

The Spanish War Veterans auxiliary award went to First Lieut. Joseph Yaversky and the American Legion auxiliary medal to Capt. Adolph Spirkaucis. Sergt. George Cvejanovich received the Veterans of Foreign Wars medal, and Capt. Adolph Spirkaucis the American Legion [Bourke-O'Malley post] award.

CHICAGOLAND MUSIC FESTIVAL TO BE BROADCAST

Broadcasting arrangements are being made by W-G-N for the 13th annual Chicagoland Music Festival, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., which will be held Saturday night, Aug. 15, at Soldiers' field.

Nearly 100,000 persons are expected to attend this show and a cast of 10,000 singers and musicians from 30 states and Canada is being assembled. This year's program will be dedicated to the armed forces of the United States.

Last year the festival reached a radio audience of millions on W-G-N and the Mutual network when producer Lou Jackobson presented the highlights of the midwest's largest musical spectacle.

FEDERAL SALES TAX, TOPIC OF FORUM OF AIR

The federal sales tax question will be discussed on The American Forum of the Air over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7 to 7:45 o'clock tonight. The topic will be "Shall Congress Enact a Federal Sales tax?"

Taking the affirmative side will be Kenneth C. Richmond and Congressman Wesley Disney, of Oklahoma, member of the house ways and means committee.

The negative side will be led by Congressman Jerry Voorhis of California, a member of the public lands and rivers and harbors committee of the house, and Bernard Knollenberg, librarian of Yale university and tax adviser to the treasury department. Theodore Granik is moderator.

LIFEGUARD JOBS STILL FOR MEN, IS PARK DECREE

Army Depletes Ranks, but Girls Must Wait.

Altho the war has depleted the ranks of prospective lifeguards needed at the park district's 10 beaches and 38 park pools, girl guards are not as yet in demand.

Announcing that girls would not be accepted for any of the 260 jobs, commissioners said they have lowered the age limit of applicants, however, from 18 to 17 years.

Applicants without the required American Red Cross senior life saving certificate, standard first aid cards, or their equivalent, may enroll in a special training course to be opened tomorrow evening at five pools in the city.

Qualifying Tests in June.

Qualifying tests will be held June 8 thru June 18 at Washington park pool. Before assignments are made to beaches and pools opening July 1 successful candidates will be put thru a strenuous two week drill in the district lifeguard training school.

Applicants must be at least 5 feet 6 inches tall, weigh at least 150 pounds, and have normal eyesight and hearing. Each must be a citizen.

Training Pools Designated.

The special training course will be held evenings from 6:30 to 10:30 o'clock at the following pools: Ridge park, 96th street and Longwood drive; La Follette park, Hirsch street and Laramie avenue; Portage park, Central avenue and Irving Park road; Blackhawk park, Belden and Lavergne avenues, and Independence park, 3945 North Springfield avenue.

Applications for the qualifying tests must be made not later than June 4. Blanks may be obtained at Burnham, Lincoln, Washington, and Garfield park administration buildings or by writing to the Burnham park administration building, 425 East 14th boulevard.

TWO CHICAGOANS MEET AND WED IN FAR AWAY CITY

Sometimes it is necessary to go 2,500 miles to meet the girl from your own neighborhood. Take the case of Pancho Scanlan, a Chicago boy who lived at 8201 South Green street with his father, Frank Scanlan. A graduate of the University of Chicago and a teacher of Spanish at Wendell Phillips High school in 1934, he decided to journey to Mexico City to attend a summer session of the National university there.

Pancho Scanlan.

Mrs. Scanlan.
[Marshall photo.]

Soon after his arrival he was attracted to a comely, young blonde, who was also studying at the Mexican university.

The summer's friendship led to the couple's marriage—a romantic end to a romantic experience. But the surprising thing was the identity of the young lady. She was Miriam Lunney and she lived in Chicago also—at 7020 Woodlawn avenue, in the same section of the city where young Scanlan had grown up.

Today Scanlan and the girl he met in Mexico City reside at 6910 Cornell avenue. Monday evenings he hurries over to the directors' chambers of the Illinois Central railroad where he teaches Spanish to a group of employés.

Wed in Indiana

The marriage of Miss Eileen Berkley to Sebert H. Stewart of East Chicago was announced recently by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edward Berkley, 6729 Parnell avenue. The ceremony took place at the bridegroom's home in East Chicago. Mrs. Stewart met her husband when she was singing with the musical trio, "The Three Strings." He was the guitarist in the group.

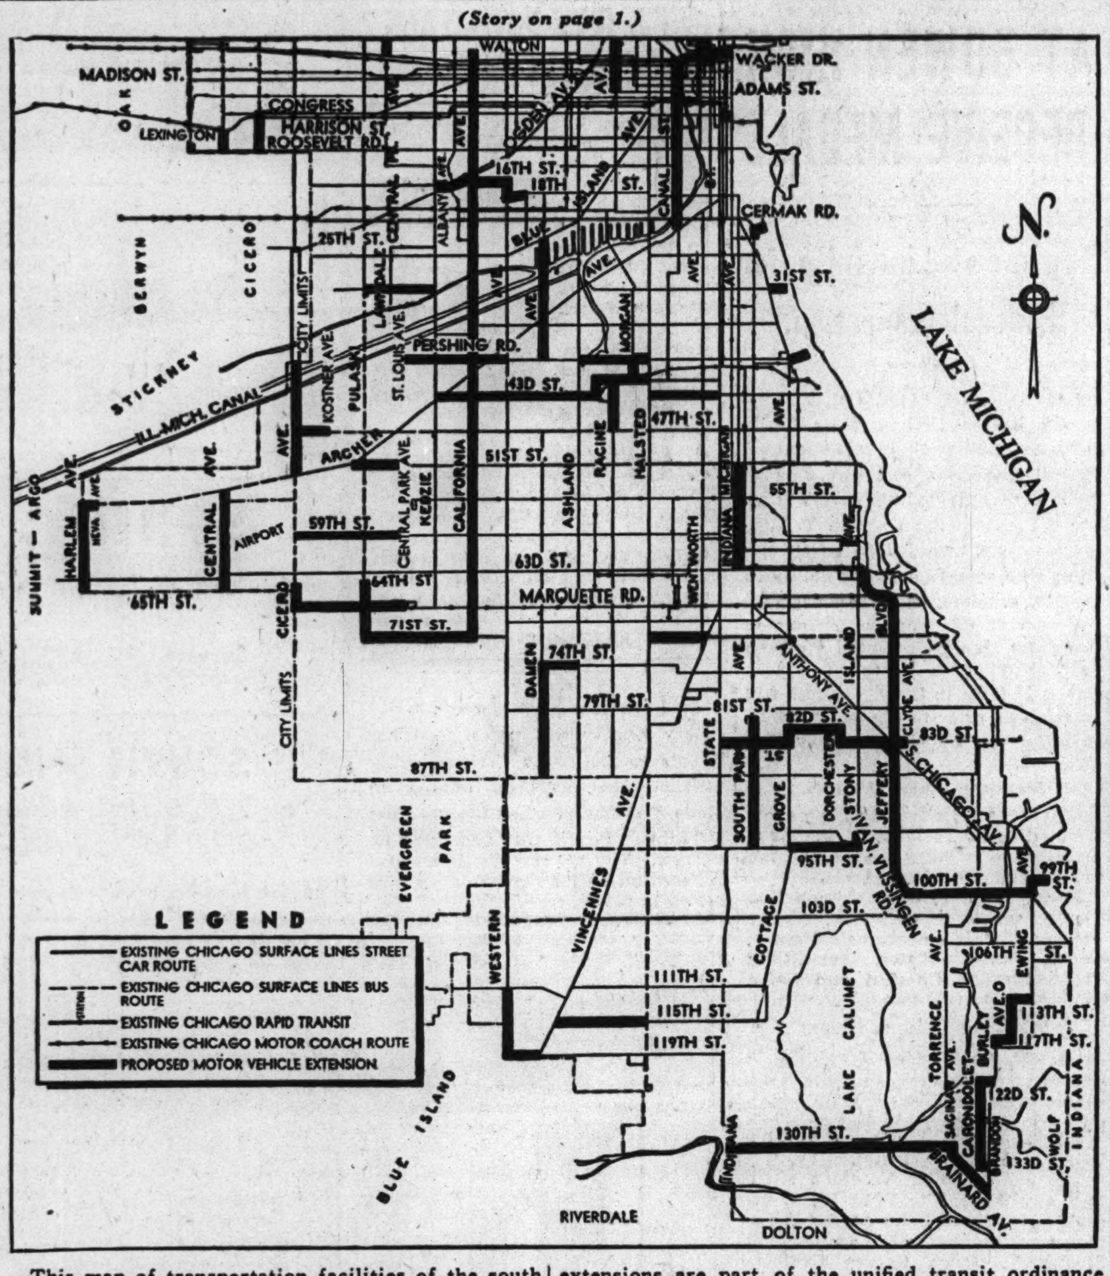
(Story on page 1.)



This map of transportation facilities of the south side has proposed bus extensions in heavy lines. The extensions are part of the unified transit ordinance which is to be voted on by Chicagoans on June 1.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 18

Watch the lawn, especially one made recently, that it does not dry out. When watering new, short grass use a fine spray or avoid watering with a heavy stream. Young grass is weak and unable to stand very rough treatment. If the lawn is still to be made, sow about 10 per cent English rye with the regular lawn seed. This grows rapidly, furnishes a good green cover, and offers shade for the grass.

Frequently timothy or oats are used for the purpose. These are annual grasses and die out later on. It takes about three years to establish a good blue grass lawn and during that period all attention must be made that it is kept in luxuriant growth, well supplied with plant food and water.

In many parts of the city the home gardener is prone to keep the soil too high with the result that water runs off too rapidly. Grade from the walk to the curb in a gently even manner and the soil will not flow away or dry out.

Tuesday, May 19

The habit of hilling up hedges and shrubs should be avoided; it looks bad and usually the borders are edged with a deep ditch or depression when it should be only slightly raised above the lawn, if raised at all. It also is noted that many shrubs are badly in need of pruning and they have grown so high they need cutting back to obtain young, fast growing, vigorous, and healthy wood from which good foliage and abundant flowers can be expected.

Prune early flowering shrubs, like the forsythia and bridal wreath, after flowering. The flowers are borne on wood made the previous year and if pruned when dormant or in winter the buds are removed. Some shrubs produce their flowers on young wood made the same season, such as the hydrangea and shoestring plant or Hibiscus syriacus. Dead wood can be removed at any time.

Do not plant a low growing or dwarf shrub where a tall one should go and do not plant tall plants where dwarf ones should be used. The use of shrubs on narrow streets should be discontinued. However, no plants will develop properly unless the soil is reasonably good. Hence the first consideration should be to obtain a good, fertile loam.

Wednesday, May 20

The activities of gardeners is at high stage at this time. The following list of plants to be grown in various city areas is recommended by the advisory staff of the Chicago metropolitan area:

Grow these in smoky area: Carrots, kale, turnips, beets, collards, Swiss chard, mustard greens, leaf or cos lettuce, radishes, onions from sets, endive, and parsley.

Grow these and the above in outlying areas: Tomatoes, lima beans, cabbage [especially Savoy cabbage], parsnips, bush beans or pole beans, peas, peppers, spinach, kohlrabi and salsify, or oyster plant.

In addition to the above grow these in large gardens where the conditions are favorable: Winter squash, sweet corn, bush squash, okra, cucumbers, mature onions from sets or seeds, celery, the green varieties and blight resistant, and eggplant.

Thursday, May 21

Many excellent varieties of garden plants are available. Most of those listed in catalogs are dependable, they have been thoroly tested before listings, and usually the gardener will grow the kind he likes best for his own use.

The chief thing is to get the work done at the right time. See that the ground is well prepared and do not wait until it dries out before planting. Make straight rows which are best running north and south. Sow small seeds in shallow rows and do not sow too thickly. The average width between rows is about 12 inches.

When the seedlings appear above ground careful hoeing or cultivating between rows should begin. A complete plant food can be applied by scattering it along both sides of the rows and carefully hoeing it into the soil.

Friday, May 22

When planting corn for home use sow several short rows rather than in a long, single row. This is to insure adequate pollination. Plant tall crops in a manner that they will not shade low-growing crops. Stake tomatoes when grown on small areas because every foot of space must be used.

Do not brush against bean plants when they are wet or covered with dew or disease may develop. Get a good sprayer and recommended spraying materials and begin using them at the very first sign of insects, and adopt a regular spraying program.

Hoe regularly and especially following a rain or the ground may pack and rapid evaporation occur. Gather all crops when in their prime. Plant flowers in the small garden rather than fuss with vegetables.

Saturday, May 23

Good vegetable land will produce fine flowers, so you should give careful consideration to soil preparation. What to grow will depend on what you want to grow, altho it is wise to limit the number of varieties. Practically all varities can be grown in the good soil and atmospheric conditions that prevail in most suburban districts, but in the city a wide variety of conditions exist which makes the selection of plant materials of first importance.

The renter can have a colorful flower garden by using only annuals. He doesn't need a coldframe. No matter what is sown the gardener should never neglect to thin the seedlings; this applies to vegetables as well. Space most annuals about nine inches apart. Begin thinning when the plants are small.

Use morning glories, hyacinth beans, scarlet runner, moonvine, cobaea or cathedral bells, or any others that appeal. The four o'clocks, whether liked or not, is one of the kinds that will grow.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

Service Tuesday Evening Honors Episcopal Acolytes

The annual service for acolytes of Chicago and vicinity will be held at St. Luke's Episcopal church, Lee and Hinman avenues, Evanston, Tuesday evening. The Rev. J. Rodger McColl, rector of Wilmette, a former acolyte of St. Martin's parish in Austin, will be the preacher. Bishop Wallace E. Conkling will pontificate.

REMODELING IS STILL POSSIBLE IN MANY CASES

Creating Extra Room Aid to Housing Problem.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Remodeling jobs which do not require critical materials can aid housing shortages by creation of extra rooms and stimulate home morale by the preservation of what we have. House maintainance, when necessary, is a defense against the arch thieves of depreciation and obsolescence, and every sturdy little home is a worthwhile unit in the nation's great housing investment.

There are many things we can do for our homes and at the same time gear our efforts to economic pressure and keep in mind the necessary repairs and renewals to keep our houses sound as a dollar.

Floors are an important item in home maintainance, and if a floor is badly worn it can be replaced, or a new factory finished floor can be laid over it. Or a material such as linoleum can appear on the home front, in a hallway or child's room, or in many different rooms.

Plenty of Flooring Available.

In most instances floors can be repaired or renewed without use of materials on the critical list.

Right now hundreds of thousands of feet of factory stained and finished hardwood flooring is meeting the needs of the present market. It is fitting itself into the great housing program as well as into individual, already built homes which need floor replacement.

This type of flooring is available in oak, beech, and maple. Flooring also can be had in wood mosaic. Much of this flooring comes from the factory waxed and polished. Some of it has slight bevels to give it a distinctive effect and make not only for easier installation but for a more perfect appearance in the room.

One type of this prefinished flooring has its oak flooring finished in medium shade, and its maple and beech finished natural. The finish used penetrates and seals the pores of the wood and is a big help in keeping out dust and grime. In addition to this seal finish, it is filled, waxed, and buffed.

Flooring also can be laid over an existing floor in a home and finished in excellent fashion by standard on the job methods. Hard maple is a flooring available in various sizes and grades, and can be had in strips or blocks to form different patterns.

Another point of interest in modern maple flooring is the fact that it is available in "natural" shades as well as in a wide range of possible color finishes to match practically any decorative scheme.

Several Shades of Color.

One can finish a hard maple floor in shades of blue or green, ebony, and early American, or brown. Long wearing, hard maple has been called one of the toughest of floorings as well as one of the softest in its beauty, and it invariably provides a lovely base for color harmony. More over, it is easy to clean and is a floor of definite sanitation, since its surface is very smooth and affords no lodging place for germs and dust.

In the capture of an extra room in the basement, paint with proper materials and preparation is an extremely satisfactory and inexpensive way of finishing a floor. There also are dyes for concrete floors available now which can be depended on for durability and are attractive.

There also are linoleums especially manufactured for use in basement game rooms. Asphalt tile also is definitely in the picture as a flooring in an "extra" basement living room, game, or recreation room.

Asphalt tile is a waterproof and handsome flooring that can be depended on to withstand hard traffic, and effective patterns can be obtained by alternating dark and light tiles.

TRANSIT MERGER TO AID WEST SIDE

CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOLS NAME SENIOR STARS

Classmates to Select Own Spokesman.

BY MAURINE MYERS.

What is a representative student? Faculties in eight west side and suburban Catholic high schools sought to answer that question last week, when they nominated the 10 outstanding seniors from each graduating class. There were staff members of the school paper, musicians, athletes, school sodality members, honor students, and May queens on the lists.

This week seniors in each of the eight high schools will elect the topnotch student from the list of 10 nominated by the faculty. On May 31 THE TRIBUNE will carry interviews with these outstanding boys and girls, who will have an opportunity to express their views on what the future holds for this year's graduates.

Three girls' high schools are included in those whose faculties named their 10 outstanding seniors. They are Trinity in River Forest, Providence at 119 South Central Park avenue, and St. Mary's at 1031 South Hoyne avenue. Four of the schools are for boys, St. Philip at 3141 Jackson boulevard, St. Patrick academy, 2300 Washington boulevard; St. Ignatius, 1076 Roosevelt road, and St. Mel, an accredited RATC school, at Madison street and Kildare avenue. The sixth Immaculate Conception High school is located in Elmhurst. The schools, and their representative students, are as follows:

A West Suburban Club of Eight Couples Marks 10th Year of Fun

Eight couples who have formed a card club in Berwyn and Cicero for the last 10 years can testify that it's fun to stay home. They meet every other week in the basement recreation rooms of the members for an evening of bridge, pinochle, and pingpong. Highlight of every meeting is the buffet supper, when each hostess serves her specialty. Mrs. Charles Recka, 6926 West 30th street, Berwyn, is carving her baked ham, while S. J. Sweeney, 1910 Elmwood avenue, Berwyn, holds rye bread in readiness.

Several years after their wives formed a bridge club, the men decided to follow suit. Indulging in a session of pinochle are (left to right) E. J. Recka, 2709 Cuyler avenue, Berwyn; J. M. O'Grady, 2123 South 60th court, Cicero; James Ruzicka, 2219 South Christiana avenue, Chicago, and Charles Rezabeck, 1617 Elmwood avenue, Berwyn. O'Grady is the practical joker of the crowd, and the other men must beware of his tricks.

Men in the club have learned to swing a mean pingpong paddle. They whip up an appetite for supper by taking part in a stiff game. Partners in a game are J. E. Recka and George Smejkel, a member of the Cicero fire department.

Focal point in the Charles Reckas' basement recreation room is their juke box. It is really a club project, for the members chipped in to buy it as a housewarming gift when the Reckas bought their home several years ago. Mrs. J. M. O'Grady, mother of club members Mrs. Charles Recka and Mrs. F. T. Flynn, comes along to meetings "just for the ride." She doesn't play bridge, but tends the juke box and listens to the women chatter. Occasionally she interrupts with a cryptic remark, "Is this a bridge club or isn't it?"

Host Charles Recka gets the party off to a good start for each arriving guest. Here he is welcoming Mr. and Mrs. John Rossberg, 1342 Cuyler avenue, Berwyn.

CONCERT TO AID USO WEDNESDAY IN WEST SUBURB

As a benefit for the USO, the Symphony Woods orchestra of Western Springs, directed by Miss Lela Hanmer, and the Beverly Hills Symphony orchestra, directed by Dr. Ernest Toy, will combine for a concert Wednesday night in the McClure school at Western Springs.

A feature will be piano solos by the six winners in the competition recently conducted by the Western Springs Music club. The six are Barbara Sue Bestler, La Grange; Gail Link Jr., La Grange; Freddie Giesner, Hinsdale; Dorothy Lundgren, La Grange; Ann Holter, Hinsdale, and Doralee Clowes, Hinsdale.

Miss Hanmer has been active in providing entertainers for the USO.

Mothers of Spalding High Students to Elect Staff

Spalding High School Mothers' club will meet in monthly session at 1 o'clock Tuesday in the school auditorium, 2216 Hirsch street. Mrs. R. C. Schmoldt, president, will open the session, at which officers will be elected.

JACK AND JILL PLAYERS OFFER DRAMA FRIDAY

A group of west siders will appear in the production of "Robin Hood and the Three Kings," to be given by the Jack and Jill players at the McKinley park fieldhouse, 39th street and Western avenue, Friday evening. Included in the cast are Richard Toerne, 238 North Pine avenue; Cleveland Towne, 5836 Superior street; Jack Picchiett, 20 North Menard avenue; Emmett O'Neal, 130 North Menard avenue; Louis Sauer, 125 North Marion avenue, Oak Park; Joe Fogarty, 801 South Humphrey avenue, Oak Park; Diane Fennessey, 1027 North Elmwood avenue, Oak Park; and Paul Belvedere, 1646 Winonah avenue, Berwyn.

Moreland Lutheran Choir in St. Olaf Music Festival

The choir of the Moreland Lutheran church, Lotus avenue and Huron street, is in Northfield, Minn., today to take part in the St. Olaf Music festival, an annual event. A chorus of 2,000 voices will give a concert there this afternoon. The Moreland choir, directed by Edward Nelson, will appear in a solo group.

Oriana A Cappella Choir Giving Concert Tuesday

The annual spring concert of the Oriana a cappella choir will be given Tuesday evening in the theater of the Chicago Women's club on 11th street. Paul Vernon is founder and conductor of the vested choir of 60 voices.

Mr. and Mrs. August T. Peterson, 742 North Hamlin avenue, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, with a dinner and reception given by their daughters, Mrs. Edward Swanson, Mrs. Ernest Johnson, and Mrs. John Berggren, at the Messiah Lutheran church parlors, 900 North Waller avenue. Among the large gathering of relatives and friends there were many who were present when they were married, including four of the wedding party. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson were married in the Evangelical Lutheran church in Woodhull, Ill., and came to Chicago in 1923. They have resided at their present address for the last 10 years.

JOHN AUGUST ROBERTS, park district chauffeur, and resident of Melrose Park, plans to retire Tuesday at the age of 65 after 35 years of continuous public service. Mr. Roberts started his career with the former Lincoln park district as foreman of the old Fullerton bridge across the lagoon. He was the first man to work on the present Lincoln park extension in 1908.

He drove the first car used by the park commissioners, and since 1925 has transported animals to and from the Lincoln park zoo. He was responsible for the trip from the airport of the baby orangutans, Banbi, and Pongo, for hauling leopards to Madison, Wis., and bringing back lions; and for rounding up deer and exchanging them for buffalo in Milwaukee. A time when all his ingenuity was required was when, on a day that suddenly turned hot, he was obliged to play first aid nurse to a truckload of fish he was bringing down from Paw Paw, Mich.

NEW FRANCHISE TO GO BEFORE VOTERS JUNE 1

Bus Extensions, New Cars Promised.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

Improved transportation for the west side thru bus extensions, substitutions of buses for present street car lines, and replacement of outmoded surface and elevated cars with modern equipment is planned under the city's traction unification ordinance to be voted on at a public referendum June 1.

The ordinance, passed by the city council June 19, 1941, requires the proposed unified transit company to install 715 miles of bus extensions and substitutions thruout the city in the next eight years. The program includes 249 miles of local bus extensions, 165 miles of express bus routes, and 301 miles of conversion from street car to bus operation.

The new company is required to undertake a 102 million dollar modernization program to equip the new routes, replace present equipment, and rehabilitate its entire system. Included in the program is the purchase within eight years of 850 trolley or gasoline buses, 950 streamlined street cars, 1,850 additional units, either street cars or buses, and 1,000 subway-elevated cars.

New Franchise Involved.

The traction ordinance grants a franchise to the prospective company which would operate the properties of the Chicago Surface Lines, the elevated lines and the 65 million dollar city owned subways. The new system will also have the right to acquire the properties of the Chicago Motor Coach company.

A map in this section shows the locations of bus extensions planned for the west side. Among the lines where substitution of buses for street cars is contemplated are Division street, 18th-16th street lines, Cicero avenue from Taylor street to Montrose avenue, and Damen avenue from Rosehill drive to the drainage canal. Express bus routes available to west siders would run in Central avenue from Roosevelt road to Foster avenue and in Western avenue from 111th street to Howard street.

Under the terms of the new ordinance, residents of the west side who travel into the loop by street car would be permitted to transfer to the subways in State and Dearborn streets g ing to the north and south sides for the payment of a single fare. At present, transfers in the loop district between surface and rapid transit routes are not permitted.

30 Million as Starter.

The obligation of the new company to carry out the 102 million dollar improvement program is limited to its ability to raise the money. The surface lines have on hand 30 million dollars which will be available as a starter. City officials predict that the remainder can be raised thru borrowing and withdrawals from future renewal funds to be accumulated from revenues.

The order in which the transit extensions and substitutions are to be made would be determined by a three man local transit commission appointed by the mayor with approval of the city council. This commission would have all auothrity over the new company that is now held by the Illinois Commerce commission, including jurisdiction over rates of fare, service standards, and changes of routes.

Establishment of the proposed united company is contingent on the outcome of the June 1 referendum and also on a vote by the securities holders of the surface and elevated lines now being taken. The 75,000 securities owners are balloting on a proposed financial merger and reorganization plan providing a new corporation to accept the franchise ordinance.

Altho the proposed modernization program is expected to be delayed by the war, setting up of the new company and its acceptance of the franchise will clear the way for starting the improvements as soon as circumstances permit.

ANNUAL CONTEST TO STRESS HOME MADE PLAY YARD

Those who build their own equipment will be given special consideration in this year's play yard contest of the Chicago Motor club which has for its purpose the elimination of one of the main causes of traffic accidents by keeping children from playing in the streets during the summer vacation months.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, said homemade equipment would receive the special consideration because in wartime available material had been curtailed. The contest, open to all residents of Cook county, will close Sept. 15. A grand prize of a complete outdoor gymnasium and sectional prizes are offered.

Entries may be made by calling at the motor club headquarters, by telephoning Franklin 1818, or by letter or postcard giving the entrant's name and address and the location of the playyard.

The Chicago public library and its branches is coöperating by providing entry blanks and making available books on playground construction.

LILACS SHARING WITH CITY'S SICK AGAIN SUCCESS

Volunteer Workers Aid in Sending Blooms.

The annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign again was successful this year in bringing cheer and beauty to the bedsides of the sick and shut-ins of the city's hospitals and institutions.

Sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, this year's lilac campaign marked the 14th year that blooms have been gathered thruout Chicagoland for distribution to the less fortunate people in the city.

Cheer 20,000 Patients.

This year more than 60,000 blooms flooded Chicago with a river of color and fragrance. The bouquets were delivered to more than 20,000 patients in 148 hospitals, orphanages, and old people's homes.

The work of gathering the flowers was supervised by chairmen of more than 81 garden clubs affiliated with the guild. Helping to pick and wrap the blooms were thousands of flower lovers, Boy and Girl Scouts, and school children.

Railroads Lend Aid.

The lilac bouquets were delivered freight free from local stations to city terminals by eight railroads. Railroads generously offering use of their baggage cars were the North Shore electric, Chicago and Milwaukee, Rock Island, Pennsylvania, Chicago and Northwestern, Illinois Central, Aurora and Elgin, and the Burlington.

Among voluntary workers thru whose efforts the bouquets were picked, wrapped, and delivered to railroad stations were:

FOUR WEST SIDE ROTC UNITS WILL HAVE INSPECTION

Outstanding Cadets to Be Presented Awards.

Army officers this week will inspect four west side high school ROTC units, distribute medals to outstanding cadets and rate each school to determine positions in the grand review down Michigan avenue May 27 as well as the winners of color stands awarded annually by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to the two best among 28 units in the city.

In addition to the war department medals, 67 cadets from Harrison, Crane Tech, Marshall, and Austin High schools also will receive awards distributed by the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Spanish War Veterans' posts, PTA groups, auxiliaries and THE TRIBUNE.

Inspection by Two Officers.

Inspecting the west side units as well as 24 others in Chicago totalling 11,000 cadets and comprising the largest junior brigade in the nation, will be Lieut. Col. R. K. Whitson, supervisor of ROTC at the University of Illinois and Lieut. Col. Roy T. Rouse, supervisor of ROTC at Michigan State college.

The Harrison unit will be inspected at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning on the school campus, 2850 West 24th street. In case of rain the review will be held at the 132d Infantry armory, 2653 Madison street.

Crane Tech and Marshall units will be inspected Wednesday at 9 and 1:15 o'clock respectively. Both inspections will be held at the 132d Infantry armory.

Review in Columbus Park.

At 1:15 o'clock Friday afternoon Austin will climax a year's drilling at a review to be held in Columbus park, Menard avenue and Jackson boulevard. In case of rain the inspection will be held in the school gym, 231 North Pine avenue.

Following are west side cadets who will receive medals this week.

The efficiency, neatness, recruiting, and marksmanship medals are presented by the war department.

Oak Parkers Win Safety Award

Warren F. Meyer (left), commander of Charles Roth post of the American Legion, congratulates Harold E. Theobald, safety officer, on the success of the post in being awarded first place in a national safe driving contest sponsored by the American Legion. During a six month period participating members of the post drove 343,455 miles without an accident and were given award cards signed by the national commander. Altho Charles Roth is Oak Park's youngest post, it is now largest in membership.

BAND OF CRANE YOUTHS JOIN IN UNFEIGNED SONG

Will Perform in Music Festival Tuesday.

A roomful of scuffling boys suddenly comes to order, as a brisk little man taps his baton sharply against the nearest chair. Solemnly the boys watch for his signal. As the baton makes the downbeat, 35 throats pour forth the dignified strains of "Bless the Lord, O My Soul," from the old Russian liturgy.

At the lift of the director's eyebrows, the 35 voices fade into nothingness, and, at an insistent gesture, swell again to a smashing crescendo. At the finish, the director smiles his approval, and suggests another number. As one voice, the lads then tear into the rollicking "Jolly Roger."

Meet After School.

The Crane Singers are in rehearsal—35 Crane Technical High school boys turning out for practice after school twice a week. The director is Lewys Thomas, who learned about music as a lad in Wales. The boys sing for the fun of singing, and their enjoyment of a melody is second only to Thomas' own pleasure.

The Singers are known to many a Chicago audience, for it is their group which appears often at conventions, club meetings, and other public gatherings. There are descendants of Russians, Czechos, French, Poles, Italians, Germans, and Bohemians in the little band—and every one of them loves to sing.

Wide Range of Music.

Perhaps it is the members of the quartet who "get around" the most—they are constantly in demand for programs, and offer a range of selections from Negro spirituals to Bach. Three curly haired young Italians and one stalwart Russian, they fairly bubble over with music and rhythm. They are Ulysses Carlini, 2111 Caton street; Anselm Saltarelli, 834 South Winchester avenue; Lawrence Marsala, 505 South Claremont avenue, and George Hominick, 2015 Division street. Playing their accompaniments is a fourth Italian lad, Louis Baldacci, 2832 Adams street, who also plays the accordion, and is a "straight S" student.

The Singers will perform Tuesday night, when all musical organizations at Crane High join to present their annual spring music festival. There will be numbers by the band, under direction of Capt. Raymond T. Butler, and by the chorus and orchestra, with Mr. Thomas conducting.

Concert in Bartholf Hall.

Tuesday evening's concert will begin at 8 o'clock in Bartholf hall, 2245 Jackson boulevard. The program will open with a group of numbers by the band, under Capt. Butler's direction. Clarinet soloist for one number will be Vernon Vernier, 3412 Adams street, accompanied by Mrs. Eleanor Vernier. Second part of the program will be by the chorus, with Mr. Thomas directing. This group will include numbers by the quartet, a violin solo by Berton Seigel, 3436 Lexington street, and a piano solo by Louis Baldacci.

Special presentation during the third portion of the program will be "Columbia Victorious." This will include "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory," sung by the chorus; selections from Walt Whitman read by Anthony Gaudio; "Then Shall the Eyes of the Blind Be Opened" by Handel, a recitative by Ulysses Carlini; and Thomas' "Song of Freedom" sung by the chorus. Final number will be selections from the operetta "New Moon," by the chorus and orchestra, with Joseph Faraone, 2722 Congress street, as soloist.

LEGION COUNCIL REVEALS PLANS FOR JULY 4 SHOW

Arthur E. Canty, commander of the Cook County council of the American Legion, announces that the Fourth of July committee of the council has opened its headquarters in the Morrison hotel for the promotion of the annual Fourth of July show at Soldiers' field. It is expected that a number of South American acts will be available for the circus feature. Because of the war, the fireworks display will be limited to non-explosive pieces but an elaborate ground display has been contracted for.

MUSICAL EVENTS ON SCHEDULE AT HERZL COLLEGE

Musicians at Herzl Junior college, 3711 Douglas boulevard, will find themselves with full calendars for this week. The girls' glee club will sing this evening in the final concert of the season at Chicago temple, 33 North Clark street, and on Wednesday the school will hold its spring musical festival.

The Sunday evening appearance of the glee club, under direction of Robert Gomer Jones, will feature solos by Annette Shier, 3151 15th street; Hadassah Linderman, 1816 South Millard avenue, and Mazie Adler, 1610 South Ridgeway avenue. George Rico, 2227 Ogden avenue, will be accompanist for the concert.

List Festival Soloists.

The spring music festival to be held Wednesday in the college auditorium, will feature numbers by both vocalists and instrumentalists. Soloists will include Miss Linderman, Miss Shier, Miss Adler, Anita Traynor, 3137 Washington boulevard, and Genevieve Lewitz, 612 Patterson avenue.

Guest soloist for the concert will be Miss Henrietta Chase, soprano with the Chicago Opera company, heard often over station W-G-N.

Glee Club to Be Heard.

Taking part also will be a combined choral and orchestral group, and the girls' glee club of 36 voices, under the direction of Mr. Jones. A special number on the program will be a work for the chorus, soloist, and orchestra entitled "The Song of the North Winds," composed by Mr. Jones. The lyric for this number was written by the late Warren C. Hawthorne, for many years head of the premedic department of Crane Junior college.

Dr. Samuel A. Burkholder, director of the orchestra, will conduct a group of orchestral selections. Mr. Jones will conduct the combined choral and orchestral groups, as well as the girls' glee club.

WAIL OF SIREN TO SPUR ACTION IN ST. CHARLES

Air Raid Drill Is Set for Wednesday.

At 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when the siren in St. Charles sounds two long blasts, doctors, nurses, nurses aids, ambulance drivers, stretcher bearers, and Boy Scout messengers immediately will mobilize at the causualty station in the new municipal building for their first practice drill in meeting air raid and disaster conditions.

Detailed plans to carry out the practice have been made under leadership of Dr. C. A. Potter, head of the Emergency Medical division of the St. Charles Citizens Defense corps. Members of the division will leave their places of work when the siren sounds and proceed to the casualty station.

Boy Scouts to Be "Casualties."

Boy Scouts, serving as casualties, will be picked up by the ambulance squads and taken to the station or to Delnor hospital for the treatment of their simulated wounds or fractures. First aid will be given casuals where they are found.

Members of the division committee are Dr. C. A. Potter, chairman; Mrs. Austin Schneider, co-chairman; Dr. C. E. Anderson, Karl Asplund, Mrs. Lester J. Norris, Mrs. J. Williams Stone, Mrs. G. K. Brigham, and Dr. Edith B. Lowry.

Dr. I. G. Langum, mayor of St. Charles, will be the doctor in charge at the municipal building where a completely equipped casualty station has been provided. The city also has purchased two complete first aid post outfits which go with the ambulances, and equipment for 20 beds for the expansion of hospital facilities.

Physicians serving on the two teams, one going to the hospital and the other with the ambulances, are Dr. F. E. Haskins, Dr. Donald Dick, Dr. R. J. Lambert, Dr. C. W. Trowbridge, Dr. C. E. Anderson, and Dr. C. A. Potter.

Treat Minor Hurts at Station.

Casuals with minor injuries will be treated at the casualty station where the nurses in charge will be Mrs. J. V. McMahon, Mrs. Louis Rockwell, Mrs. Carl Johnson, and Mrs. Ralph Bohn. Appointed to set up beds at the station are Mrs. Alice Kingsbury, Mrs. Pearl Kingsbury, Miss Clara M. Meulemann, and Miss Florence Groenings. Beds at the hospital will be set up by Miss Martha Swaby, Miss Bernadine Kanute, Miss Catherine Weibler, and Miss Marguerite Jordon.

Ambulances and trucks with stretchers are being provided by local business firms. Stretcher bearer captains are C. W. Peterson, Joseph Gaffney, Tom Jordan, and Robert Armstrong.

PROVISO PUPILS PLAN A TRIBUTE TO THEIR HEROES

Assembly on Tuesday Will Honor Men of Bataan.

In appreciation of former pupils and faculty members of Proviso High school now in the armed forces of the United States, and in memory of those who have been killed in the present war, a special assembly will be held Tuesday morning in the high school auditorium at Maywood.

Fifty-two of the men to be honored are members of Company B, 192d tank battalion, now believed to be prisoners of the Japanese in Bataan.

The program will be in charge of Miss Florence Scott of the English department and Miss Wilhelmina Marm of the art department.

Resolutions of Sympathy.

The program will begin with the presentation of the Colors by the school Color guard and will include singing of the national anthem by the school choir and audience, invocation by the Rev. Roy W. Merrifield, pastor of Plymouth Congregational church, and a talk by Supt. E. R. Sifert. As the service flag with its hundreds of stars is spotlighted, there will be a presentation of bound resolutions of gratitude and sympathy to members of each of the bereaved families.

Part two of the program will include two tableaux. The first will portray "The Way of Life for Which We Fight," and will be accompanied by the singing of "America, the Beautiful." The second tableau will reveal a figure of Victory against a background of the American flag.

Immel Prepares List.

Manley W. Immel, head of the speech department at the school, who is compiling names for the service flag and who has conducted a research thru school annuals in providing personal sketches of graduates that became heroes of Bataan, offers four new names to be added to the list previously published.

Two of the four which brings the number of Proviso youths serving with Company B, 192d Tank Battalion, to 52, are graduates.

Excerpts from old annuals concerning the graduates are as follows:

Sergt. Willard D. Jennings, '39, "A boy who claims to enjoy history, a model airplane builder, and amateur photographer. Hopes to go thru college."

Ambition to Be Engineer.

First Class Pvt. George Dravo, '38. "Egocentric people bore him. An arden sports fan, has a weakness for basketball, thrives on broken machinery. To him, life is just one grand fix after another. Engineering is his ambition."

The two members of the tank company are First Class Privates John Bartalleti and James E. Edwards.

Souvenir programs will list the names of more than 800 former Proviso students now in the service.

Prom at Elmhurst.

Juniors and seniors of Immaculate Conception High school, Elmhurst, will hold their fourth annual prom Wednesday night at the Elmhurst Country club.

CONCERT TO BE GIVEN BY DU PAGE CHORUS IN ELMHURST SUNDAY

The Du Page chorus directed by Kurt Herbert Adler will give a concert at 4 o'clock next Sunday afternoon in the auditorium of Hawthorne school, Elmhurst. Miss Gladys Lund is accompanist for the choir. Michael Kross is president of the group.

Michael Kross.
[Chambers Photo.]

In the varied program, the cantata "Miriam's Song of Triumph," by Schubert will be featured. The soloist will be Clara Kittner, soprano with the Chicago Civic Opera company.

Membership of the Du Page chorus includes 50 men and women from the county. The chorus has been active since 1939.

Friml and Herbert Songs on Northerners' Program

Melodies by Rudolf Friml and Victor Herbert will highlight the Northerners concert on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday. This program features the music of the male octet and string ensemble and the songs of Lois Wallner.

Miss Wallner will sing "Some Day" from Friml's "Vagabond King." The male octet will be heard in "On Parade," by Herbert. They will also sing a medley consisting of "Put, Put, Put," "Me and Melinda," the currently popular "Sleepy Lagoon," and "Last Call for Love."

FM IS VIEWED AS A POST-WAR HOPE OF RADIO

Proving Potent Weapon During Conflict.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Frequency modulation, that new technique in radio providing crystal clear reception without static, appears to be frozen clear and solid as a skating rink for the duration of the war. Priorities and scarcities will keep iit operating at the present level until victory is won.

Because of the war the predictions that FM would sweep the country have not been entirely realized. Still since Jan. 1, 1941, the total number of FM receivers in the United States has grown from 15,000 to around 400,000 sets.

W59C, W-G-N's sister FM station, will round out eight months on the air this week. There are two other FM stations, W51C, the pioneer FM station in Chicago, and W67C. These three stations have brought thousands of listeners in the Chicago area new thrills in broadcasting—particularly in music. Some thirty other stations thruout the country are bringing similar radio thrills to other audiences.

Potent Weapon of War.

While no details can be given, FM is proving to be a potent weapon of war. Maj. Edwin Armstrong, who developed the technique, has turned over all his patents to the war department, and they are being put to wide use. There are reports that FM technique is proving vastly superior to the old style amplitude modulation [AM]technique in many types of war communications.

FM pioneers are predicting that the circumstance of war will make it infinitely easier for frequency modulation to become the dominant type of broadcast service in urban areas after the conflict.

Since the manufacture of all radio sets for civilian use has been ended for the duration, manufacturers will be able to start with a clean slate after the war. The buying public, finding their pre-war sets obsolete after years of hard usage, may be ready to purchase new receivers in great quantities. Many experts believe that post-war radio sets will be uniformly equipped with FM.

Cheaper Sets Expected.

In their mass construction of war equipment manufacturers are discovering many improvements that they can put to apt use in peace time which will make possible the building of cheaper FM sets.

John R. Latham, executive of the American network, FM chain, forecasts that FM will become a major industry in the days following the war, offering employment for many technicians and artists who will be thrown back into civilian life. Latham expects FM to be the force that will revitalize the post-war radio industry.

OFFER MELTING POT PAGEANT ON WBBM TODAY

A pageant of Chicago's foreign language and minority groups and their contributions to the nation's war effort will be featured by WBBM on a special "I Am an American" broadcast today. A narrator will discuss with representatives of seven American communities how they are mobilizing their manpower, money, and morale behind the united nations' drive over WBBM at 10:05 a. m. today.

CHICAGOLAND MUSIC FESTIVAL TO BE BROADCAST

Broadcasting arrangements are being made by W-G-N for the 13th annual Chicagoland Music Festival, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., which will be held Saturday night, Aug. 15, at Soldiers' field.

Nearly 100,000 persons are expected to attend this show and a cast of 10,000 singers and musicians from 30 states and Canada is being assembled. This year's program will be dedicated to the armed forces of the United States.

Last year the festival reached a radio audience of millions on W-G-N and the Mutual network when producer Lou Jackobson presented the highlights of the midwest's largest musical spectacle.

Howard Barlow to Offer Orchestral Serenades

A program of orchestral serenades will be presented by the Columbia Symphony, directed by Howard Barlow, over WBBM-CBS from 2 to 3:00 p. m. today. Barlow will present Mozart's D Major Serenade; Elgar's Serenade for string orchestra in E minor, and Tschaikowsky's Serenade for strings.

ANDOR FOLDES, MISS BRANCATO ON MUSIC HALL

Two young concert artists, Andor Foldes, pianist, and Rosemarie Brancato, soprano, will be soloists with the all-string orchestra to be conducted by Erno Rapee during the Radio City Music Hall on the Air at 11:30 a. m. today over WCFL-Blue. Foldes, Hungarian artist who made his American debut on the Music Hall of the Air will be heard in the Second and Third Movements of Schumann's only piano quintet.

SALUTE CALUMET HIGH SCHOOL ON 'CITIZENS' SHOW

Glenn C. Worst, principal at Calumet High school, will be heard during the broadcast of Citizens of Tomorrow, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S half hour radio program for the youth of America, to be aired at 10:30 a. m. today on W-G-N. Calumet will be the honored school.

The Calumet High mixed chorus, directed by Mrs. Clara Harms, will sing two numbers, "Deep River" and "A Violin Is Singing." Another student's name will be added to the program's honor roll by Philip Maxwell, member of The Tribune editorial staff and master of ceremonies of the broadcast. Maxwell will interview Cadet Col. Wendell Zimmers, who is the top ranking cadet among Chicago's 10,000 ROTC lads.

Harold Turner will accompany the chorus and student body in their school song. Morrison Wood produces the program. Vern Hansen is the announcer.

DELTON, MICH., CHILDREN BOOST KEEP FIT CORPS

Some of the most loyal listeners of Capt. Paul Fogarty's Keep Fit corps, heard on W-G-N at 9 o'clock each morning, Monday thru Friday, are school children in Delton, Mich.

A few weeks ago when Capt. Paul missed a broadcast the 16 pupils of the Burroughs district school, near Delton, became quite worried and hastily dispatched a letter to W-G-N. But their fears were allayed the following morning when Capt. Paul greeted them with his familiar "Attention!"

The students have been performing their calisthenics faithfully. Mrs. Clayton Staffen, 4-H leader in the Delton community, coaches the students as they work with Fogarty.

PUPILS TO SHOW FREEDOM'S ROLE IN U. S. HISTORY

In Lutheran Pageant at Melrose Park.

(Picture on page 2.)

"America, the Beautiful," a patriotic cantata-pageant portraying the forces that played a vital rôle in the history of the nation and gave its descendants their heritage of freedom, will be presented by 200 pupils of St. Paul's Lutheran school Thursday and Friday nights in the parish hall, 11th avenue and Lake street, Melrose Park.

The pageant, one of the most ambitious ever undertaken by the school, will be supervised by Principal A. H. Kramer, assisted by the teaching staff and women of the congregation. M. J. Weiss is business manager.

To accommodate the large cast, the school's regular stage has been temporarily extended six feet into the auditorium. At one point in the pageant, 90 boys and girls will appear on the stage at the same time. More than 300 yards of material were required for the costuming.

Prepare for Rain.

In the event of rain a canvas will be extended between the school buildings to protect the costumes of performers proceeding from the classrooms to the stage. Should there be a blackout of air raid warning practice, wardens in the congregation, stationed thruout the auditorium, will take charge.

The production consists of nine episodes and will open with a choral number by pupils of the 7th grade. Members of the chorus will be robed, according to rows, in successive colors of red, white, and blue.

To Dramatize History.

Later, the chorus will provide a musical background for all the succeeding scenes which will include a design of the national emblem, the landing of the pilgrims, colonization of the new land, leadership of "The Father of Our Country," "The Great Emancipator," making of the United States flag, and the settling of the west.

St. Paul's Lutheran school is affiliated with St. Paul's Lutheran church, of which the Rev. P. L. Kluender and the Rev. M. R. Kluender are pastors.

The pageant is being presented by the school as its contribution to the 50th anniversary of the congregation being observed during 1942.

PRESENT 2 MORE SONG DRAMAS ON 'MELODY' HOUR

Story of Sailor's Last Tune to Be Told.

The story of an American sailor who was lost at sea in the early weeks of the war will be told on "America Loves a Melody" over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Saturday evening.

The story will be dramatized from one of the two price winning letters picked for dramatic song spots on the program. Marion Claire, soprano star of the melody hour, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, will climax the dramatization singing Schubert's "Serenade," the song the sailor sang for his parents just before leaving for sea.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Bruce Foote, baritone, will be featured with Miss Claire and Mr. Baggiore in other selections during the program.

Miss Claire also will sing selections from "H. M. S. Pinafore" with Baggiore, Foote, and the chorus, selections from Bizet's "Carmen" with Foote, and Romero's "Cielito Linda."

The other musical-drama story will feature Bruce Foote in Carrie Jacobs Bond's "I Love You Truly." Two dramatic song spots are selected each week from the hundreds of letters submitted telling stories behind listeners' favorite songs.

Other features of the program will be Braga's "Angels Serenade," sung by Baggiore; "March of the Grenadiers" by Foote and the chorus, "Chimes of Spring" by Lincke presented by the orchestra and chorus, and Herbert's "Indian Summer" by the orchestra.

The orchestra will be under the direction of Henry Weber, W-G-N's musical director, and the chorus will be led by Robert Trendler.

WEST SUBURBAN GOLF TOURNEY IS SET FOR MAY 27

Under sponsorship of the Melrose Park Lions club, the first annual West Suburban Golf tournament will be held Wednesday, May 27, at St. Andrew's Country club. The tourney, expected to attract 300 golfers, will climax the Lions state convention in Chicago.

Golfers in Austin, Oak Park, Maywood, Berwyn, Forest Park, River Forest, Elmwood Park, and Elmhurst, will compete for the club trophy, a gold statue awarded by Sam Rubin, chairman of the event. Mr. Rubin's assistants are Joseph Cullotta, Dr. M. L. Weissman, Peter di Francesca, and Bob A. Kubicek.

A checkered cap, knicker bedecked foursome, dating back to earlier golfing days will be entered by the host club, Melrose Park. Using but one club, this foursome will challenge all parlor golfers and "stop and sock" fans. The tourney will not be restricted to Lions club members.

MARSHALL WALLER IS IN MAY 29 GRADUATING CLASS AT WEST POINT

Among cadets graduating from the United States Military academy at West Point May 29 will be Marshall Waller, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Waller, 5511 Washington boulevard. Graduating from Austin High school, Waller attended Marion Military institute, Marion, Ala., for one year prior to receiving his West Point appointment from Congressman T. J. O'Brien [6th]. During his first class year he attained the rank of cadet sergeant. He participated in swimming and is a rifle and pistol marksman. When graduated, he will be commissioned in the engineering corps.

What Transit Franchise Promises West Side

This map of transportation facilities of the west side has proposed bus extensions in heavy lines. The extensions are part of the unified transit ordinance which is to be voted on by Chicagoans on June 1.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 18

Watch the lawn, especially one made recently, that it does not dry out. When watering new, short grass use a fine spray or avoid watering with a heavy stream. Young grass is weak and unable to stand very rough treatment. If the lawn is still to be made, sow about 10 per cent English rye with the regular lawn seed. This grows rapidly, furnishes a good green cover, and offers shade for the grass.

Frequently timothy or oats are used for the purpose. These are annual grasses and die out later on. It takes about three years to establish a good blue grass lawn and during that period all attention must be made that it is kept in luxuriant growth, well supplied with plant food and water.

Tuesday, May 19

The habit of hilling up hedges and shrubs should be avoided; it looks bad and usually the borders are edged with a deep ditch or depression when it should be only slightly raised above the lawn, if raised at all. It also is noted that many shrubs are badly in need of pruning and they have grown so high they need cutting back to obtain young, fast growing, vigorous, and healthy wood from which good foliage and abundant flowers can be expected.

Prune early flowering shrubs, like the forsythia and bridal wreath, after flowering. The flowers are borne on wood made the previous year and if pruned when dormant or in winter the buds are removed. Some shrubs produce their flowers on young wood made the same season, such as the hydrangea and shoestring plant or Hibiscus syriacus. Dead wood can be removed at any time.

Wednesday, May 20

The activities of gardeners is at high stage at this time. The following list of plants to be grown in various city areas is recommended by the advisory staff of the Chicago metropolitan area:

Grow these in smoky area: Carrots, kale, turnips, beets, collards, Swiss chard, mustard greens, leaf or cos lettuce, radishes, onions from sets, endive, and parsley.

Grow these and the above in outlying areas: Tomatoes, lima beans, cabbage [especially Savoy cabbage], parsnips, bush beans or pole beans, peas, peppers, spinach, kohlrabi and salsify, or oyster plant.

Thursday, May 21

Many excellent varieties of garden plants are available. Most of those listed in catalogs are dependable, they have been thoroly tested before listings, and usually the gardener will grow the kind he likes best for his own use.

The chief thing is to get the work done at the right time. See that the ground is well prepared and do not wait until it dries out before planting. Make straight rows which are best running north and south. Sow small seeds in shallow rows and do not sow too thickly. The average width between rows is about 12 inches.

When the seedlings appear above ground careful hoeing or cultivating between rows should begin. A complete plant food can be applied by scattering it along both sides of the rows and carefully hoeing it into the soil.

Friday, May 22

When planting corn for home use sow several short rows rather than in a long, single row. This is to insure adequate pollination. Plant tall crops in a manner that they will not shade low-growing crops. Stake tomatoes when grown on small areas because every foot of space must be used.

Do not brush against bean plants when they are wet or covered with dew or disease may develop. Get a good sprayer and recommended spraying materials and begin using them at the very first sign of insects, and adopt a regular spraying program.

Hoe regularly and especially following a rain or the ground may pack and rapid evaporation occur. Gather all crops when in their prime. Plant flowers in the small garden rather than fuss with vegetables.

Saturday, May 23

Good vegetable land will produce fine flowers, so you should give careful consideration to soil preparation. What to grow will depend on what you want to grow, altho it is wise to limit the number of varieties. Practically all varities can be grown in the good soil and atmospheric conditions that prevail in most suburban districts, but in the city a wide variety of conditions exist which makes the selection of plant materials of first importance.

REMODELING IS STILL POSSIBLE IN MANY CASES

Creating Extra Room Aid to Housing Problem.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Remodeling jobs which do not require critical materials can aid housing shortages by creation of extra rooms and stimulate home morale by the preservation of what we have. House maintainance, when necessary, is a defense against the arch thieves of depreciation and obsolescence, and every sturdy little home is a worthwhile unit in the nation's great housing investment.

There are many things we can do for our homes and at the same time gear our efforts to economic pressure and keep in mind the necessary repairs and renewals to keep our houses sound as a dollar.

Floors are an important item in home maintainance, and if a floor is badly worn it can be replaced, or a new factory finished floor can be laid over it. Or a material such as linoleum can appear on the home front, in a hallway or child's room, or in many different rooms.

Plenty of Flooring Available.

In most instances floors can be repaired or renewed without use of materials on the critical list.

Right now hundreds of thousands of feet of factory stained and finished hardwood flooring is meeting the needs of the present market. It is fitting itself into the great housing program as well as into individual, already built homes which need floor replacement.

This type of flooring is available in oak, beech, and maple. Flooring also can be had in wood mosaic. Much of this flooring comes from the factory waxed and polished. Some of it has slight bevels to give it a distinctive effect and make not only for easier installation but for a more perfect appearance in the room.

One type of this prefinished flooring has its oak flooring finished in medium shade, and its maple and beech finished natural. The finish used penetrates and seals the pores of the wood and is a big help in keeping out dust and grime. In addition to this seal finish, it is filled, waxed, and buffed.

Flooring also can be laid over an existing floor in a home and finished in excellent fashion by standard on the job methods. Hard maple is a flooring available in various sizes and grades, and can be had in strips or blocks to form different patterns.

Another point of interest in modern maple flooring is the fact that it is available in "natural" shades as well as in a wide range of possible color finishes to match practically any decorative scheme.

Several Shades of Color.

One can finish a hard maple floor in shades of blue or green, ebony, and early American, or brown. Long wearing, hard maple has been called one of the toughest of floorings as well as one of the softest in its beauty, and it invariably provides a lovely base for color harmony. More over, it is easy to clean and is a floor of definite sanitation, since its surface is very smooth and affords no lodging place for germs and dust.

In the capture of an extra room in the basement, paint with proper materials and preparation is an extremely satisfactory and inexpensive way of finishing a floor. There also are dyes for concrete floors available now which can be depended on for durability and are attractive.

There also are linoleums especially manufactured for use in basement game rooms. Asphalt tile also is definitely in the picture as a flooring in an "extra" basement living room, game, or recreation room.

Asphalt tile is a waterproof and handsome flooring that can be depended on to withstand hard traffic, and effective patterns can be obtained by alternating dark and light tiles.

Alpha Gamma Delta Group Holds Election Tomorrow

Lambda alumnae chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority will elect officers at its final meeting of the season at 8 o'clock tomorrow in the chapter house in Evanston. Mrs. Jack Griffith, chairman, Miss Helen Heggie, and Mrs. Fred T. Rogers, the nominating committee, will submit a slate of candidates. Mrs. Kissak Herbekian and Mrs. Harry Lansman will be hostesses.

'March of Steel Men' Is Second Nature to These Musicians

SAFETY
TUBA
FIRST

Henry Fuller of Dolton is one of the men who roll steel by day and make music by night at the Acme Steel company's Riverdale works. He's a millwright at the plant, plays the tuba in the employes' concert band. Too, he's a member of the band committee which guides the unit's destinies. The illuminated flag and The Tribune's portrait of Gen. MacArthur lend inspiration to the rolling of steel.

LIBRARIAN BARITONE

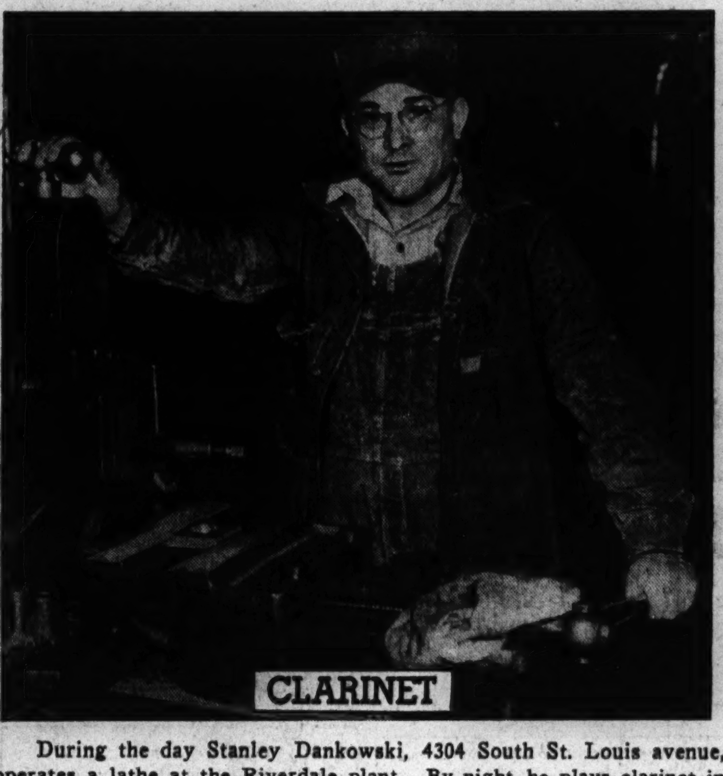
Beverly Crockett, a clerk in the metallurgical department, holds Bellsterling's "March of the Steel Men" for William Steinhauer, 331 East 136th place, a galvanizing department employe. He's trying it on the baritone, an instrument intermediate in size between the althorn and tuba. Steinhauer is a charter member of the band committee. Miss Crockett, 9170 Pleasant avenue, helps keep track of the band's library of 600 pieces. The steel men's march is the group's theme song.



During the day Stanley Dankowski, 4304 South St. Louis avenue, operates a lathe at the Riverdale plant. By night he plays clarinet in the plant's concert band.

Fred Jessen of Dolton is guiding a slab of steel thru a mill. In the band, he's the drummer. He's a mill man in the big hot mill in Riverdale.

The Steel Men Make Music in Spare Time

BY JEANNE McCARTHY.

The hot and cold rolling mills at the Acme Steel company's Riverdale works haven't confined their output to finished steel. Another product has been a 50 piece concert band. The men who roll steel by day make music by night. They are augmented by other members of the Acme family—members of the families of steel workers.

The band was the inevitable outgrowth of the steel men's discovery there was a lot of varied musical talent among them. An organization meeting was held, and two months later the band of 20 gave its first concert. Their first appearance was on St. Patrick's day, in 1938, at the Bowen elementary school in Riverdale. Included in this concert were Shubert's "March Militaire" and the "Triumphal March" from "Aïda."

Rehearse Theme Song.

The group rehearses once weekly, on Mondays, in an office at the plant. Right now they're hard at work on Bellsterling's "March of the Steel Men." As soon as they learn it, it's going to be their theme song.

The unit's first director was William Stubbs, a scale man at the mill and a trained professional musician. Dick Anoe, another Acme employé, followed him. Dick's now marking time at Camp Forrest, Tennessee. The third director was Jack Kokesch, who also is serving in the country's armed forces. Norman Beasley, a professional music director, is now leading the band.

The destinies of the group are guided by an employé band committee, which determines when and where the musicians will play. Heading it is Vic Steinhauer. Other members are Adam Schroder, Henry Fuller, Jack Wernicke, Bob Ayken, and Art Glover.

Répertoire of 600 Pieces.

The band has a library of 600 pieces. Its favorite march is Losey's "Gloria March." They've no favorite overture, and their programs usually are 50 per cent marches and 50 per cent overtures. They've provided the music at employé picnics, Riverdale and Dolton public events, public park concerts, parades, and other affairs.

The Acme Concert band is the Riverdale employés first musical experiment. That making music causes no interference in production schedules, is attested by a telegram addressed to employés of Acme by the assistant secretary of war for air. He said: "The North American B-25s flew 2,000 miles across the Pacific from Australia to the Philippines and blasted Japanese invaders the night of April 13. Docks were wrecked, ships were sunk, air fields and grounded craft destroyed. Flight Leader Gen. Royce and Lieut. Davies were cited for 'heroism and extraordinary achievement.' Your workmanship helped get them there and bring them back. We recognize that fact and know you join with us in pride in their accomplishment." Acme men made the steel strap used to brace the boxed planes during shipment.

2,500 at Riverdale Plant.

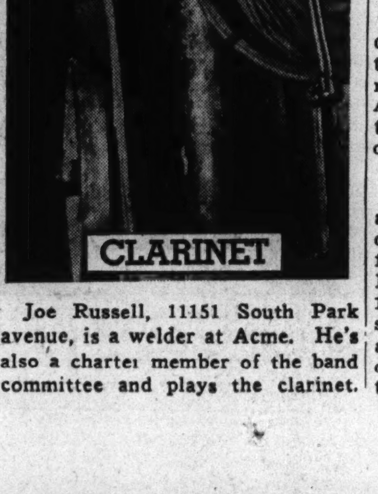
Twenty-five hundred men are employed at the company's Riverdale works. The history of this plant goes back to 1917 and World War I.

One hundred and thirty-three acres of land were purchased then, and the company's first hot rolling mill was built. In 1923, spurred by a demand for cold rolled steel in wider widths, other buildings and equipment were added. In 1926 the No. 2 hot mill was built to broaden the range of hot strip sizes and to produce the material for the cold mills. In 1929 a merchant mill was installed. The total enclosed floor area in the Riverdale plant is over 1,250,000 square feet.

The history of the entire company goes back to 1880 when M. E. McMaster, a furniture dealer in Shelbyville, Mo., thought of making a barbed steel staple to be driven into the ends of bed rails to prevent chafing and damage in transit. The company offices and Archer plant are located at 28th street and Archer avenue.

Mothers of Spalding High Students to Elect Staff

Spalding High School Mothers' club will meet in monthly session at 1 o'clock Tuesday in the school auditorium, 2216 Hirsch street. Mrs. R. C. Schmoldt, president, will open the session, at which officers will be elected.



Joe Russell, 11151 South Park avenue, is a welder at Acme. He's also a charter member of the band committee and plays the clarinet.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Second Lieut. Victor L. Ferraro, 6349 Kilpatrick avenue, has been chosen to attend a battery officers' course at the field artillery school at Fort Sill, Okla. Before being called to military service he was engaged in paper sales and manufacturing. He is 24 years old.

Leslie W. Colby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Mayer, 6201 Green street, has taken the first step toward winning his wings as a pilot, navigator, or bombardier at Santa Ana, Cal. He is an aviation cadet at the air force replacement training center.

Corp. Robert F. Lay, 7020 Perry avenue, has been admitted as an officer candidate to the air force officer candidate school at Miami Beach, Fla. After completion of a 12 week course, he will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the army air force. Thirty-five specialized courses will be given in administrative, personnel and supply duties.

Keesler field, Mississippi, officials recently reported the promotion of Staff Sergt. Edward J. Vukadin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vukadin, 5414 Honoré street, to technical sergeant. His promotion advances him to the second highest ranking noncommissioned officer grade in the army.

The first step toward wearing his wings as a pilot, navigator, or bombardier was taken by Roy L. Kross, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Kross, 1401 West 82d street. He became an air cadet at the air force replacement center at Santa Ana, Cal.

Martin E. Banaszek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Banaszek, 2858 Tripp avenue, was promoted to a sergeant at the expanding air corps technical school at Keesler field, Mississippi.

A recent graduate of an army training course at Chanute field, Rantoul, was John A. Gavenis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gavenis, 3932 South Rockwell avenue. Chanute field is a branch of the army air corps technical school.

Piano Recital Today.

A piano recital by pupils of Clara E. Thiede will be given at 3:15 o'clock today at the Sherman park fieldhouse, 52d street and Racine avenue.

NEW FRANCHISE WILL GO BEFORE VOTERS JUNE 1

Express Bus Routes Are Promised.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

The south and southwest sides will receive a substantial part of the 715 miles of transit improvements contemplated under the city's traction unification ordinance to be voted on June 1 at a public referendum.

The ordinance, passed by the city council, June 19, 1941, grants a franchise to a prospective unified company which will operate the properties of the Chicago Surface lines, the elevated lines and the 65 million dollar city owned subway. The new company also will have the right to acquire the Chicago Motor Coach company.

A transit modernization program costing 102 million dollaras is contemplated over the next eight years under the terms of the ordinance. The unified company is required to make the improvements to the extent of its financiall abilitiy to raise the money.

Buses to Replace Some Cars.

The program includes 249 miles of local bus extensions, 165 miles of express bus routes, and 301 miles where bus operation will be substituted for present street cars. In the case of substitutions, gasoline buses will be used in some instances and trolley buses in others.

The map in this section shows the locations of local bus extensions on the south and southwest sides. In addition, substitution of buses is planned for street cars now in use on 119th street, 115th, 111th, 93d-95th, 87th, 75th, 67th-69th, 59th-61st, 51st-55th, 43d, Pershing road, 31st, 26th, and the 18th-16th street car line. Bus conversions also are planned on several north-south routes including Damen avenue, South Chicago avenue, and the Commercial avenue-Torrence avenue line.

Eight express bus routes, with limited stop service, are contemplated thruout the city. Three are to benefit the south side. One would run from the airport north on Cicero avenue to Archer avenue, to State street and into the loop. Another would run from 95th street and Ewing avenue to the Jackson Park "L" station at 63d and Stony Island avenue, via South Chicago avenue and Jeffery avenue. A third would be in Western avenue from 111th street to Howard street.

Much Equipment to be Bought.

The ordinance requires the company, in order to equip the proposed routes and replace equipment on present routes, to buy within 8 years 850 trolley or gasoline buses, 950 streamlined street cars, and 1,850 additional units, either street cars or buses. To improve rapid transit service, the company is required to buy 1,000 subway-elevated cars.

Establishment of the proposed united company to put thru the program is contingent on the outcome of the June 1 referendum and also on a vote by the securities holders of the surface and elevated lines which is now being taken. The 75,000 securities owners are balloting on a proposed financial merger and reorganization plan providing a new corporation to accept the franchise ordinance.

To Use 30 Million Dollar Fund.

Altho the new company will be required to make improvements only to the extent of its financiall ability, a fund of 30 million dollars now held by the surface lines will make possible a good start on the program. City officials estimate that the remainder of the 102 millions can be borrowed or taken from future renewal funds.

The order in which the transit extensions and substitutions are to be made will be determined by a three man local transit commission appointed by the mayor with the approval of the city council. This commission will have all the authority over the new company that is now held by the Illinois Commerce commission, including rates of fare, service standards, and changes of routes.

Altho the proposed modernization program is expected to be delayed by the war, setting up of the new company and granting the unified franchise will clear the way for starting the improvements as soon as circumstances permit.

Chiropodist Association Takes Course in First Aid

Many members of the Northwestern Alumni Chiropodist association have completed the Red Cross first aid instructors' course taught by Isaac W. Hawes. The association is encouraging members to take this method of coöperating in the defense effort. Chiropodists also are asking congress to pass House Bill 3738, which provides for establishment of a chiropody corps in the medical corps of the United States army.

CLUBS OF THIRD DISTRICT TURN TO NEW SEASON

Beverly Hills Women Pick Department Heads.

Mrs. Ernest Van Duser.
[Koehne Photo.]

With their state convention and annual elections behind them, 3d district club women now are outlining plans for the new season and appointing departmental chairmen.

Beverly Hills Woman's club has completed its slate of departmental officers. Mrs. Kenneth C. Merrick, 9554 Damen avenue, home and education chairman, has selected seven women to guide the work in her department. They are Mrs. C. S. Darling, American citizenship; Mrs. B. J. Walworm, American home; Mrs. R. J. Lawrie, conservation; Mrs. W. E. Wing, education; Mrs. A. O. Schnura, garden; Mrs. A. C. Duchossois, motion picture, and Mrs. Otto Orech, radio.

Mrs. Arthur Kasewagen, public welfare chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. E. W. Eamshaw, civics and civil service; Mrs. R. E. Owen, Indian welfare; Mrs. David B. Mayer, legislation; Mrs. George Emory, law observance; Mrs. J. M. Shields, occupational therapy; Mrs. J. E. Marti, Park Ridge school for girls; Mrs. R. J. Maier, public health and child hygiene; Mrs. E. W. Trolander, public safety; Mrs. Carl Otremba, international relations.

Fernwood Woman's Club.

Mrs. Admiral Elliott, 430 West 101st place, is the chairman of appointments for the Fernwood Woman's club. She has selected the following chairmen for the new year: Mrs. Ralph Montgomery, American citizenship; Mrs. C. E. Shepherd, American home; Mrs. Peter Inthout, education; Mrs. Peter Broehl, finance; Mrs. Leroy Young, home; Mrs. Guy Moses, literature; Mrs. H. T. Mear, music; Mrs. W. R. Hahn, press and publicity; Mrs. Charles Blackmore, occupational therapy; Mrs. Robert Gordon, program; Mrs. Walter Brown, public welfare; Mrs. Everett Beachler, revisions; Mrs. John Ohmans, special refreshments, and Mrs. Elida Fry, defense.

Southtown Woman's Club.

The Southtown Woman's club will hold a sandwich bridge at 1 o'clock tomorrow in the home of Mrs. Ray W. Shields, 9142 Bishop street. Assisting her will be Mrs. Charles P. Rath, Mrs. Lovell Nelson, and Mrs. Wilbur Hamilton. The retiring president of the club is Mrs. Ernest Van Duser.

Englewood Woman's Club.

The board of the Englewood Woman's club will gather at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow at the home of Mrs. John B. Haeberlin, 7136 Princeton avenue, president. At an all day meeting Tuesday, making rugs for the women's division of the Salvation Army will occupy the arts and crafts class. This will be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur A. Hawkinson, 7801 Carpenter street.

The occupational therapy committee of the club will convene at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday in the occupational therapy shop at Oak Forest. Plans will be formulated for the annual party given by the club for a ward of disabled men at the infirmary. Mrs. C. P. Sweetman is chairman of the committee.

Hamilton Park Woman's Club.

Division "B" of the Hamilton Park Woman's club will end its club year with a smorgasbord luncheon at the Kungsholm restaurant at noon Thursday. The retiring president, Mrs. Norman Christiansen, will present the gavel to the new president, Mrs. Carleton Myers.

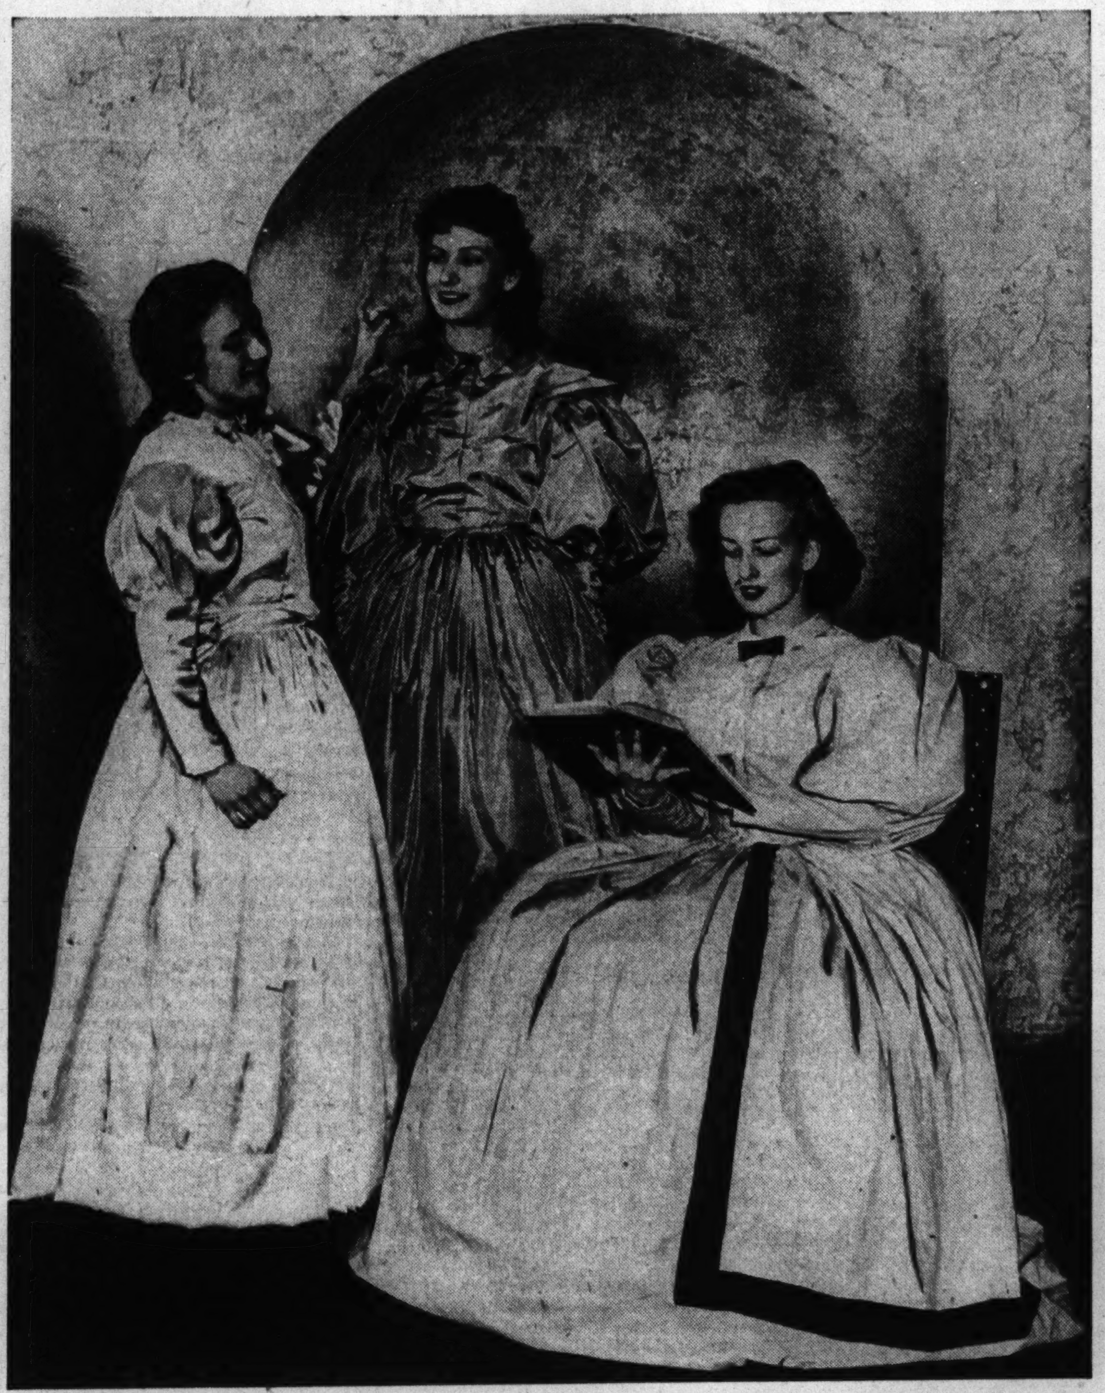
Special guests will be Mrs. A. H. Lassman and Mrs. J. F. Groves, retiring and new presidents of the Hamilton Park Woman's club; Mrs. Paul Neuendank, retiring contact chairman, and Mrs. James Dickey, wno fills her post. A book review will be given by Miss Jerry Schmal, and Mrs. Harold Langdon will sing. She will be accompanied by Mrs. George E. Warfield.

Homewood Woman's Club.

Altho the Homewood Woman's club has ended its season of regular meetings, plans have been made for the continuation of war work. Mrs. W. P. Cronican has charge of registering club women for civilian defense; Mrs. W. O. Beck, the sale of stamps and bonds; Mrs. H. B. Shaw, charged with delivery of cakes to the service men's centers; Mrs. A. W. Edwards, leader of the British war relief unit.

Two club members have taught home nursing and first aid. Another member organized the nutrition class under Red Cross supervision.

Lend Beauty to Park District Drama



Mary Grace Quinlan, 10211 South Hoyne avenue; Freda Dombek, 5045 South Paulina street, and Marion Mueller, 8550 Lowe avenue, will look like this tonight when they enact leading roles in Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice." The play will be given by park district drama groups at the Goodman theater. United States army posts will benefit.

KARL P. SCHMIDT MARKS 20TH YEAR IN MUSEUM POST

Interest in Snakes Leads to Chief Curator's Job.

Karl P. Schmidt. [Field Museum Photo.]

As a child, Karl P. Schmidt's fondness for snakes endeared him to his playmates, who made him the snake charmer in kid circuses. As an adult, this same fondness, augmented by study and expedition, enables him this year to mark his 20th of association with the Field Museum of Natural History. He is its chief curator of zoölogy. Too, it has contributed to his election as president of the American Society of Icthyologists and Herpetologists, composed of students of fish, amphibians, and reptiles.

As zoölogical curator, Schmidt's duties are largely executive. He has a staff of 25. Duties include the planning and supervision of zoölogical exhibits and the promotion of research among his staff. Too, it includes the answering of zoölogical and other questions from a bewildered public.

He said that many persons call to determine if a whale is a fish. Second in popularity is a query to determine if there is a hoop snake with a poisonous scting in his tail. Mr. Schmidt said no.

Fog or Frog?

The strangest request to come to his attention was a telegraphic query from a harried man in Minneapolis. He wanted a telegraphic response, collect, giving a five letter word for a dry fog on the upper Nile. Mr. Schmidt got the query because it was thought that maybe the questioner wanted a five letter word for a dry frog on the upper Nile. Mr. Schmidt happened to know that a fog on the upper Nile was a qobar. He telegraphed it, collect. "He must have been in a crossword puzzle contest," Mr. Schmidt said. He never heard, tho.

Mr. Schmidt's interest in reptiles and things zoölogical goes back to his mother, who maintained an active interest in botany thruout her life. His earliest childhood recollections on the subject are teachings opposed to the fear of snakes or spiders.

Schmidt was born in Lake Forest. He remained there until he was 17 and had completed his first year at Lake Forest college. He spent six years on a farm in northern Wisconsin before completing undergraduate work at Cornell university.

Meets a Revolution.

His first expedition outside the United States occurred during his senior year at Cornell in 1916. It took him to Santo Domingo, and was one of the most exciting expeditions he has ever made. "Expeditions," he said, "are not supposed to be exciting. A good student and collector is not supposed to be looking for excitement."

Mr. Schmidt and his party weren't seeking excitement. While they were in the interior collecting invertebrate fossils and discriminating in the deposits of successive ages.

That was the first of six expeditions undertaken by Mr. Schmidt. In 1919 he went to Puerto Rico. He and his bride, the former Margaret Wightman, combined this trip with a honeymoon. In 1923 he visited British Honduras in search of collection material for the museum's reptile department and of specimens for study. In 1929 he led the Crane Pacific exhibition, which took him from Boston to Borneo. This was preceded by the Field Brazilian expedition and followed by one to Guatemala.

Returns with Parrot.

Besides numerous exhibits on tropical birds and reptiles Mr. Schmidt returned with a tropical parrot, Googy. Googy got his name because he was a part of the Guggenheim group. His family accompanied him in 1932 on a tour of Europe's museums. This included his wife, and two sons, John, now a private at Keesler field, Mississippi, and Robert, a naval reserve volunteer.

John expects to work in a museum of paleontology at the conclusion of his army service. Robert is a student in the department of geology at the University of Colorado. Now, that her family has grown, Mrs. Schmidt has resumed her studies in history at the University of Colorado. This will mark her second summer term at the college.

Trip to Peru and Chile.

Mr. Schmidt's last traveling in the interest of the museum's collections was in its Magellanic expedition to Peru and Chile. The results of his various expeditions have been published in book form, a collection of his scientific papers. Several volumes have been compiled. In addition he's the author of several books for children and adults alike on reptiles and other zoölogical forms.

Mr. Schmidt and his family make their home at 1751 Cedar road, Homewood. They've been Homewood residents for 18 years. During much of that period Mr. Schmidt has maintained a collection of local snakes in his back yard. At one time he kept two skunks. He found, tho, that these were not too practical as pets.

TO make sure of finding the right employe, no matter what the job is you want to fill, phone a Help Wanted ad to the Tribune.
Long established as the leading employment market in the midwest, the Tribune produces so much better results for employers and employment agencies that they place more help wanted advertising in the Tribune than they place in any other Chicago newspaper.
This means, of course, that the Tribune is the first medium to be consulted by men and women in search of jobs.
In addition, help wanted ads in the Tribune enjoy Chicago's largest newspaper circulation—over 1,000,000 daily and Sunday.
Phone your want ad as late as 5:30 p.m. and you can start interviewing applicants the next morning. Call SUPerior 0100—Want Ad-Viser.

DOCTOR SOOTHES PATIENTS WITH HIS COLLECTION

Famous Autographs Line Office Walls.

Dr. Charles W. Olsen, 6558 South Halsted street, doesnt' feel that it helps a patient's morale to surround him with medical documents and a sickroom atmosphere. He surrounds his with autographed pictures of Sitting Bull and Buffalo Bill, with Turkish dress helmets and pictures of Presidents, with clocks that used to tick off the hours for Clarence Darrow or patrons of the Everleigh sisters' establishment.

Dr. Olsen began collecting things as a boy on a farm near Titusville, Pa. An old Indian trail cut thru this farm and it was identified as the route that Washington used to take to Fort Braddock. Dr. Olsen uncovered an array of arrowheads along the trail, and that began a lifelong interest in collecting autographs and historical items.

Has Pioneer Bill.

His collection includes the autographs of Barbé Marbois, who sold Louisiana to the United States in the name of Napoleon; of Lord Edmond Allenby, who led the British into Jersualem. He has one full set of autographs of every President of the United States. He has one document indicating that Patrick Henry still owes a Dr. Carter one-half of a bill for seven pounds for medical services. He has the signatures of Daniel C. Beard, who founded the Boy Scout movement; of P. T. Barnum, the circus man; of Daniel Webster, Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate; of Thomas A. Edison, and Frederick Auguste Bartholdi, designer of the Statue of Liberty; of India's Mohandas Gandhi, and Joseph Medill and Horace Greeley, newspaper publishers.

After the war, Dr. Olsen did Red Cross work in Turkey. During this period, he treated a Turk for a boil on the neck. The Turk was so pleased that he presented the doctor a circassian sword. He also picked up a sword cane and a tiny shrine of Buddha.

His wife, Rhoda, an admirer of John Philip Sousa, got his autograph for her husband's collection in New York where she attended a concert directed by him. The doctor secured many of his autographs from members of his family, from patients, from dealers.

Has Papal Signature.

He thinks he received the best in his collections from patients who knew he was interested and gave them to him. He has one of Pope Pius VIII., which he considers the rarest of them all. He has one of Paul Revere, whose signature now costs about $250. He has Benjamin Franklin's, worth about $100.

He finds that the chances of being duped are slight if one deals with a reputable dealer. He knows three. He says, tho, if a substantial purchase is to be made it's wise to check with several dealers before purchasing the item. It is a safe bet, he finds, to purchase a signature of a famous person that's attached to a legal document.

His collection of autographs and antiques has been appraised at $15,000. The doctor has had his office at 66th and Halsted streets for the last 20 years. He lives at 10147 South Bell avenue, with his wife and daughters, Evelyn, 16, and Louise, 9.

LIBRARY LENDS BOOKS ON PLAY YARD CONTEST

The Chicago public library and its branches are coöperating with the Chicago Motor club in its annual play yard contest for Cook county by making entry blanks available and providing rules and the list of prizes.

Books giving detailed information on construction may be taken out on regular library cards. Charles M. Hayes, president of the Motor club, said special consideration would be given those who build their own playground equipment.

Any resident of Cook county who constructs a play yard before Sept. 15 on his property or on property obtained for that purpose, may qualify for the contest aimed to reduce the traffic toll during the vacation months. First prize includes a complete 10 stunt outdoor gymnasium.

HOLY NATIVITY GUILD TO GIVE SALAD BOWL LUNCHEON THURSDAY

Mrs. Wm. Haedtler. [Hoffman Studio.]

Its second annual salad bowl luncheon will be held by the guild of the Church of the Holy Nativity at 1 o'clock Thursday in the library of the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. Mrs. William J. Haedtler, 5321 West 103d street, Oak Lawn, is chairman of the party. Kate Hines Trimble will give a dramatic reading of Paul Gallico's "The Snow Goose;" Miss Jeanette Strandberg, soprano, will sing, accompanied by Miss Marjorie Strub. Hilda Butler Farr will read a group of her own poems. Mrs. Edwin Manning, 9301 South Damen avenue, is ticket chairman.

Ft. Dearborn Hikers Visit Morton Arboretum Today

The Morton Arboretum will be visited today by members of the Fort Dearborn Hiking club. Six miles of walking will constitute the afternoon's hike. K. D. Waldo of Aurora, superintendent for many years of the East Side school system in Aurora, will lead the hike. Joining with Fort Dearborn members will be members of the Fox Valley Hiking club of Aurora.

LILACS SHARING WITH CITY'S SICK AGAIN SUCCESS

Volunteer Workers Aid in Sending Blooms.

The annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign again was successful this year in bringing cheer and beauty to the bedsides of the sick and shut-ins of the city's hospitals and institutions.

Sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, this year's lilac campaign marked the 14th year that blooms have been gathered thruout Chicagoland for distribution to the less fortunate people in the city.

Cheer 20,000 Patients.

This year more than 60,000 blooms flooded Chicago with a river of color and fragrance. The bouquets were delivered to more than 20,000 patients in 148 hospitals, orphanages, and old people's homes.

The work of gathering the flowers was supervised by chairmen of more than 81 garden clubs affiliated with the guild. Helping to pick and wrap the blooms were thousands of flower lovers, Boy and Girl Scouts, and school children.

Railroads Lend Aid.

The lilac bouquets were delivered freight free from local stations to city terminals by eight railroads. Railroads generously offering use of their baggage cars were the North Shore electric, Chicago and Milwaukee, Rock Island, Pennsylvania, Chicago and Northwestern, Illinois Central, Aurora and Elgin, and the Burlington.

Lilac donors from Joliet were Mrs. Fred Story, H. N. Higginbotham, Mrs. R. J. Barr, Miss Virginia Hartman, Mrs. M. J. Stillman, Warden E. M. Stubblefield, Mrs. Arthur B. Anderson, Mrs. J. H. Jennings, Mrs. F. A. Hill, Mrs. W. E. Fay, William Schuettler, Joseph Dunbar, and Nathan Gregory.

DR. CHARLES R. BROWN WILL GIVE 30TH TALK BEFORE SUNDAY CLUB

Dr. Charles R. Brown.

Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean emeritus of the Divinity school of Yale university, New Haven, Conn., will deliver his 30th address before the Chicago Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall at 8 o'clock tonight.

Prior to becoming dean of the divinity school, Dr. Brown was pastor of First Congregational church, Oakland, Cal., and a professor of ethics at Leland Standford university. He is the author of 27 books on religious subjects.

Clifford W. Barnes, founder and president of the club, will preside. Anthony L. Michel, a trustee, also will take part. Music for the meeting will be under direction of Edgar Nelson.

CATHOLIC ORDER OF FORESTERS TO MARK BIRTHDAY

The 59th anniversary of the founding of the Catholic Order of Foresters will be celebrated Wednesday in the Morrison hotel. The dance and card party has been arranged by the Illinois State court of which George H. Pfaff is state chief ranger and Leo J. Georgen, state secretary.

Young women from Catholic parishes in all sections of the city are on the general committee. Frank J. Halpin is the chairman. Sectional chairmen are Mrs. Eva Broughan, Mrs. John Cronin, Mrs. Earl P. Duffy, Mrs. Frank Halpin, Mrs. R. J. Van Thyne, Mrs. Adeline Kerr, Mrs. William Himmer, Mrs. Joseph Rehm, Miss Virginia Blaschke, Mrs. John Dahm, Mrs. Ed Moran, Mrs. James McNamara, Mrs. Joseph Kubicek, Mrs. John Kubicek, Miss Ann Chmura, Mrs. Helen Polinski, Miss Eleanor Skawrowski, and Miss Mary Raskowski.

The order was founded in Holy Family parish, May street and Roosevelt road, and numbers 25,000 members in the Chicago area.

Lewis School Dance.

The Lewis School of Aeronautics will hold its spring dance Friday in the school gymnasium, Lockport.

AWARD MEDALS TUESDAY TO 17 IN HARPER ROTC

Annual Inspection to Be Followed by Review.

Seventeen cadets, outstanding in their unit, will receive medals at the annual federal inspection of the Harper High school ROTC corps at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on the school grounds, 6520 South Wood street. A two hour review will be held following which the corps will receive a rating. The two best corps among the 28 in the city will be presented with color stands by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and will lead the Michigan avenue ROTC parade Wednesday, May 27.

Lieut. Col. R. K. Whitson, supervisor of ROTC at the University of Illinois, and Lieut. Col. Roy T. Rouse, supervisor of the ROTC at Michigan State college will inspect the corps and Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics of Chicago high schools, will award six war department medals.

Friml and Herbert Songs on Northerners' Program

Melodies by Rudolf Friml and Victor Herbert will highlight the Northerners concert on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday. This program features the music of the male octet and string ensemble and the songs of Lois Wallner.

Miss Wallner will sing "Some Day" from Friml's "Vagabond King." The male octet will be heard in "On Parade," by Herbert. They will also sing a medley consisting of "Put, Put, Put," "Me and Melinda," the currently popular "Sleepy Lagoon," and "Last Call for Love."

FM IS VIEWED AS A POST-WAR HOPE OF RADIO

Proving Potent Weapon During Conflict.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Frequency modulation, that new technique in radio providing crystal clear reception without static, appears to be frozen clear and solid as a skating rink for the duration of the war. Priorities and scarcities will keep iit operating at the present level until victory is won.

Because of the war the predictions that FM would sweep the country have not been entirely realized. Still since Jan. 1, 1941, the total number of FM receivers in the United States has grown from 15,000 to around 400,000 sets.

W59C, W-G-N's sister FM station, will round out eight months on the air this week. There are two other FM stations, W51C, the pioneer FM station in Chicago, and W67C. These three stations have brought thousands of listeners in the Chicago area new thrills in broadcasting—particularly in music. Some thirty other stations thruout the country are bringing similar radio thrills to other audiences.

Potent Weapon of War.

While no details can be given, FM is proving to be a potent weapon of war. Maj. Edwin Armstrong, who developed the technique, has turned over all his patents to the war department, and they are being put to wide use. There are reports that FM technique is proving vastly superior to the old style amplitude modulation [AM]technique in many types of war communications.

FM pioneers are predicting that the circumstance of war will make it infinitely easier for frequency modulation to become the dominant type of broadcast service in urban areas after the conflict.

Since the manufacture of all radio sets for civilian use has been ended for the duration, manufacturers will be able to start with a clean slate after the war. The buying public, finding their pre-war sets obsolete after years of hard usage, may be ready to purchase new receivers in great quantities. Many experts believe that post-war radio sets will be uniformly equipped with FM.

Cheaper Sets Expected.

In their mass construction of war equipment manufacturers are discovering many improvements that they can put to apt use in peace time which will make possible the building of cheaper FM sets.

John R. Latham, executive of the American network, FM chain, forecasts that FM will become a major industry in the days following the war, offering employment for many technicians and artists who will be thrown back into civilian life. Latham expects FM to be the force that will revitalize the post-war radio industry.

OFFER MELTING POT PAGEANT ON WBBM TODAY

A pageant of Chicago's foreign language and minority groups and their contributions to the nation's war effort will be featured by WBBM on a special "I Am an American" broadcast today. A narrator will discuss with representatives of seven American communities how they are mobilizing their manpower, money, and morale behind the united nations' drive over WBBM at 10:05 a. m. today.

Nannette Sargent Recovers.

Nannette Sargent, Sally Barnett in NBC's "Road of Life," has resumed her regular schedule of emoting after a two week tussle with influenza.

Kate Smith sings favorite songs of the armed forces on the Spirit of '42 aired over WBBM at 1:30 p. m. Sundays. The United States Marine band will be featured on the program today.

BAGGIORE SINGS ON MUSIC THAT ENDURES HOUR

Attilio Baggiore will be guest soloist on Music That Endures, to be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow. The program features the music of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the W-G-N chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Baggiore will sing "O Paradiso" from "L'Africaine," by Meyerbeer. He will be heard with the chorus and orchestra in "The Rosary," by Nevin.

The orchestra will play Dvorak's "Slavonic Dance No. 8," the third movement from Brahms' "Symphony No. 4," and "Bacchanale" from "Samson and Delilah," by Saint-Saëns. They also will accompany the chorus in "Joy of the Hunters" from "Der Freischutz," by Von Weber.

ANDOR FOLDES, MISS BRANCATO ON MUSIC HALL

Two young concert artists, Andor Foldes, pianist, and Rosemarie Brancato, soprano, will be soloists with the all-string orchestra to be conducted by Erno Rapee during the Radio City Music Hall on the Air at 11:30 a. m. today over WCFL-Blue. Foldes, Hungarian artist who made his American debut on the Music Hall of the Air will be heard in the Second and Third Movements of Schumann's only piano quintet.

PRESENT 2 MORE SONG DRAMAS ON 'MELODY' HOUR

Story of Sailor's Last Tune to Be Told.

The story of an American sailor who was lost at sea in the early weeks of the war will be told on "America Loves a Melody" over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock next Saturday evening.

The story will be dramatized from one of the two price winning letters picked for dramatic song spots on the program. Marion Claire, soprano star of the melody hour, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, will climax the dramatization singing Schubert's "Serenade," the song the sailor sang for his parents just before leaving for sea.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Bruce Foote, baritone, will be featured with Miss Claire and Mr. Baggiore in other selections during the program.

Miss Claire also will sing selections from "H. M. S. Pinafore" with Baggiore, Foote, and the chorus, selections from Bizet's "Carmen" with Foote, and Romero's "Cielito Linda."

The other musical-drama story will feature Bruce Foote in Carrie Jacobs Bond's "I Love You Truly." Two dramatic song spots are selected each week from the hundreds of letters submitted telling stories behind listeners' favorite songs.

Other features of the program will be Braga's "Angels Serenade," sung by Baggiore; "March of the Grenadiers" by Foote and the chorus, 'Chimes of Spring" by Lincke presented by the orchestra and chorus, and Herbert's "Indian Summer" by the orchestra.

The orchestra will be under the direction of Henry Weber, W-G-N's musical director, and the chorus will be led by Robert Trendler.

LEGION COUNCIL REVEALS PLANS FOR JULY 4 SHOW

Arthur E. Canty, commander of the Cook County council of the American Legion, announces that the Fourth of July committee of the council has opened its headquarters in the Morrison hotel for the promotion of the annual Fourth of July show at Soldiers' field. It is expected that a number of South American acts will be available for the circus feature. Because of the war, the fireworks display will be limited to non-explosive pieces but an elaborate ground display has been contracted for.

AWARD PUPILS PRIZES ON IDEAS FOR AIDING WAR

Sherman Park Library Holds Contest.

Awards were made last week at the Sherman Park library, 5440 South Racine avenue, to winners in the library's idea contest conducted among elementary school pupils. The entries were limited to 25 words on the subject, "What Can I Do to Help Win the War?"

The judges, Mrs. Yolanda D. Yates, children's librarian, and Miss Adeline Katz, assistant children's librarian, said the entries indicated young people were alert and willing to work for victory.

Receive 409 Entries.

They based their decision on the ideas expressed, diction, spelling and neatness, respectively. There were 409 entries received from seven schools.

First prize went to La Dell Allis, a sixth grade pupil at Hamline school. He wrote "I can help win the war by buying war bonds and stamps, by saving clothes, papers, books, and by keeping my ears open and lips closed."

St. John the Baptist Pupil Second.

Aubert Lemrise, an eighth grade pupil at St. John the Baptist school, was awarded second prize. Third went to a seventh grade pupil at St. John of God school, Frank Halicki. Three honorable mentions were given: Ruth Niesen, St. Augustine; Jeanine Kwiatkowski, Visitation; Dorothy Span, Dewey. The awards were made at the meeting of the School Representatives' club.

Dance Chairman

The American Red Cross and the scholarship fund of the Polish club of the Illinois Institute of Technology will benefit from a dance held last night at the Polish Women's alliance ballroom. Miss Irene Nagle, 1408 West 51st street, and Al Szatkowski were co-chairmen.

St. Felicitas Altar Society to Give Spring Luncheon

The annual spring luncheon of St. Felicitas Altar and Rosary society will be held Tuesday at the Swedish club. Mrs. William Renaud and Mrs. William Devine are co-chairmen, and Mrs. James Shanahan, president of the guild.

Bethany Church.

"Heaven Traffic on Jacob's Ladder" will be the subject of the Rev. Harry J. Hager, pastor, at the 8 o'clock service tonight at the Bethany Reformed church.

CHURCH PLACES WAR WORK AHEAD OF OWN CAUSES

Progressive Baptists Buy $3,500 in Bonds.

The missionary budget at Progressive Baptist church, 3705 La Salle street, is being slashed to the bone. So is the Sunday school budget and the decorating fund and the special gifts fund. The church money is being used to purchase bombs and rifles, shells, and tanks. Recently the members voted to draw the church money out of the bank and buy United States war bonds.

It takes a long time to put money in the bank at Progressive Baptist church. While the organ plays the offertory Sunday after Sunday, year in and year out, dimes, nickels, pennies, and quarters drop silently and ceremoniously into the velvet bottomed collection plate. In time the congregation spends its money—to a total of $10,000 a year—for home and foreign missionary work. Some of the work is carried out by the National Baptist Missionary board.

Pastor for 23 Years.

The Rev. T. Emerson Brown is the beloved pastor who has served his flock for 23 years. The majority of the 7,000 members are Negroes but the Rev. Mr. Brown numbers among his congregation all races and nationalities. There were men and women of German descent who voted yes on the bond purchase.

It was from the same collection plate passed Sunday after Sunday that the new church with an audience seating capacity of 2,000 was built. All this is done with from 35 to 50 per cent of the membership on relief.

There are 62 classes in the Sunday school and in addition to the ancient Bible stories the children learn to put brotherly love into their daily lives, to take the Golden Rule to school with them on week days. They learn, too, of good books and nature.

Money for War This Year.

"This will have to be curtailed this year," said the Rev. Mr. Brown, "we want to use our money to help win the war."

Last week the deacons, trustees, and the pastor went to the Livestock National bank at 41st and Halsted streets. There they signed a withdrawal slip for $3,500 from the year's church collection. Proudly they put the money over the counter in exchange for war bonds and rented a vault box to keep them in.

Matthew Burgess is president of the board and Thomas McCaltin is chairman of the deacons. Mrs. Lottie Harness is head of the Woman's Missionary society. The leader of the religious education department is Mrs. Jeanette Broyant.

"We wanted people to know about this," said the pastor, "then maybe other churches will decide to buy war bonds too."

Credit Women of Joliet Plan Anniversary Session

The Credit Women's Breakfast club of Joliet will celebrate its first anniversary Tuesday, May 26, at the Louis Joliet hotel. The club is composed of women employed in the credit offices of Joliet firms. It convenes at 7:30 o'clock in the morning on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

On Citizens' Show

Wendell Zimmers, Calumet High school's outstanding student who recently was appointed cadet colonel of 10,000 ROTC cadets in the city, will be heard on the Citizens of Tomorrow program over W-G-N at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Wendell earned one of the highest scholastic ratings in his class of 525 pupils, is a member of the National Honor society, president of Calumet's executive council and an officer of the Scholarship club.

SALUTE CALUMET HIGH SCHOOL ON 'CITIZENS' SHOW

Glenn C. Worst, principal at Calumet High school, will be heard during the broadcast of Citizens of Tomorrow, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's half hour radio program for the youth of America, to be aired at 10:30 a. m. today on W-G-N. Calumet will be the honored school.

The Calumet High mixed chorus, directed by Mrs. Clara Harms, will sing two numbers, "Deep River" and "A Violin Is Singing." Another student's name will be added to the program's honor roll by Philip Maxwell, member of The Tribune editorial staff and master of ceremonies of the broadcast. Maxwell will interview Cadet Col. Wendell Zimmers, who is the top ranking cadet among Chicago's 10,000 ROTC lads.

Harold Turner will accompany the chorus and student body in their school song. Morrison Wood produces the program. Vern Hansen is the announcer.

REGISTER GIRLS AS PARTNERS FOR U. OF C. SAILORS

Registration of girls 17 to 22 years old for participation in a program providing recreation for service men in the naval training school on the midway camps of the University of Chicago is now in progress. It is being conducted by the Midway Service organization, a council of residents of Woodlawn and Hyde Park and students of the University of Chicago.

Girls in Hyde Park may register at the University of Chicago's Ida Noyes hall, 1212 East 59th street, or at the Hyde Park YMCA, 1400 East 53d street. Girls will be interviewed at Noyes hall on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons between 4 and 6 o'clock; at the YMCA on Mondays and Saturdays.

In Woodlawn registration will be held at the South Side YMCA, 63d street and Kimbark avenue, on Monday and Wednesday evenings.

THOUSAND GRAVE MARKERS BEAR HIS INSCRIPTIONS

Granite Worker 35 Years Tells Experiences.

During the last 35 years Alfred Manfroi, 2758 West 111th street, has cut inscriptions, ivy leaves, and names in more than 1,000 tombstones and grave markers. They include his late wife's and those of a sister and brother. He's tried other kinds of work but always returned to granite cutting and sand blasting. "I guess I like it," he said.

Manfroi comes into the granite cutting business naturally. His late father, Joseph, who learned the trade in Germany, was a cutter for 50 years.

The advent of the sandblasting machine revolutionized the business, Manfroi said. It came in about 15 years ago, and cut the time involved in the complete operation from a day to two or three hours.

It's Busy Season Now.

Accidents occasionally occur, Manfroi said. "Sometimes a piece of stone may chip off, or you might get the wrong name on." He explained that in such an event as the latter, it's necessary to resurface the stone and start all over. His busy season, he said, is uually between the first of March and the first of June. "People usually try to get their stones up for Decoration day," he said.

In talking to persons having names and designed carved on monuments, he's learned that some of them are buying stones for persons dead 20 or 25 years.

Couple Pick Stone Together.

He recalled an elderly couple who came in together to choose a stone and inscription that pleased both. They thought it would be better that way. Then when one died, the other wouldn't be confronted with the task of selecting a stone and lettering that would please the deceased.

Manfroi's only deviation from stone cutting was during World War I. when he felt he should do something for his country. He went to work in an International Harvester company defense plant.

Pupils' Orchestra to Play at Fort Dearborn School

Fort Dearborn school orchestra will present its spring concert at 8 o'clock Friday in the school auditorium, 90th and Throop streets. Forty boys and girls will participate. William J. Thurn, 5816 Rockwell street, is director of the orchestra.

Card Party, Tea Friday to Aid Children's Home

Illinois Protestant Children's home, 4048 Lake Park avenue, will give a card party and tea Friday in the Del Prado hotel. The party is for the benefit of the home. Mrs. L. W. Budd, president of the home's board, is chairman. Mrs. Maude Smith, Mrs. E. O. Munger, Mrs. John Sanderson, Mrs. Hugh Donaldson, Mrs. George Washburn, and Mrs. Frank Brucks will assist her.

LIFEGUARD JOBS STILL FOR MEN, IS PARK DECREE

Army Depletes Ranks, but Girls Must Wait.

Altho the war has depleted the ranks of prospective lifeguards needed at the park district's 10 beaches and 38 park pools, girl guards are not as yet in demand.

Announcing that girls would not be accepted for any of the 260 jobs, commissioners said they have lowered the age limit of applicants, however, from 18 to 17 years.

Applicants without the required American Red Cross senior life saving certificate, standard first aid cards, or their equivalent, may enroll in a special training course to be opened tomorrow evening at five pools in the city.

Qualifying Tests in June.

Qualifying tests will be held June 8 thru June 18 at Washington park pool. Before assignments are made to beaches and pools opening July 1 successful candidates will be put thru a strenuous two week drill in the district lifeguard training school.

Applicants must be at least 5 feet 6 inches tall, weigh at least 150 pounds, and have normal eyesight and hearing. Each must be a citizen.

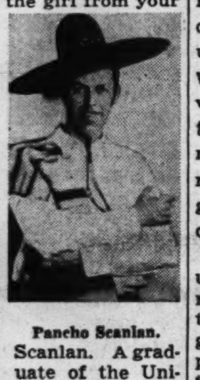
Training Pools Designated.

The special training course will be held evenings from 6:30 to 10:30 o'clock at the following pools: Ridge park, 96th street and Longwood drive; La Follette park, Hirsch street and Laramie avenue; Portage park, Central avenue and Irving Park road; Blackhawk park, Belden and Lavergne avenues, and Independence park, 3945 North Springfield avenue.

Applications for the qualifying tests must be made not later than June 4. Blanks may be obtained at Burnham, Lincoln, Washington, and Garfield park administration buildings or by writing to the Burnham park administration building, 425 East 14th boulevard.

TWO CHICAGOANS MEET AND WED IN FAR AWAY CITY

Sometimes it is necessary to go 2,500 miles to meet the girl from your own neighborhood. Take the case of Pancho Scanlan, a Chicago boy who lived at 8201 South Green street with his father, Frank Scanlan. A graduate of the University of Chicago and a teacher of Spanish at Wendell Phillips High school in 1934, he decided to journey to Mexico City to attend a summer session of the National university there.



Pancho Scanlan.

Mrs. Scanlan. [Marshall photo.]

Soon after his arrival he was attracted to a comely, young blonde, who was also studying at the Mexican university.

The summer's friendship led to the couple's marriage—a romantic end to a romantic experience. But the surprising thing was the identity of the young lady. She was Miriam Lunney and she lived in Chicago also—at 7020 Woodlawn avenue, in the same section of the city where young Scanlan had grown up.

Today Scanlan and the girl he met in Mexico City reside at 6910 Cornell avenue. Monday evenings he hurries over to the directors' chambers of the Illinois Central railroad where he teaches Spanish to a group of employés.

Wed in Indiana

The marriage of Miss Eileen Berkley to Sebert H. Stewart of East Chicago was announced recently by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edward Berkley, 6729 Parnell avenue. The ceremony took place at the bridegroom's home in East Chicago. Mrs. Stewart met her husband when she was singing with the musical trio, "The Three Strings." He was the guitarist in the group.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 18

Watch the lawn, especially one made recently, that it does not dry out. When watering new, short grass use a fine spray or avoid watering with a heavy stream. Young grass is weak and unable to stand very rough treatment. If the lawn is still to be made, sow about 10 per cent English rye with the regular lawn seed. This grows rapidly, furnishes a good green cover, and offers shade for the grass.

Frequently timothy or oats are used for the purpose. These are annual grasses and die out later on. It takes about three years to establish a good blue grass lawn and during that period all attention must be made that it is kept in luxuriant growth, well supplied with plant food and water.

In many parts of the city the home gardener is prone to keep the soil too high with the result that water runs off too rapidly. Grade from the walk to the curb in a gently even manner and the soil will not flow away or dry out.

Tuesday, May 19

The habit of hilling up hedges and shrubs should be avoided; it looks bad and usually the borders are edged with a deep ditch or depression when it should be only slightly raised above the lawn, if raised at all. It also is noted that many shrubs are badly in need of pruning and they have grown so high they need cutting back to obtain young, fast growing, vigorous, and healthy wood from which good foliage and abundant flowers can be expected.

Prune early flowering shrubs, like the forsythia and bridal wreath, after flowering. The flowers are borne on wood made the previous year and if pruned when dormant or in winter the buds are removed. Some shrubs produce their flowers on young wood made the same season, such as the hydrangea and shoestring plant or Hibiscus syriacus. Dead wood can be removed at any time.

Do not plant a low growing or dwarf shrub where a tall one should go and do not plant tall plants where dwarf ones should be used. The use of shrubs on narrow streets should be discontinued. However, no plants will develop properly unless the soil is reasonably good. Hence the first consideration should be to obtain a good, fertile loam.

Wednesday, May 20

The activities of gardeners is at high stage at this time. The following list of plants to be grown in various city areas is recommended by the advisory staff of the Chicago metropolitan area:

Grow these in smoky area: Carrots, kale, turnips, beets, collards, Swiss chard, mustard greens, leaf or cos lettuce, radishes, onions from sets, endive, and parsley.

Grow these and the above in outlying areas: Tomatoes, lima beans, cabbage [especially Savoy cabbage], parsnips, bush beans or pole beans, peas, peppers, spinach, kohlrabi and salsify, or oyster plant.

In addition to the above grow these in large gardens where the conditions are favorable: Winter squash, sweet corn, bush squash, okra, cucumbers, mature onions from sets or seeds, celery, the green varieties and blight resistant, and eggplant.

Thursday, May 21

Many excellent varieties of garden plants are available. Most of those listed in catalogs are dependable, they have been thoroly tested before listings, and usually the gardener will grow the kind he likes best for his own use.

The chief thing is to get the work done at the right time. See that the ground is well prepared and do not wait until it dries out before planting. Make straight rows which are best running north and south. Sow small seeds in shallow rows and do not sow too thickly. The average width between rows is about 12 inches.

When the seedlings appear above ground careful hoeing or cultivating between rows should begin. A complete plant food can be applied by scattering it along both sides of the rows and carefully hoeing it into the soil.

Friday, May 22

When planting corn for home use sow several short rows rather than in a long, single row. This is to insure adequate pollination. Plant tall crops in a manner that they will not shade low-growing crops. Stake tomatoes when grown on small areas because every foot of space must be used.

Do not brush against bean plants when they are wet or covered with dew or disease may develop. Get a good sprayer and recommended spraying materials and begin using them at the very first sign of insects, and adopt a regular spraying program.

Hoe regularly and especially following a rain or the ground may pack and rapid evaporation occur. Gather all crops when in their prime. Plant flowers in the small garden rather than fuss with vegetables.

Saturday, May 23

Good vegetable land will produce fine flowers, so you should give careful consideration to soil preparation. What to grow will depend on what you want to grow, altho it is wise to limit the number of varieties. Practically all varities can be grown in the good soil and atmospheric conditions that prevail in most suburban districts, but in the city a wide variety of conditions exist which makes the selection of plant materials of first importance.

The renter can have a colorful flower garden by using only annuals. He doesn't need a coldframe. No matter what is sown the gardener should never neglect to thin the seedlings; this applies to vegetables as well. Space most annuals about nine inches apart. Begin thinning when the plants are small.

Use morning glories, hyacinth beans, scarlet runner, moonvine, cobaea or cathedral bells, or any others that appeal. The four o'clocks, whether liked or not, is one of the kinds that will grow.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

Service Tuesday Evening Honors Episcopal Acolytes

The annual service for acolytes of Chicago and vicinity will be held at St. Luke's Episcopal church, Lee and Hinman avenues, Evanston, Tuesday evening. The Rev. J. Rodger McColl, rector of Wilmette, a former acolyte of St. Martin's parish in Austin, will be the preacher. Bishop Wallace E. Conkling will pontificate.

REMODELING IS STILL POSSIBLE IN MANY CASES

Creating Extra Room Aid to Housing Problem.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Remodeling jobs which do not require critical materials can aid housing shortages by creation of extra rooms and stimulate home morale by the preservation of what we have. House maintainance, when necessary, is a defense against the arch thieves of depreciation and obsolescence, and every sturdy little home is a worthwhile unit in the nation's great housing investment.

There are many things we can do for our homes and at the same time gear our efforts to economic pressure and keep in mind the necessary repairs and renewals to keep our houses sound as a dollar.

Floors are an important item in home maintainance, and if a floor is badly worn it can be replaced, or a new factory finished floor can be laid over it. Or a material such as linoleum can appear on the home front, in a hallway or child's room, or in many different rooms.

Plenty of Flooring Available.

In most instances floors can be repaired or renewed without use of materials on the critical list.

Right now hundreds of thousands of feet of factory stained and finished hardwood flooring is meeting the needs of the present market. It is fitting itself into the great housing program as well as into individual, already built homes which need floor replacement.

This type of flooring is available in oak, beech, and maple. Flooring also can be had in wood mosaic. Much of this flooring comes from the factory waxed and polished. Some of it has slight bevels to give it a distinctive effect and make not only for easier installation but for a more perfect appearance in the room.

One type of this prefinished flooring has its oak flooring finished in medium shade, and its maple and beech finished natural. The finish used penetrates and seals the pores of the wood and is a big help in keeping out dust and grime. In addition to this seal finish, it is filled, waxed, and buffed.

Flooring also can be laid over an existing floor in a home and finished in excellent fashion by standard on the job methods. Hard maple is a flooring available in various sizes and grades, and can be had in strips or blocks to form different patterns.

Another point of interest in modern maple flooring is the fact that it is available in "natural" shades as well as in a wide range of possible color finishes to match practically any decorative scheme.

Several Shades of Color.

One can finish a hard maple floor in shades of blue or green, ebony, and early American, or brown. Long wearing, hard maple has been called one of the toughest of floorings as well as one of the softest in its beauty, and it invariably provides a lovely base for color harmony. More over, it is easy to clean and is a floor of definite sanitation, since its surface is very smooth and affords no lodging place for germs and dust.

In the capture of an extra room in the basement, paint with proper materials and preparation is an extremely satisfactory and inexpensive way of finishing a floor. There also are dyes for concrete floors available now which can be depended on for durability and are attractive.

There also are linoleums especially manufactured for use in basement game rooms. Asphalt tile also is definitely in the picture as a flooring in an "extra" basement living room, game, or recreation room.

Asphalt tile is a waterproof and handsome flooring that can be depended on to withstand hard traffic, and effective patterns can be obtained by alternating dark and light tiles.

Cottons and Clotilde Patterns Make Smart Wardrobe Companions for Summertime

By CLOTILDE

COTTONS! They're tops in a priority-hampered world of summer fashions. We shall wear them and love them, in gay stripes, clean checks, big polka dots, lush prints, dainty chintzes, ginghams, tubbable seersuckers and linenlike weaves. Make clothes of them yourself with these becoming patterns.

No. 3540—"Soft" frock in feminine sheers, designed for sizes 12 to 16 and 36 to 44. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 39-inch material.

No. 3517—Two-piecer with the look of a suit. Designed for sizes 16 and 36 to 50. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 35-inch fabric.

No. 3542—With a "V" to symbolize usefulness to your country, this utility bag will go everywhere with you. One size, a large one you'll like.

No. 3533—Dainty frock for a dainty little girl, perhaps made of dimity. Designed for sizes 2 to 8. Size 4 requires 1½ yards of 35-inch material, with 1¾ yards for ruffling.

No. 2584—Cool comfort for torrid days, a V-back dress. Designed for sizes 36 to 50. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 35-inch for dress, 1½ yards for bolero.

No. 3201—Smooth, sleek lines in side-buttoned jumper in white or pastel to complement a flowered blouse. Designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 35-inch material, with 1⅝ yards for blouse.

No. 3501—The dirndl is still the first love, "natural" for prints and daring colors. Designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 35-inch fabric, with ¾ yard contrasting and 2 yards braid.

No. 3510—This versatile jumper can play a varied rôle in your wardrobe, being especially pally with a play suit to contrast. Designed for sizes 12 to 16, 36 to 42. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 35-inch fabric.

No. 2614—This play suit follows classic mode in shirtwaist top and shorts, as smart as a tailored dress. Designed for sizes 12 to 16, 36 to 40. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 35-inch material.

No. 2615—Bolero made to wear as topper with play suits and sleeveless frocks. Its color contrast does wardrobe tricks. Designed for sizes 12 to 16, 36 to 42. Size 36 requires 1⅛ yards of 35-inch fabric.

No. 3518—Toast yourself to a delicate biscuit shade in this halter-neck play suit, cut with wonderful simplicity. Designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 2 yards of 35-inch, 2⅛ yards for bolero.

No. 2932—Ideal for "country ginghams" is this jumper dress, borrowing its lines from the flattering basque frocks. Designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 35-inch, 1⅝ yards for blouse.

No. 3254—Any girl's idea of perfection in play togs, play suit with separate skirt and contrasting bolero. Designed for sizes 6 to 14. Size 8 requires 2⅝ yards of 35-inch, with ⅝ yard for halter top.

No. 3395—Let "small fry" cavort in the sun in this princess style play suit, panties and tiny bolero. Designed for sizes 4 to 10. Size 8 requires 1¾ yards of 35-inch, 1 yard for panties, ⅝ yard for bolero.

No. 3529—Minimum yardage makes this penny-wise frock with fitted bodice and midriff and gathered skirt. Designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 35-inch material and ¼ yard for bolero.

Zion Passion Play Splendidly Acted and Expertly Staged

Drama Given Every Sunday Thru June 28

By Cecil Smith.

The greatest story in history is recounted every Sunday afternoon by more than 300 men, women, and children in the city of Zion, Ill., midway between Chicago and Milwaukee. The Zion Passion play, which will be presented weekly thru June 28, is one of the notable community artistic endeavors of the middle west, and deserves to be brought prominently to the attention of all those in the Chicago area who may not yet have become aware of its value. Zion is easy to reach, either by automobile, if your tires still hold out, or by the convenient and swift schedules of the North Shore electric railroad.

To the hardened theatergoer any amateur undertaking of mass proportions is automatically suspect from the start. A religious drama is frequently something to be approached with special trepidation, for experience has shown that religious sincerity is no substitute for effective understanding of the devices of the stage.

• • •

Before I went to Zion last Sunday, therefore, my editor was considerate enough to remind me that I was not setting forth on a typical job of professional reviewing, and that I would do well to curb any impulse toward severity of judgment. But the wonder of it all was that I found I did not need any such admonition. For nearly three and a half hours, without a single break, the audience of which I was a member sat absorbed and hushed. The Passion play was a genuinely moving experience, and one in which I am glad to have shared.

From the initial episode, a tableau in which Christus delivers the Sermon on the Mount to the throng against a beautifully executed background of the sunswept Palestine hills, to the final breathtaking representation of the Ascension, the production maintains an artistic level of remarkable dignity and power. It is in the very essence of the Passion play to treat every Scriptural incident with the fullest possible realism, but the realism of action, settings, and costumes at Zion never becomes crude, never lacks the spark of imagination, and never departs from good taste. The spectacular elements are not blown up too flamboyantly, and the emotional passages are treated with admirable reserve.

• • •

The performance of LeRoy Peacy as Christus deserves a nation-wide reputation. His is the spirit which, in a happier day, is said to have informed the Passion play actors at Oberammergau. Clearly he has identified himself with his supreme assignment so deeply and so humbly that it is not possible for a false note to creep in. He possesses a native gift of quiet, impelling speech which relieves him of any temptation to become elocutionary, and he handles the movement of his body with a carriage which is serene without suggesting effeminacy. In the Crucifixion scene his body hangs upon the cross with effortless relaxation and consummate beauty of line; in his denunciation of the money changers in the temple, by contrast, the economy of his quick, lashing thrusts has the strong, percussive effect of cannon shots.

An equally remarkable profundity of understanding is revealed in the numerous, well lighted settings. Elder Jabez Taylor, the 35 year old author and producer of the Zion Passion play, devoted his own exceptional artistic gifts to the designing of the settings, after he had spent a time in the Holy Land acquainting himself with the actual scenes of the land of Christ.

• • •

For the sake of quick scene shifting the settings are simply constructed. But their illusion is unfailingly fine, and marked by that reticence of realistic treatment which seems to me to be the most praiseworthy feature of the entire production. Several of the settings belong in the upper bracket of contemporary stage design—the altogether lovely representations, in various scenes, of the green-brown landscape, in which the special resonance of the near eastern sunlight is most successfully reproduced; the authentic yet lively restoration of period architecture in the palaces of Pilate and Herod, and in the council chamber of the plotting Sanhedrin; the atmospheric street scenes, evoking a sense of the crowded narrowness of the byways in Jerusalem, and perhaps above all the superbly simple tableau of the Crucifixion. Thruout the play the costumes, unobtrusive in their propriety, are harmoniously conceived as a part of the total color scheme and mise-en-scène.

Given under the official auspices of the Christian Catholic church, the Zion Passion play is primarily a tribute to the rare gifts of Elder Taylor, a native of England, who has been a citizen of Zion for 20 of his 35 years. He enjoys the collaboration of Sophia Swanstrom Young as drama director and of Rudolph Reiners as musical director. The musical accompaniment, which has not yet attained to as discriminating a level of taste as the rest of the production, is provided by a well rehearsed orchestra and a well played pipe organ.

• • •

The whole production, of course, absorbs the devoted efforts of the hundreds of members of the community—functioning both on stage and backstage—to whom the Passion play has become the most real and valuable experience in life. The value of the experience to the participants would in itself be sufficient justification for the project, but to those not connected with it the singular artistic merits of the Passion play provide its most urgent recommendation.

BEAUTY AND TALENT IN "HIGH KICKERS" AT ERLANGER

Ruth Carpenter. Betty Bruce. Sophie Tucker and George Jessel. Lucille Casey. Patricia Flynn.

Sophie Tucker and George Jessel have returned to Chicago in a new musical comedy called "High Kickers," sharing the Erlanger theater stage with these comely girls.

Chicago Cafes Engage Parade of Name Bands

By Will Davidson.

There is nothing, it seems, that our café men like so well as to curl up with a good booking.

They've been doing that of late, with these results:

The Palmer House finally found that elusive summer band. It will be a new one to Chicago—Tommy Tucker. Master Tucker's alliteratively labeled Tic-Toc rhythms are quite the stuff in the dim-out areas. With Tucker will be a show which so far includes his movie-bound singer, Amy Arnell; Bob Evans, familiar ventriloquist; Billy de Wolfe, master of ceremonies, and the Hermanos Williams brothers.

The Panther room of Hotel Sherman, having just introduced Bob Chester, lists nine more bands due here in the next eight months. They are Glen Gray, June 3; Glenn Miller, July 7; Duke Ellington, July 17; Charlie Spivak, August 14; Jimmy Dorsey, September 11; Woody Herman, October 12; Alvino Rey, November 6; Stan Kenton, December 4; Claude Thornhill, New Year's eve, along with Kenton, and opening a four week run the next day.

The Aragon ballroom has Sammy Kaye for two days, next Saturday and Sunday, with Ada Leonard's girl band starting a week's run Sunday as a double feature. Eddy Howard comes in May 31. Freddy Nagel's band doubles with, and then replaces, Lawrence Welk on May 24, and will costar with Ada Leonard on June 6 and 7.

Danny Kaye. [Murray Korman photo.]

Danny Kaye is a very lucky, a very smart, and a very genuine young man. Lucky for his talent and his talented wife, Sylvia Fine. Smart for utilizing his luck and his talent to elevate himself to stardom. Genuine because he's grateful, and is trying to help his friends and his country. I hopped on the Kaye bandwagon when he made his gorgeous debut at the Chez Paree several years ago. I'm more enthusiastic than ever now that he's flying here for a million dollar one night stand. He won't get any part of the million—that all goes to the government. He will get valuable attention, of course, but quality always pays off, and this is a genuine quality job Danny's doing. When the 800 or so invited guests assemble for the party Joe Jacobson and Mike Fritzel are giving at the Chez tonight—and after they've paid their $1,000 war savings bond cover charges—they'll see Danny at his energetic best. He'll do his hilarious draftee number, "Melody in 4F," and he'll probably do "Molly Malone." But best of all, for Uncle Sam, he'll auction off the talents of such stars as Sophie Tucker, George Jessel, Ethel Merman, Buddy Ebsen, and possibly Joe E. Lewis and Ray Bolger. It's a great thing, and Joe and Mike and all their committee men who have rounded up the contributing guests share the applause with Danny for a grand idea.

• • •

I doubt if you've ever seen a better show at the Edgewater Beach hotel than you'll see there now. It's one of those sleepers that sneak up on you every now and then. Outside of Will Osborne's there's not a name in the roster, but there's talent in every performer. Will has an entirely new band, a good one but not a sensational one. There's a minimum of his old slide music, but quite a lot of very good straight forward dance tunes. Dorothy Dorben is letting her girls revive their excellent and very popular Orpheus overture number, and has them doing a very cute war garden turn. Woodie and Betty, with their youth and their daring, are about the best roller skating act in many a season. And Nitza and Revell are handsome, exciting dancers. Their forte is Spanish, with a gypsy flamenco number standing out as a fine bit of interpretive dancing. Nitza's costumes are things of rare beauty, too. Will's singing, and that of charming Marianne, comprise the band's best contribution to the show.

• • •

Bob Chester is a hit in the Panther room. The tall young man who has been rising fast in the music world offers a very solid type of music which he rheostats from the mildest sort of dinner music to the loudest swing you can hear anywhere. His singers, dark and attractive Betty Bradley, and Gene Howard, who looks like Ralph [Cookie] Cook with blood, are dandies, and Elisse Cooper and her Rhythmites are a clever and entertaining quartet.

The new routine handled by the College Inn models are very clever. A farm number, built solely for fun, provides just that, and the career routine displays each girl in the rôle she plays during her daytime working hours. Paul Baron gets his well deserved break in this show, demonstrating that he is ready for big time dancing—a smart tapper with ballet finesse. Carl Marx, the clown, is as always the Sherman's ace jester.

• • •

Boswelling the Bistros:

Orrin Tucker goes into the navy in a very few days. . . . Ralph Barlow finally has left Melody Mill ballroom, after eight months. . . . Henry King, who did a smart job for the Edgewater Beach hotel in its Marine dining room, will be back to open the fall season.

LEADS ALL GIRL BAND

Beautiful Ada Leonard brings her all girl band into the Aragon ballroom next Sunday for a one week stay.

[Bloom Photo.]

POPULAR RECORDINGS

A girl singer with Wayne King! This departure from custom proves a smart move in Wayne's newest recording for Victor—"Don't Tell a Lie About Me, Dear." Linda Barrie has the same sort of soft lilt in her voice that Wayne has in his music, and it makes a good combination. The other side is "Be Brave, Beloved."

Remember "Daddy?" The boy who thought up that natural has another almost as good, at least the way Tommy Dorsey plays it. It is "Snootie Little Cutie." As contrast, Tommy revives "Moonlight on the Ganges" for the B side, which should be all right with the Dorsey set. Bob Chester, currently the hit of the Hotel Sherman's Panther room, has a unique Bluebird arrangement in "Moonlight Bay," featuring the voices of Gene Howard and Elisse Cooper and her Four Notes. The backer upper is a riotous riff tune, "Tanning Dr. Jekyll's Hyde."

Dinah Shore never seems to grow tired of singing, and her public follows suit. Now she gives Victor a grand duo, "Sleepy Lagoon" and "Three Little Sisters." Freddy Martin has picked up two old Paul Dresser classics from the movie of Dresser's life "My Gal Sal," and "On the Banks of the Wabash," and done a fine job of recording them.

• • •

Columbia has given in to priorities and is furnishing no more records for review purposes.

Drama Notes

"My Sister Eileen." Chalk up the sudden return engagement of "My Sister Eileen" to the Harris theater last night as one of the most agreeable surprises of the season. When the giddy Greenwich Village comedy of errors departed last September to make way for Cornelia Otis Skinner in "Theater," the town lost a group of stage friends of 32 weeks' standing, and it lost one of the freshest and most continually amusing light plays of the last few seasons.

Effie Afton. [Romaine Photo.]

Now it is back with us again, at hardly more than half the former price, and with Marcy Wescott, Effie Afton, Philip Loeb, and Guy Robertson still in the cast. Of these players, Miss Afton will be a new Ruth to those who saw the play before, unless they happened to see it in the last fortnight, after Miss Afton had taken over from Audrey Christie. Originally cast in the shorter rôle of Violet, Miss Afton was promoted in time to play the part of the older and wiser sister thruout the entire road tour which has occupied the company from September until now. A review of last night's opening will appear in the main news section of tomorrow's final editions.

American service men in London to the number of 25 nightly will receive free seats to "Watch on the Rhine," which was recently brought to the London stage for the first time. Herman Shumlin, American producer of the Lillian Hellman drama, will share the expense with Miss Hellman herself.

Notes of the Theater

"Watch on the Rhine," beginning its second week at the Grand Opera house, won a magnificent press from all the Chicago reviewers, as it should have, by every right. Since contracts with several leading members of the cast are subject to a summer vacation from June 1 to Sept. 15, the engagement here is limited to three weeks—an exceedingly short period for the season's most valuable play. May 30 is the closing date. A word to the wise. . . .

A new Yiddish comedy, "A Child for Sale," arrives at the Studebaker theater tomorrow evening for a week's stay. Featured performers in the comedy are two celebrated Yiddish couples, Nathan and Rose Goldberg, and Jacob and Betty Jacobs. Others in the cast are Max Kletter, Ann Toback, Leon Seidenberg, Mildred Block, Bennie Zeidman, and Rebecca Richman. Music is provided by a boys' choir and a cantors' chorus. Nathan Goldberg directed the performance. Altho the Goldberg and Jacob combination has presented more than 80 productions, "A Child for Sale" marks their Chicago debut.

Chaz Chase, of George Jessel's "High Kickers" at the Erlanger theater, has been diverting theater patrons with his whimsical pantomime and his odd taste for feasting upon lighted cigars and matches for more than 20 years now. Earlier in his career he occupied featured spots in the "Ziegfeld Follies" and the "Vanities." The lighted matches and cigars, he says, "burn out the ulcers."

"Blithe Spirit," the Noel Coward farce now entering its final week at the Selwyn theater, makes one of its many claims to uniqueness in its possession of two feminine ghosts—impersonated by Annabella and Carol Goodner. In the past most stage ghosts have been male, like the Shakespearean ghosts of Banquo in "Macbeth" and of Hamlet's father. Two feminine quasi-ghosts, who were actually dream ladies rather than spectral images, were the Duchess of Towers in "Peter Ibbetson" and the angel portrayed by Vera Zorina in "I Married an Angel."

Marlo Dwyer, one of the beauties in "Good Night Ladies," at the Blackstone, is a discovery of Orson Welles. Before making her debut in films she had experience in radio and legitimate stock. While on the San Diego radio she was heard and seen by a film scout, who called her to Welles' attention.

"The Farmer's Wife," by Eden Philpotts, is the final attraction of the Goodman theater season. The engagement of the play, which opened last Thursday, continues thru May 27, with a matinée this Thursday and a single Sunday evening performance a week from tonight.

Vaudeville shows are multiplying at a boom rate. In addition to "Headliners of '42," dated into the Grand Opera house here on June 10, and the three current variety shows in New York, Ed Wynn contemplates a June opening on Broadway with a similar show, involving in addition to himself, Jane Froman, Smith and Dale, Romo Vincent, and the De Marcos, with Emil Coleman's orchestra in the pit. Out on the west coast Frank Fay is getting together a similar unit, the personnel of which has not been disclosed.

Vaudeville

Phil Regan, the popular night club entertainer and singer, shares first billing on the Chicago theater stage this week with Johnny Burke, veteran comedian, known as "No. 158 of War I"; the ballroom dance team of Mario and Floria, and an acrobatic act with a misplaced apostrophe in their name, correctly listed as "The Herzog's." The Chicago theater ballet also takes part, with productions of a fire dance and a number called "Martial Moods." The picture is "To the Shores of Tripoli."

Bill Robinson. [Krugimann Photo.]

Bill Robinson, the one and only "Bojangles," brings his glittering tap dancing to the Oriental theater this week. This great performer, last seen here in "The Hot Mikado," heads his own All Colored Revue, which features Ernie Fields and his swing band. Performers in the stage bill also include Ross and McLain, dancers; Jimmy Smith, novelty dancer; Estelle Edson, singer, and Mel Moore, tenor. "A Gentleman at Heart" is on the screen.

Playhouse Anniversary.

The famous Pasadena Playhouse celebrates its 25th anniversary this summer. From June 22 to Aug. 15 the playhouse will present comedies "written by eight outstanding American humorists."

DANCING COMEDIENNE

Ana Rivera is the pert dancing comedienne of the new vaudeville revue at Harry's New Yorker. Jackie Green, popular master of ceremonies, is the holdover star.

New Company in Chicago Will Present Opera in English

Modern Dress, Popular Prices to Be the Rule

By Edward Barry.

Opera as produced in the major American houses has so many things the matter with it that cataloging its ailments has become one of the greatest indoor sports of musicians and the music-conscious public.

John Neher. [Maurice Photo.]

They claim that the languages in which it is customarily sung are unintelligible to the vast majority of audiences, that its production methods are ponderous, antiquated and often absurd, that it seeks to make sheer expensiveness atone for deficiency of intelligence and imagination, that puts the emphasis on "name" singers rather than on excellence of ensemble, that its répertoire is preposterously small and almost unchanging, that it is aristocratic rather than democratic art, that it is sicklied over with cant and hypocrisy, that its cultural pretensions are hollow, and that it has failed completely to recommend itself to the American people as a natural, refreshing and exalting form of art.

• • •

This is a terrific indictment and—what is worse—much of it is true. Of course, another bulging paragraph, equally sound, could easily be written about the genuine values of American methods of producing opera, but our purpose here is not to start, much less to settle, a controversy. Rather is this article designed as a salute to a new producing group which has valiantly vowed to cure opera's major ills with one comprehensive operation.

The new group is Penthouse opera, a Chicago outfit, and it will make its bow to the local public in a Fullerton hall [Art institute] presentation of Nicolai's "The Merry Wives of Windsor" next Friday night.

The performances will be in English, in modern dress, and will use two piano accompaniments. Staging and general production, according to the sponsors, will be light, deft, and in the musical comedy rather than the traditional operatic manner. Reasonably priced local people rather than costly imported singers will be used. Rehearsals will be thoro. Patrons will be offered an opportunity to become acquainted with a sparkling opera which, except for its ubiquitous overture, is virtually unknown. The audience will not be stratified according to wealth or social position, for there are no boxes in Fullerton hall and the seats are all offered at one low price.

• • •

Most important of all, the public will not be asked to give its support to Penthouse opera for any vague reasons having to do with culture or self-improvement. If the performance does not recommend itself on the score of sheer delight, and if it does not create a desire to come back and see and hear similar performances in the future, then the project will be a failure.

What is more, the sponsors will have burned their bridges behind them. They cannot say, even if they should be so inconsistent as to want to do so, that the public simply did not understand.

• • •

If "The Merry Wives of Windsor" is a success, the group has other works up its sleeve for performance next season—"The Marriage of Figaro," "Don Pasquale," "The Bat," and some unspecified modern American work. By the way, Penthouse opera derives its name from Seattle's Penthouse theater, which gave performances in the penthouse of an office building. Penthouse opera's ideas of répertoire and production are related to those of New York's Nine o'Clock opera, a group which stresses the small, the entertaining and the intelligible rather than the expensive and the grandiose.

Hans Rosenwald, resident musicologist and critic, is artistic director of Penthouse opera. Ernst Gebert, west coast conductor and once a member of the staff of the Berlin State opera, is musical director. The group's secretary-treasurer is Paul E. Thurlow, and the advisory board consists of the following persons: Rudolph Ganz, Rossetter G. Cole, Lois Watt North, Richard De Young, Thomas North, Richard De Young, Ralph McAllister, Edward Collins, Elizabeth Moore Getz, Mrs. Louis Gottschalk, and Elizabeth Ayres Kidd.

"The Merry Wives of Windsor" will be sung by Georgia Anagnost [Mrs. Ford], Josephine Swinney [Mrs. Page], Lawrence Davidson [Ford], and John Neher [Falstaff]. Rosenwald will be the narrator and Kurt Wohlgemuth will oversee the dramatic production.

Tickets [$1 each] may be ordered by mail from Penthouse Opera, 10 South La Salle street, Room 700, or may be obtained at the offices of Music News, 310 South Michigan avenue, or from Mrs. Henry Getz, 64 Clifton avenue, Highland Park.

• • •

Carl Otto Ehrenfried Nicolai, composer of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," was an early 19th century German musician who lived only 39 years and who is remembered now principally for his tuneful Shakespearean opera.

Written to a text by Rosenthal based on the Shakespeare comedy, "The Merry Wives of Windsor" relates, with only minor changes, the story which has been made familiar to American opera audiences by Verdi's "Falstaff."

TO SING TUESDAY NIGHT

Carol Wood, soprano, will appear in joint recital with Louise Barnhart, mezzo-soprano, in the Young American Artists series at Curtiss hall Tuesday night.

Current Music News

The Jewish People's Choral society, Eugene Malek, director, will mark its 28th year with a concert at the Great Northern theater this afternoon. The soloist will be Lawrence Davidson, bass-baritone. The program includes many unfamiliar works, the most arresting of which is a cantata said to have been written by Liszt in 1834 under the title, "In Praise of Toil." It is to be produced today with a new text and a new name, "Our Country Calls."

Margaret Bonds and Frances Kraft will give a program of two piano music at Kimball hall this afternoon. The former is a Chicago born pianist and composer, the latter a New York pianist. The artists do not commit themselves as to the makeup of the program. Instead, they submit what they call "a typical program." It consists of two chorales and a prelude of Bach, a Mozart sonata, an Arensky suite, two Negro spirituals and the Coronation Scene from Mussorgsky's "Boris Godunoff."

Nik Krevitsky. [Hatfield Photo.]

Ruth Hatfield, Marjorie Parkin, and Nik Krevitsky will be seen in a modern dance program at the Chicago Woman's Club theater Wednesday. An unusual feature of the evening will be a set of "Dances to Poetry" by Miss Parkin. There is to be an important American sequence divided into "These Our People" ["The Negro," "The Youth," "The Refugee"] and Ballads of the American Revolution ["Yankee Doodle," "Free America"]. A "Horse-Hair" suite will seek to evoke the time "'way back, when father was a boy." Mabel Rarick will be at the piano for all dances requiring that instrument except the first, a dance of introduction called "Presentation." For this, Katherine Hart, who composed the music to the dance, will play. The choreography for the program is by the trio. All solos were composed by the performers themselves.

The Northwestern University School of Music will sponsor a faculty recital at Lutkin hall, Evanston campus, this afternoon. The Mozart quartet in G [K.387] and the Brahms clarinet quintet in B minor [opus 115] will enlist the services of Arcule Sheasby, Robert Quick, George Dasch, Dudley Powers, and Domenico DeCaprio—first and second violin, viola, cello, and clarinet, respectively. The starting time is 4 o'clock.

The University of Chicago choir, Mack Evans, director, will begin a spring concert in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel one half hour later—at 4:30. The choir will be assisted by the Fourth Presbyterian Church choir, Barret Spach, director, and the University Symphony orchestra, Charles Buckley, conductor. The soloists are to be Maurine Parzybok, contralto; Paul Nettinga, tenor; Bruce Foote, baritone, and Frederick Marriott, organist. The composers represented on the program are Gibbons, Schuetz, Bach, Gluck, Brahms, Bortniansky, Holst, Rachmaninoff, and Vaughan Williams. Transept and gallery seats are free. There will be a nominal charge for nave seats.

The Teutonia Male chorus, William Albach, director, will celebrate its 75th anniversary with a concert at the Germania club this afternoon. It will be supported by the Walter Steindel orchestra. Nora Gale, soprano, and David Johnson, tenor, will appear as soloists. The purpose of the chorus has been to promote musical culture among the German-Americans of Chicago and to better their understanding of their adopted country by introducing them to such typically American works as the songs of Stephen Foster. That the chorus does provide a valuable service is indicated by the fact that two of its men, William Schultz and Adolph Gill, have been members for 50 years. Today's program will range from simple American and German songs to the works of such standard composers as Beethoven, Schumann, Bizet and Verdi. Mr. Albach will also direct a composition of his own, an overture entitled "Madonna Motif."

Louise Barnhart and Carol Wood, mezzo-soprano and soprano, respectively, will be presented in joint debut recital in Charline Marmein's Young American Artists series in Curtiss hall Tuesday evening. The duets on the program will include excerpts from Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" and Delibes' "Lakme." In addition each artist will have three short solo groups in the course of which a variety of Italian, German, French, and American music will be heard.

The Midwest Conference of Male Choruses has arranged a mammoth concert for Saturday evening in the Medinah temple, Cass and Ohio streets. The participants will be 1,500 men from four midwestern states—lawyers, lathe workers, physicians, accountants, engineers, etc. Hosts will be members of the Illinois Male Chorus association. Officers are Peter Olson, president; Leslie S. Larson, vice president; Edawrd Hermann, secretary treasurer, and F. Robert Morgan, historian. The Midwest conference is composed of associations of Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Illinois, with an approximate membership of 2,500 men.

The concerts of Viennese music which were to have been given in the Civic Opera house on May 29 and 30 under Robert Stolz' direction have been postponed until next October.

KITTY DAVIS BACK HOME

Kitty Davis is back in Chicagoland, at her old stand on Dempster road. This time Kitty is featuring week-end shows, with name acts in many spots. Bobby Ramos and his band play for shows and dancing six nights a week.

Critic Praises Puppet Opera at Kungsholm

By Cecil Smith.

Chicago now possesses a year round opera company, offering performances six times a week, 52 times a year. To be sure, the singing actors are puppets, and the music issues from the throat of a concealed phonograph amplifier. But do not be deceived by the miniature scale of the productions; I saw a performance of "La Traviata" not long ago which was more handsomely staged and costumed and considerably better sung than any I have experienced at the full sized Civic Opera house in a good many seasons.

This tiny but professional opera company functions as an adjunct of the Kungsholm restaurant, on Rush and Ontario streets. From the lavish scale on which it is maintained, it can scarcely be a profit making enterprise for Fredrik A. Chramer, the genial and urbane host of the Kungsholm. Performances are given after dinner each evening from Monday thru Friday, at 8:30, and after luncheon on Saturday, at 2:30.

• • •

Mr. Chramer confesses that he has loved puppet opera since his boyhood, and that his present miniature opera company is the fulfilment of many years' dreaming. He has spared nothing to make his theater, his stage and his performances both complete and beautiful.

On the top floor of the handsome mansion of which the restaurant occupies the lower floors, he has turned the former ballroom into a most cheerful theater of modern design, with enough deep and comfortable chairs to seat perhaps a hundred spectators. The simple and quiet lines of the wall converge upon the miniature stage, with its proscenium copied from that of the Civic Opera house. [How handsome that proscenium is when it is isolated from the 1929 gingerbread of the rest of the opera house's decorative scheme!] Above the proscenium is lettered, in Danish, an inscription from the Royal Opera house in Copenhagen, "More than Mere Entertainment."

• • •

Mr. Chramer is wont to herd his guests into the opera theater with considerable firmness, for it is his basic credo that the performance must begin, continue and end on time, like any performance in any big time opera house. The house lights darken, the footlights flood the rich little curtain, "Tosci," the conductor, appears in the orchestra pit, and the members of the orchestra begin the overture under his amazingly precise, accurate, and varied beat.

The visual realism of the orchestra and the exactness with which the conductor's movements are coördinated with the musical score give a hint of the expertness of the production which is to follow. The curtain rises upon the first act of "La Traviata," revealing a setting both sumptuous and tasteful. The tiny guests at Violetta's party behave with typical well bred operatic poise, and Violetta herself enters, looking radiant in her period gown. Music and action proceed smoothly; one quickly becomes adjusted to the small dimensions, and everything begins to seem completely real. The stage direction is authentic, and the import of the story is projected quite as effectively as it ever is in a larger opera house. And most wonderful of all, every one of the singers is in excellent voice. At the Kungsholm you will never hear a Violetta with a cold. Even tho she is ravaged with consumption, I have never thought it helped to see and hear a Violetta who suffered from a real nose and throat affliction.

• • •

The backstage equipment of the Kungsholm opera house borders upon the unbelievable. Even the Civic Opera house does not have a light switchboard more completely designed to produce every nuance of modern lighting. The sound reproduction is the best, I think, that I have ever heard. In the wings backstage are stored the settings and costumed puppets for all the operas, within easy reach of the scene shifters.

The settings are perhaps the most fascinating aspect of the whole project. Made perfectly to scale and with the utmost fidelity to the smallest detail, they are made of richer and more costly materials than any full sized opera company could ever afford. Certainly I have never seen a mounting of "La Traviata" which gave so convincing an impression of both luxury and genuinely discriminating taste.

• • •

The present repertory consists of "La Traviata," "Il Trovatore," "Cavalleria Rusticana," and "Pagliacci." In process of painstaking preparation is Charpentier's "Louise." In fact, the production was almost finished a fortnight ago, and may even now be ready for public approval. Other operas will be added as quickly as time permits. But Mr. Chramer will not allow any haste or any skimping. Every operatic performance at Kungsholm must measure up to his own stern standards. No impresario ever kept a firmer grip upon his company: there are not going to be any bad performances at Kungsholm, and he is on the spot every night to see that all goes well—and to experience the nightly surprise and satisfaction of his guests.

Concerts at Robin Hood Dell to Go on as Usual

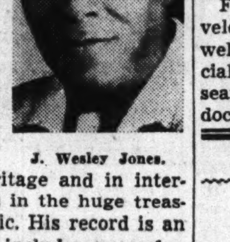
Philadelphia's outdoor summer orchestral concerts at Robin Hood dell will continue this summer as usual. By way of innovation, Thursday nights will be "popular" in nature, with music by Cole Porter, Richard Rodgers, Jerome Kern, Irving Berlin, Sigmund Romberg, and other composers of light music.

Notes of Music and Musicians

The Illinois WPA Symphony orchestra, which has been tireless in its search for novelties and which has established a reputation as one of the most consistently forward looking of the country's major symphonic ensembles, will go back to Bach with a vengeance at its concert in the Eighth Street theater tomorrow night and present an entire evening of the works of that composer. However, even in dealing with a standard composer, this orchestra can be relied on to find an off the beaten track item. This time it is the "Coffee" cantata, a secular work dealing with an 18th century father's chagrin at his wayward daughter's love for coffee. The program will open with the beautiful aria, "Sheep May Safely Graze," arranged for orchestra by John Barbirolli. Other works to be presented are an organ prelude and fugue in G minor which is not either of the familiar works in that key, the concerto for two violins in D minor, and the second Brandenburg concerto. Leo Kopp will conduct. The soloists are to be Lois Wallner, soprano; Kenneth Morrow, tenor; Edward Stack, baritone, and Helene Goldenberg and Arthur Tabachnick, violinists.

The free midday "Victory" concert to be presented in Fullerton hall in the Art institute Wednesday will offer Beethoven's sextet for two horns and string orchestra, the Ravel Pavane for a Dead Infanta, and the polka from Shostakovich's ballet, "The Golden Age." Leo Kopp will conduct and Charles Jackson and Otto Lukas take the solo horn parts.

The Metropolitan Church choir, which regularly, year in and year out, serves the cause of choral music in Chicago's great south side Negro community, will emerge into the limelight of Orchestra hall tomorrow evening for a gala spring concert. It will be directed by J. Wesley Jones and [for one group] by Frank Palmer, and will feature two soloists—Clara Bolton, soprano, and Maurice Cooper, tenor. The program includes many Negro spirituals as well as excerpts from the works of standard composers.



J. Wesley Jones.

Mr. Jones, who for 21 years has been presenting music festivals at the Metropolitan Community church, is executive secretary, past president, and charter member of the National Association of Negro Musicians. He has been successful in training his own people musically and making them conscious of their great musical heritage and in interesting other races in the huge treasury of Negro music. His record is an enviable one, and includes many festival and other appearances outside his regular church routine. Among his honors has been a trophy presented by the Chicago Defender for his exceptional work in the training of a 500 voice children's chorus. Charles Wakefield Cadman has dedicated an anthem to the Metropolitan choir and its director.

The 1942 Berkshire Symphonic festival, which will be presented at Tanglewood, between Stockbridge and Lenox, Mass., from July 30 to Aug. 16, will consist of nine concerts by the Boston Symphony orchestra under Serge Koussevitzky's direction. Concerts will be given on Thursday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon.

The American Opera company will present Verdi's "Il Trovatore" at Kimball hall tonight. Rosaltha Hale and Salvatore Piraino will sing Leonora and Manrico, respectively. Joseph C. Banahan is to conduct.

Dedicate N. U. Tech Building June 15 and 16

By the Rev. John Evans.

Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, and Charles F. Kettering, vice president of the General Motors corporation, will deliver the principal addresses at the dedication of the Technological institute of Northwestern university June 15 and 16. Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the board of the Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust company, is chairman of the committee for the dedication. Ceremonies will be held in the new $5,000,000 building which was made possible by the gift of Walter P. Murphy. Representatives of industries, scientific groups, and educational institutions will be invited to attend. Six conferences on technological and scientific subjects will be conducted by nationally known authorities.

Dr. John A. Wieland, Illinois superintendent of public instruction, issued a statement recently in which he urged women interested in hospital work to register immediately for instruction in the medical field.

"There is a desperate need for women employés in all phases of hospital work," Dr. Wieland declared, "and it is essential for the welfare of our country that this need be met. With doctors, nurses, dentists, and medical workers of every type being called daily to serve with expeditionary forces and in the camps, every girl and woman should consider it an honor to do her part in promoting the health program of our nation. If women and girls want to help their country and at the same time get paying jobs with good opportunities I urge them to contact their nearest hospital or medical center."

A survey of the field was made under the direction of Mrs. Anne V. Zinser, general chairman of the women's executive committee, in collaboration with the state office of public instruction.

Sister Mary Augustina, B. V. M., head of the department of history at Mundelein college, has received a grant in aid from the Social Science Research council for a study of Latin American relations with the United States during the Revolutionary war.

Founded in 1923 to assist in the development of an adequate number of well trained research workers in social sciences, the Social Science Research council offers a series of postdoctoral fellowships and grants in aid to scholars whose capacity for productive research has, in the opinion of the committee, been effectively demonstrated.

In 1939 Sister Mary Augustine received the Dunning award of Columbia university for the best dissertation on American history published under the auspices of the university history department between 1935 and 1938.

In 1938, some months before Hitler began his march across Europe, the music school of the University of Wisconsin obtained from Nazi Germany a set of 51 volumes known as the Bach-Gesellschaft edition. The set is one of the few in this country and contains all of Bach's compositions. The complete works of Handel and Purcell were obtained last fall from war torn England. Stranded somewhere in Germany at the present time is a complete Brahms, which the music school was unable to obtain because of Nazi export restrictions.

The music school's fast growing collection of rare recordings, manuscripts, and texts also includes an original history of music written in 1562 by the Italian author and composer, Gioseffo Zarlino; a series of Gregorian chants recorded by the Solesmes monks in France, and a group of early American folk songs and ballads.

Riverview Park Opens 39th Season Wednesday

Riverview park's two mile midway, colorful in its new dress of paint, lighting, and shrubbery, will open for the 39th season Wednesday. A new half mile ride, the Comet, has been added to the many concessions which last year provided thrills for the park's 3 million customers. Old standbys in the same field that will be running again this season are the famous high speed "Bobs," the 20 story high "Pair-o-chutes," and the double Ferris wheel, and the "Flying Turns."

The Jivin' Jacks and Jills and Woody Herman and His Orchestra

By Mae Tinee.

Good morning!

KIND: Farce comedy.

STORY: A bunch of jive artists—all very young—find themselves out on a limb. . . . No jobs. . . . They are given haven at the estate of one Anne, a radio star, who lives next door to the rich Mrs. Courtney, who sponsors a certain commodity and whose tastes run to the highah things, my deahs. . . . Gloria Jean is her niece. . . . Charles Butterworth is her husband. Anyhow he sits around the house and knits and offers suggestions and such.

Gloria—or Sue in the picture—becomes acquainted with the interesting new neighbors and thru her good offices and those of her sissy uncle plus much diplomatic work by the jivers, the advertising manager and Woody Herman and his orchestra—also parking on Anne's lot—everything comes out right for the right people to the tune of much music and dancing. I. E.—Art's out—Jive's in.

ACTING: Quite keen.

DIRECTION: Clever.

SETS, SCENERY, PHOTOGRAPHY and the LIKE: Qu-ITE all right!

AUDIENCE APPEAL: A lot. The piece is fun—really!

See you tomorrow.

Mother Should Gain Confidence of Teen Age Girl

Being Pal to Child Helps to Guide Her

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Altho the writer of the following communication is mistaken in saying that the letter she refers to was quoted in my column, her reaction to it is well worth the attention of a great many mothers of younger teen age daughters. The problem she discusses does appear frequently in my correspondence but gets into this column only occasionally. This is the letter:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I've been 'riled up' all day since reading your letter from the parents who have asked you what to do about their 14 year old who runs around with boy friends and has been caught smoking. I am of the opinion that the parents are the problem, and not the child, and they should have the woodshed session.

"I have a daughter, just 14, and this morning I read this letter to her and asked what she thought should be done. She said 'I don't think there should be any woodshed session. I think her mother should get together with her little girl for a nice talk. You know when we have talks, you always get me to see things your way.'

"Personally, I think this mother has forgotten to be a pal to her little girl, and she has forgotten that she is a little girl. I say little, because at 14 she is only a baby and should be getting to bed at 9, and be so busy with her education that she hasn't time for boys and above all smoking."

"I would take this little youngster, if she were mine, and make a real friend of her. We'd go downtown on shopping trips, to shows together, and have lunches in some nice place. I'd point out to her that, while some of our best friends smoked, it was best for her health that she wait until older. I would take her into my confidence and show her how young girls have made grave mistakes at her age and paid for them the rest of their lives.

"I wouldn't force it on her too fast, but I would gradually make her see that I am genuinely interested in her health and in her getting the most out of her education while she has a chance, and that I want her to grow up innocent, but not ignorant, and with a sound body. I would also see that she had plenty of responsibilities of her own. I'd get her interested in some sewing, and I would let her do some baking; but most of all I would make her like me and look up to me, which is what most children don't do today.

"I have been working since my daughter was 4, and she has seen some pretty hard times. Many is the time I have had to turn to her for her opinion, and now that we can't afford a maid any longer I have given her the responsibilities at home. She thinks it is fun to bake a cake, and now she is learning to knit. She looks after her younger sister and is responsible for the care of her own room. She gets the dinner almost ready at night, practices her music, and sees that her sister does, too. She has no time to hang around drugstore corners, and on Saturdays the girls get the morning work done and then come down to meet me for lunch at a restaurant. Sometimes we go to a show, and other times just shop; and they will tell any one that there isn't any one they would rather go places with than mother.

"I sometimes get qualms and wonder if I am being too strict; but the other day I had a group of their little friends in for a 14 year old birthday party. It happens we live in a neighborhood where there are many foreign born, and most of the little girls were from very large families. We all had a real 'gossip,' as we called it, and I was delighted to learn that these girls really envied my daughter because she had a mother she could talk to; and also that they, too, thought it was wonderful that I let her bake and sew and do other things with me.

• • •

"My daughter has never asked to go out with a boy alone. She thinks she is too young. She has her opinions about a young girl who smokes and who hangs around drugstore corners. She has these opinions because I put them there, but she doesn't know it. If I had educated her to think it was smart to smoke, she probably would be doing it. I haven't told her it was wrong, just that I thought it wasn't good for the health of a young girl.

"The whole thing amounts to getting their confidence and keeping it, and keeping them busy every minute they have to spare. Children are what we make them. Our life is the pattern of their life, and if we play the game square, they will too. There are exceptions of course, but back of every exception there is a reason. I don't believe there is any girl or boy that is really bad without a reason, and the parents and the home are usually the reason. Our lives should be their model, and if they love us they will be".

I, too, believe there is no better way to influence our children than to gain their love and friendship and trust.

How can the teacher help the self-effacing child? What can be done for the left-handed boy or girl? Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Of all beauty boons, the foundation that makes the skin moist and smooth as a baby's, preparing it suavely for a good makeup and, at the same time contributing to its softening program, is one of the greatest. The right foundation can give at least the illusion of better texture and better skin tone to the complexion that has lost its bloom.

Not many of us can hope to go past childhood with a complexion that retains the perfection of a baby's. Too many factors of health, inheritance, and exposure change the picture as time marches on. But science and beauty education have done wonders since the fairly recent days when the woman of 30 was regarded as a pathetic relic.

It's entirely possible, by good care, to preserve skin texture reasonably well far into maturity, and past it. Best of all, it's possible now to give the ILLUSION of finer texture to skin that has lost its bloom.

• • •

The modern foundations are among the greatest beauty boons we have. They not only glamorize, but help preserve the complexion. We think every mature woman should use one, especially if her skin is the dry kind that ages much too rapidly for comfort.

• • •

There is a new one, for example, that serves as more than a velvety base for makeup. It's one of those miracles of modern beauty science, a thin, creamy liquid, to be applied with the fingertips, that gives the skin the moist, invisible veiling that makes powder adhere long and flatteringly. In addition to this gift to the skin that must be made up suavely, it is, in its own way, something of a softener and a protective. It contributes the lubrication the hungry dry skin needs while it's on. The makeup never breaks down into an oily mess while it's being worn. Quite the contrary. Without being masklike in the least, the makeup is beautiful, naturally "set."

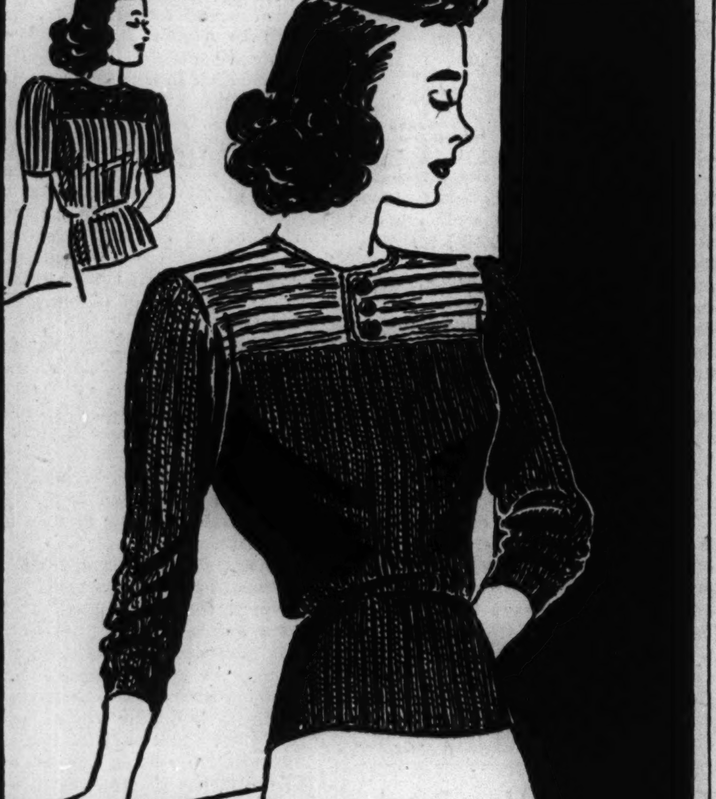
Some one used the word "ermine" in describing the finish this gives to thhe skin. It's almost right. The skin feels as smooth as ermine, and as soft, when it's coated, ever so lightly, with this new, easy to apply foundation that cherishes skin softness while it enhances its appearance!

[For information about this foundation, telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0200, or write to her in care of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for written reply.]

"Good Posture Is Patriotic" says Antionette Donnelly in her Graphic section article today.

Eleanor Nangle, "thru her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

Long Torso Jacket



By Jean Macdonald.

Knitted jackets of the long torso type are favorites, and the ribbing thruout the sweater is an added attraction. The yoke is worked separately and may be of the same or a contrasting color. The sleeves are becoming, whether long or short.

For instructions in knitting the ribbed, long torso sweater, No. 1002, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing costs, to the needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

There are a number of ways of silencing squeaky floors, and while each squeak is more or less a squeak problem of its own, there are general helpful methods which can solve the great majority of cases without too much trouble and expense. . . . Sometimes where rubbing is noticed along an open joint one can pack powdered graphite into the joint and then follow with a penetrating oil. . . . Or again our old standby, talcum powder, will sometimes silence a squeak if the squeak is due to one board rubbing against another. . . . Just try sifting powder into joint. . . . We've prepared a leaflet we'll be glad to send you on ways of getting rid of floor and stair squeaks.

Very old type doors, discouraged and down at the heel doors, can be converted into handsome flush panel doors by use of certain boards—and then made very easy to look at by paint which blends with the rest of the room.

Something different and of interest if you are looking for a floor covering this spring. . . . It is a new resilient material which comes in more than a dozen colors and offers many possibilities for interesting designs. . . . It is manufactured of nonfibrous plastic compounds bounded under great pressure to a heavy saturated felt in squares of different sizes: such as 6 by 6, 12 by 12, and 9 by 12.

Shortages, compromises, deprivations [still pretty mild] being the order of our day, it occurs to us that there are certain things, not confined to the physical world in which we live, that might be viewed in the light of defense work; certain things that would add appreciably to the well being of our people; things that would moderate the economic stress to an appreciable degree. Finally, certain things that would contribute notably to the morale of the home and its inhabitants.

What we have in mind is ordering out, for the duration, emotional outbursts, angry words, caustic remarks, wilful unkindnesses, and substituting, in their place, a program of behavior better adapted to maintain cheer, courage, love, and harmony. If we could so discipline ourselves, if we could meet every emergency, big and little, with an even tempered reception, what a successful war we could wage on divorce, estrangement, and unhappiness generally.

It's worth considering, isn't it?

• • •

Well, it is a time of, and for, discipline, believe us. If our sons and the enlisted men thruout the country can bow down to disciplinary commands, surely it is not asking too much of women to forgo carping, whining, and spoiled baby emotional orgies for the duration. Your man in the service can't, and doesn't, fight back when things are not to his liking. He can't sulk or offer argument.

Naturally, women are not being recruited into military discipline in this suggested movement of ours. We are only pleading for that bigger cause and the conduct that will more surely fulfill its success. In other words, we are pleading for less emphasis on the things you think so necessary to your personal happiness and conduct, proving that you can relegate self-interest to its proper place in our current day.

• • •

So, for the duration, women, give up nagging, finding fault, heckling in the home. Pretend, when the temptation assails you, that an imaginary voice cries: "Attention. Turn right!" Then turn right, with a word or comment from which every vestige of sting has been extracted We're not pleading for Pollyanna conversion, only reasonableness with the injection of such human kindness as will insure unwounded feelings. With self-discipline, a reproof, where necessary, may be made infinitely more effective when delivered in even, calm tones than in screaming ones.

It's time for a revival, too, of good old-fashioned manners in the home, since their observance oils the wheels nicely. When favors are asked by one member of another, remember there are no priorities on "Will you, please?" or on the "Thank you" when the favor is granted.

• • •

It's time, likewise, for distributing cheer widely. When the man of the house does some chore, some extra little kindness, be generous with appreciation. In fact, you don't have to wait for an expression of help from him. Give him "the works" in flattery as to what a grand person he is. You won't spoil him, don't worry about that. And your reward won't be in that distant heaven where rewards are promised for good deeds. You'll have your own little heaven right where you are, something of your own creation, for nothing is truer than that you earn your happiness, and the short cut to earning it, as you well know, is dispensing it.

Don't complain about your changed economic status. Face it cheerfully to make it easier for that provider who is doing his best and, probably, worrying his head off into the bargain.

• • •

We've got to win this war, women! Others will acquaint you with defense organization work in its manifold branches and your duty in that direction, but we feel not half enough emphasis is attached to this matter of self-discipline in home relationships. Home has to be a refuge today. It has to be a place where outside troubles can be dropped temporarily. It must offer solace, love, and kindness. Self, we repeat, the pursuit of personal happiness, personal gain, personal pleasures, must be subjugated for the time being, or our cause will be lost.

Women have rallied wonderfully to the call for workers in defense organizations, proving that they have it in them to adapt themselves to changes in their programs. We feel that all they need to readapt their sometimes wayward temperaments to a smoother mode of conduct is that word to the wise which is sufficient under other circumstances.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey

"He loves me, he loves me not." Daisies won't tell, but sunflowers will, and they say that the fellow would have to be blind in both eyes not to love you in this halter frock with huge sunflowers on the skirt.

It's an easy fashion trick to make this dress. The lines are simple and figure-flattering, and the shoulderline laughs at torrid temperature readings. I made the original of this model of yellow chambray with the appliqued sunflowers in a deeper yellow with dark brown centers.

The applique for the posies comes with the pattern, but there's still another trick you can use. Cut the huge blossoms from boldly patterned chintz and sew them on the skirt on this dress.

Style No. T-8771 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 35 inch material for dress; ¼ yard of 35 inch for flower petals and ⅛ yard of 35 inch for flower centers.

Bridegroom's Formal Dress Suits the Hour

When should invitations to bridal showers be sent out? Questions such as this are answered in the booklet, "The Bridal Shower," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

Wedding attire for the men is a popular question at the etiquet bureau this season of the year. The war, of course, has solved the problem for many bridegrooms. They have no choice of costume. There is not so much as a choice of uniform, in fact. They wear the same uniform they've been wearing every other day of the week with, perhaps, one little concession to the formality of the occasion, consisting of a black bow tie instead of the regulation four-in-hand.

• • •

Not so for civilian men.

Now and up until the first of June, formal afternoon attire for men consists of the gray and black striped trousers and cutaway coat. If the plans for the wedding are simpler and less exacting in the dress requirements, the gray and black trousers and a plain black or oxford gray sack coat, instead of a cutaway, is the best choice of costume.

When the wedding takes place in the evening, after 6, evening clothes take the spotlight. This means white tie and tails for the ultraformal, and dinner jacket for the semiformal.

• • •

After June 1 there is another alternative, that of summer formal. White flannels with a dark blue or oxford gray jacket are correct for both afternoon and evening. With white trousers the bridegroom wears white shoes.

And for evening only there is the summer tuxedo, consisting of black tuxedo trousers and a white, or natural colored, tuxedo coat. Any white suit jacket will not do. It should be a white tuxedo coat. And remember, it is only for evening. It is no more suitable for afternoon wear than the all black tuxedo is. With the black trousers, wear black shoes.

Home Owners' Queries

Peoria, Ill.—[To the Home Building Editor]—It seems to me that I have heard of a nonslip floor coating for concrete or wood floors in and out a house, for garage floors, basements, etc. It also is waterproof and comes in color and with a paintlike finish. Can you recall such a product?—Mrs. James G.

Answer: If you'll send me a stamped, addressed envelope I'll be glad to send you manufacturer's name.

* *

Chicago—[To the Home Building Editor]—Where can I find out about boards that can be applied over an old cracked ceiling in our kitchen?—Larry B.

Answer: See your local lumber yard or local building material dealer.

Chicago—[To the Home Building Editor]—What can we do for sticky varnish? We varnished some woodwork ourselves and it won't dry to a nice finish—just stays a bit sticky—Edward E.

Answer: Try wiping lightly with turpentine. If that doesn't cure the trouble you may have to remove varnish and refinish. Be sure that wood is free from all previous wax, grease, dust, etc.

"Ginger" Is Grand New, Brand New Fashion Color

This Season's Distinguished 'Basic' Shade

By Rea Seeger.

Continuous wearing of either navy blue or dull black, unquestionably smart and always flawless for a background, sometimes begins to pall, especially for the individualistic shoppers. So a new color promotion is invariably welcomed with proper acclaim. Last summer or, rather, last season, the pet was a shade called copper, or luggage tan. One season the smart color to be used for basic backgrounds for costume accessories was deep green; another season, dark and neutral tones of gray topped the list of fashionable favorites.

This spring, and the summer to come, the newest excitement is a shade called ginger. It's a good, husky, gingerish brown, dark enough to contrast with the same distinction as black; different enough to make a telling impression; and accommodatingly perfect for accents of summery white, burnt straw tints, beige, and the many neutral-toned costume accessories such as hosiery, footgear, hats, and gloves, necessarily neutral because of patriotic war demands, such as limited dyes.

• • •

This ginger is a warm, super flattering color, slick contrast for copper-tops, especially effective for blondes, and smooth dark foil for brunettes and the silver sheened coiffures. It's a shade for young and not so young. It has a cooling depth for the warmest rush of weather, and ginger provides one of the most unusual contrasts for summer white.

Wear it with pale green, with caramel beige, with flesh pink, or with azure blue, and the results are perfect. Wear this ginger color with striped, checked, or plaid costume accessories, such as a dramatically large hat and matching bag, or cavalier gloves, with red and white dotted hat and belt, or companion bag. The bigger the white dots against the red the smarter the contrast.

• • •

It's a particularly good color to wear with soft beige jackets, or the many new lime green colored jackets in summer wool or linen. Floral printed linens and rayons make clever jackets or hats, or small accessories such as matching bag and hat, to spotlight this ginger shade. It is one of the most obliging, all purpose, background colors of the season, new, different, very flattering, and distinctive enough to make all the heads turn. And it's a blessed relief from the classic navy and black.

Accessories to match, of the same ginger brown, are comparatively easy to find, so that you may wear this enchanting new brown from head to heel, if you wish. It's a color to wear for travel, for office, for street, for dress parade, and for every occasion.

• • •

If you make your own clothes, this ginger is available in the yardage showings, and more is promised for later delivery. Linen, rayon, cottons, nets, laces, sheers, and silks offer provocative inspiration for nimble fingered home designers.

While there are suits and two piece models available, and more to come, featuring this delectable, new, dark ginger brown color, the daytime dresses of clinging crêpes and jerseys in one collection are the highlights of this present color promotion. Five of the newest models have been sketched. All are featured in the newly unpacked collection now on display in a Chicago boulevard shop. Costume accessories to complete a new summer costume also are found in the same shop. For information, call Superior 0200.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

Sunday, May 17.

File away good looking inspirations of morning; check them after Tuesday. Today's afternoon emotionally unreliable—go slow. Week ahead continues warning against extravagance and indulgence; otherwise there are many medium opportunities.

Something Else.

With everything we do know about thought, feeling living, and the physical facts of life conforming to definite laws, it is reasonable to conclude that there are laws concerning how to go about preventing future wars. Nothing we as a world have done so far has prevented war—look at the world today. We've got to find and try something we haven't done in the past if we are to eliminate war.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead from your anniversary today is full of action and opportunity to use your best thinking apparatus for your future security, particularly from mid-October on. Danger: July 18-27; Nov. 27-Dec. 11; April 6-13, 1943.

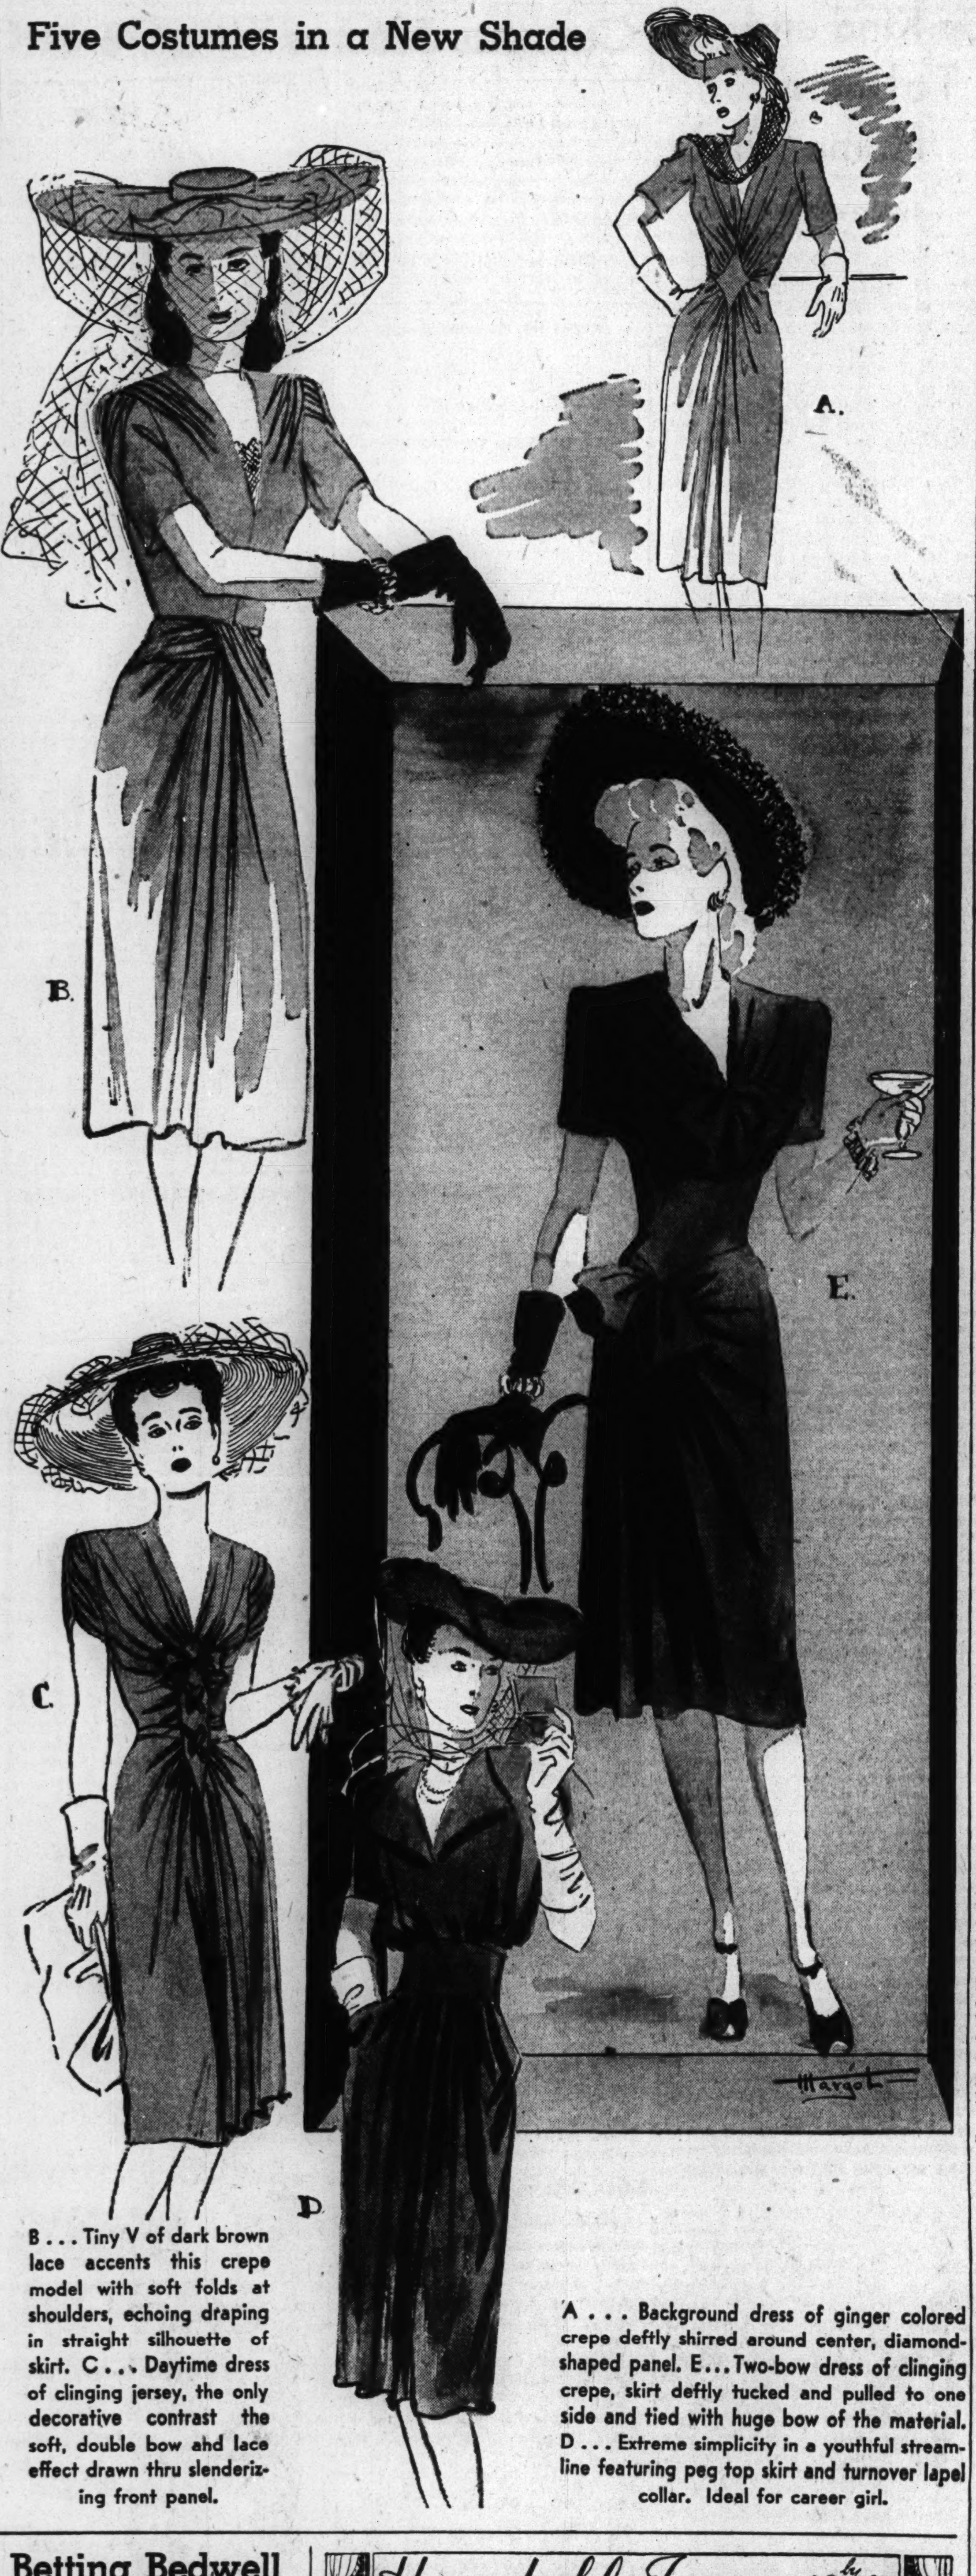
Five Costumes in a New Shade



B . . . Tiny V of dark brown lace accents this crepe model with soft folds at shoulders, echoing draping in straight silhouette of skirt. C . . . Daytime dress of clinging jersey, the only decorative contrast the soft, double bow and lace effect drawn thru slenderizing front panel.

A . . . Background dress of ginger colored crepe deftly shirred around center, diamond-shaped panel. E . . . Two-bow dress of clinging crepe, skirt deftly tucked and pulled to one side and tied with huge bow of the material. D . . . Extreme simplicity in a youthful streamline featuring peg top skirt and turnover lapel collar. Ideal for career girl.

Bettina Bedwell Says:

It seems to have dawned on a good many people that home is the place where most of our fun is going to be had this spring and summer. The tire shortage has seen to that. So, naturally, designers of clothes are taking a new interest in what to wear at home. And they don't mean languorous hostess gowns or lounging pajamas, either. Those are something more or less academic. They mean the house, and the stately garden, and the back yard, too, when they think in terms of "at home" clothes.

The front porch and even the kitchen will be the background of lots of entertainment. All this has the designers, who never let go the feminine pulse, agog with ideas. Adrian has made a group of "barbecue" dresses, rustic affairs with full skirts, done in checked gingham and similar materials. Karinska has lots of cotton dresses that are intended for anything from grilling a steak outdoors to dancing on the front porch. Tina Leser's pretty felt coats over cotton dresses, shorts, and slacks are just what's needed for picnics, barbecues, and home parties.

Household Forum

by LOUISE BARGELT

[Have you some favorite household help, some method to lengthen the life of your possessions? Is there some comfort you could enjoy? Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. Ken. T. J., Chicago—My husband repaired a number of small holes in our door and window screens this spring with cellulose cement. He used tweezers to get the broken ends together and tie them. Then he coated both sides of patch with the cement and pressed it in place. This cement doesn't really show when it has dried. He says if hole is large, one can use a patch and then the cement.

Miss Dorothy Long, Chicago—I use a nutcracker to remove a glass stopper that has stuck. I have removed a good many stubborn glass stoppers this way and never broken one yet!

Mrs. C. D. Brown, Ridgefarm, Ill.—Why won't some one manufacture a pan with two or three or even four compartments for warming up leftover vegetables? Have wished for a long time for this sort of pan.

Mrs. Hazel H., Evanston—I use a ½ inch paintbrush to wipe out crumbs that accumulate in my toaster. And also—by way of conservation—I don't keep my refrigerator as cold as formerly, treat my ice trays gently, and cool all my hot foods before putting them inside.

Joyce M., Aurora, Ill.—If you are sending stamps in letters to boys at school or soldiers in camp you can keep them from sticking together by sprinkling a very litle talcum over them. This isn't a bad idea for any one who keeps stamps in a folder.

Clara F., Oak Park—I add a tablespoonful of vinegar to the water in which I poach my eggs. This keeps the whites from spreading.

Mrs. G. H., Chicago—I always keep parsley in my kitchen window boxes. My birds and fish like it and I use it as a garnish on the table five days out of every seven.

Mrs. Thomas D., Wheaton, Ill.—I find that strips of heavy gummed paper tape are better than tacks when I want to attach window shades to rollers.

Now—please—your idea!

The Lady of the House

Flower Shows.

With Mother Nature setting the example, gardeners and flower lovers everywhere are putting on their "shows." One enthusiast, who feels these shows have greater significance this year, is impressed by the throngs who come daily to look upon all the "concentrated beauty gathered there"—people of almost every race, nationality, and creed! the lame, the halt, and even the blind, smelling, listening to, and feeling the loveliness around them. Mink and sables, flashing jewels; run over heels and threadbare coats. Some, no doubt, had gone hungry in order to feast the eyes and the soul.

At the Flower Show.

The young and old in eager crowd,
The rich and poor, the meek and proud,
In jew'ls and furs, in shabby clothes,
They pay their tribute to a rose.

Sad faces learn again to smile,
And heay hearts grow light awhile;
And those despairing hope anew;
And faith, long dim, grows brighter too.

For who can doubt that He who makes
These trees to leaf, this garden wakes
To springtime loveliness abloom,
Will lead with vict'ry thru the gloom
Of war's dark winter to the spring
Of Peace, His earth, and everything
That dwells therein? These are but hours
Of worship at a shrine of flow'rs.

—Dorene Tanner Oehler.

As the fight with weeds and bugs gets into its stride let's do a bit of morale building for ourselves with garden "moods," varied arrangements, historic gardens, still life scenes, monochromatic and color studies, down to the miniatures, and jewel arrangements done in jewel boxes. Millions of us will have to content ourselves with the florist's window, or just a glimpse of some one's garden, but let's all go to a—

Flower Show.

I walked into a Paradise
O'erflowing with flowers;
In heavenly gardens
I spent golden hours
With blossoms folded and full blown.
Their stage was green grass,
And sunshine their spotlight;
Their theater, glass.
Now homeward in the evening dusk
My dreams are aglow
With what I discovered in this flower show.

—Lillian Oswald.

Apple Blossoms.

Like the lonely weeping
Of an elfin child
Are pale blossoms falling
In a meadow wild.

While white stars dance above,
And flowers smile below;
As silver birds make love
By clear streams foaming snow;

As new leaflets flutter
In the fragrant breeze,
Fragile petals utter Farewells to the trees.

—Anne Spainhour.

Legend of the Peony.

According to ancient mythology the peony was the flower given by Leto, mother of Apollo, the god of healing, to Paeon to heal Pluto, who had been wounded by Hercules. But in curing Pluto Paeon aroused the jealousy of Aesculapius, god of medicine, who had been his teacher. Aesculapius didn't want his importance minimized by Paeon, so he plotted his death. Then Pluto saved his physician from the common fate of mortals by changing him into the plant which bears his name.

The dark crimson peonies from southern Europe and a smaller white one from Siberia were grown in English gardens for centuries, and these cottage garden peonies were once in great repute as a medicine, especially the tuberous roots and the seeds.

Toward the close of the 18th century the shrubby tree peony was brought from China and became popular. For many centuries these tree peonies were the exclusive property of the emperor of China and any one who tried to grow them outside the palace walls was punished by death.

Guelder-Roses.

Flower snowballs tossed about by the wind.

[Most folks call them snowball bushes, but florists speak of them as guelder-roses.]

—Dale Poole del'Opera.

Does any reader have a legend, or story of origin, of the flowering plum tree? The owner of an especially beautiful specimen is asking for one.

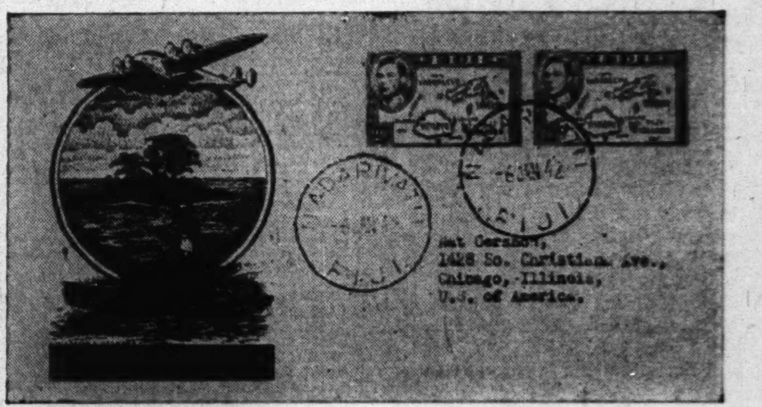
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, but not value. The column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Includes a stamped self-addressed envelope for reply.



The map of the Fiji Islands is shown on the stamps used on this cover to Nat Gershon of Chicago. The pictorial cover compares the primitive means of travel in the islands with the modern use of the trans-Pacific Clipper.

The first revenue stamps in use in the United States were embossed in the paper upon which the various documents were to be printed or written. Following the precedent of the British government which collected taxes in this manner in the British Isles, New York and Massachusetts colonies adopted the embossed stamps in order to collect local documentary taxes. The stamps were placed in use in Massachusetts for the first time on May 1, 1755, and in New York on Jan. 1, 1757.

About 10 years later Great Britain passed an act requiring the use of embossed stamps on various documents and pieces of printed matter originating in the American colonies. This act went into effect on Nov. 1, 1765, and three classes of stamps were provided for use on almanacs, pamphlets, and newspapers, and on general documents. All of the stamps of this series bear the word America and of course were not limited to those colonies which later became the United States of America but were used in the Canadian colonies, and the West Indies as well. The stamps for general use on documents are often called "tea party" stamps, and school histories frequently illustrate them as such, but this not entirely according to fact, for the act calling for these stamps laid no tax on tea, and as a matter of record the act for tea tax which was passed two years later made no provision for collecting that tax by means of stamps.

Following the successful revolution of the 13 colonies the United States passed an act for the collection of revenue by means of stamps on July 6, 1797, and made it effective on July 1, 1798. The stamps issued under this act include the name of a state in the design, and for that reason the issue can hardly be called the first general issue. Stamps were embossed on documents for the 16 states in existence at that time, there being stamps for Kentucky, Tennessee, and Vermont in addition to the 13 original states. The issue for each state was to have included stamps from a low denomination of 4c to a high of $10. All values up to $1 are listed for each state but only four examples of values above $1 have been found out of a possible total of 64 varieties which were authorized by the act.

Very likely the task of providing the many values of stamps for each of the states proved to be too laborious. At any rate the issue was used only until the end of February, 1801, at which time the second series of federal stamps, or the first truly general issue, was placed in use under the provisions of the act of April 23, 1800. This series was used until June 30, 1802, when the necessity for collecting revenue in this manner ended. These stamps were in denominations of 4c, 10c, 20c, 25c, 30c, 50c, 75c, $1, $2, $4, $5, and $10. All these stamps were embossed on paper containing the watermark "Gen. Stamp Office," placed vertically along the left edge of the sheet. The watermark was in Roman capitals if on wove paper and in italics if on laid paper. In addition the commissioner of revenue was obligated to impress the stamps upon paper or vellum deposited at his office by the public.

The stamp consists of two parts, the first being a circular design containing a shield surmounted by an eagle with the value below, and an arched top rectangular design showing a circular wreath surrounding a symmetrical arrangement of the 13 stars with the inscription "Com. Rev. C. S." at the top and the value at the bottom. The circular or general stamp was embossed on the paper at the General Stamp Office, in Washington, while the rectangular design was added in the office of the commissioner of revenue, also in Washington. The "C. S." in the inscription on the latter stamp means "Counter Stamp" and implies that it is an additional check upon the sheets of paper which bore the general stamp. The counter stamp is usually, altho not always, located below the general stamp.

The third federal issue was occasioned by the war of 1812 and the embossed stamps were placed in use on Jan. 1, 1814, under the terms of an act passed on Aug. 2, 1813. These stamps were required on various documents until Dec. 31, 1817. In this issue no counter stamp was used and the general stamp again shows an eagle surmounting a shield, with the value below. In both the second and third issues the designs vary with the different values in the position and relation of the eagle and shield. These stamps occur on both watermarked and unwatermarked paper, the former showing the words "Stamp U. S." From the closing date of this issue on Dec. 31, 1817, until after the start of the Civil war the United States found or made no occasion for the levying of federal documentary taxes.

Collectors of new United States issues patiently await the complete information regarding the first day sale of the Kentucky stamp on June 1. Up to this time there is no other definite information regarding the denomination, size, color, or what is most important, the place of first day sale. Thruout the past years collectors have suffered thru the inability of postal officials and others involved in a new stamp issue to decide upon these details in time for the information to be broadcast thruout the nation. The truth is that once an issue has been announced the postoffice department is the principal sufferer unless the facts are available in plenty of time for the department is required to augment the staff of the first day office and to make various other expenditures which become a fixed charge regardless of the number of covers which are handled.

The reader may well say that during these times there are other things more important than new stamp issues. And so there are, but having decided to issue a new stamp, it would take only a few minutes more to determine the value, to select the subject to be shown, and to say that it will be placed on sale at such and such a place.

However, such matters must be determined by the executive, with due regard for the feelings of the senators and representatives of the state in question. All this takes time and cannot be pushed ahead of matters coming under AA or A1A priorities. Until the time comes when authority for small matters like new commemorative stamps can be delegated to officials of the rank of cabinet officers, a bottleneck can be expected in more important decisions.

The official information bureau of Switzerland announces that in order to support the Swiss government's campaign for the salvaging of used materials, the federal department of posts has issued a special sheet of 10 centimes stamps which appeal to the people to collect scrap material in order to "hold out."

The stamps are inscribed with the holdout phrase either in German, French, or Italian, thus in German: "Zum Durchhalten—Altstoffe sammeln"; in French: "Pour Tenir—Récupérez les matières usagées," and in Italian: "Per resistere—Raccogliete la roba vecchia." The general background of the stamp is brown with the word "Durchhalten," "Tenir," or "Resistere," emphasized on a gray-blue background. The stamp value and the Swiss coat of arms appear in red. The stamps are printed in sheets of 25, by Courvoisier, S. A. Twelve of the stamps on each sheet are in German, eight in French, and five in Italian. The stamps were placed on sale March 21 and until the end of May or as long as the supply lasts, will be sold in lieu of ordinary 10 centime values unless the latter are specially requested.

Switzerland considers the procuring of all used materials of utmost importance on account of the landlocked nature of the country and the stamps will greatly aid this campaign.

Robert J. Johnson, Box 185, Council Bluffs, Ia., will sponsor a set of 10 historical covers in connection with the 150th anniversary of Kentucky statehood. Mr. Johnson will send full information to interested cover collectors.

Pilgrim Cachets, P. O. Box 158, Westwood, N. J., will have a special first day cover in connection with the Kentucky statehood stamp. There are also cachets announced for June 14 [Flag day], July 4 [Independence day], and others. Full details can be obtained from Pilgrim Cachets.

Give Humble Carrots the Cooking Art They Deserve

Vitamins More Welcome When "Dressed Up"

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Poems have been written of the salad:

"O green and glorious, O herbaceous treat!
'Twould tempt a dying anchorite to eat."

And of the hen "whose egg is mightier than the pen."

But the bards haven't done right by the carrot, a vegetable of considerable merit [or "marrot" as Mr. Ogden Nash undoubtedly would spell it].

Mamas used to tell their little girls to "eat carrots, they'll make your hair curly"; their little boys, "carrots will make you big and strong." And usually the youngsters didn't like carrots!

• • •

Maybe it was because they always were cooked in the same old way and served with an "eat them, they're good for you" attitude. Carrots are good for you, but if they're properly prepared, it shouldn't take urging to make them disappear from the plate. Little children, almost without exception, love crisp, raw carrot sticks. These are served frequently in every good nursery school, and many mothers prepare carrot sticks at home for big and little ones in the family.

To be at their vitaminous best carrots should be fresh from the ground [out of your own victory garden, later on!] young, and crisp. They lose vitamins with age.

• • •

Carrots are most valued for their vitamin A content. They are being fed in quantity to RAF pilots and civilians in Britain, because of their helpfulness in overcoming night blindness [it's vitamin A that keeps the eyes in good condition]. Carrots also are a good source of C, thiamin, and riboflavin [formerly vitamins B-1 and G], calcium, phosphorus, and iron. They're 10 per cent sugar, too, a fact which may be a comfort to any one who feels that half a pound a week isn't enough sugar for him!

Steam carrots whole, or cook them in a very small amount of water, until just tender. You'll lose vitamins if cooking is prolonged. Serve them with salt, pepper, and butter. Now and then try some of these various ways to serve them, raw or cooked.

VARIATIONS OF BUTTERED CARROTS.

1. Sprinkle the cooked, buttered, and seasoned whole carrots with minced parsley and a little lemon juice.
2. Add to buttered carrots a few drops of lemon juice, a few drops of onion juice, and a sprinkling of thyme. Fresh thyme from your herb garden will be better than the dried thyme, which, however, does nicely.
3. Add finely cut chives to buttered carrots.
4. Add chives and a little finely cut pimiento.
5. Combine with cooked peas, or cooked celery, or whole, tender, cooked young onions.
6. Add chopped mint leaves and a sprinkling of sugar to buttered carrots.

CARROT SANDWICH SPREAD.

Grate or grind raw carrots and sprinkle with salt. Add mayonnaise to moisten and use with lettuce leaves. Chopped pickle may be added. Chopped peanuts are another variation.

Carrot Sauce for Meat Loaf.

1 cup grated raw carrots, firmly packed
1 cup water
1 bouillon cube
½ cup catsup

Cook carrots and bouillon cube in water about 4 minutes, or until carrots are tender. Add catsup. Heat well and serve. If desired, thicken sauce with 1 tablespoon flour, stirred to a paste in a little cold water, or blended with 1 tablespoon butter.

CARROT AND CABBAGE SALAD.

Combine equal parts shredded, chopped cabbage and grated raw carrot. Add 1 tablespoon minced green pepper and 1 tablespoon onion [for 4 cups of the mixed salad] and mayonnaise to moisten. Chopped pickles may be added.

CARROT AND PINEAPPLE SALAD.

Combine equal parts grated raw carrot and drained crushed pineapple. Add a little chopped pickle for flavor contrast, and mayonnaise to moisten. Raisins or coconut sometimes are added to this salad.

Spring Salad Bowl.
[Serves Five.]

1 head of romaine
1 bunch watercress
1 cup shredded crisp carrots
10 radishes, sliced
2 small green onions, sliced
2 medium tomatoes, cut in sixths
French dressing

Shred well washed romaine with scissors. Look over watercress carefully, wash, and drain. Combine vegetables in chilled salad bowl, tossing lightly with French dressing. Serve from the bowl at table.

Potato Spring Salad Bowl.
[Serves Eight.]

3 cups diced cold boiled potatoes
4 hard cooked eggs, sliced
1 cup cubed avocado
½ cup shredded raw carrot
2 tablespoons minced green onion
1½ cups cubed solid head lettuce
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 cup mayonnaise or boiled dressing

Sprinkle salt over other ingredients in salad bowl. Add mustard to mayonnaise. Blend vegetables with the dressing and serve well chilled.

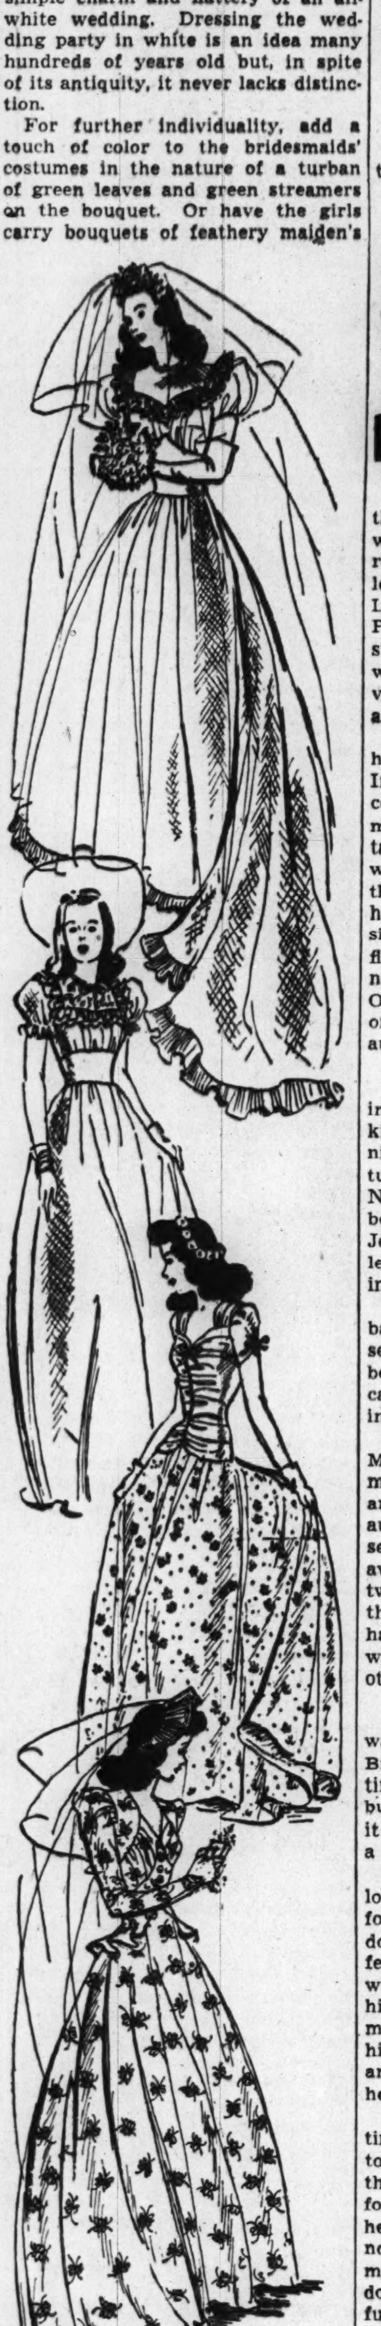
Bridal white! Don't overlook the simple charm and flattery of an all-white wedding. Dressing the wedding party in white is an idea many hundreds of years old but, in spite of its antiquity, it never lacks distinction.

For further individuality, add a touch of color to the bridesmaids' costumes in the nature of a turban of green leaves and green streamers on the bouquet. Or have the girls carry bouquets of feathery maiden's hair fern. White accented with touches of soft pink might be more becoming to some brides. Or what is your favorite color?



Sheer rayon marquisette over a satin slip makes the quaintly styled wedding dress, sketched at top. Notice the demure round neck line, fastened down the back with a few tiny, covered buttons; the short puffed sleeves; the yoke outlined with narrow, lace edged ruffles. Yards and yards of material in the skirt curve gracefully into a train at least one and a half yards long. The entire hemline is edged with a three inch, plaited ruffle. $35.

Her bridesmaid's dress is white, too, altho it also is available in yellow, pink, or blue. It harmonizes nicely with the bride's dress, with a yoke this time with lace outlined with a double ruffle and a high waisted bodice.

If yours is a junior figure, picture yourself in the rayon mousseline de soie. There is a little pattern in the material which has been achieved by pressing velvety fibers into the fabric. The dress has long sleeves. A little, perky peplum graces the hipline. $25.

The attendant's dress sketched just above the bride is of the same type of material, with the pattern stamped on the fabric of the full, gathered skirt. The bodice of her dress is white silk jersey, draped becomingly to the slim junior figure.

The veils are separate purchases, in each case. There are halo effects of plaited net, wreaths of orange blossoms made of a pearl-like composition to tuck behind the pompadour, or little, flat, ribbon bows with orange blossoms which catch the folds of veiling and hold it in place.

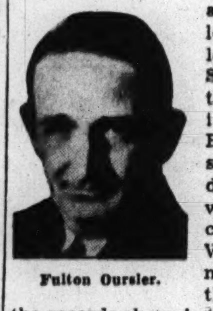
Oursler Team Writes a New Broadway Play

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—The Fulton Ourslers were living as contentedly as a pair of active and restless Fulton Ourslers could live at Sandalwood, their place facing Buzzard's Bay in Massachusetts, when the determination to write a play called "The Walking Gentleman" overcame them. Oursler, as the records show, is the demon editor who at one time simultaneously directed the editorial destinies of no less than 10 magazines, including Liberty. Mrs. Oursler is the Grace Perkins who came thru a successful stage experience to decide that she would rather marry Oursler and develop a writing career than continue acting.



Fulton Oursler.

For writing purposes the Ourslers had Sandalwood attractively divided. In his section Oursler nursed a couple of telephones and a teletype machine, with the aid of which he talked directly to his sub-editors or wrote them teletype messages. Also, there was the Oursler desk at which he wrote or dictated no less than six plays and 10 novels, as well as a flock of mystery stories under the nom de plume of Anthony Abbott. One of the plays was "The Spider," of which Lowell Brentano was co-author.

• • •

In her division, daintier in furnishing but just as practical, Miss Perkins wrote no less than 14 novels, nine of which were made into picture scenarios. Of these "Night Nurse" is best remembered, partly because both Barbara Stanwyck and Joan Bennett, not to forget the then less well known Clark Gable, were involved in its performance.

With these writing careers as a background it was quite natural, it seems to me, that the Ourslers should be definitely plot-conscious when they came to collaborating on "The Walking Gentleman."

It was Oursler's idea that he and Miss Perkins should concentrate on a mystery that should prove so novel and gripping that it would lift an audience at least part way out of its seats and keep its collective mind away from the war news for at least two hours. It was his idea, too, that the story should be about "an unhappy actor who loved his vanished wife so well that he killed every other woman who looked like her."

• • •

So! "The Walking Gentleman" was written and last week it reached Broadway. The reaction was not entirely in its favor as an acted play, but I have an idea that, by the time it gets to Hollywood, it may prove a marketable item.

The Ourslers' actor is a fancy fellow, full of quotations and an urge for murder which has something to do psychologically with a faulty defense mechanism. He had loved his wife so well that, after she divorced him, he could not get her out of his mind. Yet, whenever she popped into his mind, it impelled him to strangle any woman who reminded him of her.

Finally he met his wife a second time and thought, first, to induce her to try living with him again, and then to strangle her, too. In an effort to free his mind of the torture her memory caused him, the wife innocently agreed to face the experiment of a reunion, and probably doesn't know to this day how frightfully close she came to being garroted with her own necklace.

• • •

The police finally caught up with the actor-strangler, trailed him from one murder to another, literally by the sweat of his brow which stained the gowns worn by his several victims. He went to his death lightly, with a quotation on his lips and a flip of his cigaret. He had promised her, he said, that they should be married "until death do us part," and he had kept his word.

"The Walking Gentleman" is, as you may imagine, mostly all plot and of little purpose. It could be quite scary in pictures. On the stage it frequently becomes sufficiently ridiculous to start snickers.

The mad actor is played by the French actor, Victor Francen, who has been making pictures in this country, appearing notably in "Hold Back the Dawn" and more recently with Charles Laughton in "Tuttles of Tahiti." In France, before the Germans moved in, it is said, he was looked upon as a possible successor to the great Lucien Guitry, and numbered among his achievements 700 performances in the title rôle of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Arlene Francis.

Francen, by the record, had the good fortune to marry an American girl he met in the south of France in 1939. This helped a lot when he wanted to get away from occupied France and come to America. It took them 10 days to get to Lisbon, after they had managed to cross into Spain, and days and days more to make New York.

• • •

Francen is a good actor of the deliberate type, schooled in the French classics and conscious of all the tricks of his craft. He was considerably handicapped by a reputation that continually referred to him as a person of fascinating personality and a lover who practically swept women off their feet. Few actors, especially after they have passed middle age, can successfully meet that sort of build-up.

Arlene Francis plays the heroine, and Clay Clement is again the detective chap who gets his man. Richard Gaines is cast as a colorless psychiatrist and there are a number of good actors wasted in bit parts.

• • •

They do tricks with the Center theater stage. What was an ice rink two weeks ago is now a home of heated opera. The blessed and persistent Fortune Gallo has brought in his San Carlo Opera company to the Center to fill in between ice shows. They opened with "Carmen" and will go thru the familiar repertory.

The Rockefellers have the last laugh on somebody whenever the Center is mentioned. All the wise showmen told them it was no good as a theater. There was a time when they were about to tear out the stage and reconstruct the building for office purposes. Then along came the ice skaters, organized by the glamorous Sonja Henie and her Chicago promoter friend, Arthur Wirtz, and saved the homestead. Ice shows have proved the popular novelty of the last two seasons, even without Sonja. She merely collects her share of the profits, adds them to what she gets from other touring ice shows in which she is interested, boasts a little to husband Dan Topping about the staggering totals, and then dutifully turns over about 80 per cent of her income in taxes to her adopted Uncle Sam.

The next ice show will be ready in late June or July. Broadway is looking forward to the liveliest summer season it has had in years, despite the war, and ice shows have proved great attractions for out-of-town visitors. One million persons saw the last one.

Fashions as I See Them

[Tribune Photo.]

Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney is noted for her smart taste in dress. At a gay luncheon party recently at the Casino, she was wearing a handsome navy blue suit, a paler blue sailor trimmed with velvet bows and veiling to which were fastened small chenille dots, and a blouse of the pale blue. The blouse was an object of admiration by all, for its collar was an accordion plaited ruffle of silk with lace inserts. More of the lace was used at the cuffs, and the whole looked as "Frenchy" as could be imagined. Mrs. McBirney mentioned that the suit came from Molyneux, and added that her maid had made the lovely blouse. . . . Another handsome ensemble at the Casino that day was worn by Mrs. Charles E. Brown, whose stunning full length red wool coat was lined with a gay white and red print. The dress was made of the same print, and Mrs. Brown's hat was of matching red straw trimmed with red flowers. . . . Another stunningly dressed woman at the Casino was Mrs. Arthur Meeker, who was wearing a black dress with fine detail at the bodice. She carried a beautiful petit point bag that a friend had brought as a gift from China a year or two ago. Its frame was ornamented with jade.

• • •

Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman's pretty hat was of pastel blue feathers, trimmed with two feather birds, one brown, the other blue. Mrs. C. Morse Ely was wearing a brown silk hat that matched exactly her well cut, well tailored dress of heavy brown silk. Mrs. Albert A. Sprague's dress was of navy blue silk, its collar and cuffs edged in lace. Her hat was a tiny round one of rough navy blue straw, trimmed with a navy veil. . . . A perfect picture of spring in the delicate greens and pinks that one associates with apple blossom time is Mrs. William B. Hale when she wears her apple green wool costume. The suit is lined with pink at the buttoned-up neckline. The pink turns down over the collar, and reflects the color of the charming pink straw sailor with forward jutting brim that is trimmed with pink blossoms, green leaves, and pink veiling, that completes this springtime costume.

• • •

Two enormous red Milan straw hats, each at least three feet across, were seen at luncheon one day in the Camellia House at the Drake. One was on a brunette, the other on a blonde, proving that that particular shade of brilliant red is becoming to both. The brunette was Mrs. Melvin Sowles, who was wearing a cadet blue tailored suit with the stunning hat. The blonde was Miss Helen Jepson, the opera star. She was wearing a green suit under the hat. . . . Dining and dancing one night at the same smart room were Gov. and Mrs. Dwight Green, the latter looking as pretty as any 16 year old. She was wearing a perfectly simple white shirtwaist type floor length dress, perfectly becoming to her. At a near-by table sat Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin in a handsome restaurant dress. It was of black wool, and at first glance it appeared that Mrs. McLaughlin was wearing a silver necklace with it. Closer inspection revealed that the necklace effect was produced by clever embroidery right on the gown. Her hat was a little black "beanie." . . . An unseasonably cool spring day recently brought out young Mrs. Joseph Hibben in an unusual color combination. Her sheer wool suit of a smoky gray-blue shade had a plastron and peplum of close-cropped gray fur. For a surprise note she added a tangerine colored felt casual hat with a perky brim and a tucked crown caught up into a peak. . . . Lunching at the Woman's Athletic club the other day, after the club's final lecture of the season, Mrs. George T. Buckingham threw back her dark spring coat to reveal a French blue crêpe dress, the bodice of which was stitched in a floral pattern. Her tiny pancake of shiny, geranium-colored straw was frilled in a double ruffle of the straw.

Mrs. Alexander H. Revell Jr., who is in half-mourning, wears a costume in the best of taste, but becoming, and smart, too. Six little white pique bows are laid diagonally across the flat crown of her black bonnet, over which is tossed a froth of veiling. Her dress is a tailored black one with cool white collar and little cuffs knotted at the wrists. . . . Porcelain blue is a shade especially becoming to Mrs. John Tevis Harwood, president of the Kenwood Social Service club of the Infant Welfare society. She wears it in a simple street dress which has its own full length, fitted coat lined in polka-dotted blue crêpe. An old-fashioned porcelain medallion, centered with a full-blown rose, is pinned to one pocket, and completing this ensemble is a brimmed blue hat resembling a Spanish padre's. . . . Mrs. James Dunbar Jr., who is on the board of the Beverly Hills center of the Infant Welfare society, owns a becoming gray outfit, a slim wool dress topped by a snug jacket with a lavish, three-tiered collar of platinum fox. Three little silver Mexican hats form the pin she fastens to the neckline of her gown. For contrast she adds a perky rose corduroy cap tufted with wool dots and a matching bag and gloves. . . . The hand-picked detailing that is a mark of good tailoring edges the lapels of a smart blue suit that Mrs. Harold A. Davis of the Oak Park and River Forest Seniors of Infant Welfare wears. Cut from the same bolt of material is her matching Dutch bonnet. To one shoulder she sometimes pins a cluster of pink and lavender clover.

Designers Aid in Planning of Defense Homes

By Edith Weigle.

Outstanding in wartime interests in the recent midseason furniture show was a display on the 16th floor of the Merchandise Mart, showing designs entered in a defense housing competition sponsored by Interior Design and Decoration magazine.

Here were 50 different ways of bringing comfort and good taste to the defense worker's home, and when you realize that 15,000 four room houses are being built this year you'll see it's an excellent idea to have more than a few ways of furnishing them. This 15,000 applies to four room houses only; thousands of other, slightly larger, homes also are being constructed.

The competition brought out a great deal of ingenuity on the part of the contestants. Each scheme submitted had its own individuality, its own way of solving the problem of limited budget and limited space.

• • •

A few major points on which many of the designers agreed were: the use of box springs and mattresses set in a simple frame, rather than the more costly bed; the use of cottons and crashes for draperies and upholsteries; washable and reversible rugs; painted walls; bedroom and sometimes living room furniture of the unpainted type.

One of the contestants, however, veered away from this in an intelligent and witty statement attached to his floor plans. Said he: "Unpainted furniture and a can of paint in the hands of an amateur bring tragic results and grounds for divorce." Photographs of the pieces of furniture he had selected for a defense worker's home proved his point that it is wise to "spend your money on fundamental pieces—buy good line, enduring style and quality, thus creating a nucleus for the future." He chose excellent mahogany, and upholsteries of superior quality.

He avoided "pretty effects." He saw the house as a "place where a husky defense worker can rest his weary bones and not feel he has wandered into a girl's dormitory."

The first prize in the contest went to John E. Maier of Brooklyn, N. Y., whose plans called for an outlay of only $467.38 for furnishing the four room house. The second prize was given to Bill Atkinson who runs a small retail shop in the little town of Manlius, N. Y. His ideas, beautifully presented and including samples of rugs, draperies, etc., were built around a budget of $812.48.

The third prize went to Dwight D. Davis of Minneapolis, Minn., who took all of his furnishings from the catalog of a large mail order house.

One of the smartest New York firms of interior decorators submitted a most interesting scheme which called for an outlay of only $491. This was divided as follows: living room, $243.57; master bedroom, $138,71, and small bedroom, $109.59.

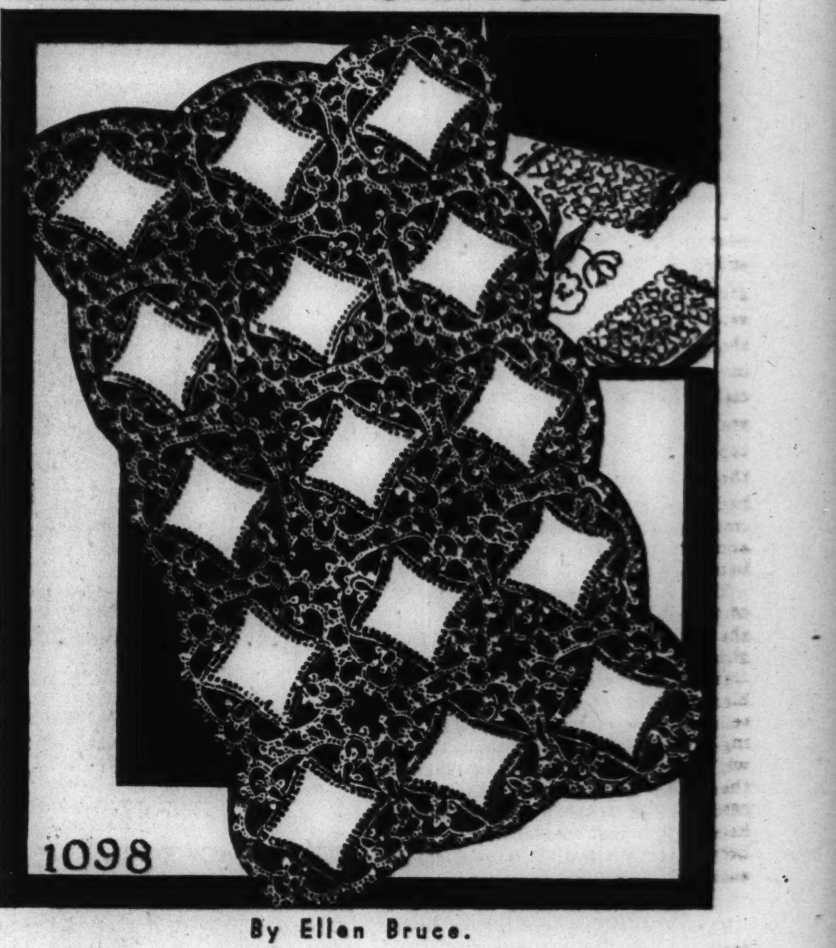
Concurrent with the midseason market, local and out of town members of the American Institute of Decorators held a luncheon meeting planned by Mabel Schamberg at which Theodore Simpson, national chairman of the board, spoke on wartime problems now confronting the profession. Mr. Simpson said the progressive decorator was getting in step with the new times, adapting his methods to changing conditions and reaching out for a new group of clients, the thousands of small home owners who need expert help.

He also said that repair work on fine furniture in large homes should be stressed by members of the A. I .D. It is true economy, he pointed out, to prolong the life of an excellent chair or sofa by giving it new webbing or upholstery. At the end of the meeting open forum was held.

Linen and Crochet Doily



By Ellen Bruce.

Crocheted medallions and linen centers combine to form lovely and unusual luncheon doilies. Tan perle cotton forms the design which edges the natural linen concave squares. These squares may be purchased ready hemstitched or may be hand hemstitched at home, and the result is one which every one will admire.

For instructions in crocheting the linen and crocheted luncheon doily, No. 1098, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

Tho suit-establishment is one of the simplest departments of play, it can take some odd and even fascinating tangents. There are neat little devices by which a suit can be made to produce the maximum number of tricks—devices that may not be immediately apparent to the eye, nor included in the repertory of the inexperienced player. The winning play in the following hand falls into this class. The declarer [who, I need hardly say, was not a good player] lost a lay down grand slam, simply because the correct play did not occur to him.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 no trumps	Pass
5 no trump	Pass	7 clubs	Pass
Pass	Pass

Since South had the kings of both bids suits, he was correct in answering North's conventional [Culbertson] four no trump bid [based in this case on three aces] with the positive response of five no trump. North's final grand slam bid was a slight stretch, for all his tremendous distributional and honor strength. South's hand might have been weaker by the substitution of the heart queen for the king, and in that case, 13 tricks could never have been developed except against an opening heart lead.

On the actual holdings of North and South, however, and with the opponents' distribution as it was, the contract should have been simplicity itself to fulfill. Unfortunately, when West opened a low diamond, declarer could see only one chance of success. He saw, of course, that he could discard dummy's losing diamond on one of his own heart tricks, but to him it appeared that a spade loser could be salvaged only if he were so fortunate as to drop the queen and jack and thus establish the rest of his suit. Acting on that totally unsound premise, he won the first trick with the diamond ace, took out the adverse trumps in one lead, cashed the heart ace, discarding dummy's diamond 10, and then, with a silent prayer, laid down the ace and king of spades. Since the odds were overwhelmingly against the Q-J being blank in either hand, the prayer was not answered, and the result was a one-trick penalty.

Perhaps I need hardly point out that there was another plan of play available which had a splendid, instead of a meager, chance of success. Actually, with the adverse spades divided 3-2 [the most normal break] this plan would have been ironclad. After winning with dummy's diamond ace, declarer should have entered his hand with a club, and then should have laid down the ace and king of hearts. But he most certainly should not have discarded dummy's diamond 10 on these tricks. He should have put his heart honors to much better use by discarding the two and four of spades from dummy. He then should have led to the spade ace and back to his king, after which a third round ruff would have established the 10 spot. All he then would have had to do was enter his own hand with another trump, and cash the spade 10, discarding dummy's diamond 10.

This play, like so many others, is simplicity itself to execute. Its only difficulty lies in the fact that many players do not perceive the opportunity for its use.

There are no trumps and South leads. North and South are to win five tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads the king of diamonds, North and East discarding spades. South leads club four, North discarding a spade. East leads the spade six, which South wins, leading club jack, North discarding heart 10. South leads diamond seven, which West wins, North discarding king of hearts.

If East leads the ace and queen of hearts for the third and fourth tricks, North wins and leads the 10 of spades if West has discarded the diamond; but if West has discarded a spade, North leads spade ace, queen, and 10.

Young Wives Need Not Be Embarrassed Concerning This Intimate Problem

Because of natural shyness or lack of confidence in the knowledge of friends the uninformed young wife often hesitates to seek the advice of others. Instead, she risks health and happiness by use of over-strong solutions of acids for feminine hygiene which can actually burn, scar and harm delicate tissue.

Today such risks are needless. Science has given womankind Zonite. So powerful, it kills instantly all germs and bacteria with which it comes in contact. Deodorizes—by actually destroying odors. Protects personal daintiness. Yet! Zonite is non-caustic, non-poisonous, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles bought. Get Zonite at your druggist today.

Many Charming Water Colors in Annual Show

By Eleanor Jewett.

The 21st international exhibition of water colors opened last Wednesday at the Art institute to continue to Aug. 23. Because of the war, the exhibit is very little international in character, Cuba and Mexico dividing one gallery between them and all of France being boiled down to a one man show of works by Georges Rouault. The American majority of the exhibit is varied in subject matter and technique and fairly representative of water color as it is painted in this country.

As is customary in practically every Art institute exhibition, the cream of the show is hung in the first galleries of the east wing. There is, however, always the chance of picking some grain from the chaff in nearly every room, so do not let any sudden revulsion of feeling keep you from making a complete round. We found 31 paintings on a first visit that charmed, fascinated, and intrigued us and several of them were so delightful that if the guards and our conscience had turned their backs it would have given us the greatest pleasure in the world to have spirited them away from the museum into our own keeping. As one of the jurors said [William Gropper, it was]: "If I had the money, there are a good number of pictures I would like to buy." Buy or steal, there are enough tantalizingly good water colors in the show to make a collector's mouth water.

The water color show is always hard to hang because there is such an infinite variety in the size of the pictures and [this year, at least] an equally infinite variety in the framing of the pictures. Altho there are 550 water colors in the exhibit, there is a strong impression given that the show is thinly hung. Another hundred or so pictures could be easily added and perhaps the increase in color and animation would control to some extent the feeling of long, yawning walls decorated in one of the most forlorn shades that the eye of man has yet designed. The exhibit, however, is bravely doing its bit.

◆

You undoubtedly will be stirred by the amount of indifferent painting present, tho there are enough good pictures to make seeing the exhibition a "must" and a pleasant adventure. Curiously, there are no war pictures in the show; neither army, navy, nor civilian activities have stimulated the artists yet to any telling degree, if one may judge by the material before us, altho "Salvage for Defense" by A. Lassell Ripley strikes a familiar note.

Three prizes were given. The Watson F. Blair purchase prize of $600 was awarded to "The City" by Raymond Breinin; the Watson F. Blair purchase prize of $400 was given to Hardie Gramatky for "Calhoun Street, Charleston"; the William H. Tuthill purchase prize of $100 went to "Street in New Orleans" by Briggs Dyer.

"Negro Symphony, No. 1" by Laura Glenn Douglas was awarded honorable mention, as were "Balers" by Alexander Masley and "A Jewish Lullaby" by David Bekker.

Among the many delightful water colors in the show are "Winter Hay Barn" by Mahonri Young, "Country" by Nicola Siroli, "Stonington, Maine" by Zsissly, "Panic" by Stephen Csoka, "Circus Memories" by Gina Knee, "Central Park Lake" by Gifford Beal, "Sea Houses" by Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, "Snow on the Cowpath" by Charles B. Culver, "Shells and Fence" by John Atherton, "The Fruit Bird" by Karl Priebe, "Steam Engine" by Theodore Lux, "View of Goodison" by Fredrick Simper, "Clown" by Guy Pene du Bois, "Tiger Lilies" by Morris Kantor, and "Sunday Morning" by Phil Paradise.

Cameron Booth of St. Paul has a one man show in one of the smaller galleries and Francis Chapin of Chicago in another. Mr. Booth is represented chiefly by western landscapes rather flat and uninspired in character, but competent. Francis Chapin is too well known in Chicago for his painting to need further comment here. The Art institute has bought a nude, "Standing Figure," from his exhibit.

◆

The Chicago Galleries association, 215 North Michigan avenue, has an interesting new exhibition of the work of two men. In the smaller gallery are paintings by Merlin Enabnit and in the larger room are Wyoming landscapes by Adolph Heinze. The Enabnit pictures are full of color and movement. The artist has an idea that each part of the country has a definite palette and some of his canvases illustrate how his theory works. From flecks of paint squeezed from the tube he builds up a landscape or figure painting and lets his public behind the scenes into the ways and means by which he achieves his final result. The stunt is informative, clever, and amusing—tho we doubt if one could get the very successful results Mr. Enabnit gets minus his genius and training. He is known as one of the best color men in the middle west.

Besides the experiments in paint, Mr. Enabnit has a group of finished sketches and larger paintings which are well worth seeing. His work is rich and has depth. He gives every promise of being one of the younger artists on whom it will be well to keep an eye. His painting seems marked for success. At the moment Mr. Enabnit is in Seattle preparing to join the armed forces.

Adolph Heinze has a stunning group of western landscapes in the large gallery. Mr. Heinze spent last summer near Cody, Wyo., and part of the time he painted with Edward Grigware. Those who love the west will get a thrill from these pictures. One of the loveliest is "The Sky Was Cloudy All Day." The pictures have not the fire nor movement of a Grigware painting and perhaps there are too many of the same subject in one room, but if you will digest each slowly, disregarding its fellows, there are a number of canvases that are well worth while.

The exhibition will continue to May 31.

◆

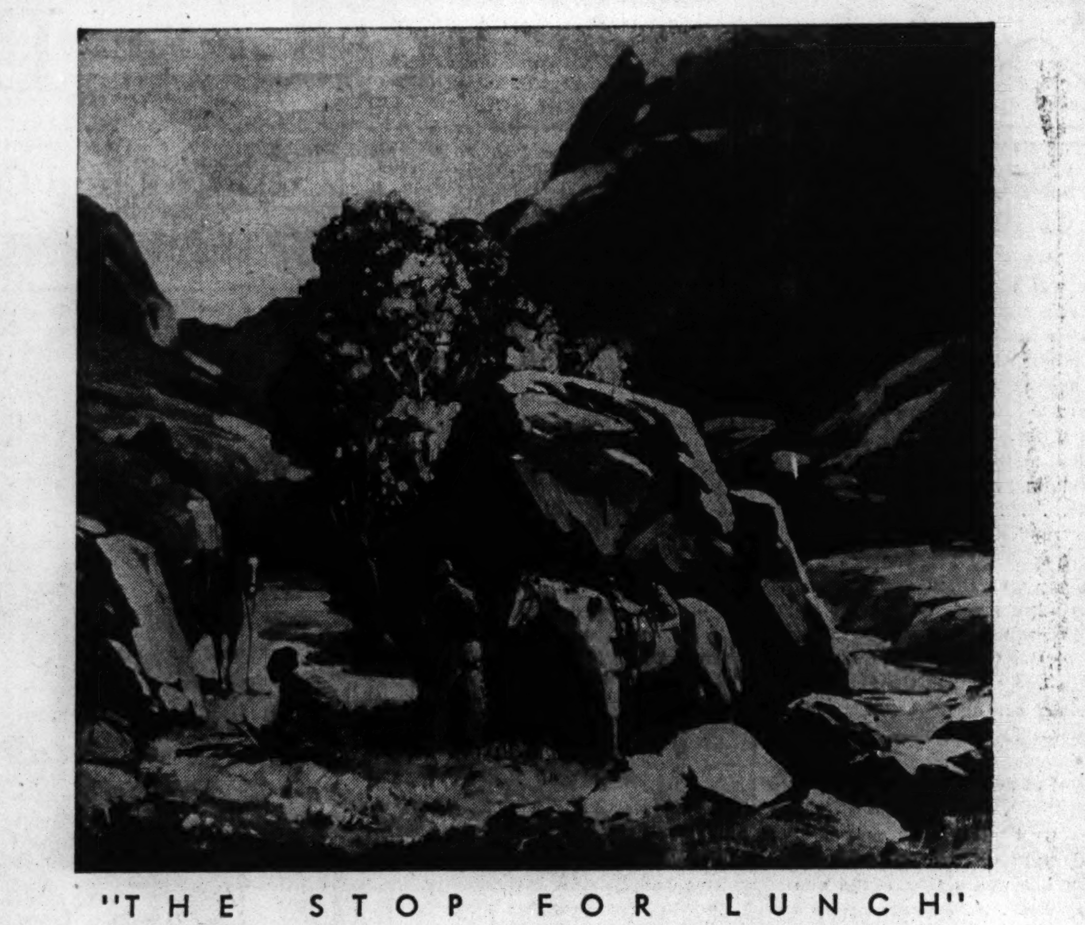
The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts opened its annual spring salon yesterday at the Stevens hotel. It is a delightful show, with many pleasing pictures. The group of small paintings at moderate prices includes a number of items which probably will be snatched up at once.

◆

The Ridge Art association is sponsoring an exhibit by three artist members, Ethel Crouch Brown, Nan Rice, and Tunis Ponsen, in the library of the Ridge Park fieldhouse, Longwood drive at 96th street.

◆

The North Shore Art guild opened its annual exhibit of work by members yesterday in the clubwoman's bureau, Mandel Brothers. Charles O. Longabaugh, noted water color painter, is among those exhibiting. The show is well worth seeing.



"THE STOP FOR LUNCH"

Adolph Heinze spent last summer at Cody, Wyo. The paintings he made on the trip make a very good showing at the Chicago Galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue, where they are on view to June 1.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, May 20, 1894.

Dear Julia: Do you remember that, when we called one day on Mrs. George M. Pullman in the beautiful brown stone mansion at Prairie avenue and 18th street, I pointed out a cottonwood tree, standing not far from the sidewalk at the carriage entrance? I told you, I remember, that the old tree had a gruesome history, having been a witness to the Fort Dearborn massacre of 1812.

Well, that old tree crashed this week in a terrific storm which lashed the lake into fury and caused much loss of life. It's a mercy that no one was hurt when it went down, for hundreds of people had gathered near the spot, looking out across the water where sailors were struggling for their lives in the awful gale. The tree fell southeast across the street with a great noise which could be heard for blocks, they say. The base of the trunk broke clear across on a level with the sidewalk and when I saw the spot today it looked as if it had been severed with a saw, so clean was the break.

There was an immediate rush for the tree, I am told, the bystanders being aware of its historic importance and wanting souvenirs. People ran to get axes and saws, and would have despoiled it completely if Mr. Ingalls, who has charge of the Pullman grounds, hadn't put a stop to it. He sent the souvenir hunters away and had the tree trunk dragged into the inclosure surrounding the Pullman conservatory, south of 18th street, where it now lies with its limbs lopped off. I'm glad it has been saved for I am sure our fine Historical society will want to preserve a portion of the trunk for future generations to see. This organization has done much to awaken interest in our city's past, but we are so young we aren't yet conscious of the value of some of these articles.

The poor old tree had been dead for years, but had stood safely in a small inclosure, protected by an iron railing. I think Mr. Pullman had put this railing about it. He gave the fine Massacre monument, which stands a few yards to the east of the old tree. There is ample proof, say those who examined it carefully, that the tree had had a part in the battle, for bullets were found in its trunk.

The weather here has been fearful. We had been sweltering in summer heat, the thermometer standing at 88 degrees. Suddenly, the wind changed and there was a drop of 55 degrees, with sleet, rain and a high gale. And now we are almost frozen! Such is the climate of our beloved Chicago! The city seems to me like a willful maiden, now smiling, now frowning, now shrieking in a most unseemly manner. Yet always interesting!

We have been absorbed this week in a wedding. Miss Susie King [no one ever calls her Susan], daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. McGregor Adams, was married to M. Edmond Bruwaert, consul general for France in Chicago, last evening. She has been so popular in our best society and he is so prominent because of his post here, that the young people have been all a-twitter and their older friends have hastened to proffer congratulations. The Adams house is on fashionable La Salle avenue and here the wedding took place, Professor David Swing officiating, while Dr. Louis Falk presided at the pipe organ. It is nice, on such occasions, to have a pipe organ in the house.

We weren't asked to the wedding, for it was a small affair, but with several hundred others we attended the reception following. The house looked lovely, with flowers everywhere, and on the mantel in the front parlor a French flag done in flowers. M. Bruwaert, who has lovely manners, alluded often to this sweet thought.

And now I must hasten away, for I am due at a sewing circle at our church. I don't do all I should, I know, in the line of church work.

Lovingly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

The stump of the old cottonwood tree which, tradition says, witnessed the massacre of the Fort Dearborn garrison, now stands in the museum of the Chicago Historical society. The Massacre monument, erected by George M. Pullman at 18th street near the tree, also has been taken to the Historical society building, where the two memorials of the city's early tragedy are seen daily by the historically minded.

L. E. M. writes: "Your story of Coxey brought vividly to mind how I hid in the bushes to watch the 'army' build their fires at the first night's camp after leaving Massillon. Seeing no daggers and witnessing no shootings I crept out and mingled with this, the meekest lot of men I have ever seen. Imagine my bewilderment when Carl Browne unfurled his banner and, from the rear of his wagon, began to preach a sermon from the Bible!"

"The Corn, the Royal Corn!"

Several readers have sent in comments on the above words, which appeared—not on the curtain of McVicker's theater—but, Charles Collins tells us, on that of the old Illinois theater on Jackson boulevard. Judge George C. Dixon of Dixon, Ill., sends us the full quotation, too long to print here. We are sending it in full to John Wunnicke, who first requested it and will send it to any reader who sends a stamped, addressed envelope for it. Let us call it, for it IS a prose poem,—

Pardner, Thar's Gold in Them Thar Black Hills

By Percy Wood.

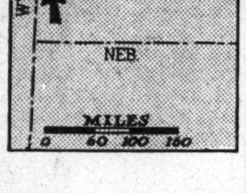
LEAD, S. D. Millions in gold lie imbedded in iron-hard rock as deep as a mile here in the Black Hills—but not in the yellow-speckled chunks that "Potato Creek Johnny" and other prospectors used to find back in '76.

As it comes from the 4,200 foot level at the Homestake mine, gold-bearing ore is grayish and uninteresting, and each ton contains only two ounces, or about $70 worth of the coveted metal. Two weeks of crushing and chemical recovery are required to liberate it from worthless material, once the rock has been dynamited below and hauled to the top.

But it should not be assumed that gold mining in South Dakota is too complicated to yield substantial returns. From Homestake—largest producer in the western hemisphere—about $20,000,000 is shipped annually to the Denver mint, in glittering bars smaller than paving bricks, but each worth from $17,500 to $20,000.

• • •

The tenderfoot permitted to heft one of these small fortunes is astonished at its deceptive heaviness, since it weighs at least 500 ounces, or more than 30 pounds. This fact is likely to dismiss any surge of kleptomaniacy which might envelop the visitor, to say nothing of the problems which would attend its profitable disposal, once the gold was safely off the mine property.



The Homestake Mining company dominates, in a rather complete sense, the city of Lead, a well-ordered community of about 7,000. Most of the inhabitants either work for or are dependent upon the mine. Their white houses are stacked against the pine-covered hills looking down upon the prosperous-appearing business street which is, incidentally, a far more respectable street than the central thorofare of adjoining Deadwood.

Deadwood, half the size of Lead, preserves a loose, old-western atmosphere, with many saloons and gambling rooms where tourists may reduce their gambling fever—generally a costly remedy—at dice or roulette, as did the followers of the gold rush in the 70s. But more of Deadwood later.

• • •

The Homestake mine is a tremendous plant. You might call it a factory for the manufacture of gold, considering the complicated process carried out in the layers of connected buildings down the hillsides.

There is a good reason for the buildings being spaced downward from the crest of the hill. Much of the process involves carrying the gold ore in suspension — in water, mercury, or cyanide—so that the natural force of gravity pulls it from one structure to the next.

Placer mining—washing gold from gravel in creek beds—was the early method used in the Black Hills, but only in the early years following the "rush." Shaft mining on what is now Homestake property began in '76, with the recovery of $5,000 worth that spring, and the name was incorporated on Nov. 7, 1877. Production has been constant ever since. How much of the tremendous deposit remains, the management is not prepared to say, but work has been mapped out for another 13 years.

• • •

Mining operations are now being carried out on 23 levels of the mine, from 900 to 4,550 feet, spaced from 100 to 150 feet apart. Huge rooms, 125 feet high and from 60 to 200 feet wide, are excavated. They are supported by pillars of ore-bearing rock which later are taken out when the useless dust recovered on top is put back.

The ore taken from these rooms goes to the top of the shaft in nine ton buckets which travel at three times the speed of express elevators in new loop buildings. They are hauled by tremendous 3,000 horse power hoists on drums around which winds a mile of 1⅞ inch steel cable. The operators of this imposing machinery sit enthroned in great chairs before shiny levers and pedals—a position which probably symbolizes the acme of power in the eyes of small boy visitors.

Once the ore is at the top, the crushing begins, on much the same principle as the old-fashioned coffee mill. First the ore is reduced to 6 inch lumps, then to 1½ inches, and eventually to a dust finer than flour. This is called threshing, and its purpose is to liberate the gold from worthless rock. Massive crushers, then batteries of stamps, and finally rod mills and grinders are used.

• • •

The second job is to recover the gold liberated by the crushing. Homestake employs two methods—amalgamation and cyanidation. The first consists of bringing the gold in the ore into contact with mercury or quicksilver, which forms a grayish, thick mass, called amalgam. By reason of its weight, this mass will sink to the bottom of tanks of water and sand, and gold can be collected on plates of copper previously coated with quicksilver. About 60 per cent of Homestake's production is won by amalgamation.

The residue is treated to cyanidation in 700 ton vats—a process involving use of "enough cyanide to kill every one in the world, yet we've never had one case of cyanide poisoning," an official of the mine explains. The slimy substance which the gold ore has now become is then distributed in 550 pound presses thru which more cyanide is forced. Thereafter it passes thru tanks into small filter presses while finely powered zinc is mixed with it.

This precipitates the gold in muddy deposits. After that, both it and the amalgam obtained by the first process are ready for the refinery.

Refining—the penultimate stage—removes the quicksilver from the amalgam and impurities from the deposits obtained by cyanidation, and finally the gold is taken from furnaces and poured into bars. These are shipped to the mint. The amount of shipments and their frequency are not made public.

The process—up to the refining—can be followed in about an hour's time by visitors who are not anxious to take the breathless drop down the shaft to see the actual mining. It is an absorbing trip, properly culminated when one of the freshly cooled bars is brought forth for the tenderfoot's awed and appreciative inspection.

• • •

"Potato Creek Johnny" [John Parrott], still wandering around Deadwood, loafing in the lobby of the Franklin hotel or watching the wheel spin in the back room of the Buffalo bar, can tell a lot of tales of the days when "picture rock" was found in the hills. This is ore on which gold stands out in flecks or dimly discerned lines, but the miners at Homestake rarely come across it any more. Johnny found the biggest nugget that ever came out of the hills, and he likes to tell about it. He is a friendly and furry little old man, with beard covering his shirt front, and long hair streaming down his back and shoulders.

After their June wedding Mr. Davlantes will take his bride to live in Detroit, Mich., while he serves in the quartermaster division of the army.

Helen Mae Callahan, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Ploeger, Drexel boulevard and St. Louis, Mo., to Meadie Blish, Indianapolis and Chicago, son of Mrs. Tipton Blish. The wedding is planned for June 30 in Clearsprings, Ind.

Muriel Kemp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kemp, Pratt boulevard, to Lou Steiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Steiner, West Adams street.

Elaine Topper, daughter of Alex Topper, Thorndale avenue, to Egan Gerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Gerson, Dickens avenue.

Georgette Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cohen, North Christiana avenue, to Marvin Friedman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Friedman, North Fairfield avenue. Miss Cohen will be graduated from the University of Illinois. Mr. Friedman received his degree from the same university.

Evelyn Judith Schlesinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Schlesinger, North Long avenue, to Saul M. Salka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel G. Salka, North Clark street. Mr. Salka is a graduate of Northwestern university.

Jeanne Levinsohn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Levinsohn, North Pine Grove avenue, to Joseph Grant Hartman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Hartman, Bosworth avenue. Miss Levinsohn attended the University of Wisconsin. Her fiancé was graduated from the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Outgoing Leader of Business Club to Give Breakast

Ruth Mannow Olsson.
[Graphic Photo.]

As a final salute to the officers and directors who have served under her on the board of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago, Ruth Mannow Olsson, outgoing president of the organization, will give a farewell breakfast at noon today at the Ambassador hotel's Pump room. Succeeding Mrs. Olsson will be Mary H. Burris, who is to be installed in office on May 25.

During Mrs. Olsson's two years of office, the alliance has awarded a scholarship at the University of Chicago to Miss Virginia E. Kelley and is assisting five other students with loans. The group has made a contribution of $600 to the American Red Cross War Relief fund and is taking an active part in other departments of war work.

Other new officers elected on May 11 include Edith J. Alden, first vice president; Camille Lange Rathbun, second vice president; Edna C. Smith, treasurer; Alma Koch, corresponding secretary; and Murl Craig, recording secretary. Emma W. Bock, Anne Clarke, Anna Doetsch, Mabel Irene Durland, Celia M. Howard, and Caroline Meyer will serve as directors.

Dr. Orlando Smith will be the guest at 7:30 o'clock on Tuesday of the Chicago Business and Professional Women's auxiliary, B'nai Brith, meeting at the Congress hotel. He will demonstrate the lie detector.

Royalty and Revues Make Hectic Week

By Cousin Eve.

We had a fairly hectic time last week what with theatrical revues and plays in our best clubs, and a future queen staying in our north side Ambassador. Princess Juliana, only daughter of the queen of Holland, arrived in Chicago Tuesday to touch off the drive for Dutch war relief. The movement is called the Queen Wilhelmina Fund, Inc., and is designed to help the homeless Dutch who have escaped from the Japanese advance to unoccupied territory.

The royal princess accepted private hospitality during her stay in Chicago, dining with Mrs. Richard Crane Wednesday night at 1550 Lake Shore drive. There was quite some protocol involved—to curtsey or not to curtsey? To say "yes, ma'am" or "yes, your royal highness"—or not to say anything—which after all is conservative.

The Arts club is sending cards to its membership for a lecture, "You Can't Beat the Dutch," on the Dutch East Indies next Friday morning at 11:30. The girl who will speak and show the lovely colored films is Mrs. Lee Bredin, a native of Sumatra, and a very charming person they say. She is a writer and left the orient for the United States last autumn. Tickets to the lecture are $2.50 each and the fund will be shipped direct to the needy Dutch women whose husbands are fighting.

Victor de Bont is local chairman of the Dutch, and the woman's executive committee is headed by Mrs. A. H. Ardiel.

The Playwright's theater celebrated with a performance of "Cock Robin" at the Arts club Thursday night. You remember the old nursery rhyme—"Who killed cock robin?" "I," said the sparrow, "with my bow and arrow." Well, it was all about a murder, and a very conversational murder at that, where one suspected the victim had died of an overdose of words. But no. A girl in the cast with a "camera eye" reconstructs the crime performed during the rehearsal of a play, and you find that the best actor in the piece, Abbott Ross, had done the foul deed—a knifing by the way. Among the players I found Emily Goehst, a handsome girl and talented actress, who could do comedy rôles on any stage—Hollywood or Broadway. Emily is the shining star of the Service club, and leads off at their annual revues and benefits. Alice Gerstenberg produced "Cock Robin," and I noted various members of the Playwright's theater in the large and vociferous "assistance." Among them Mr. and Mrs. John Stambaugh, Aldis J. Browne Jr., Mrs. Byron Harvey Jr., Doris Curtis, Mary Gardner, and Floyd Mayberry.

After the show the audience bustled hungrily upstairs and draped itself cozily at small tables for light refreshments. These suppers are always attractively served at the Arts club by the usual corps of butlers under Louis, the competent maitre d'hotel.

Mrs. Frank J. Loesch gave a farewell luncheon at this club the day before her departure for Cooperstown for the summer. The party was given in honor of Mrs. Ralph Otis, who has been living in Pasadena, near her daughter, Sarane Burns, for eight months. In order to vary the usual forms, the hostess announced that she was going to shuffle the place cards and ask Marjorie Letts to put them round the oblong table, face down.

This made one feel that fate had something to do with one's neighbor and was an amusing idea. Fate brought me next to Mrs. Otis, who had something to say about how jittery things are in California. Mrs. Samuel Rinaker of Lake Forest, who also came back late last week from Beverly Hills, has the same impression. Mrs. Rinaker has been wintering near Hollywood with her son, Sammy Jr., who is a tall youth of just 17 summers. He looks, however, 25 and aims at becoming a movie actor. Young Sam is certainly a personable boy and besides being eye filling has a fine baritone voice. But ere long the navy is going to have an extra handsome young ensign.

By the bye, has anybody else noticed the enormous average of wonderful men in our navy—the stunning young ensigns in long queues on Michigan avenue, the fine specimens among enlisted men? I don't believe there are more splendid specimens of the genus homo anywhere in the world than we have enlisted in our fighting forces.

Miss Frances Whedon of Lake Forest covered herself with more and more glory last Friday with her production of "A Spring Frolic" at the Contemporary club. When it was over, the members who had screamed with laughter thruout voted among themselves to have an annual May "Frances Whedon Frolic" hereafter. Miss Whedon wrote every line of the witty script and worked 69 members into the production. Among the numbers that made the greatest hit with me was the opening debate between three foreigners on the relative merits for defense work of chop suey, vodka, and tea.

Mrs. Herbert Hyde was Ching Chang Loo under a long black pigtail and Chinese whiskers; Miss Alice Moran was Comrade Moransky and was entirely camouflaged by a black Russian beard, while Irene Sidley was "the Countess of Sid, of Sid Castle Sidleyshire" and had much to say on the subject of tea.

Mrs. Paul Noyes, notedly demure, suddenly rose up in the audience saying it was commonly thought that Racine was her birthplace, but this was an error because she was born in Russia and proposed to do a song and dance as learned from her old babushka. Then followed a comical invention in singing and dancing that was wildly applauded and led to skits on everything.

An amusing episode was a line of all the living club presidents, arriving on crutches and in wheelchairs. Each woman read a verse telling how much better things were done in her day, when she was president of the club. The highlight was Marlene Dietrich, a vision of loveliness in blue satin swim suit and long bath cape, blonde hair floating. She had a wonderful little sing song about the navy and her part in defense work and was carried away on a midget motorcycle down the middle aisle, blowing kisses to all, before the guests were aware that it was Mrs. Paul Russell, mother of five lusty children, and looking sweet sixteen.

At the end the audience was requested to form itself into groups and members of the show passed nosegays of garden flowers fresh from Lake Forest and Winnetka gardens, lilies of the valley, pansies, violas, cherry blossoms, and such.

Then to martial music another surprise, 20 of the club's handsomest matrons dressed in white, as canteen workers, marched in with the paper plate luncheons. These they circulated to the audience—and the paper was salvaged later on in a huge contained at the door. Everybody was charmed by the party.

It's a great little thing to find a laugh these days, and to be a bit merry, for there's a wise old saying that "care will kill a cat." With the shifts and changes due to war, we are losing to Washington, two attractive members of our Greek colony, Mr. and Mrs. Anastase Antonopoulous. "Stasso," as they call him, was attached to the Greek consulate, and is leaving to become a secretary of the Greek legation. His uncle is Greek minister to the United States, and this young couple will certainly have a time for themselves in our national capital. Both are good looking and very gay, true mondains, who make an interesting circle wherever they go. The Antonopolouses came here from the Greek legation in Moscow, traveling across Siberia, China, Japan, and the Pacific just prior to the outbreak of war.

TO WED MAY 31

Miss Shirley Edythe Stein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Joseph Stein of North Sacramento avenue, will be married on May 31 to Marc J. Berkman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Berkman of East 52nd street. The wedding will take place at the Sovereign hotel, Dr. Morris Teller officiating. Following a reception, Mr. Berkman and his bride will leave on a trip to Mexico.

Their campagnon de voyage was Tizzy, a hardy Bulgarian, male feline—in other words, a tomcat, not much to look at, but with a lovely disposition. People who really love cats like the alley cat version better than the fussedup Persians or Siamese. And this family is happy about Washington, not for their own selves, but because Tizzy can play in the garden of the Greek legation. Well, it's too bad! I was fascinated with these Greeks, partly because some of my family knew some of their family in Paris in the Gay Nineties, and partly because I think the Greeks are wonderful. Look at the way they stood up to the fighting in this war.

News comes from New York that Otis C. Chatfield-Taylor has signed up with the American stretcher bearers who will see active service in American ambulance corps units on the Libyan front. Otis is the next youngest of the Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor's boys and is a journalist and play producer of Manhattan. He was married about five years ago to a delightful Russian, Maroschka Anisfeld, daughter of a well known instructor at the Art institute, and herself an expert dress designer. Maroschka is a lovely looking, thin elfin creature with huge black eyes, and two or three white locks in her black mane. She has had great social vogue in New York and maintains a studio in Madison avenue for dress design.

Another Chicago man already in the ambulance service in Libya is William Simpson, youngest of Mrs. James Simpson's three sons. Billy and his wife were divorced in Reno this winter prior to his departure for Africa.

This is the hottest season in Libya and the fighting there has died down. The sun strikes out with sledge hammer blows if one ventures into it, and according to letters from Tripoli, the Libyan capital, and Cairo, too, the mercury stands at 135 degrees in the shade. So Simpson and Chatfield-Taylor will find plenty of caloric rays to write home about.

Protocol held up a luncheon at the Foreign Relations council Thursday. Clifton Utley was tearing round in circles because the Dutch had said that nobody could eat until Princess Juliana had been served.

It was one of the biggest, gayest, snappiest luncheons ever staged in the Palmer House ballroom. And when Richard Bentley, president of the council, led in the princess followed by her attractive entourage the crowd stood up and gave a cordial welcome to the handsome young royal matron.

Juliana was rosy as a peony and smart in a beige suit, a white flower toque, and a corsage of red camellias. After Dick Bentley's flattering introduction, the princess made a brief address and left the main speech of the day to Dr. Slotemaker de Bruine, chief of information for the Dutch government. He is an attractive looking man with sleek, dun color hair and a good figure, and he seemed to speak excellent English and lots of it. But alas! he had an accent that nobody in my neighborhood could understand. It was a highly technical address, too, and after an hour of it—a lamentable thing happened—half the audience threw protocol to the four winds and beat it to the exits. And they didn't walk out backward either. But we are a young, free hearted country and don't know that we can't leave our seat until after royalty has departed.

There were no questions asked of Dr. de Bruine, because the meeting broke up, and the thousand guests pouring out in great streams agreed that Princess Juliana was charming. The crowd was more distinguished than I have ever seen it, and women who looked smart were Mrs. John Chapman in white and black floral print, with a toque of cherries, nice enough to eat; Mrs. Walter Kirk in black and white print; Mrs. Frank V. Skiff of New York in a jacket frock of mulberry and white imprimé; Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin in tailor made beige, and Mrs. Morris Johnston in a tailored dark suit with a white hat.

Louise Cummins Betrothed to David F. Matchett Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Manson Cummins of Greenwood avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Louise, to David Fleming Matchett Jr., son of Judge and Mrs. Matchett. The wedding is planned for June. Miss Cummins attended Monmouth college and now is studying at the University of Chicago. Her fiancé, a graduate of Carleton college and the University of Chicago Law school, is practicing law in Chicago.

Virginia Ernest Engaged to Ensign John H. Koogle

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Ernest of Troy, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Virginia, to Ensign John Hammond Koogle, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Chatfield Koogle of Evanston. Miss Ernest, a graduate of Emma Willard school, now is attending Skidmore college. Her fiancé will receive his degree this month from Rensselaer Polytechnic institute.

Women in War Work

By India Moffett

Countless are the recipes for soldiers' delight, among them cakes, cookies, free bus rides and leaves. But perhaps the very favorite is that interlude of luxury when the bugler stops blowing, routines relax, and mother or some other good angel plays "step and fetch it" for her boy's pleasure. Old home weeks come few and far between, however, and most of the time it's up to local talent to do its best for the military present.

One of the happier ideas we've heard is that of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Since May of last year 600 service men from Great Lakes and Fort Sheridan have been the guests of William M. Dewey, president, for a week-end of fun, food, and Sunday morning snooze. Mainly they are men of the lower money brackets who would not be able to afford this type of entertainment on rookie pay. Now, under the care of Miss Lillian Miller of the Edgewater staff, they have the run of the best suites available, the Marine room festivities—all that the big hotel can offer.

Certainly offers like this are antidotes for loneliness and a major contribution toward keeping up morale. And perhaps these less organized spices for military life mean most of all, for they have that touch of something special that no group doings can ever quite provide.

We've published letters from an army wife and a navy wife. Today we are using one from an army mother which should be comforting to other mothers.

"Dear Mrs. Moffett:

"Several weeks ago there appeared a letter in your column, "Women in War Work," written by an army wife. I enjoyed it so much and I'm sure many found it very informative of camp life. My husband and I had the extreme good fortune to visit our son at Fort Bliss, Texas, the latter part of March and I thought there might be a few mothers interested in hearing something of what we found out while there.

"Our train was an hour late arriving at El Paso and, being night time, all curtains were drawn to effect a blackout. Our son, a supply sergeant, had special permission to be at the depot to greet us, as it was past time for soldiers to be in town. Words cannot describe the thrill of seeing our fine, tall, broad shouldered soldier waiting for a sight of us. It being so late we were forced to stay at a hotel in El Paso for the night, but thereafter we stayed at the Guest House, which is located on the grounds at Fort Bliss.

"Next morning we awoke with thrilling anticipation for our great adventure. We boarded a street car for Fort Bliss, and after riding about 30 minutes we changed to a bus which took us to the fort. We arrived at the Guest House and were shown to a second floor room with bath. We were delighted with it, lovely and clean and complete with twin army beds, a table, two chairs, also a garment rack, and only $1.50 per night.

• • •

"My son was off duty at 4:30 so we all dined together at a cafeteria next door to the Guest House. It was very good food, too, nicely cooked and clean. We ate nearly all our meals there so our son could be with us. He could have eaten in tent headquarters but we wanted every minute with him that could be spared. We found out several amazing things in our visit—all the tents were heated by gas which was piped to stoves. Every battery has its own washrooms with showers piped with hot and cold water. And when I saw the hospital quarters it really made me feel so much easier to know such splendid buildings were there for all illnesses.

"My husband and I had occasion to go to El Paso alone one day and we were proud to note all the boys boarding the bus at different points were so quiet, dignified and well spoken. Frankly, I didn't hear an oath of any kind uttered by any soldier the whole time we were there.

• • •

"Our first morning on the post we were awakened by a steady hip-hip. On raising the shade at our window we were amazed to see we were overlooking the drill grounds, and soldiers were marching onto the field from every direction. We watched them for over an hour. It was a beautiful, awe inspiring sight. Most of these soldiers were recruits, having arrived the same day we did. One little fellow who reminded me of Lou Costello was among those drilling. When all arms were swinging one way he would be swinging the other way. On orders to about face, forward march, he would still be marching the other way and jerkily turn and hustle to catch up with the rest of his buddies. We had a few good laughs over him and believe it or not we could spot him in every drill or parade for he was just a second too slow. It was surprising to note how patient those in command were in drilling.

"Our stay at the Guest House was such a treat. It enabled us to realize to the fullest what a grand place Uncle Sam builds for his sons, what he does for them, and it explains a little why all our boys are so willing to do for their country. We hated to leave this beautiful spot but after three wonderful days we had to pack and homeward trek. Our great surprise came on our last day, dress parade. It was a lovely sight and one I shall never forget."

Jewish Women's Luncheon to Fete Mrs. Stephen Wise

An important sidelight of the convention of the American Jewish congress in Chicago will be a women's division luncheon tomorrow in compliment to Mrs. Stephen S. Wise of New York, who recently was reelected national president of the division. A panel of four vice presidents, Mrs. Harold G. Cohn, Mrs. Anna Center Schneiderman, Miss Milly Brandt, and Miss Ruth Warters, all from New York, will discuss "War, Women, and the Congress." The luncheon will be given in the Bal Tabarin of Hotel Sherman and Mrs. Robert J. Samuels will preside.

HIS FABULOUS FORTUNE

"We're keeping that girl waiting. You can't send Tony Rever away. She wouldn't go. She don't take orders; she gives 'em. Anyway, he don't dare tell her the truth even if he knew how to."

Jaegel gave in and opened the door. He saw Ann waiting at a distance.

"My nephew will see the lady, please."

He and Puff withdrew. Seeing the nurse in her own room, tatting, they had to go to Jaegel's room, both fuming with rage because they could neither see nor hear what went on.

Ann went back to the roadside stand and found Tony pouring charm all over the embarrassed Walter, whom she left with reluctance, real or well feigned, and a last word: "I want to know more about your simply fascinating work."

When Ann opened Grongo's door and closed it on Tony, she heard only Grongo's cry of welcome and Tony's little shriek of devotion.

"Darling! Darling! Thank God, your beautiful head is not marred."

"You should see my god-like body," said Grongo. "But you haven't X-ray eyes. Or have you?"

"I could never see thru you," said Tony, "but I never believed you. I can hardly believe you now. You don't look the least bit injured. It's just a pose."

He slid his right arm out from under the cover. It was one long bandage. He could just move a leg into view. It was a longer bandage. Tony sank into a chair.

"O, you poor darling, how you must have suffered!"

"A lot you care, you fugitive from a dude ranch," said Grongo. "I wrote you that I was all smashed up and instead of flying to my side——"

She drew her chair to the edge of the bed.

"You know I would have come at once, but I was out motoring thru Death Valley and thru New Mexico and the Navaja and Zuni country to Taos. That's where I got this silver and turquoise hardware and this hat. I didn't get back to Palm Springs till last night. I found your letter waiting."

"Have you been true to me?"

"Well, in Death Valley I was. And on the Zuni reservation. In fact, on the whole trip. My aunt was with me. But you should ask such a question, here in charge of that pretty orange girl! Who is she? Nell Gwynne? When I asked for you, you should have seen the look she gave me! How long have you known her?"

"Since I came out of the coma of my crash."

Grongo Asks Tony to Help Him Out

He told her as much of what had happened as he wanted her to know and gave her to believe that he had been on his way to her in such impatient haste that she was really to blame for his disaster. On the off chance that he might secretly use her as a help to escape from his plight, he whispered:

"Bend closer, darling." He kissed the ear she put near to his lips, and murmured into it:

"Since I sent you my letter something has happened. I'll tell you the whole story later, when I am well and when we are married."

"Maybe I am, so far as you are concerned, but I am in a jam and I need help badly."

"You can count on me. Who do I shoot?"

"I've got an uncle and a cousin I'd be glad to get rid of, but I'm gun-shy, as you know. It's like this: My dear mother left me a little legacy and an uncle of mine—I'm the rich nephew of a poor uncle—well, he heard of it. He has no right to any of it, but I'm helpless here and I need legal advice. I want to telegraph to my New York lawyers to fly out here and protect me. My uncle wouldn't send such a wire. I don't want him to know of it till they get here. Would you send a telegram for me, and keep it dark?"

"You know how I love dirty work," she said. "And this sounds awfully dirty to me. Where's paper and pencil? Here's the nurse's chart. I'll take one of these forms. All right, me lord. Go ahead and dictate to your womanuensis."

He gave her the address of Edward J. Maxon. The telegram ran, as he dictated it and Tony wrote it:

"Dear Burps I want you and Bow-tie to find Wheely and tell him my car crashed and I was lucky to escape with my life tho my bones are mostly broken candy period I was taken into home of Cephas Mallison at—I don't know the address of this place, Tony, or the number. You find it out from Ann or the man Locke and put it in, will you? And now I'll go on: I am in plaster casts and cannot move for some weeks so Jaegel finds me and moves into the house with a lady friend period Since she is his daughter and since he is my uncle he wants a large share of what my mother left me or else period Wheely can tell you all about it period I need a couple of good lawyers like you and Bow-tie so please come in a plane and take care of uncle and cousin period Of course your fee and expenses will be taken care of Love and kisses Grongo."

He waited till Tony's flying pencil had raced to the last word. He dared not be more vague than he was and he hoped she would not realize that when he said "typewriter" he meant a machine gun. But he could not be sure and he was afraid to be less explicit. If Tony had any suspicions she kept them to herself.

"Thank you, darling," Grongo said. "And I can trust you not to let anybody suspect you're sending it, can't I, sweet? As for the money, I had a lot of it in my clothes. You can ask Ann for it, or will you trust me to pay it when I get well?"

Her answer was a look of rebuke. She folded the paper, stuffed it in her bosom, and said:

"You inherited all that money and didn't mention it to me when you talked about marrying me."

"I wanted to be loved for myself alone," he answered, turning on the light in his eyes. "My proposal of marriage still holds."

"Well, I'd better wait till I see how you look when you're mended. Just now you're Humpty Dumpty after taking the fall. There's an awful lot of phony talk in this message, but I never was one to look at the last page of a mystery story first. I suppose I'm letting myself in for all sorts of trouble by mixing up in your affairs again, but it's more fun being in a mystery story than just seeing one in a movie. I suppose you'll have me publicized as a gunman's moll yet."

"I kept your name out of the last scrape, didn't I?"

"Yes, but you know what happened to the pitcher that went too often to the well. My father shipped me out here to get me away from you. And here we are again. Well, I'll send your telegram for you, and if I can escape my aunt's eagle eye again, I'll run down and see you. What can I send you? A good book, some flowers or some—how'd you like some oranges for a change?"

He cast his eyes out at the fruit-burdened trees crowding up to the window and groaned.

She kissed him good-by and left him. She looked about for a glimpse of his evil uncle, but Jaegel and Puff kept out of sight till she had gone.

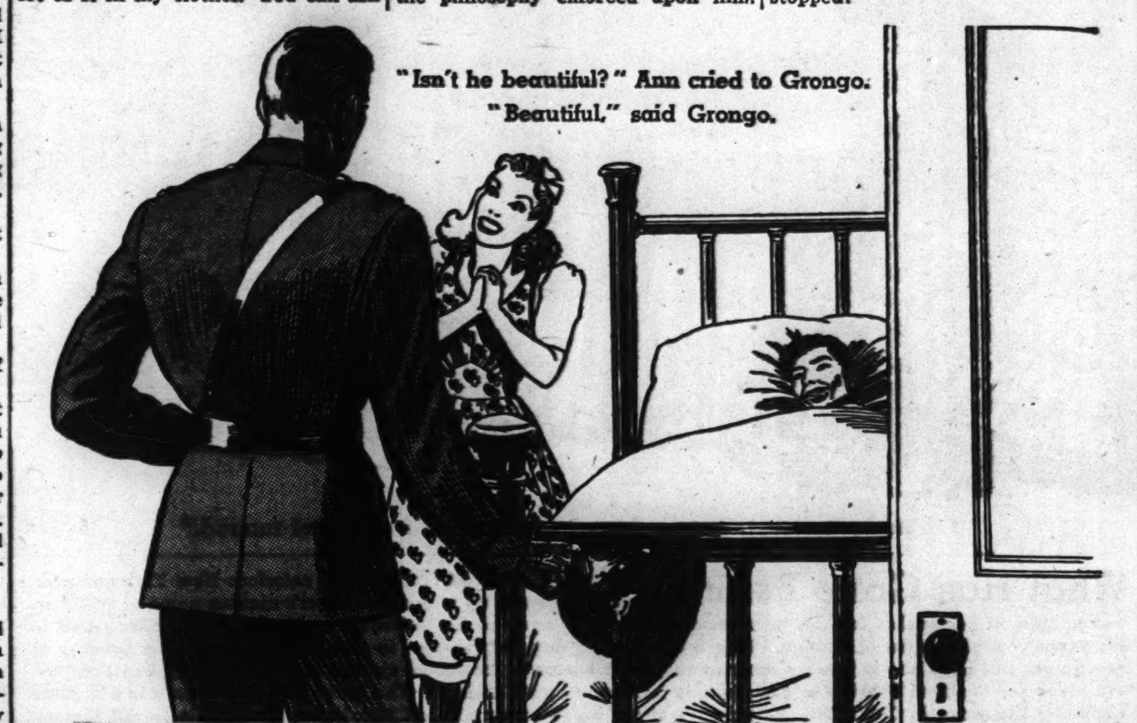
She found Ann and Walter at the counter and irritated Ann by asking the exact address in case she had to write before her next visit. Walter escorted her to her car. In shameless disregard of Ann's presence, she flirted him into a dither before she drove away along the highway to Palm Springs. She paused at Banning to send Grongo's message and faced down the puzzled and curiosity-ridden operator who read it aloud carefully, asked about the dubious words, and collected the money without getting any explanation from Tony. She drove on home, boiling over with a renewed interest in life and mischief.

The telegram sent Burps Maxon into a machine gun volley of burps. He had been forced to lend Grongo's father a lot of money, and had given it up for lost. He had wondered what had happened to Grongo. His nearest approach to a guess was that the young scoundrel had been taken for a ride in a car or a rowboat and been dumped dead into some roadside ditch or weighted with concrete and rolled over into some river.

The news that Grongo was not only alive, but rich and willing to pay all expenses woke new hope in Burps' gusty bosom. As for Bow-tie Bogardus, he was fairly aching for a shooting match, and the prospect of getting Jaegel set his soul—so-called—ablaze.

They went at once to call on Wheely at his little retreat in the country. He realized that their greed was Grongo's only hope of rescue, and he told them all about Grongo's inheritance of $200,000, except the fact that Grongo had not the faintest idea where it was, if it existed at all.

He told them what Jaegel had done to him and begged to be taken along, but when they explained the difficulty of getting him on and off the plane with his wheelchair, and then into and out of the automobile they would have to charter when they reached Los Angeles, he accepted his fate, but with far less than usual of the philosophy enforced upon him. For now his beloved Grongo was even more helpless than Wheely was, and even more difficult to move.



"Isn't he beautiful?" Ann cried to Grongo.
"Beautiful," said Grongo.

Nothing could have looked less like a wolf's lair than the Mallison ranch-house. In front of it stood the small shed where, when she could be spared from household tasks, Ann Mallison sold oranges and orange juice, fruits, nuts, honeys. Back of this roadside stand was a yard partly obscured by trees, then the house, a shabby mid-western small town two-story structure with a front porch, a bay window, and a chronic need of paint. A gaudy bougainvillea almost submerged it, roof, porch, and all in a great billow of magenta. Beyond and about the house were orange and lemon and grapefruit trees, fig trees, walnuts.

Roses bloomed the year round and other flowers came and went. The orange trees never rested and on many of them could be seen at the same time both blossoms and fruit in every stage from little green globules up to great spheres of orange gold.

Ann and Walter Argue, but They Get Nowhere

There was nothing to catch the eye of the motorist or slacken his speed as he shot past the Mallison ranch house.

And yet terror brooded there, and the menace of torture and murder. In a small room back of the parlor lay a helpless youth whose misdeeds past and future earned him little right to mercy, tho he had his latent possibilities of good and an irresistible fascination for women, good, bad, and both. In any case he had a better right to live than the big man in the room behind the kitchen, for he was an embittered and merciless criminal.

The fugitive from New York had been taken into the house by the good will of the family, but Jaegel had forced himself upon them. They were vaguely afraid of him without knowing how good reason they had to fear him, or how willing he was to turn their obscure peace into a shambles of death and public horror. Anybody could see that Jaegel and Grongo and Puff were not quite what they pretended to be; yet nobody dared ask them the truth and nobody could find a reasonable theory to explain their peculiar actions.

The Irish van driver, Swinney, was the only one who seemed to know that the Mallisons were entertaining visitors. If it had not been for Swinney's stupidity Grongo would never have met with his accident in front of Ann's roadside stand. Yet she had to forgive Swinney the wreckage he had caused, for otherwise Grongo would never have been catapulted into her life.

Swinney's injuries from the collision had been slight, but his van was never the same again after its hospitalization. Swinney was his own employer and carried insurance enough to pay for the repairs, but not enough to cover the damages he had done to Grongo in case Grongo sued. He thought of suing Grongo in self-defense for damages to the truck, but that might bring on a countersuit for enormous and ruinous damages.

Swinney had promptly reported the collision to the police and the motorcycle officer, who had arrived on the scene just after Grongo was carried into the Mallisons', had interviewed Ann and Walter as eyewitnesses. They had put all the blame on Swinney and he kept asking anxiously about the progress of Grongo's recovery. He never ceased to ask whenever he stopped:

"But—whisper!—does he ever get to tahkin' about havin' the law on me for crashin' him? Is he thinkin' of suin' me for damages like?"

Ann's first resentment against Swinney had been so mollified that she always reassured him; but Walter wanted to keep him on the anxious seat by telling what Grongo would undoubtedly do to Swinney as soon as he was able to see a lawyer. He kept Swinney in such a state of terror that he was ready to do anything to appease Grongo, tho he could not imagine what he could possibly do. Yet Walter was unconsciously softening him up to the point where he was ready and eager for a most unexpected opportunity to intervene in Grongo's behalf.

Swinney and a suit for financial damages had never entered Grongo's busy mind. At present he was in a frenzy of impatience to break from his shell of plaster and run away, or at least stand up and fight. He could not be sure that Tony had sent the telegram. She had not come near him again to satisfy his mad impatience.

Even if she had sent it, he could not be sure that Burps Maxon would ever receive it, for there were times when Burps found it safer to disappear. But even if he did receive it, could he find Wheely? If he found Wheeley, what would Wheely tell him? Suppose Wheely confessed that Grongo did not know where his mother's legacy was. Then Burps would never dream of going to the expense and the danger of crossing the continent in a plane to shoot it out with Jaegel. Even if Burps and Bow-tie came out and shot it out, what if Jaegel got them first?

One Sunday morning Ann stayed at home to take care of Grongo and let Miss Bland, the nurse, attend her distant church. Cephas and Beulah and Ollie Mallison, on the way to theirs, ran their old rattletrap car out past Grongo's window and called good-by to Ann, who stood there to wave to them.

Jaegel and Puff were still asleep, and Ann was looking forward to a day of real communion with Grongo. There was a knock at the door. She recognized it as Walter's and asked him to come in, but he answered thru the panel:

"Can I speak to you a moment?"

"Come on in," she insisted. It had grieved her that Walter was so resentful of Grongo's presence in the house, and she was always hoping to bring the two men together in friendship. So she forced Walter to enter. His reluctance was explained when he appeared in a state of acute embarrassment. He was not ashamed of the uniform he wore, and was glad of the right to wear it; but he was somehow ashamed of himself in it. He stood before Ann in much more chagrin than if she had caught him in red flannel underwear.

"Isn't he beautiful?" Ann cried to Grongo.

"Beautiful," said Grongo.

"Ann, I'd like a word with you outside before I go," said Walter.

Ignoring the demand, Ann went on: "Walter is an officer in the United States reserve. When he was in college he worked with the ROTC and then went into the reserve. He's a captain now in a machine gun battalion and they've been drilling a lot lately, so as to be ready in case we go into the war. They have to drill on Sundays to get the men together. What are you doing today, Walter?"

"O, we have a field problem in machine gun defense." He was so sheepish that he had to belittle his work. "It's pretty nearly a joke because we haven't any machine guns. The government can't spare us any. We have a couple of wooden dummies to represent light air-cooled guns, and we have rocks for the rest of them and for the heavy water-cooled guns. For the mortars we just set up pieces of stove pipe. But it gives us an idea."

"I think you're wonderful to go out there and drill for hours in the hot sun to perfect yourself without any equipment, just from love of your country. Heaven knows it needs men like you. Don't you think he's wonderful, Grongo?"

"Wonderful," said Grongo, feeling a bit sick, but less so than Walter, who motioned Ann outside so peremptorily that she obeyed him for once.

Sensation of Unwonted Shame Shakes Grongo

He took her a long distance from Grongo's room before he would talk, and then he said:

"Ann, I don't like to leave you alone in the house with those gorillas."

She laughed at that.

"You call Grongo a gorilla?"

"Well, I know you think he's mighty pretty, and as long as the plaster casts hold he can't harm you, but that uncle of his—so-called."

"Why should he harm me? And if he tried to, I can take care of myself. I'd have his ugly eyes out on his cheeks before he could say boo."

"All the same, I think I'll stay home."

"You go on and save your country and leave me to save myself."

She drove him away, but he left in a blue mood. He was not half so blue as Grongo proved to be when she went back to him.

The sight of Walter in uniform had not filled him with his old contempt for officers of all kinds. A sensation of unwonted shame quivered thru him. He felt an implied rebuke in Walter's record, and he did not react as of old with ridicule and defiance. He remembered how Wheely had called him an enemy of his country when he ought to be a soldier for it. He realized with nausea that he and Jaegel were engaged in the same treasons against the peace and welfare of the people. Loathing Jaegel, he must loathe himself. And he did.

While he brooded, Ann was chattering away, vaguely aware of his silence and his despondency, but never dreaming the reason. Lightly she asked him if he had ever gone in for the military. He did not answer her. She said she supposed he was in danger of the draft. Had he registered? He could not answer that. Finally, to escape, he pretended to have fallen asleep. So she left off her unconscious torment.

As the days passed Jaegel grew more and more explosive. Life in the little Mallison home was like life in the penitentiary cell to him. He was going stir-crazy again. He could not sleep. He blamed that davenport.

The next day he drove his magnificent car to Riverside and bought himself a big and roomy bed. When it was delivered he had the davenport moved out to the garage. To pacify the family he told them that he was going to make them a present of the bed when he left. He told Grongo of this with a great show of pride and generosity.

Grongo did not tell him that during his absence the doctor had come and taken the splints off Grongo's hands and arms. They were pitifully wan and weak, but it was a rapture to be able to move his fingers, bend his elbows, and flex what little biceps and triceps were left.

SPORTING GENTLEMAN

By
PETER B. KYNE

(Copyright, 1942; By Peter Bernard Kyne.)

THOMAS MOODY was almost a Forgotten Man. He was 34 years old, married, father of two children, and employed as a cashier for the Golden Gate Packing corporation at a salary of $200 a month.

He drove a low-priced automobile purchased at secondhand on the instalment plan and owned a 1934 radio, similarly purchased. He did, however, own his furniture and had a $2,500 life insurance policy and a similar amount of health and accident insurance. He had two suits of clothes and in some amazing manner managed to be reasonably happy, altho his life was as changeless as that of a convict.

One day the quiet current of life was abruptly accelerated. He turned a corner and bumped into Toad McArdle.

"Well, if it ain't old Slow-and-Easy Moody," McArdle bellowed. "I ain't seen you since we was in high school together."

Thomas Moody reflected that nobody would suspect, from Toad's speech, that he had ever been in high school. He accepted the latter's plump, soft hand. "Yes, that's right, Toad. Not since we were in high school."

Altho Thomas Moody had never been chummy with Toad McArdle in school—in fact, rather disliked him—he experienced now the vague pleasure of the average man when meeting a boyhood acquaintance. He experienced, too, the customary curiosity inherent in such meetings. What sort of man had the boy developed into? Had he made a success of life? Toad was flashily dressed and exuded an air of prosperity and worldliness; he wore a diamond ring and was smoking a fragrant cigar.

"Well, Toad," Thomas Moody inquired solicitously, "what business are you in? You appear prosperous."

"I'm a race horse man, Tom. Got eight useful horses and they're kind to me."

Friend Insists Moody Visit Race Track

"I've never been to a race track," Thomas Moody admitted, "and I've always wanted to, but I can't afford the price of admission or risk being seen there. The news might get back to the president of our company. I'm its cashier."

"Yeah, I suppose lots o' them Big Shots begin to worry about their bankroll when they see the man that handles it for them buyin' a $2 ticket." McArdle produced one owner's season pass and one trainer's. "These," he said, "was issued to a horseman who pulled out for the east last night. They're good for free admission to the clubhouse. C'mon down next Saturday an' bring a few bucks with you. I got a horse entered in the second race and he's a triple-X sleeper. But he'll come to life Saturday."

"Thanks, Toad, but I'd be afraid."

"Not next Saturday," McArdle urged. "Saturday's charity day. All the profits of the track on Saturday go to the Children's hospital an' all the society women in town are out selling tickets and working their heads off to get a record-breakin' crowd of admissions; if your boss sees you there he'll figure you're just doin' your bit for sweet charity's sake."

"I'll make it for you. You ought to have a couple o' bucks on my horse. I tell you he'll win as far as you can throw a rock and he'll pay plenty. C'mon, Slow-an'-Easy. Don't be a dead one all your days. Bring the wife if you got one. You can sit in my box. An' after you get there you can give me back them passes so somebody else can use 'em next week."

He hurried away before Thomas Moody could formulate further protests.

That night the latter talked it over with his wife, who thrilled at the prospect of going to the races. That settled it. They went.

A clubhouse usher led them to Toad McArdle's box, in which Mr. McArdle was already seated with his wife, a richly dressed, rather handsome young woman in a ripe California fruit fashion. Altho the Moodys had come to the track fully resolved not to bet, Mrs. McArdle talked Mrs. Moody into risking $2 on the third favorite in the first race. The beast ran to a photo finish and the Moodys almost went crazy with suspense until the animal was declared the winner. He paid $12.60 for $2 tickets. Toad had made the bet for her and he cashed the ticket.

"Let's bet $12 on Mr. McArdle's horse in the next race," Mrs. Moody urged her husband. Reluctantly he agreed and the horse won, paying $54.80 for $2 tickets. The Moodys had six $2 tickets; hence their original invested capital of $2 had climbed to $328.80. They then went into the Turf and Paddock club bar and Toad bought a quart of champagne. Magnificently he declined a similar treat on the part of the Moodys.

Thomas Moody whispered to his wife that they should not make another bet. It would be the part of wisdom to conserve their winnings. He reminded her of all the needed things they could buy now. Mrs. Moody agreed, but when the horses were parading to the post for the third race she left the box with Toad McArdle, declaring she wanted to see how bets were made.

Toad explained his modus operandi and she left to go to the women's dressing room; when she considered Toad McArdle had returned to his box she bet $50 to win on Toad's choice. The horse came home in front and paid $8.40 for $2 tickets.

Apparently this was Toad McArdle's lucky day, for in the fourth race he picked a winner which paid $10.60 for $2 tickets. By this time Mrs. Moody was quite out of control and had, unknown to her husband, bet $100 on Toad's choice to win. So she collected $530.

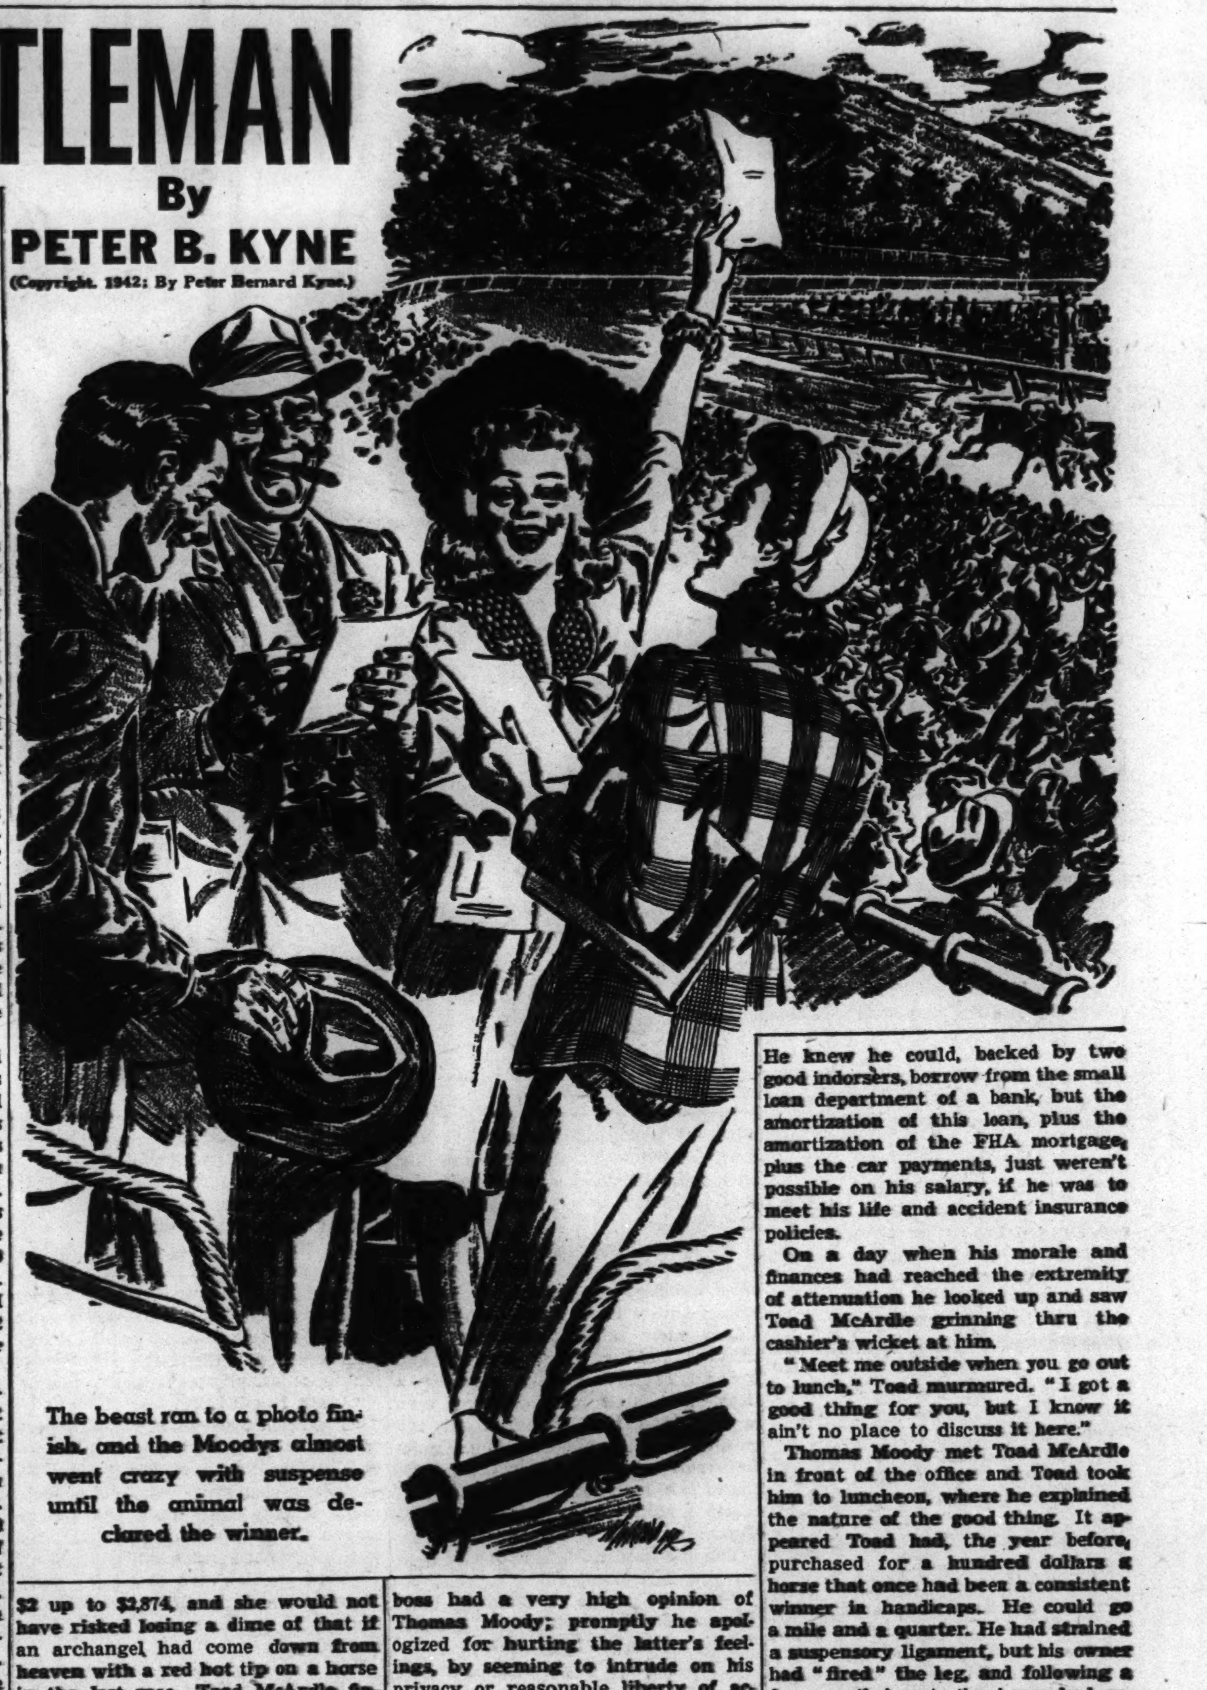
Toad couldn't bring himself to recommend a bet in the fifth race, but upon noticing there was entered in it a mare named Aunt Hetty, and recalling that Mr. Moody had a maiden aunt named Hetty of whom Mrs. Moody was rather fond, she put $10 on Aunt Hetty's nose for luck, and Aunt Hetty romped home in front and paid $28.60 for $2 tickets, Mrs. Moody, of course, collecting $143. She hated herself for her timidity in making such a trifling bet on Aunt Hetty.

In the sixth race Toad McArdle thought a horse named Socko might be worth a bet, but didn't appear very enthusiastic, for he only bet $10 on Socko, so Mrs. Moody, in order to avoid an acrimonious argument with Mr. Moody, sneaked away to the mutuel windows herself and bet $20 on a ewe-necked, long-legged, cow-hocked monstrosity called Homeward Bound, to show. At the moment he hadn't a dollar bet on him in the show pool.

He finished fourth, but when the horses returned to the judges' stand the jockey on Homeward Bound ran up into the steward's stand and claimed a foul, which was duly investigated and allowed; with the result that Homeward Bound was moved up into third place and paid $96.20 for $2 tickets. She collected $962 and was unhappy because she had lacked courage to bet a hundred dollars on her faith in a name!

In the seventh race Toad advised the Moodys not to bet, because any one of six horses might win that race and the odds were too short for his money. It was a seven horse race and the longest price entry was quoted at 4 to 1 to win. Remembering what her lack of courage had cost her in the previous race, she bet $200 on this steed to win, $200 to place, and $200 to show. I am playing on velvet, she told herself, so why not take a chance.

The horse won by a length, paying $7.80, $4.20, $2.80, and Mrs. Moody collected $1,480. She had not entrusted Toad McArdle with the making of this bet, either, nor was her husband aware that she had made it and the previous bet. She had a premonition of disaster when Toad enthused over a horse in the last race and refused to make a bet on him. She was not surprised when he lost. She had run $2 up to $2,874, and she would not have risked losing a dime of that if an archangel had come down from heaven with a red hot tip on a horse in the last race. Toad McArdle finished the day a loser, so Mrs. Moody bought a bottle of champagne to cheer him and his wife up, and Mr. Moody almost collapsed when he saw the check—$7.50! After their return home Mrs. Moody triumphantly counted out her wealth; she screamed with joy and hugged and kissed her husband and her children and grew quite hysterical. Thomas Moody was so disturbed emotionally he did not get to sleep until 2 a. m.



The beast ran to a photo finish, and the Moodys almost went crazy with suspense until the animal was declared the winner.

Thomas Speaks Up and Gets a Raise

As he was balancing his cash on Monday evening the president of the company stepped into his cage. "I saw you at the race track yesterday, Moody," he announced. "I sincerely trust you do not make a practice of visiting the race track."

"It was charity day," Thomas Moody defended. "I think I had as much right to be there as you had, sir."

"Quite so, Moody, quite so."

"I had never been to a race track before and will never go again, since my action appears to have excited your apprehensions."

"I noticed you didn't bet, Moody. That pleased me."

"Do you suppose, sir," said Thomas Moody acridly, "that I could afford to play the ponies on the niggardly salary I am paid here? To be commended for not doing the impossible is a new high in smugness. You irritate me so profoundly I have decided to resign."

It is surprising what courage a beaten man can muster when he knows he is financed to weather a long period of unemployment. The boss had a very high opinion of Thomas Moody; promptly he apologized for hurting the latter's feelings, by seeming to intrude on his privacy or reasonable liberty of action. He agreed that Thomas Moody merited a raise and gave it to him on the spot—$25 a month. Moody thanked him and withdrew his resignation.

Two miracles in 48 hours, he thought, and all because of the employment of a little courage!

The following day Mrs. Moody visited the local office of the Federal Housing administration to shop for houses on which the government had foreclosed. She finally found a bargain that pleased her and her husband, so they made a down payment and signed a first mortgage, to be amortized monthly over a period of 20 years, or paid sooner, if desired. They bought some new furniture, new clothes and a low-priced repossessed car, and that summer the entire family had a vacation in the mountains.

Luck, of course, had a habit of changing. Thomas Moody contracted influenza, which developed into pneumonia, followed by pleurisy. Then he had to have an appendectomy. He was laid up four months and while the company paid his salary, doctor bills and hospital bills ate up the thousand dollars they had set aside from the race track winnings for just such an emergency. He was no sooner able to return to the office than his eldest son, following a long period of ear trouble, was whisked away to a hospital for a mastoid operation, while Blessed Event No. 3 impended. Out of the two previous experiences Thomas Moody knew the cost of a baby.

He had to borrow on his life insurance to pay for the mastoid operation and hospitalization and trust to another miracle to provide the funds for his third adventure in fatherhood. He knew he could, backed by two good indorsers, borrow from the small loan department of a bank, but the amortization of this loan, plus the amortization of the FHA mortgage, plus the car payments, just weren't possible on his salary, if he was to meet his life and accident insurance policies.

On a day when his morale and finances had reached the extremity of attenuation he looked up and saw Toad McArdle grinning thru the cashier's wicket at him.

"Meet me outside when you go out to lunch," Toad murmured. "I got a good thing for you, but I know it ain't no place to discuss it here."

Thomas Moody met Toad McArdle in front of the office and Toad took him to luncheon, where he explained the nature of the good thing. It appeared Toad had, the year before, purchased for a hundred dollars a horse that once had been a consistent winner in handicaps. He could go a mile and a quarter. He had strained a suspensory ligament, but his owner had "fired" the leg, and following a few months' rest, the horse had returned to the races and resumed his old winning streak.

Toad Sends His Horse to Train in Surf

Then the weak tendon had given way again, and since a horse that has bowed the same tendon twice is customarily regarded as worthless thereafter except for breeding purposes, Toad had bought the cripple for a hundred dollars, jerked off his shoes, blistered his leg with a famous Irish remedy, and when the hair started to grow in again, had turned the horse out to pasture for six months, at the end of which time he appeared quite sound and Toad had put him in training again.

However, realizing the weak leg probably would not stand up under training on a race track, Toad had shipped the animal to a stock farm near San Diego. Every morning he had taken the horse in a trailer down to San Diego bay, tied his halter shank to an iron ring in the stern of a skiff, and then, with Toad rowing, the horse had swum behind. A half hour of this daily for four months had put the animal in the pink, for as everybody knows, swimming develops more muscles than walking. And of course his dicky leg had not been subjected to the shocks incident to running on a race course.

Toad stated he had, four days previously, taken this horse over to deserted Agua Caliente race track and stepped him a mile in 1:37, which is speed on any man's race track. The horse [his name, by the way, was Catastrophe] had been wild to run. At the finish he hadn't been blowing hard enough to snuff a candle. Toad had immediately shipped him up to Bay Meadows where he now was and on the morrow, Saturday, he was entered in a $2,500 handicap.

Sporting Gentleman

"Now," Toad concluded confidentially, "here's how the deal will work out. Catastrophe hasn't been to the races for a year, so the bright boys will look him up in the dream book and discover he has bowed a tendon twice. So what? A laugh. Seein' Catastrophe entered in a $2,500 handicap with horses that never stepped a mile in 1:38, the handicappers will write two words after his name: 'Lion meat.'

"But—I tell you he's sound as a bell of brass and will probably run a dozen races before he breaks down again, and then it will be for good. The race tomorrow is at a mile and a sixteenth, and that's pie for Catastrophe. He can, if pushed, step the mile in 1:36½; he'll coast in.

"He's a lamb at the post, never wearies himself jumping around sweating with nervousness; he has a top rider up, he has No. 4 position, which is well, because the favorite is No. 1 and the rail horse always stands a good chance of getting pinched off in the early running and shuffled back. Catastrophe breaks like lightning, so he will not be bumped; he'll step the first eighth in :111-5 and when he's out in front his boy will pick the fairly soft going about four feet out from the rail.

"The public, always swayed by the so-called wise monkeys, will make him the biggest overlay since Cain slew Abel. You see, Tom, the clockers saw him yesterday morning, but they haven't seen him in a workout so they have no line on his present speed. But everybody will say he belongs in $800 or $1,000 handicaps, if at all—so you scrape the bottom of your poke and bet him with a bookie uptown. Whatever you do don't bet him at the track. I'm wiring $5,000 to a dozen big eastern bookmakers so as not to break down the track odds, altho at that some of my money may find its way back to the track. But still the old hero should pay at least 30 to 1, altho I'll be satisfied with 15 to 1. The bookies pay 20 to 1 for the first $50 and 15 to 1 for all over that. They got to have a limit, on account they operate on their own bankrolls."

Toad McArdle wrote on one of his cards the name and address of a responsible and courageous bookmaker uptown. On the reverse of this card he wrote: "Introducing my good friend, Thomas Moody. He's right. Toad McArdle."

Toad's selling argument had been so torrential that Thomas Moody hadn't had time to ask a question except: "You're sure he'll win, Toad?"

"If he don't," Toad replied grinning, "I'll be on relief."

Immediately after luncheon Toad hurried away to a bank to telegraph his $5,000 bet to the eastern bookmakers and Thomas Moody went thoughtfully back to his steel cage.

In midafternoon his wife telephoned to inform him that a special delivery registered letter had just been received from the Federal Housing authority, informing him that unless he settled within 10 days the delinquent payments of his mortgage, foreclosure proceedings would be instituted. "Tom, what will we do?" she wailed.

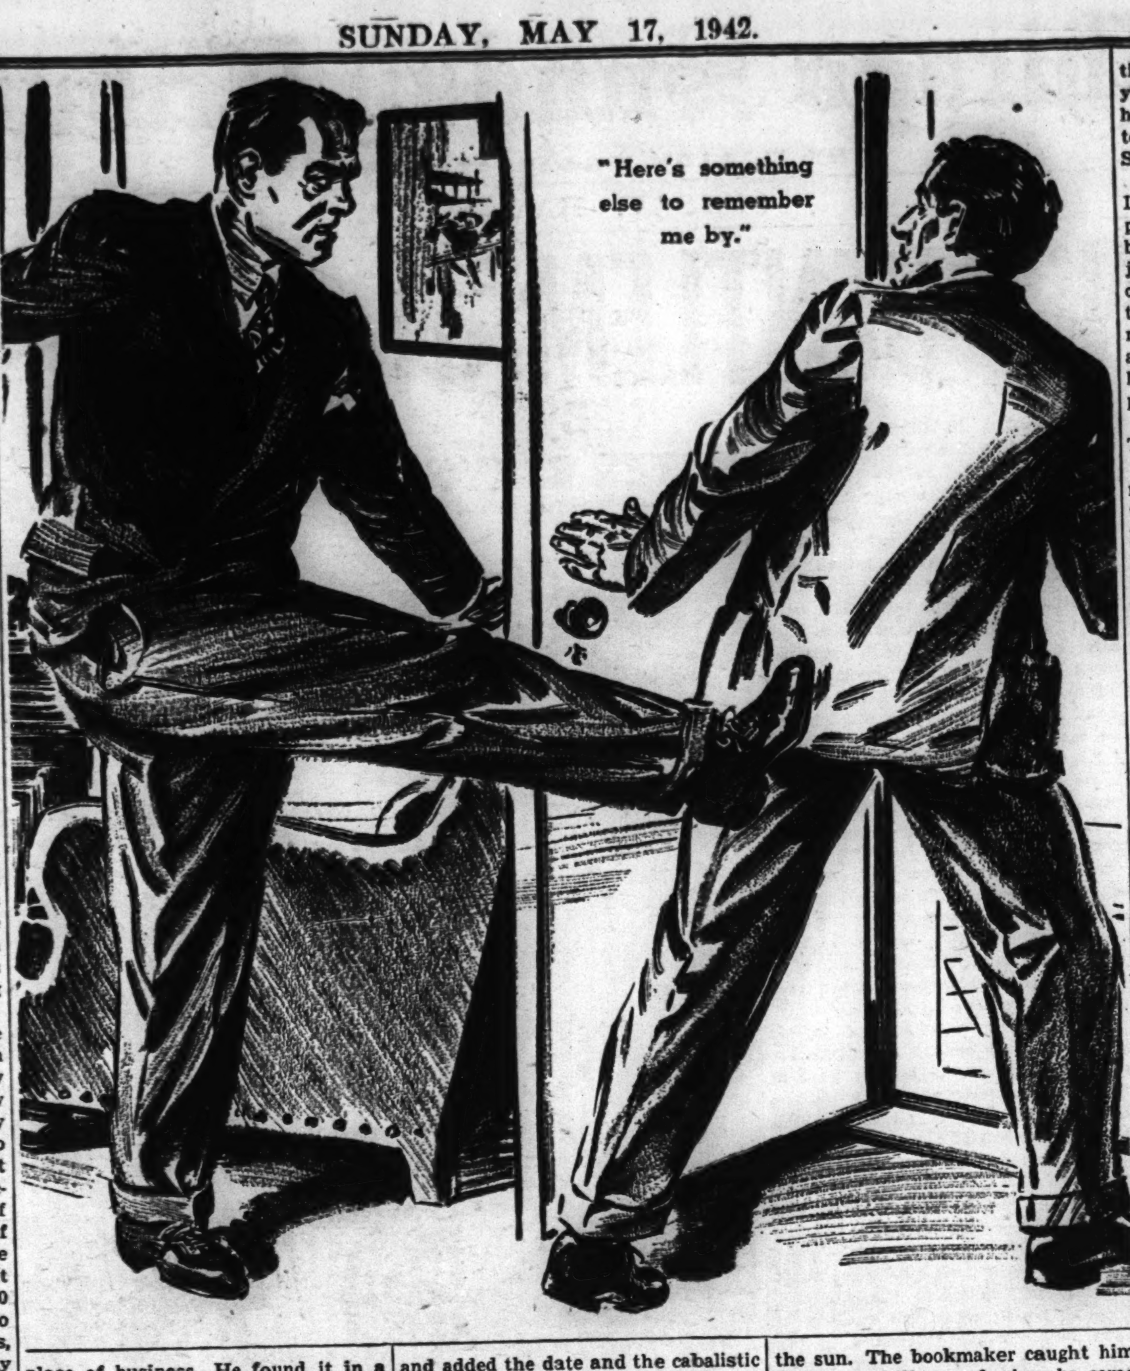
Thomas Moody said reassuringly: "Don't worry, darling. I think I can borrow the money."

Just before he closed his office at 1 o'clock on Saturday Thomas Moody helped himself to $1,000 of his company's funds. When his conscience cried: "Thomas Moody, you have embezzled $1,000," Thomas Moody retorted: "I have not. I've merely borrowed it for a few hours."

Hadn't he been the beneficiary of two miracles brought about by the employment of courage? Why not a third? Old Toad would never have given him that hot tip if the horse wasn't a sure winner. Of course, if Catastrophe lost the race Thomas Moody knew what would happen. He could cover his peculation until after the first of the year, when a firm of certified public accountants would appear to audit the company's books and records.

On the morning of Jan. 2 one of these C. P. A. fellows would count his cash and prove it; then the boss would call him in and fire him and report his defalcation to the bonding company, which would make good to the company and then proceed to put him in the penitentiary. Bonding companies never showed mercy because it was not good business. They had to make horrible examples.

However, reflection on this point made him jittery, so, when the office closed for the week at 1 o'clock he hurried uptown to the bookmaker's place of business. He found it in a suite of offices in an office building, and upon the doors appeared the legend: Pioneer Investment and Loan company.



"Here's something else to remember me by."

He entered and knew at once he was in a poolroom, for a partition had been knocked out to make two small offices into a large room, in which a dozen men milled, studying form charts, making bets, coming and going. Thomas Moody breasted a counter behind which three men worked and timidly asked for the proprietor. A big, smiling, good-natured-appearing man in the middle fifties said he was the proprietor and Thomas Moody handed him the card Toad McArdle had furnished.

The big man said, "What can I do for you, Mr. Moody?"

"I—I—I—wa-ant to make a—bet," Thomas Moody managed to answer. "Quite—quite a—large one."

"How much did you wish to wager, Mr. Moody?"

"One thousand dollars," Thomas Moody's voice squealed with excitement—and fear.

Moody Bets Entire Thousand to Win

The shrewd eyes roved over him for about 10 seconds. Then: "What's the name of the steed you fancy, where is he running, in what race, and how do you wish to play him?"

"Catastrophe—in the handicap this afternoon—at Bay Meadows—to win."

The bookie pondered, looked Thomas Moody over again, and said: "Are you sure you can afford to lose? A thousand dollars is considerable money, Mr. Moody."

Thomas Moody bridled at this exhibition of paternalism. "So you think Catastrophe will not win?" he replied.

"He will—if the other horses in the race fall down and he doesn't stumble over them."

"Well," said Thomas Moody, "he's Toad McArdle's horse and Toad says he'll win as far as you can throw a rock. Don't you think he ought to know more about his own horse than you do? After all, he's trained the animal. Besides, Toad and I went to school together and if he wasn't certain his horse was going to win he wouldn't advise me to risk a wager on him."

"Who am I to refute such irrefutable testimony?" said the bookmaker unsmilingly. "Give me your thousand dollars." He poised a pencil over a card. "Name in full, address, telephone number, and name of next of kin, Mr. Moody—in case you win and the shock kills you. In that event I'd send a check to your next of kin." Mr. Moody gave the requested information and the man wrote it down and added the date and the cabalistic formula 1-G:W-CAT-6 and dated it.

He wrote this formula on another card and handed it to Thomas Moody. "That means," he explained, "one grand to win on No. 4 horse in the sixth race at Bay Meadows today. Present it to the cashier to identify yourself when you call to collect your winnings. Return at 4:15 and I'll tell your fortune without the aid of tea-leaves, cards, planets or numerology."

"Can't I wait here?"

"I wouldn't advise it. I'm subject to raid, without notice, from the special service squad of the police department, and when they raid a poolroom usually they back the patrol wagon up to the door and load the visitors into it as material witnesses."

"That wouldn't do at all for me," Thomas Moody agreed. "It'd cost me my job if my boss read about it in the paper."

"O, nobody gives his real name to the booking sergeant. You got an important job?"

"I'm cashier for a big packing company."

"Then you shouldn't be betting on horses, my friend. What's the idea?"

"Got to have money," Thomas Moody confessed, and wondered why he had the urge to do that.

"For what?"

"Well, for a new baby, for one thing."

The big bookmaker smiled, a warm and human smile. "Boy, you don't know a thing about it. The little woman might present you with twins."

"Gosh," Thomas Moody sighed, "that certainly would be nice to have but hard to bear."

Thomas Moody fled. The bookmaker gazed after him, noting his old shiny blue suit, his cheap shoes, that had been resoled, his shirt with the saw-edges on collar and cuffs, his $2 hat. He shook his head. He didn't care for the business of the Thomas Moodys of this world.

While he was considering the Moody situation another total stranger dropped in, with a card of introduction from Toad McArdle, and bet $200 on Catastrophe to win. Within 20 minutes three more of Toad's friends arrived, with cards of introduction and bet on Catastrophe a total sum of $700. The bookmaker took the addresses and telephone numbers of all these daring devils, also giving them the same reason therefor he had given Thomas Moody.

Exactly at 4:15 Thomas Moody returned and the bookmaker led him into his private office. "Catastrophe," he announced, "wasn't in the money. He was off first and finished last."

Thomas Moody's face swiftly assumed a color not unreminiscent of a verdant meadow during an eclipse of the sun. The bookmaker caught him as he was falling, and when he came out of his faint he found he was handcuffed by one hand to a radiator. He lay outstretched on a rug and wept.

At 5:30 the bookmaker entered. "The day's work is done," he announced, "and everybody's gone. Excuse me for handcuffing you to the radiator, but you're the type that, with your honor gone, might jump out the window. And I can do without that sort of advertising." He unlocked the handcuffs and threw them on his desk. "Paid a dollar and a half for those in a pawnshop this afternoon," he explained. "I had a hunch I might have to use them to hold you until I had time to interview you. I do not get a hunch very often, but when I do I play it straight. Have a chair."

Thomas Moody had a chair. "You have been in hell for about an hour," the bookmaker went on, "and that should be long enough to cure what ails you, I think." He took a large envelope from his inner coat pocket and handed it to Thomas Moody. "There's the thousand dollars you thought you bet on Catastrophe. In fact, it's the identical money you gave me and I suggest you get it back into the safe this very afternoon."

Thomas Moody nodded. He was physically incapable of speech—and the bookmaker dug into his trousers pocket and pulled out a plethoric roll, skinned $500 off it, and handed the money to Thomas Moody. "The cost for twins," he declared, "is no more than the cost of a single baby. I know, because my wife presented me with twins early this morning. Take it. Don't stand there gibbering at me, you poor sap."

Thomas Moody reached forth a trembling hand and took the $500.

The bookmaker went on: "In my operations I sometimes discover I have accepted too many bets on one horse; that if said horse wins I'll finish the day in red ink. So I maintain a branch office close to the local tracks, and when I want to play safe I telephone my man there to run over to the track and make me a bet in the pari-mutuel machines. This is known as comeback money, evidence that the bookmaker is hedging."

Thomas Moody nodded owlishly, pretending he understood.

"There is a well-known axiom among sporting gentlemen, Mr. Moody," the bookmaker continued, "to the effect that a horse player must go broke. So I rarely bet a horse for gain, altho daily I do so for protection. When you shoved a thousand dollars at me today and gave me that weird tale about Toad McArdle and his horse, Catastrophe; when I looked at you and noticed your agitation I thought you must be making your first bet on a horse, that you had stolen the money and were about to collapse with excitement and fear. So I bucketed your bet.

"I knew I could afford to, because I'm about one of the best handicappers you'll ever meet. I have to be, because I'm always betting that my judgment of a horse's chance to win or lose is better than that of my customer. There were 12 horses in that race and if 11 of them could run away from Catastrophe and hide I'd have been willing to eat Catastrophe's oats."

"You're wonderfully kind to me," Thomas Moody stammered.

"I am not. I'm wonderfully kind to myself. I cannot afford your kind of trade. Quite generally it tells the police the money was stolen to bet on the races, and 9 times out of 10 the bookie who accepted the bet gets a blast of publicity and the police put him out of business until the public forgets. Whatever you nuts do is bad advertising for me."

Thomas Moody had no answer for that.

"When you stand back of a counter and do business with all sorts and conditions of men you begin to know human nature, Mr. Moody. For instance, I knew that thousand was the first money you had ever stolen. Heretofore you'd drop 3 cents in your petty cash if you used a stamp belonging to the firm."

The bookmaker sighed, stood up, and gazed out the window. "And you wanted it to pay for a baby." He wagged his head. "You must be nuts. Still when you told me that I had a hunch. I never play horses for profit, but this afternoon I did—for a profit for you. Last night I'd handicapped a horse in that race—a mare named Sweet Baby—and concluded that with fair racing luck she might win. So I bet two fifty with another bookie at 2 to 1 and get back my bet and 500 I win—for you."

"But-but-but—didn't you make a bet for those twins?" Thomas Moody quavered.

"Not a dime. I did something better than that for them. I promised their mother when I called at the hospital this morning that I'd get out of business this evening. I can afford to. I was making big money and we were both enjoying it, but—a horse player must go broke and we couldn't take any more chances—for the sake of our twins. You'd taken a long chance—for the sake of your kids—O, damn it, get the hell out of here."

Healthy Kick Propels Thomas from Office

He strode to the door and threw it wide open. "Get going, boy."

"I'll never, never forget you," Thomas Moody declared. Tears were brimming his eyes.

"You bet you'll never forget me, Mr. Moody. Here's something else to remember me by," and he delivered to the rear of Mr. Thomas Moody the great-grandfather of all kicks.

He went back into his office and lighted a cigar. Presently Toad McArdle came bouncing in. "Toad," said the bookmaker, "you ought to be writing short stories for the magazines instead of hustling business for a book. The 10 per cent I pay you on losing bets you steer my way would be chickenfeed compared with what you could earn writing fiction."

"I don't get you," said Toad, a little uneasily.

"Your sucker friend, Thomas Moody, tipped me off, so I bucketed his bet and those of your other friends you didn't hesitate to try to sell down the river for the sake of 10 per cent of their lost bets. Toad, that was right nasty of you to try to swindle that Moody jackass."

"Well," Toad replied, jauntily, "when a feller's lost his roll and has to do the best he can, why he does the best he can."

"You're another proof that a horse player must die broke. What the devil have you been sitting on, Toad?"

"Have I been sitting on something?" Toad exclaimed and turned and presented his posterior for inspection. The bookmaker gave him three for luck and threw him out . . . en route home the bookmaker dropped in to a florist's shop and found Thomas Moody buying a quarter bunch of violets—and in San Francisco a quarter buys a very sizable bunch of violets. "Did you put it back?" he demanded, and Thomas Moody nodded.

"Those violets for the wife?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, that will help." He ordered baby roses sent to his wife and went out humming a dreadful ballad then very popular with blues singers on the radio—"I can get along without you very well."

HIS FABULOUS FORTUNE

What Has Gone Before

Gregory Zivotti, son of Brute Zivotti, notorious New York gangster, has been brought up under his mother's maiden name of Williams, but in spite of her wishes for him to become an honest lawyer he has followed in his father's footsteps and in his gangster circles is called Grongo. Wheely, the Brute's crippled protege, is also anxious for young Gregory to go straight and begs him to join the army and fight for humanity instead of against it. On her deathbed Mrs. Zivotti gives her husband $200,000 in cash to hide for Grongo until he is 25. The Brute hides the money in his wife's statue for her grave in California. But, always afraid his enemies will kill him before he is able to tell his son about the inheritance, the Brute makes Grongo promise to erect a joint monument for his mother and father upon his father's death, and at that time destroy the statue of his mother with his own hands. The Brute has $100,000 of his own saved up to pay off Wolf Jaegel for taking the rap for him when the law caught up with them in their restaurant racketeering. He is to give Wolf the money upon his release from prison, but he is forced to use $70,000 of it in bribes to get Grongo out of a murder scrape. Grongo, trying to gain control of the Regal chain restaurants, got himself into that trouble by planning to kidnap Tony Rever, daughter of the president of the Regal company. His plan went haywire when a Rever detective and Sandy McGarvin, Grongo's henchman, killed each other and Grongo is arrested for their murders. To avoid a scandal Tony's parents send her to Palm Springs, as they know she is half way in love with Grongo and he professes to love her. Jaegel, out of prison, demands his money from the Brute, takes the remaining $30,000, but insists on full payment. In desperation the Brute tells Jaegel of his son's inheritance, but before he is able to tell him where it is hidden he is killed by a car. Jaegel demands the money from Grongo, and Grongo flees to California. Jaegel, aided by Puff McGarvin, Sandy's sister, who is trying to avenge her brother's murder, follows Grongo. Speeding, Grongo is seriously hurt in an automobile accident in front of the Mallison road stand and is taken into the Mallison home, where Ann, the Mallisons' pretty young daughter, helps nurse Grongo while her sweetheart, Walter Locke, grows jealous. Ann, too, finds herself growing jealous of Tony Rever, to whom Grongo has sent a love letter dictated to Ann. Jaegel and Puff trail Grongo from the cemetery where he went to see his parents' graves but failed to break up his mother's statue. They descend upon him at the Mallisons' and, posing as his uncle and cousin, ask to board there until Grongo fully recovers.

INSTALMENT VIII.

GRONGO greeted Jaegel with poisonous tenderness.

"Good morning, dear unkie. Happy birthday to you! And did my little nunkins sleep well?"

There was vitriol in Jaegel's curses.

"Sleep well? Me? On a creaky, slippery old davenport?"

"It must be cruel," said Grongo, "after the oriental divans you've been sleeping on for the last few years. Why don't you send to the Big House up the river and ask them to airmail you the bed you occupied so long? Still, maybe you'd better leave it there. You may be going back for another visit soon. Besides, you'll have plenty of time here to get used to your davenport. Weeks and weeks—maybe, months and months."

Jaegel stood over him with fists twitching to smash those piercing eyes of Grongo's shut. But that would take a bit of explaining. He was bound hand and foot by frail withes, things that would take a lot of explaining. He stormed away to his breakfast.

That afternoon Dr. Plaskett came to look Grongo over. Grongo introduced his dear uncle, and Jaegel had to pretend great solicitude for his favorite nephew. He asked how long it would be before the dear boy could be up and about again.

"O, weeks and weeks," said the doctor, and Grongo added:

"Maybe months and months, eh, doctor?"

"Could be," said Plaskett. "Or even longer if any complications should set in."

"All I need," Grongo asked, "is great care and faithful nursing, isn't it, doctor?"

"They're all that matter now."

"How lucky I am," said Grongo, "to have the watchful protection of a good man like my uncle! He came all the way out from New York to take care of me."

"It's beautiful to see families hang together," said the doctor. "It's so rare nowadays."

"Nowadays," said Grongo, "families don't always hang together. Sometimes they go to the electric chair separately."

"Haw, haw, haw!" Dr. Plaskett turned to Jaegel. "He says the funniest things! Get a sense of humor. And as I always say, a sense of humor is a great help in getting thru the world. Don't you think so, sir?"

Jaegel said he thought so. But he could think of nothing less humorous than the idea that Grongo might lie in that bed for months, while he tossed on that davenport. He could not foresee how lucky his hatred of that davenport was going to be—for Grongo.

It had been many a day since Walter Locke had found fault with Ann because her head wagged from side to side as she stood at her counter and watched the swift cars go by.

Now he wished her head would wigwag again. She had given up expecting Tony Rever to appear, for, of late, she had kept her back to the highway and her eyes fixed mournfully on the house. She could not see into the room where Grongo lay, but her thought was always there and Walter was more jealous of the interloper because he was crippled and almost motionless than if he had been moving about in grace and strength. Walter knew that to most women a man's helplessness is an almost irresistible form of courtship, a call often more potent than any other form of sex appeal.

Walter knew better than to say anything unkind about Grongo. But Walter's heart was black and green with rage at the way the stranger had chosen to force himself on the Mallison ranch and wreck its peace. Yet, while Grongo made trouble enough, his uncle and his cousin turned the little backwater into a maelstrom of discomfort, suspicion, mystery.

Ann had no objection to anything Walter could say about those two; but Grongo had stormed her heart by his disastrous arrival. Never did an actor make a more melodramatic entrance than his. He came along at a furious rate, stopped short, and fairly exploded into her life. He had still more endeared himself by letting her save him from a frightful death, and then take care of him as if he were a babe in a cradle. But she was troubled by the way he greeted his uncle and his cousin when they appeared.

For the hundredth time Walter was saying to her:

"I don't believe they can be his relations. I think he loathes them and they loathe him."

Tony Arrives at Ranch and Interrupts Quarrel

"Does that prove they're not his relations?" Ann asked. "Or that they are? You've been here when Uncle Ezra dropped in for a few days with that horrible daughter of his, Cousin Hattie."

"I get your point," Walter laughed. "I've got some kinfolk of my own. But Uncle Jaegel and Cousin Puff—I'll bet we could find out a lot about both of 'em if we sent their fingerprints to the FBI."

"Walter!" Ann gasped. "That's outrageous. If they're criminals, then Grongo would be one."

"I wouldn't put it past him," said Walter. "He's certainly played the sneak thief with your affections."

And now the fat was in the fire. A good old-fashioned wrangle blazed merrily and they did not heed the car that drove up to the stand until the noise of brakes caught their ears. They turned to see a girl leaning out across the car door and rather telling than asking:

"This is the Mallison ranch?"

"Yes," said Ann.

"Mr. Gregory Williams is here?"

"Yes," said Ann.

"I'd like to see him."

"I'm afraid he—he's not up; he's had an accident."

"So he told me—in a letter. I'm Tony Rever. Maybe you wrote the letter."

Without waiting for an answer, she stepped from the car. Ann had been eating her heart out with a longing to go to New York and buy New York clothes. She was dazed when this New Yorkiest of New Yorkesses stood before her dressed like a cowhand.

Tony wore blue jean breeches stuffed into short black cowboy boots, Her dark brown shirt was finely tailored, but it was a cowboy shirt. Her hat was rather that of a vaquero with its flat, broad brim, its black strings hanging down past the ears, its low crown and its hatband studded with Navajo medallions of silver and turquoise. Her scarf was of a turquoise color crisscrossed with a brown pattern. Her forearms were almost covered with rattling circlets of silver rope alternating with turquoise-laden bracelets.

Her head was small, her hair black, and her eyes blue. Without a hint of snobbery, she gave the impression that she was used to being obeyed. Her requests were so like commands that Ann faltered:

"I'll ask him if—I'll tell him you are here. He may be asleep."

"If he is, wake him!" said Tony. She was about to follow Ann down the path to the front door of the house, but she took a second look at Walter and decided to wait. Before Ann was out of earshot she could hear in Tony's voice the subtle change of tone a woman makes when she addresses a man instead of another woman. Hardly the same voice that had challenged Ann now fairly caressed Walter. Ann resented this because, after all, Walter belonged to her; but she did not linger to fight for him. She heard Tony saying:

"Do you raise all these beautiful things on your ranch? How wonderful!"

Ann went on to the house. The nurse was out in the kitchen gossiping with Beulah. From within Grongo's room came a mumble of rancorous voices. They stopped when Ann knocked and put her head in to say:

"Miss Tony Rever is here to see you."

"My God!" said Grongo.

Puff said the same thing. But evidently the name meant nothing to Jaegel, whose face was still clouded with the look of anger he had not quite erased. But he said nothing, and the others were silent. After a long moment Ann asked:

"Shall I tell her you have company?"

"O, no!" said Grongo. "Show her in, please."

"Wait once!" said Jaegel, and then to Ann. "Would you mind to wait a minute."

His tone implied "Wait outside." Ann did not relish being treated like a servant, but she closed the door and did not even attempt to eavesdrop. Jaegel was the first to speak.

"Is this the Rever girl your father tells me you are going to marry?"

Puff answered for him bitterly, all her reawakening love for Grongo turned again to hate.

"Marry? She's not the marrying kind. But she's the swell sweetie Grongo was trying to make—and take. Between 'em they got my brother murdered. Grongo ought to have gone to the chair for it; but his father bought him a judge."

"With my money," said Jaegel, the old wrath blazing up again. "Tell her to go away."

"But I wrote her a letter," Grongo protested.

"You wrote!" Jaegel gasped, with instant suspicion. "I thought your hands were broken—instead of your neck."

Grongo smiled: "I mean, of course, I dictated a letter. Miss Mallison wrote it for me before my dear uncle and his daughter came to my rescue."

Jaegel growled: "Well, you can tell her that's who we are, and we'll stay and see you don't try any funny business."

Puff protested:

"But you can't introduce me as Grongo's cousin. Tony knows me well. She'll smell a rat."

"Two rats," said Grongo, "and very smelly—two stinkers, in fact."

Jaegel's eyes narrowed with rage. Puff caught his arm.

Federation of Music Clubs to Breakfast

The Illinois Federation of Music Clubs will dedicate its third annual white breakfast, to be held at noon on Wednesday at the La Salle hotel, to our "fighting musicians." Since the federation recently announced its plan to purchase two ambulances for the United States fighting forces thru the British and American ambulance corps, the theme of the breakfast will be patriotic thruout. Member clubs which formerly competed for prizes in table decoration will abandon even the white motif in favor of red, white, and blue.

Mrs. Guy P. Gannett.

Following a traditional candle lighting ceremony which opens the breakfast, Mrs. Royden J. Keith, state president of the federation, will preside over a musical program. Among the special guests with her at the speakers' table will be Mrs. Guy P. Gannett of Portland, Me., president of the National Federation of Music Clubs; William V. C. Ruxton of New York, national president of the British and American Ambulance corps, and Mrs. Marie N. Deems, national vice president.

• • •

As state chairman of war service and executive chairman of the hostess district, Mrs. James Allen Young is in charge of arrangements for welcoming the 1,000 guests expected. She has asked a group of young women, headed by Mrs. Andrew Rebori Jr. and Mrs. Nelson Thomasson III., to usher and model hats they have fashioned from paper on a patriotic motif. Mrs. O. B. DuRand and Mrs. La Verne McKenna have charge of decorating the speakers' table.

Mrs. Harry J. Hartung.

Mrs. Young also has another important musical event on her calendar this week. At 3 o'clock today in the Chicago room of the La Salle hotel she will attend the sixth anniversary of the founding of the Music Study Club of Chicago. Mrs. Young, retiring president of the organization, will present roses to new members, and she and four other founder members—Mrs. Henry J. Hartung, Mrs. Ella Leimbach, Edith Heffner Dobson, and Myrtle Weldon—will be served pieces of the club's birthday cake.

Junior members of the club who will present a musical program are Lydia Smutny, pianist; Vitus Smutny, violinist, and Betty Jeffries, coloratura soprano. The final chapters of a course in American music, which the club has been studying, will be discussed by Madelene Dahlman.

• • •

Succeeding Mrs. Young in office at the close of the program will be Miss Frieda Wille. Other new officers are Mrs. Leimbach, first vice president, and Mrs. Marguerite Prescott, recording secretary.

The Illinois State Music Teachers' association will meet today in the east lounge of the Edgewater Beach hotel for its annual convention. A business meeting and election will start off the session from 2 to 4 o'clock and will be followed by a round table discussion from 4:30 to 5:30 o'clock on the place of music in wartime. Mrs. Claire Johnson, 1014 Ridge court, Evanston, has charge of reservations for the 6:30 o'clock reception and dinner.

Announce Engagement of Charlotte Vavrik

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Vavrik of Riverside announce the engagement of their daughter, Charlotte, to Jess Yates, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Yates of Des Plaines. The wedding is to take place after Miss Vavrik and Mr. Yates have received their degrees from Northwestern university, where they are students.

ENGAGED TO ENSIGN

Miss Helen Marie Besola, whose engagement to Ensign Lucas Henry Youngvorst is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emil M. Besola of Negaunee, Mich. Miss Besola, a graduate of the Evanston Hospital School of Nursing, has been living in Evanston. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Youngvorst of Moline, Ill., was graduated from Northwestern university.

Conference of Club Presidents to Mark 25th Year

The 25th anniversary of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen will be observed at a luncheon on Saturday at the Stevens hotel. Introducing the program will be the conference's president, Mrs. Charles S. Clark, who conceived the idea for such an organization 25 years ago when she was president of the Englewood Woman's club.

Mrs. Charles S. Clark.
[Moffett Photo.]

The conference was founded for the purpose of introducing talented young artists to club program makers. The group now numbers 1,600 members from clubs in southern Wisconsin, northern Indiana, southern Michigan, and northern Illinois.

Appearing on Saturday's program will be Cornelia Otis Skinner and the String Symphonietta. Special guests will be a number of prominent Chicago women. Place card programs will be in the form of book jackets similar to those on "Thursday at Ten," a history of the conference written by Marguerite Harmon Bro.

Rhoda Ann Hofmann Will Be Bride on Wednesday

The marriage of Miss Rhoda Ann Hofmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hofmann of Keystone, to Frank Myron Wright Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Wright of New England avenue, is to take place on Wednesday in the Washington Boulevard Methodist church in Oak Park. After the wedding, Mr. Wright will take his bride to Cambridge, Mass., where he will resume his studies at the Harvard school of business administration. Among the wedding guests will be the bridegroom's great-grandmother, Mrs. Eleanor Gridley, 95 year old Lincoln author and lecturer.

Cornish Town Lies Serene in Wisconsin Hills

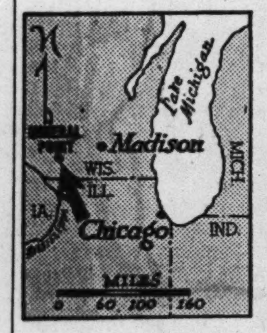
By Chester Holway.

MINERAL POINT, WIS.

The old lead mining country looks like the abandoned playlot of a gang of giant boys forever making mud pies and sand castles. They slashed, trenched, piled, and puddled. Then some one called them home to supper and they left their handiwork. Nobody ever cleaned it up.

Of course, no mischievous boys worked all this havoc; the miscreants were simply ordinary men digging for "mineral." Sometimes they called it galena, sometimes mineral. It was all the same—lead ore—and they used it to make bullets. The French discovered it. Nicolas Perrot was one of the first to make a digging. Watching him, the Indians got the idea, and picked away at the earth, crudely, as best they could.

• • •



After 1800 the westward pushing Americans heard of the rich deposits and moved in. There was some fussing from the Indians about treaty rights and such nonsense, but that was easily fixed and the new diggings spread. From the Apple river valley in northwestern Illinois to the headwaters of the Pecatonica in Wisconsin men dug for lead. In 1829 they took out 12 million pounds of the blue-gray ore.

Twenty years later many of the inveterate miners rushed off to California after gold. Those who remained turned to farming, and soon the lead mining ceased almost entirely. Only the scars now remain—a caving hillside hole, rotting timberworks, crumbling foundations, leaning smelter stacks.

Nature has worked to tidy up the mess, smoothing and greening, and today she seems quite proud of her accomplishment. And down the road, tucked among the dissected hills, lies Mineral Point.

• • •

Mineral Point is one of those curious Wisconsin towns that thought they were all thru and then woke up the other day to discover themselves beginning a new career. A hundred years ago this was the "capital" of the lead mining province. Wagons heaped with ore squeaked on its hilly streets in long parade. When the miners quit digging for lead and turned to plowing corn, Mineral Point settled down to grow old gracefully as a farmers' retiring town.

Many of the miners were Cornishmen, from the south Cornwall village of Camborne. The first comers lived for a while in shallow caves in the hillsides, like badgers. Some one called them that, and badger has been the nickname for a Wisconsin citizen ever since. Later the miners built solid houses out of the soft, yellowy, hillside stone. They were houses to last. People lived in them generation after generation.

Then one day two bright young men came along, discovered that these houses were picturesque, and chose one to restore. They dug up old recipes of Cornish wives, and offered passing guests saffron cake and pasty. Almost before the citizens knew it their town was on the tourist route.

• • •

I have come into Mineral Point on a tipsy little road that just manages to stagger into town. I can see at once why it goes no further. Mineral Point is a higgledy-piggledy place where every street is a new adventure. How I should hate to arrive here on a dark night! Streets are continually running down hill and up, jumping off into space, and hurrying nowhere.

I search around for Shake-rag street and Pendarvis house, remembering how the street acquired its name. [Housewives signaled at mealtime to their husbands, mining the near-by hills, by waving cloths.] I find the street, sneaking along under a stone bluff, and the two stone houses—Pendarvis and Polperro—that travelers come to see. They are a hundred years old, and look it.

Pendarvis, with its rock garden chisled out of the bluff, is built of stone cut in square blocks. Woodbine clambers up one side, its leaves glistening in the sunshine. An iron street lamp stands before the stoop.

Pendarvis' neighbor, Polperro, is a larger house, three stories high, the first of stone blocks, the upper two of logs, adzed and chinked, under a split shingle roof. The builder took the easy way. He used the smooth rock bluff for his fourth wall, and literally carved his house out of the hillside.

• • •

My hopes for saffron cake and a dish of tea expire when I find a notice, tacked to the Pendarvis door, saying the houses are closed for the day. So I am content just to peek in the windows.

If these houses, and the dozens like them cascading down the hilly streets, were in New England they would have been snapped up by house-hunting city folk long ago. The flossy magazines would have written rapturously about them, and the doings of their owners would be chronicled in the society columns. Here in the uplands of Wisconsin they just sit, their yellow stones getting lovelier year by year. They have no classic background to atone for their common birth; they were built only yesterday, by immigrants.

[Mineral Point, in the hills of southwestern Wisconsin, is 188 miles from Chicago. Travelers will also want to visit the restored Gundry mansion.]

St. Petersburg Starts Annual Tarpon Roundup

St. Petersburg, Fla., May 16.—Under way since last midnight, St. Petersburg's eighth annual Tarpon roundup was in full swing today in one of the few unrestricted and unmenaced salt water fishing grounds in the world.

Sportsmen from all parts of the country were pursuing the silver king in rowboats, launches, cabin cruisers, and yachts in the Gulf of Mexico and Boca Ciega and St. Petersburg bays.

For the best catches in the heavy, medium, and light tackle divisions war bonds are being given this year as prizes, a $100 bond going to the captor of the largest single specimen regardless of the weight of tackle used. Awards are made for the largest number of fish caught in one day, the most tarpon caught and released during the roundup, the largest caught by a woman angler, and other classifications.

One of the most powerful of game fish, tarpon run well over 6 feet long and weigh up to 200 pounds or more, with scales the size and color of a silver dollar. Hour-long battles to bring the big fish to gaff frequently are experienced by experts, the best of whom sometimes are able to land only one of 10 which snatch the hook.

The roundup will end July 31.

War Program at the Tulip Festival

Holland, Mich., May 16.—Tulips and Dutch tradition will take second place in the Tulip Time program next Wednesday, when the accent will be placed on the war effort.

To be known as SMB day, Holland's part in America's war program will take the spotlight. "S" is for saving waste materials, "M" for making armaments, and "B" for buying bonds.

Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner, Col. Harold Furlong, and Capt. Don Leonard, in charge of Michigan civilian defense effort, will arrive at noon for a tour of inspection of war production plants. A dinner for county civilian defense heads will be held at 6 o'clock.

The SMB parade will form at the city hall at 7:30 o'clock and will include all local units now enrolled in civilian defense. The paraders will march to Riverview park, where a concert by the combined American Legion and Holland High school bands of 125 pieces will be played.

Tulip Time opened today with the street scrubbing, the wooden shoe dance, and the Volks parade.

Warm weather has brought out the tulips, and they are now at their best.

Travel in Comfort—by rail

In Mexico you will find yourself above the "hot weather" line... visit towns, cities and resorts from 4,000 to 8,000 feet in altitude. And how rich your reward! Days dry and sunny; nights cool and refreshing. Picturesque valleys in the shadow of snow-capped mountains; a profusion of gay, exotic flowers; pyramids of unknown origin; fiestas where colorful costumes greet the eye and rhythmic cadences fall upon appreciative ears. "Ideal," you'll say, "for rest or play."

No new war-time restrictions will affect your sojourn. This Good Neighbor country is in the "no passport area" and the usual tourist card suffices. Best of all, costs remain unbelievably low—your dollar in Mexico is worth almost five pesos!

Brilliant jewel of many facets, one more fascinating than another—this is Mexico. Pastel-colored villages in the shadow of snow-topped mountains. Xochimilco's world famous Floating Gardens. The throngs at Toluca's animated market. Guadalupe's Sacred Shrine, and nearby the Pyramids of the Sun and the Moon. Smiling bougainvillea in the village of Cuernavaca.

This, and more, is Mexico, whose climate is eternally spring and the desire of whose people is to welcome the strangers within its gates. Enjoy Mexico this summer. The road is clear. The door is open. There are no restrictions and no passport is required. Consult your Travel Agent or write for free, illustrated booklet.

Traveler Finds No Color Line Drawn in Brazil

[This is the 41st article of a series on South America. The next will appear in an early issue.]

By Mason Warner.

BELEM (PARA), BRAZIL. I know only the Madeira river, but I have chatted with those with personal experience at the beginnings of navigation on the Rio Negro and the Solimones [Amazon], and they tell me the inhabitants of the first thousand miles from the head of navigation of each of these great rivers are predominantly of Indian origin.

Coming down the river, one notes at Manaos, 1,200 miles from the Atlantic, an infiltration of Negro blood. From Manaos on to the sea the strain becomes more noticeable. The descendants of the millions of slaves imported from Africa have assumed social and economic importance.

It is interesting to recall that Brazil achieved the abolition of slavery without bloodshed and with no serious social nor economic upheaval. All that was necessary was the enactment of a law providing that on and after a certain date in 1871 all children of slaves would be born free and equal citizens. Time and death took care of those in bondage, but many benevolent landholders granted freedom to their slaves before their final call came, and these persons enjoyed life and living for years with no restraint from former masters.

BOLIVIA

On the headwaters of the Amazon tributaries Indians are in the majority. From Manaos to the Atlantic Negroes outnumber the Caucasians in all the river hamlets. At Belem the population, at first encounter, seems to be about 50-50. This earliest impression is probably correct, for accepted estimates on population give Brazil a total of 47,000,000, of which only 30 per cent are white, 12 per cent Negro, 13 per cent Indian, and 45 per cent mixed [white-Negro, white-Indian, and Indian-Negro].

Belem is a lively, up-to-date city, slowly recovering from the collapse of the Brazilian rubber boom, during which it was one of the wealthiest cities per capita in the world. Just how its more than 300,000 inhabitants could be designated on actual racial lines I do not know, and I do not believe any one else knows.

• • •

There is no color line in Brazil. The whites are more than unconscious of any racial difference. They are totally oblivious of it. They have actually forgotten that any demarcation ever existed.

In front of the cafés, at the sidewalk tables and chairs à la Paris, one sees groups of men, white and black, in cheerful comaraderie. In the theaters, in hotels, in restaurants, in the churches, everywhere, they foregather and intermingle in good fellowship.

It must be difficult for one born and reared south of the Mason-Dixon line in the United States to adjust oneself to Brazilian society, for the Brazilians, both white and black, are so friendly and cordial to North Americans that their amicable advances and good will cannot be withstood. The man with black blood in his veins knows no reason for an inferiority complex. Was not a dark mulatto, Nilo Pecanha, once president of the United States of Brazil? A good president, too, they say. And any Negro can aspire to the presidency of Brazil today, with no fear of the color line being a bar to his ambition, if he has ability and political "know how."

• • •

We need not have stayed so long in Belem to exhaust its sights and places of interest, but steamer schedules compelled a layover of two weeks. The broad avenues, bordered with orchid-bearing shade trees, never grew tiresome. The Goeldi museum and the nearby jungle Bosque, with its collection of Brazilian birds and animals, was worthy of two visits. An eighteenth century cathedral and the huge white marble Paz theater repaid tours of inspection.

There are no highways leading out of Belem to points of interest. Only one railroad serves the capital. That leads to Braganca [144 miles], on the seaboard, and has boat competition difficult to meet.

• • •

Traveling slowly down the Amazon one becomes aware of the tremendous commercial calamity the collapse of the Para rubber industry proved to be. "From riches to rags" suggests only part of the story. The commerce, industry, and labor of the great valley came almost to a dead stop in comparison with former feverish and profitable activity before Malaya took away its sources of existence.

Rubber continues to be one of the principal exports from Belem, and that trade is supplemented by shipments of nuts, cacao, timber, and rotenone. The last item promises soon to surpass all others in importance.

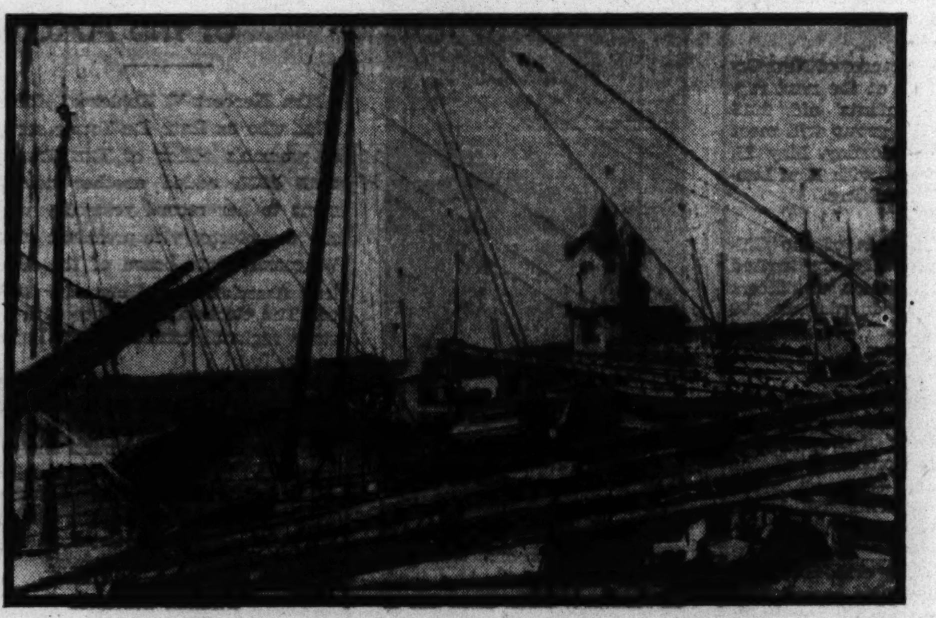
Rotenone is probably the greatest insecticide known to science. A recent government priority order forbids its sale on private account as the visible supply is required for delousing our soldiers and sailors, thus affording protection against the typhus fever which threatens European armies. Previous to the war it was used by truck gardeners and orchardists to kill bugs.

• • •

Rotenone is a powder ground from the roots of the timbo shrub. Timbo roots resemble in appearance the sticks of licorice root that children of the recent generation used to chew.

The Amazonian Indians for centuries have used the crushed roots to stun and paralyze fish in the streams. All they did was crush the roots and stir them on the water, and the fish turned up ready to be cooked.

The commercial value of timbo was discovered and developed by a North American, John James, whose long experience in Brazil extends from participating in the building of the Madeira-Mamore railroad—"a life for every cross tie"—to the development of Fordlandia, Ford's great rubber plantation.



THEY HELP TRANSPORT AN INSECTICIDE

Boats engaged in the rotenone trade gather at a pier in Belem (Para), Brazil. The scene is described by Mason Warner on this page.

CIVILIAN FURLOUGH BREAKS BOTTLENECK

1. Fred is as patriotic as the next man, but he just can't seem to get the work out any more. He goes through the motions, takes his work home, tries to concentrate, but it's no use—around the plant they're beginning to call his office "Department B"—for bottleneck.

2. "Trouble with you," says Madge, his charming wife, "is that you're overdoing it. No one—least of all the government—expects you to be Superman. The U. S. Travel Bureau says 'Travel Strengthens America' and if that isn't a broad hint then I never heard one."

3. The scene shifts . . . and here are Fred and Madge collecting vitamins and cool breezes on a broad Southern California beach. (Local papers please copy.) "Sure I'm taking the best I can get," says Fred, "this is one year a vacation's got to do something for you."

4. Yes, it's a BIG civilian furlough for Fred and Madge . . . ocean and mountains, golf and tennis, Old Missions, big trees, Mexico's quaint Olvera Street, the great industries of Los Angeles County—oil, oranges, movies, airplanes—working for victory!

5. Then the nights . . . balmy, star-studded, offering big broadcasts, symphonies, previews, famous boulevard restaurants and supper clubs . . . and celebrities. And just as the days are clear and rainless, these same nights will be cool . . . blankets on the bed.

6. And what's this? It's Fred back on the job, clear-eyed, sharp, filled with energy. It's "Department S" now—for speed. "Call it a Civilian Furlough or a plain vacation," says Fred, "a trip like that opens your eyes to what we're fighting for. Don't stand in my way!"

COME EARLY! GOVERNMENT FAVORS STAGGERED VACATIONS

Healthful recreation for civilians and workers is important, but the actual war effort must come first. In order to maintain top production at all times, our government has asked that vacation periods be spaced evenly around the calendar. This will also relieve our transportation system during the months of heavy travel.

Thus if you are planning a trip here by train, plane or bus, please come early—before the "peak" midsummer months if possible. And remember: Southern California is a year around resort. Anytime you arrive you will find conditions ideal for recreation, sport, and the refreshing change your body and mind require.

2 WEEKS IS ALL YOU NEED

FROM CHICAGO, Southern California is only a few hours by plane, 1 business day by fastest train, 2½ by modern buses. Many people find a two-week vacation ample.

LOW COSTS. Because there are no special "seasons" in Southern California, vacation costs are reasonable all the year around. Many business men find that valuable contacts and ideas here allow them to write off part of the cost as business expense. Ample accommodations in Los Angeles, Hollywood, Glendale, Pasadena, Beverly Hills, Santa Monica, Long Beach, Pomona and other cities of Los Angeles County and its neighbors.

BIG FREE BOOK HELPS YOU PLAN!

This colorful free book—America's most famous resort guide—contains page after page of authentic, useful information about your trip to Southern California: complete cost schedule, what to see and do, what to wear. Clip the valuable coupon today! We will send your free copy by return mail.

RECENT BRIDE

Mrs. Richard G. Murdock, the former Sherle Steven Keyes, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Stevens Keyes of Sheridan road. Mr. Murdock, whose home was in Los Angeles, is in training at an eastern army camp, and his bride is residing in Red Bank, N. J., until he is ordered elsewhere.

Mrs. H. V. Kohler Vice President of the AAUW

Mrs. Herbert V. Kohler of Kohler, Wis., who as Ruth De Young served as woman's editor of THE TRIBUNE until 1937, added another achievement to her record yesterday when she was elected vice president of the Wisconsin state board of the American Association of University Women. The election took place at a five state regional conference in Indianapolis, Ind.

Mrs. Kohler is a newcomer to the state board. Daughter of the late Chief Justice Frederic R. De Young of the Illinois Supreme court, she was graduated in 1928 from Smith college with cum laude honors and a membership in Phi Beta Kappa. She and Mr. Kohler have a three year old son and a six month old daughter.

A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting

New York, N. Y., May 16. Enchanted you'll be,—when you see the weather-magic "Summer Blacks" can invoke! Watch for smart "inky" dresses in your shops,—see what a cool, poised look they offer as challenge to hot weather ahead! Some are a foil for rainbow trim, others for chaste white. Most enticing of all are those simple "black-out" innocents for after-twilight gadding, exposing through shadowy black sheer the pale flesh of arm and shoulder . . . provocatively alluring and as cool as a summer breeze! Watch for "Summer Blacks" when you go BUY-LINing this week for these products I particularly recommend. . . .

Many definitions of "glamour" . . . but I'll place my bet on lovely eyes! No single feature can contribute so much to a woman's beauty—but it's a downright disgrace to ask them to "perform" for you without a little beauty-aid! Why not help your lashes seem longer and glossier by applying KURLENE every night before you retire? Then start the next day right, giving your lashes an upward swing by curling them with the New Improved Cushion-Guard KURLASH Eyelash Curler! It's the sudsin' whiz for thee . . .
For ev'ry fine-soap need, my friend,
SWAN, you'll find, is simply grand!

SWAN-derful for baby's bath—
Same purity as castile bath.
SWAN-derful for others' too,
Try a SWAN bath, lady, do!

SWAN-derful for dish and cloth,
China, glass and filmy froth.
SWAN-derful, I give my word . . .
Here's a soap that is a BIRD!

Dark-stands out like an exclamation point in the poetry of color. Look into the serenity of black, the chic of brown, the poise of navy, the refreshment of woodsy green, the way we've groomed them to stay in style. They come up like thunder across the horizon . . . no longer a mere shadow in the sun. If you're rushing from committee meeting to stamp stand and have earned a relaxing minute at matinee or dinner . . . in one split second the importance of dark clothes dawns on you.
